ABOUT THE COLLEGE

The Mission of Bryn Mawr College

The mission of Bryn Mawr College is to provide a rigorous education and to encourage the pursuit of knowledge as preparation for life and work. Bryn Mawr teaches and values critical, creative and independent habits of thought and expression in an undergraduate liberal-arts curriculum for women and in coeducational graduate programs in the arts and sciences and in social work and social research. Bryn Mawr seeks to sustain a community diverse in nature and democratic in practice, for we believe that only through considering many perspectives do we gain a deeper understanding of each other and the world.

Since its founding in 1885, the College has maintained its character as a small residential community that fosters close working relationships between faculty and students. The faculty of teacher/scholars emphasizes learning through conversation and collaboration, primary reading, original research and experimentation. Our cooperative relationship with Haverford College enlarges the academic opportunities for students and their social community. Our active ties to Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania as well as the proximity of the city of Philadelphia further extend the opportunities available at Bryn Mawr.

Living and working together in a community based on mutual respect, personal integrity and the standards of a social and academic Honor Code, each generation of students experiments with creating and sustaining a self-governing society within the College. The academic and cocurricular experiences fostered by Bryn Mawr, both on campus and in the College’s wider setting, encourage students to be responsible citizens who provide service and leadership for an increasingly interdependent world.

A Brief History of Bryn Mawr College

When Bryn Mawr College opened its doors in 1885, it offered women a more ambitious academic program than any previously available to them in the United States. Other women’s colleges existed, but Bryn Mawr was the first to offer graduate education through the Ph.D.—a signal of its founders’ refusal to accept the limitations imposed on women’s intellectual achievement at other institutions.

A Quaker Legacy

The founding of Bryn Mawr carried out the will of Joseph W. Taylor, a physician who wanted to establish a college “for the advanced education of females.” Taylor originally envisioned an institution that would inculcate in its students the beliefs of the Society of Friends (popularly known as Quakers), but by 1893 his trustees had broadened the College’s mission by deciding that Bryn Mawr would be non-denominational. Bryn Mawr’s first administrators had determined that excellence in scholarship was more important than religious faith in appointing the faculty, although the College remained committed to Quaker values such as freedom of conscience.

The College’s mission was to offer women rigorous intellectual training and the chance to do to original research, a European-style program that was then available only at a few elite institutions for men. That was a formidable challenge, especially in light of the resistance of society at large, at the end of the 19th century, to the notion that women could be the intellectual peers of men.

M. Carey Thomas’ Academic Ideal

Fortunately, at its inception, the College was adopted as a moral cause and a life’s work by a woman of immense tenacity, M. Carey Thomas. Thomas, Bryn Mawr’s first dean and second president, had been so intent upon undertaking advanced study that when American universities denied her the opportunity to enter a Ph.D. program on an equal footing with male students, she went to Europe to pursue her degree.

When Thomas learned of the plans to establish a college for women just outside Philadelphia, she brought to the project the same determination she had applied to her own quest for higher education. Thomas’ ambition—for herself and for all women of intellect and imagination—was the engine that drove Bryn Mawr to achievement after achievement.

The College established undergraduate and graduate programs that were widely viewed as models of academic excellence in both the humanities and the sciences, programs that elevated standards for higher education nationwide. Under the leadership of Thomas and James E. Rhoads, who served the College as president from 1885 to 1894, Bryn Mawr repeatedly broke new ground. It was, for example, the first institution in the United States to offer fellowships for graduate study to women; its self-government association, the first in the country at its founding in 1892, was unique in the United States in granting to students the right not only to enforce but to make all of the rules governing their conduct; its faculty, alumnae and students engaged in research that expanded human knowledge.

Engaging the World

In 1912, the bequest of an alumna founded the Graduate Department of Social Economy and Social Research, which made Bryn Mawr the first institution in the country to offer a Ph.D. in social work. In 1970, the department became the Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research. In 1921, Bryn Mawr intensified its engagement with the world around it by opening its Summer School for Women Workers in Industry, which offered scholarships for broad-based programs in political economy, science and literature to factory workers until 1938.

During the presidency of Marion Edwards Park, from 1922 to 1942, the College began to work toward cooperative programs with nearby institutions - Haverford College, Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania - that would later greatly expand the academic and social range of Bryn Mawr students. In 1931 the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences began to accept male students. During the decades of the Nazi rise to power in Europe and World War II, Bryn Mawr became home to many distinguished European scholars who were refugees from Nazi persecution.

A Tradition of Freedom

From 1942 to 1970 Katharine Elizabeth McBride presided over the College in a time of change and growth. During McBride’s tenure, the College twice faced challenges to its Quaker heritage of free inquiry and freedom of conscience. During the McCarthy era, Congress required students applying for loans to sign a loyalty oath to the United States and an affidavit regarding membership in the Communist party. Later, at the height of student protest against the Vietnam War, institutions of higher education were required to report student protesters as a condition of eligibility for government scholarship support.

On both occasions, Bryn Mawr emerged as a leader among colleges and universities in protecting its students’ rights. It was the first college to decline aid under the McCarthy-era legislation and the only institution in Pennsylvania to decline aid rather than take on the role of informer during the Vietnam War. Bryn Mawr faculty and alumnae raised funds to replace much of the lost aid, and a court eventually found the Vietnam-era law unconstitutional and ordered restitution of the scholarship funds.

Cooperation and Growth

During the 1960s, Bryn Mawr strengthened its ties to Haverford, Swarthmore and Penn when it instituted mutual cross-registration for all undergraduate courses. In 1969, it augmented its special relationship with Haverford by establishing a residential exchange program that opened certain dormitories at each college to students of the other college.

During the presidency of Harris L. Wofford, from 1970 to 1978, Bryn Mawr intensified its already-strong commitment to international scholarship. Wofford worked hard to involve alumnae overseas in recruiting students and raising money for their support and for the support of Bryn Mawr’s extensive overseas programs. Wofford, who later became a U.S. senator, also initiated closer oversight of the College’s financial investments and their ramifications in the world.

Mary Patterson McPherson led the College from 1978 to 1997, a period of tremendous growth in number and diversity of students - now nearly 1,300 undergraduates, nearly a quarter of whom are women of color. During McPherson’s tenure, Bryn Mawr undertook a thorough re-examination of the women-only status of its undergraduate college and concluded that providing the benefits of single-sex education for women - in cultivating leadership, self-confidence and academic excellence - remained essential to the College’s mission. McPherson, a philosopher, now directs the American Philosophical Society.

Nancy J. Vickers, Bryn Mawr’s president from 1997 to 2008, began her tenure by leading the College community to a clear understanding of its priorities and the challenges it would face in the next century through the adoption of the Plan for a New Century. When she retired in June 2008, she left the College with a 40 percent increase in undergraduate applications, a completed fund-raising campaign that tripled the goal of the previous campaign and an endowment that has nearly doubled since she took office.

Beyond attaining a sound financial footing for the College, Vickers oversaw dramatic changes in the academic program, in outreach and in infrastructure, while remaining true to the College’s historic mission. Those changes include refining undergraduate-recruiting messages and practices, initiating new interdisciplinary programs and faculty positions, improving student life, embracing cross-cultural communication, upgrading the campus’ use of technology, renovating many buildings, and achieving worldwide visibility through the Katharine Houghton Hepburn Center.

Embracing the Global Century

Jane Dammen McAuliffe was inaugurated as the eighth president of Bryn Mawr in October 2008. An internationally renowned scholar of Islamic studies, McAuliffe came to Bryn Mawr from Georgetown University, where she served as Dean of Arts and Sciences. McAuliffe’s scholarly work has been supplemented by participation in numerous efforts to foster dialogue and understanding among members of different faith traditions, including service on the Vatican’s Commission for Religious Relations with Muslims.

Under President McAuliffe’s leadership, the College is committing itself anew to liberal arts for the twenty-first century. With support from organizations including the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the College has initiated an innovative 360° Program, through which students focus a semester’s study around a specific theme, and has piloted the use of blended learning in courses across the curriculum. Greater collaboration with Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges has led to the creation of the Tri-Co Digital Humanities Consortium and a new Tri-College minor in Environmental Studies.

Addressing the global needs in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM), Bryn Mawr leads in preparing students for STEM careers. Currently, Bryn Mawr ranks among the top 10 U.S. colleges and universities in the percentage of female graduates pursuing doctorates in these fields. McAuliffe has made increasing the number of women entering STEM fields a key advocacy issue of her presidency.

In pursuit of a decidedly global agenda, McAuliffe has convened educators, activists, business leaders, and policymakers from around the world at Bryn Mawr in forums large and small to spur dialogue and to foster innovative initiatives. She has also begun to develop strategic partnerships with several important universities and colleges across the globe. Recently, Bryn Mawr joined with the U.S. Department of State and other leading women’s colleges to establish The Women in Public Service Project (WPSP) and will host the second annual WPSP Institute in June 2013. Bryn Mawr’s increasingly global nature is also evident in its international student population, which has more than doubled since McAuliffe took office.

While retaining all the benefits of a small residential women’s college, Bryn Mawr substantially augments its resources and coeducational opportunities through cooperation at the undergraduate level with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. This cooperative arrangement coordinates the facilities of the four institutions while preserving the individual qualities and autonomy of each. Students may take courses at the other colleges, with credit and without additional fees. Students at Bryn Mawr and Haverford may also major at either college. Bryn Mawr also has a limited exchange program with Villanova University.

The cooperative relationship between Bryn Mawr and Haverford is particularly close because the colleges are only about a mile apart, and naturally, this relationship extends beyond the classroom. Collections in the two colleges’ libraries are cross-listed, and the libraries are open to students from either college. Student organizations on the two campuses work closely together in matters concerned with student government and in a whole range of academic, athletic, cultural, and social activities. When there is equal interest from students on both campuses, Bryn Mawr and Haverford offer a housing exchange so that a few students may live on the other campus for a year.

Bryn Mawr itself sponsors a broad cultural program that supplements the curriculum and enriches its community life. Various lectureships bring scholars and other leaders in world affairs to the campus not only for public lectures but also for classes and conferences with the students. The Arts Program at Bryn Mawr coordinates the arts curriculum and a variety of extracurricular activities in creative writing, dance, fine arts, music, and theater. A regular schedule of concerts and productions is directed by the arts faculty at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges, together with performances by the theater and dance programs and other student-run groups. These activities are complemented by an extensive program of readings, exhibitions, performances, and workshops given by visiting artists.

Student organizations have complete responsibility for the many aspects of student activity, and student representatives join members of the faculty and administration in making and carrying out plans for the College community as a whole. Bryn Mawr’s Self Government Association, the nation’s oldest student self-government organization, provides a framework in which individuals and smaller groups function. The association both legislates and mediates matters of social and personal conduct.

Through their Self Government Association, students share with faculty the responsibility for the Academic Honor Code. One of the most active branches of the association is the Student Curriculum Committee, which, with the Faculty Curriculum Committee, originally worked out the College’s system of self-scheduled examinations. The joint Student-Faculty Committee meets regularly to discuss curricular issues and to approve new courses and programs.

The Self Government Association also coordinates the activities of many special-interest clubs, open to all students; it serves as the liaison between students and College officers, faculty and alumnae. The Athletic Association also provides opportunities for a variety of activities, including intramural and varsity contests. Both the Bryn Mawr college news and Bryn Mawr-Haverford’s The Bi-College News welcome students interested in reporting and editing.

Students participate actively on many of the most important academic and administrative committees of the College, as they do on the Curriculum Committee. Two undergraduates meet with the Board of Trustees, present regular reports to the full board and work with the board’s committees. Two undergraduates are also elected to attend faculty meetings. At the meetings of both the board and the faculty, student members may join in discussion but do not vote.

Bryn Mawr’s undergraduate enrollment and curriculum are shaped by a respect for and understanding of cultural and social diversity. As a reflection of this diversity, Bryn Mawr’s student body is composed of people from all parts of the United States, from many nations around the world, and from all sectors of society, with a special concern for the inclusion of historically disadvantaged minorities in America.

The International Students Association enriches the Bryn Mawr community through social and cultural events. Sisterhood addresses the concerns of African-American students and supports Perry House, the African-American cultural center which sponsors cultural programs open to the College community and provides residence space for a few students.

Other student organizations include the Asian Students Association, BACaSO (Bryn Mawr African and Caribbean-African Student Organization), Mujeres (Latina students), Rainbow Alliance (lesbian, bisexual and transgendered students), and South Asian Women. These groups provide forums for members to address their common concerns and a basis from which they participate in other activities of the College.

Students who wish to volunteer their services outside the College find many opportunities to do so through Bryn Mawr’s Civic Engagement Office. The office supports numerous community-service and activist groups by offering transportation reimbursement for off-campus volunteers, mini-grants for individuals and groups planning service activities, a database of internship and volunteer opportunities, and other resources for student volunteers. Through their participation in these volunteer activities, students exemplify the concern of Bryn Mawr’s founders for intellectual development in a context of social commitment.

Libraries and Educational Resources

Libraries

The Mariam Coffin Canaday Library is the center of Bryn Mawr's library system. Opened in 1970, it houses the College's holdings in the humanities and the social sciences. The award-winning Rhys Carpenter Library, opened in 1997, is located in the M. Carey Thomas Library building and houses the collections in Archaeology, Classics, History of Art, and Growth and Structure of Cities. The Lois and Reginald Collier Science Library was dedicated in 1993 and brings together the collections for Mathematics and the sciences. The library collections of Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges, which complement and augment those of Bryn Mawr, are freely accessible to students.

Tripod (http://tripod.brynmawr.edu), the online public access catalog, provides information about the more than three million books, journals, videos, sound recordings, and other materials in the Bryn Mawr,
Haverford, and Swarthmore College collections. A large percentage of the Tri-College holdings are in electronic form and accessible online. Bryn Mawr students have borrowing privileges at Haverford and Swarthmore. They may also have material transferred from either of the other two campuses for pickup or use at Bryn Mawr, usually in less than 24 hours. Through the Library’s home page (www.brynmawr.edu/library), students may connect to Tripod; explore more than 200 subject-specific research databases; and tap into other library services and resources such as reference services, research consultation, reserve readings, interlibrary loan, etc.

Bryn Mawr maintains extensive relationships with other major academic libraries both in the region and worldwide. Through the consortial EZ-Borrow system, students can borrow materials from more than 30 Pennsylvania-area academic libraries. Students may also request items in almost any language from libraries across North America through interlibrary loan. Additional information about Bryn Mawr’s libraries and services may be accessed on the Web through the library home page at www.brynmawr.edu/library.

Special Collections

The Special Collections Department, based in Canaday Library, houses extensive holdings of art, artifacts, archival materials, rare books, and manuscripts, and these are available for use in classes and for individual research projects.

Bryn Mawr has developed an extraordinarily rich Rare Books and Manuscripts collection to support the research interests of students. The collection of late Medieval and Renaissance texts includes one of the country’s largest groups of books printed in the 15th century, as well as manuscript volumes and 16th-century printed books. Complementary to the rare books are collections of original letters, diaries and other unpublished documents. Bryn Mawr has important literary collections from the late 19th and 20th centuries, including papers relating to the women’s rights movement and the experiences of women, primarily Bryn Mawr graduates, working overseas in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

The College Archives contains the historical records of Bryn Mawr, including letters of students and faculty members, and an extensive photographic collection that documents the social, intellectual, administrative, and personal aspects of campus activities and student life.

The Art and Artifacts collection includes objects of interest to students of anthropology, archaeology, the fine and decorative arts, geology, and related inter- and multi-disciplinary courses of study.

The Anthropology collections include objects from around the world, with the largest portion of these collections originating from North America, South America and Africa. These collections comprise numerous categories of objects: African and Oceanic works, Southwest pottery and Native American ritual, functional, and decorative objects, and Pre-Columbian ceramics and textiles from present-day Peru, among many others.

The Archaeology collections include an extensive group of Greek and Roman objects, especially vases, a selection of pre-classical antiquities, and objects from Egypt and the ancient Near East, many of which represent the scholarship of Bryn Mawr faculty from the beginnings of the college to the present day.

The Fine Art collections include important holdings of prints, drawings, photographs, paintings and sculpture. The painting collection of approximately 250 works is primarily composed of 19th- and 20th-century American and European works; highlights include John Singer Sargent’s 1899 portrait of Bryn Mawr President M. Carey Thomas. The print collection illustrates the history of Western printmaking from the 15th through the mid-20th centuries and includes Old Master prints, art prints, and examples of 19th-century book illustrations. The collection also includes Japanese ukiyo-e woodblock prints, works in a wide range of media by contemporary women artists, Chinese paintings and calligraphy, and early, modern, and contemporary photography.

Objects held in all of these collections are available to students for research and are also frequently used as teaching tools in the classroom and incorporated into exhibitions in libraries and other spaces across the campus.

Special Research Resources

Because laboratory work in geology is based on observations in the field, the department conducts field trips in most of its courses and also has additional trips of general interest. To aid in the study of observations and samples brought back from the field, the department has excellent petrographic and analytical facilities, extensive reference and working mineral collections of approximately 10,000 specimens each, and a fine fossil collection. As a repository for the U.S. Geological Survey, the map library contains 40,000 topographical maps.

The Department of Sociology helps maintain the Social Science Statistical Laboratory, which consists of computers and printers staffed by undergraduate user consultants. A library of data files is available for student and faculty research and instructional use. Data library resources include election and census studies, political and attitudinal polling data, historical materials on the city of Philadelphia, national and cross-national economic statistics, ethnographic data files for cross-cultural study, and a collection of materials relevant to the study of women. Access to other data is available through the College’s membership in the Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research.

The Rhys Carpenter Library houses the Visual Resources Center, which supports instruction by providing access to visual media and by facilitating the use of digital tools. The Center’s main role is serving coursework — principally in History of Art, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, and the Growth and Structure of Cities Program — through a collection of 240,000 slides as well as study prints and digitized images.

Computing

Students have access to a high-speed wireless Internet connection in all residence halls, public computing laboratories and networked classrooms throughout the campus. The campus network provides access to online course materials, e-mail, shared software and Tripod, the online library catalog system shared by Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges. Each Bryn Mawr student receives their own e-mail and Network file storage accounts upon arrival.

Professional staff are available to students, faculty and staff for consultation and assistance with their technology needs.

The Help Desk is located on the main floor of Canaday Library and is available during building hours for walk-up help, email and telephone assistance. The Canaday Media Lab, located on Canaday’s A Floor just beyond the Lusty Cup is equipped with advanced software for digitizing and editing text, images, audio and video for the creation of interactive presentations and courseware.

Public computing labs may be found in the following buildings.

- Canaday (1st Floor, A Floor, and in the Language Learning Center, 3rd Floor)
- Carpenter
- Collier (Park Science Center)
- Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research

Language Learning Center

The Language Learning Center (LLC) provides the audio-visual and computing support for learning foreign languages and cultures. Students may use the lab to complete course assignments or simply to explore a foreign culture through film, CDs, DVDs, software programs, the internet or international satellite television. The Language Learning Center maintains a collection of more than 800 foreign films and has individual and group viewing rooms. The lab is permanently equipped with computers and an instructor workstation to accommodate classes in the center. The LLC supports e-mail, word processing and Internet access in the languages taught at the College. A projection unit enables the lab to be used for demonstration purposes or class use.

Laboratories

Laboratory work is emphasized at all levels of the curriculum and the natural science departments have excellent teaching and research facilities that provide students with the opportunity to conduct cutting-edge research using modern equipment. Laboratories and classrooms are equipped with extensive computer resources for data analysis and instruction, including state-of-the-art video-projection systems and computer workstations.

Teaching and research in biology, chemistry, computer science, geology, mathematics, and physics is carried out in the Marion Edwards Park Science Center, which also houses the Lois and Reginald Collier Science Library. Teaching and research in psychology is conducted in Bettws-y-Coed.

See below for more detailed descriptions of the labs in each department, as well as a description of the instrument shop, where custom-designed equipment for special research projects can be fabricated by two expert instrument makers.

Biology

The Department of Biology houses a wide variety of instrumentation appropriate for the investigation of living systems at the levels of cells, organisms and populations. This equipment is used in both our teaching and research laboratories, providing our students with the opportunity to utilize modern research methodologies for their explorations. There is an extensive collection of microscopes that can be used for dissection, histology, microinjection and subcellular structural analyses, including dissection microscopes, an inverted microscope, and light microscopes equipped with fluorescent and DIC optics as well as advanced digital capture and image analysis software. To conduct molecular analyses of DNA and proteins, we have both end-point and real-time thermal cyclers, centrifuges, electrophoresis equipment, a plate reader for ELISA assays, traditional and Nanodrop spectrophotometers and a DNA sequencer. The department houses sterile tissue culture facilities that are used for cell culture experiments. There is a wide assortment of physiology equipment that is used to measure intracellular and extracellular muscle and nerve activity, including voltage clamp amplifiers. A greenhouse is available for plant biology and ecology research, and an on-campus pond serves as a research field site for the analysis of micro- and macro-organism diversity and water quality parameters.

Chemistry

The Department of Chemistry houses many spacious well equipped laboratories for teaching and research. These include a 400 MHz high-resolution nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectrometer, gas and liquid chromatograph-mass spectrometers (GC-MS/LC-MS), Fourier transform-infrared (FT-IR) spectrophotometers, a fluorescence spectrophotometer, ultraviolet-visible (UV-vis) spectrophotometers, high pressure liquid chromatographs (HPLC), liquid scintillation counter and equipment for radioactive isotope work, cold rooms and ultracentrifuges for the preparation of biomolecules, thermal cyclers and electrophoresis equipment for molecular biology, potentiostats for electrochemical and spectroelectrochemical analysis, a biopotentiostat, facilities for molecular modeling and computational chemistry, and departmental laptop computers for chemistry majors. In addition an inert atmosphere drybox and multiple Schlenk vacuum manifolds allow anaerobic operations for chemical handling and synthesis. Finally, the Chemistry Department shares an Atomic Force Microscope with the other science departments in the Park Science Center.

Computer Science

The Department of Computer Science is home to an extensive collection of advanced robots, high-end computers for rendering 3D graphics, three computer laboratories, and other computational devices including a Microsoft Surface touch-based table. There are many personal robots that are used in the introductory courses, and a variety of sophisticated robots used in upper-level courses and research. The personal robot collection includes many Khepera, Hemmisson, ePuck, and SRV-1 robots; dozens of Scribbler robots adorned with Bluetooth and cameras; three Aibo robotic dogs; and a collection of small humanoid robots, including the Robonova and Mini-Hubo. The larger robots include two human-sized robots (the B21R and a PeopleBot), three Pioneer robots (two of them all-wheel terrain vehicles), Tevbot (a student-built, robotic spider), Eleanor (a pneumatic-driven, larger-than-human pair of robotic arms), and a three-foot radius dodecahedron robotic blimp.

Geology

The Department of Geology holds extensive paleontology, mineral, and rock collections for research and teaching. A fully-equipped rock preparation facility, with rock saws, grinding, polishing, crushing, thin section and mineral separation equipment, allows students and faculty to prepare their own samples for petrographic and geochemical analysis. For rock and mineral analysis the department has petrographic microscopes, a Rigaku Ultima IV x-ray diffractometer, and a remote sensing laboratory for digital processing and analysis of imagery by orbiting satellites. The department also houses a fully equipped paleomagnetic and rock magnetic lab that includes an Agico JR-6A spinner magnetometer, an ASC thermal demagnetizer, a DTECH 2000 alternating field demagnetizer, a 10.0 Tesla pulse magnetometer, an Agico KLY2 automated susceptibility bridge, a dynamic low-magnetic field cage, and a PMS MicroMagTM 3900 Vibrating Sample Magnetometer that is shared with the Physics Department.

The Department hosts a state-of-the-art Geochemistry Suite that houses a modern sedimentology laboratory for analysis of sediments, a large geochemistry lab facility for advanced geochemical research, a ventilation-isolated balance room containing a Mettler Toledo XP56 microbalance, and a Class 10,000 clean lab facility for sensitive isotopic analysis of low-level trace metals in natural materials. Equipment housed in the Geochemistry Suite include an ELTRA Carbon and Sulfur Determinator with TIC module, an inorganic/organic Carbon analyzer, an Agilent inductively-coupled plasma mass spectrometer (ICP-MS), a cathode-luminescence microscope, a Carpenter Micosystems Microsampler, a conodont extraction setup, and heavy liquid mineral separation setup. Sample preparation and processing equipment in the sedimentology lab includes a Virtis XL-55 12-port benchtop freeze-dryer, Labconco water deionizer, IEC Centra-GP8 ventilated benchtop centrifuge, Thermolyne 48000 furnace, VWR 1370 forced-air drying oven, stand-up refrigerator and separate stand-up freezer, two VWR 370 hotplate-stirrers, Branson 5210 ultrasonic bath, 8 sets 3” diameter stainless steel sieves (44 micron - 500 micron mesh) and 2 sets of 8” diameter stainless steel sieves (44 micron - 8 mm mesh). Analytical equipment in the sedimentology lab includes binocular optical microscopes and a UIC Inc. CM5014 coulometric carbon analyzer with furnace and acidification modules, and a Turner Designs 10-AU portable fluorometer for in-vivo/in-situ or extractive chlorophyll analysis.

In addition to a departmental van for transportation to field sites, the geology department has a wide array of field equipment for use by students. Basic mapping equipment includes twelve (12) Brunton 5010 GEO Transit compasses, a high-precision Leica TPS 1100 total surveying station (theodolite and electronic distance meter), four high-precision Trimble differential GPS units including two handheld GeoXT’s, and backpack or pole mountable ProXRS and ProXH... antennas with field-rugged handheld PCs for data acquisition, and five Xplore Inc. field-rugged Tablet PCs equipped with ESRI ArcGIS mapping software and built-in GPS antennas. Detailed geophysical surveys are supported by an ASD field-portable visible-to-near-infrared spectrometer a Bartington Grad601 dual magnetic gradiometer system, and a PulseEKKO 100 ground-penetrating radar system with 50, 100 and 200 MHz antennas. For environmental monitoring students use Onset Hobo data loggers and sensors, a YSI dissolved oxygen sensor, and an In-Situ Troll 9500 multi-parameter water quality meter; other water monitoring equipment includes Van Dorn water sampling bottle, Secchi disk, and a General Oceanics mechanical flowmeter. For rock and sediment sample collection the department has rock hammers, two gas-powered rock drills, several Eijkelkamp augers and coring devices, and a Ponar sediment grab sampler.

Physics

The Department of Physics has many laboratories for education and research. The instructional advanced experimental physics laboratories house oscilloscopes, digital multimeters, power supplies, low-temperature facilities, and a great deal of ancillary equipment commonly found in research laboratories. In addition, the instructional optics laboratory has six dark rooms with interferometers, lasers, and miscellaneous equipment for optics experiments. The instructional nuclear physics laboratory houses a low-temperature gamma detector and computer-based multichannel analyzers for nuclear spectroscopy, alpha particle detection, and positron-electron annihilation detection. The instructional electronics laboratory has fourteen stations equipped with electronic breadboards, function generators, power supplies, oscilloscopes, multimeters, and computers. The Atomic and Optical Physics research laboratory is equipped with three optical tables, two ultrahigh vacuum systems used for cooling and trapping of atomic rubidium, a host of commercial and home built diode laser systems, several YAG pumped dye laser systems, a high vacuum atomic beam system, an electron multiplying ccd camera, and a variety of other supporting equipment. A 60-node Beowulf computer cluster for intensive parallel computational experiments is shared with the Computer Science Department. The Solid State Nuclear Magnetic Resonance (NMR) research laboratory is equipped with two variable-temperature nitrogen flow systems, three fixed-frequency CPS-1 Spin Lock Pulsed NMR Spectrometers, a Varian 1.2 Tesla water-cooled electromagnet, a Spectro Magnetic 0.4 Tesla air-cooled electromagnet, two data acquisition systems, and ancillary electronics and computers. The Photo-Physics Laboratory houses three optical tables, two Nd:YAG pump lasers, three commercial, tunable dye lasers, two auto-tracking harmonic crystal systems, a differentially pumped vacuum chamber with a supersonic pulsed valve to produce molecular beams, and a time-of-flight mass spectrometer for ion detection. In addition, there are various pieces of equipment for data acquisition and laser energy calibration. The Nanomaterials and Spintronics Laboratory has a Millipore water purification system, three chemical hoods, a TMC vibration isolated optical table, and a 100-square-foot class-1000 soft curtain cleanroom with the ceiling lighting suitable for photolithography. It also has a Princeton Applied Research potentiostat (VersaSTAT-200) for electrochemical deposition and an ETS humidity control chamber for self-assembly. It also has a PMS MicroMagTM 3900 Vibrating Sample Magnetometer shared with the Geology Department. The Particle Astrophysics Laboratory houses equipment related to particle detection and characterization including a time projection chamber, several vacuum systems for detector research and development, charge readout electronics, photomultiplier tubes, high-speed digitizers and associated data acquisition systems, as well as ccd camera technology. Finally, the Physics Department shares an Atomic Force Microscope with the other science departments in the Park Science Center.

Psychology

The Department of Psychology provides students with laboratory experience encompassing the wide range of subject matters within the discipline of psychology. At the basic level of brain and behavior, the department has a wide range of state of the art equipment including several stereotaxic apparatuses as well as instrumentation for recording and analyzing the activity of single neurons in relation to behavior. This equipment includes oscilloscopes high gain amplifiers, miniature head stages, and stimulators. The equipment interfaces with computers with advanced software for evaluating electrophysiological data. There is also equipment for the microinjection of pharmacological agents for the evaluation of the role of neurotransmitters in important aspects of behavior. For research in cognition, students have access to a variety of computerized programming equipment. This equipment includes digital video cameras, video editing programs, behavioral coding programs, and statistical analysis programs that are used to analyze the behavior, cognition and emotions of human participants ranging in age from early childhood to older adulthood. The laboratory in Introductory Psychology has equipment for studying sensation and perception, decision-making, language processing, and the psychophysiological correlates of human cognition and emotion.

Instrument Shop

Park Sciences Building houses a fully-equipped Instrument Shop staffed by 2 full-time instrument makers that design, build and maintain the scientific equipment for instructional and research laboratories in all 6 natural science departments. Capabilities include 3D SolidWorks modeling design of instrumentation, 2- and 3-axis CNC milling machines, a precision instrument lathe, surface grinding, full welding complement, sandblasting, sheet metal machinery, as well as a large lathe and milling machine for oversize work. The instrument designers work with undergraduates engaged in research and help them with their projects where appropriate. From time-to-time, classes are available in the use of shop equipment.

Facilities for the Arts

Goodhart Hall, which houses the Office of the Arts, is the College’s main venue for theater and dance. Performance spaces in Goodhart include the 500-seat McPherson Auditorium, which has state-of-the-art lighting and sound systems; the Katharine Hepburn Teaching Theater, a flexible black-box-style space with theatrical lighting and sound capabilities; the Music Room, equipped with a small stage and two pianos and used for ensemble rehearsals and chamber-music recitals; and the Common Room, an intimate, carpeted space. Students may also reserve time in the four practice rooms in Goodhart, all of which are furnished with grand pianos.

The M. Carey Thomas Great Hall provides a large space for classical music concerts, lectures and readings, while the adjacent Cloisters, Carpenter Library roof, and Taft Garden are popular outdoor performance spaces. The former Rhoads Dining Hall is appropriate for parties, DJ events, and small-to-medium scale concerts.

The Pembroke and Denbigh dance studios are home to most smaller-to-medium-scale dance performance activities. Both have large windows, ballet bars, mirrors and theatrical lighting capabilities.

Wyndham Alumnae House’s Ely Room and English House host creative writing classes, workshops, and readings.

Arnecliffe Studio houses a printmaking studio and plays host to many student-organized workshops, readings and performances. The Rockefeller Hall drafting studios are devoted to architectural studies and theater design. Students interested in learning more about art spaces and venues on campus should visit www.brynmawr.edu/studentlife/art-spaces/.

The Bern Schwartz Fitness and Athletic Center

The Bern Schwartz Fitness and Athletic Center has quickly become the place to be since reopening in September 2010. The new 11,500 sq ft. fitness center boasts over 50 pieces of cardio equipment, 15 selectorized weight machines and a multi-purpose room housing everything from a broad offerings of physical education classes, Bryn Mawr Fit Club classes and strength and conditioning sessions for student athletes. The fitness center has over 100 different workout options, free weights, indoor cycling bicycles, ergs, and cardiovascular and strength training machines.

The Class of 1958 Gymnasium is home to the College’s intercollegiate badminton, basketball and volleyball programs and hosts two regulation sized basketball and volleyball courts. In addition, the building includes a state-of-the art eight lane swimming pool, athletic training room, locker rooms, a conference smart room and the Department of Athletics & Physical Education offices. The fitness center is located on the second floor directly up the circular staircase as you enter the Bern Schwartz Fitness and Athletic Center. For more information please consult www.brynmawr.edu/athletics/facilities/.

The outdoor athletics and recreation facilities includes; Applebee Field, Shillingford Field, seven tennis courts, a recreational and club sport field at the Graduate School of Social Work, and an outdoor track and field practice area. The Applebee Field named for Constance M. K. Applebee, the first director of physical education at the College and credited for bringing field hockey to the United States, was renovated in August 2012. The field was converted from natural grass to a synthetic field, and expanded to meet NCAA requirements for lacrosse, soccer and field hockey.

Campus Center

The Marie Salant Neuberger Centennial Campus Center, a transformation of the historic gymnasium building on Merion Green, opened in 1985. As the center for non-academic life, the facility houses a café, lounge areas, meeting rooms, the College post office and the bookshop. The offices of Career Development and Conferences and Events are also located here. Students, faculty and staff use the campus center for informal meetings and discussion groups as well as for campus-wide social events and activities.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES AND RIGHTS

The Honor Code

A central principle of Bryn Mawr College is the trust that it places in its students. This trust is reflected in the academic and social Honor Codes. These delegate to individual students the responsibility for integrity in their academic and social behavior. Responsibility for administering the academic Honor Code is shared with the faculty; the academic Honor Board, composed of both students and faculty, mediates in cases of infraction. In the social Honor Code, as in all aspects of their social lives, students are self-governing. A social Honor Board consisting of 10 students mediates in cases where conflicts cannot be resolved by the individuals directly involved. Trained student mediators work with students to resolve conflicts in effective ways.

The successful functioning of the Honor Code is a matter of great pride to the Bryn Mawr community, and it contributes significantly to the mutual respect that exists among students and between students and faculty. While the Honor Code makes great demands on the maturity and integrity of students, it also grants them an independence and freedom that they value highly. To cite just one example, many examinations are self-scheduled, so that students may take them at whatever time during the examination period is most convenient for their own schedules and study patterns.

In resolving academic cases, the Honor Board might fail a student on an assignment or in a course, separate her from the College temporarily, or exclude her permanently. Social infractions that are beyond the ability of the Honor Board to resolve might be brought to a Dean’s Panel, which exercises similar authority. For details regarding Honor Board hearings and Dean’s Panels, please refer to the Student Handbook.

Privacy of Student Records

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 was designed to protect the privacy of educational records, to establish the right of students to inspect and review their educational records, and to provide guidelines for the correction of inaccurate or misleading data through informal and formal hearings. Students have the right to file complaints with the Family Policy Compliance Office, US Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202-5920, concerning alleged failures by the institution to comply with the act. Questions concerning the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act may be referred to the Undergraduate Dean’s Office.

Directory Information

Bryn Mawr College designates the following categories of student information as public or “directory information.” Such information may be disclosed by the institution for any purpose, at its discretion.

- Category I: Name, address, dates of attendance, class, current enrollment status, electronic mail address
- Category II: Previous institution(s) attended, major field of study, awards, honors, degree(s) conferred
- Category III: Date of birth
- Category IV: Telephone number
- Category V: Marital status

Currently-enrolled students may withhold disclosure of any category of information under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 by written notification, which must be in the Registrar’s Office by August 15. Forms requesting the withholding of directory information are available in the Registrar’s Office. Bryn Mawr College assumes that failure on the part of any student to request the withholding of categories of directory information indicates individual approval of disclosure.

Campus Crime Awareness and Fire Safety

Annual Security Report and Annual Fire Safety Report

Clery Act and Higher Education Opportunity Act

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania enacted the College and University Security Act in 1988 (Clery Act) and the Higher Education Opportunity Act in 2008. These laws require all institutions of higher education within the Commonwealth to provide students and employees with information pertaining to crime statistics, security measures, fire statistics, fire safety measures, policies relating to missing persons, and penalties for drug use. These acts also require that this information be available to prospective students and employees upon request. For detailed information please go to: hwww.brynmawr.edu/safety/act73.htm. Should you have other general questions please contact the Department of Public Safety at 610-526-7911 or go to: www.brynmawr.edu/safety/index.htm.

Right-to-Know Act

The Student Right-to-Know Act requires disclosure of the graduation rates of degree-seeking undergraduate students. Students are considered to have graduated if they complete their programs within six years of the normal time for completion.

Equality of Opportunity

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sexual orientation, age or disability in the administration of its educational policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other College-administered programs, or in its employment practices.

In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its employment practices, educational programs or activities. The admission of only women in the Undergraduate College is in conformity with a provision of the Civil Rights Act. The provisions of Title IX protect students and employees from all forms of illegal sex discrimination, which includes sexual harassment and sexual violence, in College programs and activities.

Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and other policies regarding nondiscrimination may be directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer and Title IX Coordinator, who administers the College’s procedures, at 610-526-7630 or at eootitleix@brynmawr.edu.

Access Services

Bryn Mawr welcomes the full participation of individuals with disabilities in all aspects of campus life and is committed to providing equal access for all qualified students with disabilities in accordance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act as amended. Students with access needs due to a learning, physical, or psychological disability are encouraged to contact the coordinator of Access Services as early as possible to discuss their concerns and to obtain information about the eligibility criteria and procedures for requesting accommodations. Disclosure of a disability is voluntary, and the information will be maintained on a confidential basis.

STUDENT LIFE

Student Advising

The deans are responsible for the general welfare of undergraduates. Students are free to call upon the deans for help and advice on both academic and general matters. After students select their majors at the end of their sophomore year, they are assigned a faculty adviser in the major who helps them plan their academic program for the junior and senior years. In addition to deans, students may consult the director of residential life, the director of international advising, the director of the Office for Intercultural Affairs, the director of financial aid, the director of career development and the coordinator of student activities. The Student Life Office staff and upperclass students known as hall advisers provide advice and assistance on questions concerning life in the residence halls. Health concerns and questions can be addressed by the College’s medical director, director of the counseling service, consulting psychiatrist and counselors through scheduled appointments at the Health Center. Students requiring urgent medical attention or personal assistance outside of regular campus office hours can call on Public Safety.

Customs Week

The College and the student government’s Customs Committee provide orientation for first-year and transfer students. New McBride Scholars participate in a series of workshop designed especially for them. First-year students and transfers take residence before the College is opened to returning students. The deans, hall advisers and volunteer “customspeople” welcome them, answer their questions and offer advice. Faculty members conduct a lively academic fair and are available to consult with students. All new students meet with a dean or faculty adviser to plan their academic programs for the fall semester. Undergraduate organizations at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges acquaint new students with many other opportunities and aspects of college life. The Student Activities Office hosts the “Fall Frolic” activities fair soon after classes begin in September.

Academic Support Services

Academic support services at Bryn Mawr include the Academic Support and Learning Resources Specialist, the Writing Program, the Q Center (Quantitative Reasoning Project), peer mentoring, peer tutoring and a variety of study-skills support services. The Academic Support and Learning Resources Specialist offers free individual and small group meetings with students to identify and implement techniques for more effective learning, studying, test-taking and time and stress management. The Academic Support and Learning Resources Specialist also offers workshops and class presentations. The Writing Center offers free, individual writing partnerships with peer writing tutors to review, strategize and revise writing assignments and projects, as well as consultations for public speaking. The Writing Center also offers occasional workshops open to the campus. The Q Center supports student work on quantitative problems in introductory courses across social science and science disciplines. The Q Center is staffed by peer mentors who are trained to help students with quantitative reasoning, problem solving strategies, and math anxiety. Peer mentoring and peer tutoring are available without cost to students. More information about academic support services can be found on the Deans’ Office website at: www.brynmawr.edu/deans/for_students.shtml
Career Development Office (CDO)

The liberal arts experience positions students and alumnae/i with a highly valued foundation for rewarding, stimulating and successful careers building on their interests in and outside of the classroom. Well developed communication skills, critical thinking, problem solving, breadth of interdisciplinary thought and in depth research are keystones building blocks for long term career success and leadership. Curricular and co-curricular experiences are intentionally designed to create ample opportunity for engagement in actively exploring interests and developing related skill sets as one’s career interests begin to take form and grow during the college years. Career Development programs serve to engage students throughout their Bryn Mawr experience with first hand exploration as well as hands on experience in fields of interest. CDO encourages active career exploration, research and reflection beginning in the first year and throughout the years at the College. In recent years, CDO programs have focused on careers in the arts, business and finance, communications, education, sustainability, technology, gap year programs, law, mathematics, health, international relations and conflict resolution. Each year brings a new variety of topics. Alumnae/i are invited to continue to utilize as well as contribute to our services and active alumnae/i networks.

The following list offers a sampling of Career Development services.

• One on one career counseling & interest assessment
• Online information on more than 2,000 internships
• Online databases of career information and job postings (password protected)
• OCEAN (Online Career Exploration And Networking) career opportunity management system
• Student Career Interest Registration fuels target emails of opportunity announcements
• Externships: 2 – 10 day job shadowing with alumnae/i during breaks
• Career Exploration Days and Employer Site Visits during breaks
• Careers Conferences and Alumnae/i Panels
• Alumnae/i Networks for career information and advice
• Coaching on Resume Building, LinkedIn profiles, Job Search and Interview Skills
• Mock Interview Days
• Employer and Graduate & Professional School Information Sessions
• On Campus Recruiting / Interview Programs

• Off Campus Recruiting / Interview Programs in Chicago, New York, Washington, DC & San Francisco
• Not-for-Profit Career Fairs in Boston (Wellesley) and Philadelphia (on campus)
• National Virtual Job Fairs

Health Center

The Health Center is a full service primary care office open to students when the College is in session. The College’s Health Service offers a wide range of medical and counseling services to all matriculated undergraduates.

Outpatient primary care medical services include first aid, nursing visits, routine laboratory work, same day appointments in the medical clinic, gynecological services and appointments with the College physician. There is no charge for doctor, nurse practitioner or nurse visits. A current fee schedule for other services is available on the health center website at brynmawr.edu/healthcenter. No student is denied needed care due to an inability to pay.

The counseling service is available to all undergraduate students. Each student may receive six free visits per academic year. While there is a fee for subsequent visits, no student is ever denied service because of an inability to pay. Consultation with a psychologist, social worker or psychiatrist can be arranged by appointment by calling the main number of the Health Center.

All entering students must file completed medical history and evaluation forms with Health Services before registration for classes.

The College purchases a limited medical insurance policy for full-time undergraduate students. The insurance is provided in conjunction with services supplied by the Bryn Mawr College Health Center. The insurance policy is a limited one and will not cover a significant portion of the costs of a major illness or hospitalization. Therefore, it is strongly recommended that students maintain their coverage on their families’ health plans or purchase additional insurance. The College does provide information about additional insurance plans that may be available to Bryn Mawr students. Information about the basic insurance plan and any available additional plans is sent to students each summer.

A student may, on the recommendation of the College physician or her own doctor, at any time request a medical leave of absence for reasons of health. For information on leaves of absence, see Departure from the College prior to Graduation in the Academic Regulations.
Student Residences

Residence in College housing is required of all undergraduates, except those who live off campus after having received permission to do so from the College during the annual room draw.

The College’s residence halls provide simple and comfortable living for students. Bryn Mawr expects students to respect its property and the standards on which the halls are run. More information is posted on the Residential Life website: www.brynmawr.edu/residentiallife/policies.

Thirty-nine hall advisors provide resources and advice to students living in the halls, and they work with the elected student officers to uphold the social Honor Code within the halls.

The halls are open during fall and spring breaks and Thanksgiving vacation, but meals are not provided. During winter vacation, special arrangements are made for students who wish to remain in residence - international students, athletes and students who are taking classes at the University of Pennsylvania. These students pay a special fee for housing and live in an assigned residence hall.

The College will consider modifying housing assignment procedures or arrangements when necessary to provide equal access to the residence halls for students with disabilities. Any student who requires consideration should contact the Coordinator of Access Services.

The College is not responsible for loss of personal property due to fire, theft or any other cause. Students who wish to insure against these risks should do so individually or through their own family policies.

Residence halls on campus provide full living accommodations. Brecon, Denbigh, Merion, Pembroke East, Pembroke West and Radnor Halls are named for counties in Wales, recalling the tradition of the early Welsh settlers of the area in which Bryn Mawr is situated. Rockefeller Hall is named for its donor, John D. Rockefeller, and Rhoads North and South for the first president of the College, James E. Rhoads. Erdman Hall, first opened in 1965, was named in honor of Eleanor Donnelley Erdman ’21, a former member of the Board of Trustees. The Clarissa Donnelley Haffner Hall, which creates an “international village” for students of Chinese, French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Spanish languages, was opened in 1970. Batten House serves as a residence for those interested in a cooperative living environment.

The College offers a variety of living accommodations, including singles, doubles, triples, quadruples and a few suites. The College provides basic furniture, but students supply linen, bed pillows, desk lamps, rugs, mirrors and any other accessories they wish.

The physical maintenance of the halls is the responsibility of the director of Facilities Services and Housekeeping Services. At the end of the year, each student is held responsible for the condition of her room and its furnishings. Room assignments, the hall-advisor program, residential life policies, and vacation-period housing are the responsibility of the director of Residential Life.

Resident students are required to participate in the meal plan, which provides 20 meals per week. For those living at Batten House, where a kitchen is available, the meal plan is optional. Any student with medical or other extraordinary reasons for exemption from participation in the meal plan may present documentation of her special needs to the coordinator of Access Services. Ordinarily, with the help of the College dietician, Dining Services can meet such special needs. When this is not possible, written notice of exemption will be provided by the coordinator of Access Services.

Coeducational residence halls on the Bryn Mawr campus were established in 1969-70, housing students from Bryn Mawr and Haverford. When there is equal interest from students at both campuses, Bryn Mawr and Haverford offer a housing exchange so that a few students may live on the other campus for a year. As neither Bryn Mawr nor Haverford allows room retention from one year to the next, the number and kind of bi-college options change each year.

Haffner Hall, which opened in 1970, is open to Bryn Mawr and Haverford students interested in the study of Chinese, French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Spanish languages and cultures. Admission is by application only and students must pledge to participate actively in the Hall’s activities. Residence in a language house provides an excellent opportunity to gain fluency in speaking a foreign language.

For non-resident students, locked mailboxes are available in the Campus Center. Non-resident students are liable for all undergraduate fees except those for residence in a hall. All matriculated undergraduate students are entitled to full use of all out- and in-patient health services.
Admission

Bryn Mawr College is interested in candidates of character and ability who want an education in the liberal arts and sciences and are prepared for college work by a sound education. The College has found highly successful candidates among students of varied interests and talents from a wide range of schools and regions in the United States and abroad. In its consideration of candidates, the College looks for evidence of ability in the student’s high-school record, the challenge of her program of study, her rank in class (if available), and her College Board, AP, or ACT tests; it asks her high-school adviser and several teachers for an estimate of her character, maturity and readiness for college.

Candidates are expected to complete a four-year secondary school course. The program of studies providing the best background for college work includes English, languages and mathematics carried through most of the school years and, in addition, history and a laboratory science. A school program giving good preparation for study at Bryn Mawr would be as follows: English grammar, composition and literature through four years; at least three years of mathematics, with emphasis on basic algebraic, geometric and trigonometric concepts and deductive reasoning; three years of one modern or ancient language, or a good foundation in two languages; some work in history; and at three courses in science, including 2 lab sciences preferably biology, chemistry or physics. Elective subjects might be offered in, for example, art, music or computing to make up the total of 16 or more credits recommended for admission to the College.

Since school curricula vary widely, the College is fully aware that many applicants for admission will offer programs that differ from the one described above. The College will consider such applications, provided the students have maintained good records and continuity in the study of basic subjects.

Application

Bryn Mawr College exclusively accepts The Common Application with a required institutional supplement and will waive the $50 application fee for students who apply using the online option. Fee waivers are available for qualified students who are unable to apply online. The Common Application, as well as The Bryn Mawr College Supplement to The Common Application, are both available through The Common Application website (www.commonapp.org). For more information about applying to Bryn Mawr please visit: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/apply/.

Admission Plans

Application to the first-year class may be made through one of three plans: Regular Decision, Fall Early Decision (ED I) or Winter Early Decision (ED II).

- For all three plans applicants follow the same procedures and are evaluated by the same criteria.
- Both the Fall Early Decision (ED I) and Winter Early Decision (ED II) plans are binding and are most beneficial for the candidate who has thoroughly investigated Bryn Mawr and has found the College to be her clear first choice. The ED II plan differs only in recognizing that some candidates may arrive at a final choice of college later than others.
- An early decision candidate may not apply early decision to any other institution but may apply to another institution under a regular admission plan or a non-binding early action plan. If admitted to Bryn Mawr College under an early decision plan, the student is required to withdraw applications from all other colleges or universities.
- An early decision candidate must sign the Common Application Early Decision Agreement indicating that she understands the commitment required. The signatures of a parent and a high school official are also required. The Early Decision Agreement may be found on the Common Application website.
- Early decision candidates will receive one of three decisions: admit, defer to the regular applicant pool, or deny. If admitted to Bryn Mawr, the student is required to withdraw all other applications. If deferred to the regular pool, the student will be reconsidered along with the regular admission applicants and will receive notification in early April. If refused admission, the student may not apply again that year.
- The Regular Decision Plan is designed for those candidates who wish to keep open several different options for their undergraduate education throughout the admission process. Applications under this plan are accepted at any time before the January 15 deadline.

Timetables for the three plans are as follows:

- Fall Early Decision (ED I) closing date for applications and all supporting material: November 15
- Notification of candidates: by December 20
- Winter Early Decision (ED II) closing date for applications and all supporting materials: January 1
- Notification of candidates: by January 31
Regular Decision Plan closing date for applications and all supporting materials: January 15

Notification of candidates: by April 1

Entrance Tests and Interviews

Bryn Mawr is “test flexible.” The “test flexible” policy allows Bryn Mawr applicants to select the standardized tests that they believe best represent their academic potential. The standardized testing requirements for students applying to the Undergraduate College under the Regular Decision, Early Decision I, or Early Decision II plans are as follows:

- The SAT Reasoning Test and a combination of two different SAT Subject Tests or AP tests or
- The ACT or
- A combination of three SAT Subject Tests and/or AP tests in the following areas:
  1. Science or Math and
  2. English, History, Languages, Arts or Social Sciences and
  3. Student’s Choice: one subject of the student’s choice but in a subject different from the other two.
     - Only one non-English language test result may be submitted.
     - If your first language is not English you may submit the results of one test in your first language, but only as your “student’s choice.” One of your remaining test results must be from subject area 1 and the other must be from subject area 2, as listed above.

Candidates are responsible for registering with the College Entrance Examination Board, or ACT, Inc. for the tests. Information about the tests, test centers, fees and dates may be obtained by contacting the following:
Admission

The minimum standardized testing requirement for international applicants is the SAT test. Official results from two additional SAT Subject Tests or AP Tests are recommended, but not required. International applicants may also take advantage of Bryn Mawr’s “test flexible” option. Details about the “test flexible” option may be found on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/test_policy.shtml.

Information about the SAT is available at www.collegeboard.org/. A student may opt to take the ACT test (www.act.org) in place of the SAT. Because exams are only given on selected dates students should sit for their exams well in advance of the application deadline. Students who have not been educated in English or who do not speak English as a native language must present credentials proving their proficiency in English.

For more information about the application process for students from overseas, visit www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/criteria/international.html.

Interview

An interview either at the College, with an alumna area representative, or via Skype or telephone is strongly recommended for all candidates. Interviews should be completed by the deadline of the plan under which the candidate is applying. Appointments for interviews and campus tours should be made in advance by emailing or telephoning the Office of Admissions at (610) 526-5152. The Office of Admissions is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, and is open on select Saturdays during some months of the year. A student who is unable to visit the College should consult the following website to learn about Bryn Mawr interview options on-campus: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/visit/daily/request.html or off-campus: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/regional/interview/index.html.

International Students

Bryn Mawr welcomes applications from international students who have outstanding secondary school records and who meet university entrance requirements in their own countries.

Bryn Mawr College accepts The Common Application with a required institutional supplement. The Common Application is available through The Common Application website and the Bryn Mawr College Office of Admissions. The Bryn Mawr College Common Application Supplement may be downloaded from the College’s website. Bryn Mawr exclusively accepts the Common Application and will waive the $50.00 application fee for students who apply using the online option. Fee waivers are available for qualified students if they are unable to submit electronically.

For more information visit: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/apply/.

All applicants to Bryn Mawr should follow Bryn Mawr’s “test flexible” policy (see above). Bryn Mawr requires official scores be sent by the College Board and/or ACT, Inc. This requirement may be waived only for residents of the People’s Republic of China where the test is not available. The Subject Tests and/or AP exams are highly recommended but not required for those students living abroad. (For all additional testing requirements, please follow the guidelines in the section entitled Entrance Tests and Interviews.)

If English is not your first language, you must submit the results of the TOEFL* examination or the IELTS exam. This requirement may be waived for students whose principal language of instruction for the past four years has been English. Bryn Mawr will accept official results of any of the TOEFL tests: computer, paper or Internet-based.

*Test of English as a Foreign Language www.toefl.org
IELTS www.ielts.org

The minimum standardized testing requirement for international applicants is the SAT test. Official results from two additional SAT Subject Tests or AP Tests are recommended, but not required. International applicants may also take advantage of Bryn Mawr’s “test flexible” option. Details about the “test flexible” option may be found on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/test_policy.shtml.

Information about the SAT is available at www.collegeboard.org/. A student may opt to take the ACT test (www.act.org) in place of the SAT. Students who have not been educated in English or who do not speak English as a native language must present credentials proving their proficiency in English.

For more information about the application process for students from overseas, visit www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/criteria/international.html.

Early Admission and Deferred Entrance

Each year a few outstanding students enter the College after the junior year of high school. Students who wish to apply for early admission should plan to complete a senior English course before entrance to the College and should write to the dean of admissions about application procedures. An interview, on campus or with an alumna area representative, is required of early admission candidates.

A student admitted to the College may defer entrance to the freshman class for one year, provided that she writes to the dean of admissions requesting deferred entrance by May 1, the Candidates’ Reply Date.

Credit for Advanced Placement Tests and International Exams

Students who have carried advanced work in school and who have honor grades (5 in Art History, English, Environmental Science, French, Government and Politics, History, Music Theory, Psychology and Spanish; 4 or 5 in most other subjects) on the Advanced Placement Tests of the College Board may, after consultation with the dean and the departments concerned, be admitted to one or more advanced courses in the first year at the College.

With the approval of the dean and the departments concerned, one or more Advanced Placement Tests with honor grades may be presented for credit. Students receiving six or more units of credit may apply for advanced standing. The Advanced Placement Tests are given at College Board centers in May. For An interview (on campus, via Skype, or by telephone) with a member of the admissions staff. Please note that this information is in addition to those items already required of all applicants: The Common Application for Admission, The Bryn Mawr Supplement to the Common Application, official test results from The College Board or the ACT, Inc., two teacher recommendation letters and essays as outlined on The Common Application.

Transfer Students

Bryn Mawr College accepts The Common Application with a required institutional supplement. The Common Application is available through The Common Application website and the Bryn Mawr College Office of Admissions. The Bryn Mawr College Common Application Supplement may be downloaded from the College’s website. Bryn Mawr exclusively accepts The Common Application and will waive the $50.00 application fee for students who apply using the online option. Fee waivers are available for qualified students if they are unable to submit electronically.

For more information, please visit: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/apply/transfer.html.

Each year a number of students are admitted on transfer to the sophomore and junior classes. Successful transfer candidates have done excellent work at other colleges and universities and present strong high-school records that compare favorably with those of women entering Bryn Mawr as first-year students. Students who have failed to meet the prescribed standards of academic work or who have been put on probation, suspended or excluded from other colleges and universities will not be admitted under any circumstances.

Transfer candidates should file applications as early as possible but no later than March 1 for entrance in September, or no later than November 1 for the second semester of the year of entrance. The minimum standardized testing requirement for transfer applicants is the SAT test. Official results from two additional SAT Subject Tests or AP Tests are recommended, but not required. Transfer applicants may also take advantage of Bryn Mawr’s “test flexible” option. Details about the “test flexible” option may be found on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/test_policy.shtml.

Information about the SAT is available at www.collegeboard.org/. A student may opt to take the ACT test (www.act.org) in place of the SAT. Because exams are only given on selected dates students should sit for their exams well in advance of the application deadline. To qualify for the A.B. degree, students ordinarily should have completed a minimum of two years of full-time study at Bryn Mawr.
The Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program

The Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program serves women beyond the traditional college entry age who wish to earn an undergraduate degree at Bryn Mawr. The program admits women who have demonstrated talent, achievement and intelligence in various areas, including employment, volunteer activities and home or formal study. McBride Scholars are admitted directly as matriculated students.

Once admitted to the College, McBride scholars are subject to the residency rule, which requires that a student take a minimum of 24 course units while enrolled at Bryn Mawr. Exceptions will be made for students who transfer more than eight units from previous work. Such students may transfer up to 16 units and must then take at least 16 units at Bryn Mawr. McBride Scholars may study on a part-time or full-time basis. For more information, visit the McBride Program Web page at www.brynmawr.edu/mcbride.

Bryn Mawr College accepts The Common Application for Transfer Students with a required institutional supplement for transfer and McBride Applicants. Detailed instructions, as well as the Bryn Mawr Supplement for Transfer and McBride, may be downloaded from the Bryn Mawr website. Bryn Mawr exclusively accepts The Common Application and will waive the $50.00 application fee for students who apply using the online option. For more information, please visit: www.brynmawr.edu/admissions/apply/mcbrides.html.

Readmission

A student who has withdrawn from the College must apply for permission to return. She should consult her dean concerning the application process and be prepared to demonstrate that she is ready to resume work at Bryn Mawr.

FEES AND FINANCIAL AID

Costs of Education

The tuition and fees in 2012-13 for all enrolled undergraduate students, resident and nonresident, is $42,246 a year.

Other Fees:
Laboratory fee (per lab per semester) $50
Continuing enrollment fee (per semester) $340

Faced with rising costs affecting all parts of higher education, the College has had to raise tuition annually in recent years. Further annual increases may be expected.

Schedule of Payments

By registering for courses, students accept responsibility for the charges of the entire academic year, regardless of the method of payment. The College bills for each semester separately. The bill for the fall semester is sent in early July and is due August 1. The bill for the spring semester is sent the first week in December and is due January 2.

As a convenience to parents and students, the College currently offers a payment plan administered by an outside organization that enables monthly payment of all or part of annual fees in installments without interest charges. Payments for the plan commence prior to the beginning of the academic year. Information about the payment plan is available from Student Financial Services.

No student is permitted to attend classes or enter residence until payment of the College charges has been made each semester. No student may register at the beginning of a semester, graduate, receive a transcript or participate in room draw until all accounts are paid, including the activities fee assessed by the student Self Government Association officers. This fee covers class and hall dues and support for student organizations and clubs. All resident students are required to participate in the College meal plan.

A fee of $340 per semester will be charged to all undergraduates who are studying at another institution during the academic year and who will transfer the credits earned to Bryn Mawr College, with the exception of students in the Junior Year Abroad Program.

Students are permitted to reserve a room during the spring semester for the succeeding academic year, prior to payment of room and board fees, if they intend to be in residence during that year. Those students who have reserved a room but decide, after June 15, to withdraw from the College or take a leave of absence are charged a fee of $500. This charge is billed to the student's account.

All entering students are required to make a deposit of $500. This deposit is applied to the student's tuition account.
Refund Policy

Students will be refunded 100% of their previously paid tuition, room and board, and college fee if the Registrar receives written notice that the student has withdrawn from the College or begun a leave of absence before the first day of classes.

For a student withdrawing from the College or embarking on a medical or psychological leave of absence on or after the first day of classes, refunds of tuition, room and board occur according to a pro rata schedule up to 60% attendance. No refunds are processed for withdrawals after 60% of the semester. Fall and spring breaks are not included in the calculation of refund weeks. Note that Student Government Association dues and the health insurance portion of the college fee are non-refundable.

The date the student began the withdrawal process by contacting the dean’s office orally or in writing is considered the date of withdrawal for College refunds and for the return of Title IV funds. When a student continues to attend classes or other academically related activity after beginning the withdrawal process, the College may choose to use the student's last date of documented attendance at an academically related activity as the date of withdrawal. For a student who leaves the College without notifying the College of her intent to withdraw, the College normally uses the student’s last date of documented attendance at an academically related activity as the date of withdrawal. If that date cannot be ascertained, the College will consider the midpoint of the enrollment period to be the date the student withdrew.

When a Student Withdraws

Treatment of Title IV Federal Aid When a Student Withdraws

This policy applies to all students receiving Federal Pell Grants, Federal Iraq and Afghanistan Service Grant, Federal Stafford Loans, Federal PLUS Loans, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG), Federal Perkins Loans, and in some cases, state grants.

When a recipient of Title IV Federal grant or loan assistance withdraws or takes a leave of absence from the College during the semester, the College must determine per a federal formula, the amount of federal aid that the student may retain as of the withdrawal date. Any federal aid that the student is eligible to receive, but which has not been disbursed, will be offered to the student as a post-withdrawal disbursement. Any federal aid the student is not eligible to receive according to the federal refund policy will be returned to the federal government.

The student is entitled to retain federal aid based on the percentage of the semester she has completed. As prescribed by federal formula, the College calculates the percentage by dividing the total number of calendar days in the semester into the number of calendar days completed as of the withdrawal date. Fall and spring breaks are excluded as periods of nonattendance in the enrollment period. Once the student has completed more than 60% of the semester, she has earned all of the Title IV assistance scheduled for that period.

The amount of Title IV assistance not earned is calculated by determining the percentage of assistance earned and applying it to the total amount of grant and loan assistance that was disbursed. The amount the school must return is the lesser of:

- the unearned amount of Title IV assistance or
- the institutional charges incurred for the period of enrollment multiplied by the unearned percentage.

The order of return of Title IV funds is:

- Unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loans
- Subsidized Federal Stafford Loans
- Federal Perkins Loans
- Federal PLUS Loans
- Federal Pell Grants
- Federal Iraq Afghanistan Service Grant
- Federal Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants (FSEOG)
- Other Title IV assistance

If the College has issued a refund of Title IV funds in excess of the amount the student has earned prior to the withdrawal date, the student is responsible for repaying the funds. Any amount of loan funds that the student (or the parent for a PLUS Loan) has not earned must be repaid in accordance with the terms of the promissory note, that is, the student (or parent for a PLUS Loan) must make scheduled payments to the holder of the loan over a period of time. Any amount of unearned grant funds is called an overpayment. The amount of a grant overpayment that the student must repay is half of the unearned amount. The student must make arrangements with the College or the Department of Education to return the unearned grant funds.

The calculation of Title IV Funds earned by the student has no relationship to the student's incurred charges. Therefore, the student may still owe funds to the College to cover unpaid institutional charges.

A leave of absence is treated as a withdrawal and a return of Title IV funds may be calculated. A student may take a leave of absence from school for not more than a total of 180 days in any 12-month period.
The calculation of the Title IV refund will be done by the office of student financial services.

Deadlines for Returning Title IV Funds

The amount of the refund allocated to the Federal Stafford Loan and Federal PLUS Program will be returned by the College to the Federal Department of Education within 60 days after the student’s withdrawal dates, as determined by the school.

The amount of the refund allocated to Federal Pell Grant, Federal Iraq and Afghanistan Service Grant, Federal SEOG, and Federal Perkins will be returned by the College to the appropriate federal program accounts within 45 days of the date the student officially withdrew or was expelled, or within 45 days of the date the College determined that the student had unofficially withdrawn.

The amount of the refund, if any, allocated to the student will be paid within 45 days of the student’s withdrawal date or, if the student withdrew unofficially, the date that the dean’s office determined that the student withdrew.

Treatment of College Grants When a Student Withdraws

The amount of College grant funds a student will retain is based on the percentage of the period of enrollment completed.

Treatment of State Grants When a Student Withdraws

The amount of the state grant funds a student will retain is based on the individual refund policy prescribed by the issuing state.

FINANCIAL AID

For general information about financial aid and how to apply for financial aid, consult the Student Financial Services website at www.brynmawr.edu/sfs. Detailed information about the financial aid application and renewal process, types of aid available and regulations governing the disbursement of funds from grant and loan programs, can be found in the Student Financial Services Handbook, which is updated and published annually, and posted to our website.

The education of all students is subsidized by the College because their tuition and fees cover only part of the costs of instruction. To those students well qualified for education in the liberal arts and sciences but unable to meet the College fees, Bryn Mawr is able to offer further financial aid. Alumnae and friends of the College have built up endowments for scholarships; annual gifts from alumnae and other donors add to the amounts available each year. More than 60 percent of undergraduate students in the College receive financial aid. The amount of grant aid awarded by Bryn Mawr to students ranges from $2,000 to $51,200.

Initial requests for financial aid are reviewed by Student Financial Services and are judged on the basis of the student and her family’s demonstrated financial need. Students must reapply each year. Eligibility is re-established annually, assuming the student has maintained satisfactory progress toward her degree. Bryn Mawr College subscribes to the principle that the amount of aid granted a student should be based upon documented financial eligibility. When the total amount of aid needed has been determined, awards are made in the form of grants, loans and jobs.

Bryn Mawr Merit Scholarship

Students admitted to Bryn Mawr College as first-year, first-time students are automatically considered for the Bryn Mawr Merit Scholarship; no additional application is required. Applicants are evaluated using Bryn Mawr’s holistic admission review process, which takes numerous factors into account including but not limited to academic coursework and performance, involvement in school and community, leadership qualities, standardized test scores, letters of recommendation, quality and content of writing, and potential to contribute in meaningful ways to the Bryn Mawr community.

Students may receive a Bryn Mawr Merit Scholarship even with no demonstrated financial need. Merit scholarships may be awarded to U.S. citizens, permanent residents, and international students. In past years, awards have ranged from $8,000-$20,000 per year. Scholarships are awarded at the time of admission, and are renewable each year for up to four years as long as the student remains in good academic standing with the College. Bryn Mawr Merit Scholarship, in conjunction with other sources of financial aid and entitlements, cannot exceed the cost of attendance.

In addition to the funds made available through College resources, Bryn Mawr participates in the following Federal Student Assistance Programs:

- The Federal Direct Stafford Loan Program: Low interest federal loans for undergraduate students.
- The Federal Direct PLUS Loan: Low interest federal loans for parents or of dependent undergraduates.
- The Federal Perkins Loan: A low-interest federal loan for undergraduates with federal need.
- The Federal Work-Study Program: This program provides funds for campus jobs for students who meet the federal eligibility requirements.
- The Federal Pell Grant: A federal grant awarded to undergraduates who have not earned a bachelor’s degree and who demonstrate a level of financial need specified annually by the Department of Education

- The Federal Iraq and Afghanistan Service Grant: For students who are not eligible for Pell Grant but whose parent or guardian was a member of the U.S. armed forces and died as a result of service performed in Iraq or Afghanistan after September 11, 2001.
- The Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (FSEOG): A federal grant for undergraduates with exceptional financial need. Priority is given to students who receive Federal Pell Grants.

Instructions to apply for financial aid are included in the Admissions Prospectus and on the Student Financial Services web page at www.brynmawr.edu/sfs.

Required Forms and Instructions for U.S. Citizens and Permanent Residents

First-Year and Transfer Students

Only applicants who apply for aid at the time of initial admission will be considered for Bryn Mawr Grant assistance during any of their subsequent years of enrollment at the College. To be considered for aid as a freshman, the applicant's response to the FA Intent question on the Common Application must be affirmative. Applicants may apply and will be considered for federal aid, including the Federal Direct Stafford Loan Program, every year regardless of applying for aid as a freshman.

College Scholarship Service (CSS) PROFILE: Submit the CSS Financial Aid/PROFILE at least two weeks before the deadline. If the student’s parent is divorced, separated or has never been married, submit the CSS Noncustodial Parent PROFILE. The Bryn Mawr College CSS code number is 2049.

Renewal Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA): Submit the Renewal FAFSA as soon as possible to meet the deadline, but not before January 1st. The Bryn Mawr College federal code number is 003237.

Federal Tax Returns: Students and their parents must submit signed copies of federal (no state) income tax returns, including all schedules and attachments, both business and personal, along with all W2 forms to the College Board Institutional Document Service (IDOC). Students and parents who are not required to file a federal income tax return must submit copies of all W-2 forms along with a Parent or Student Non-Tax-Filer Form to IDOC. All documents should be submitted to IDOC as one complete packet and must have an IDOC cover sheet.

Trust Documents: Students and parents who are beneficiaries of trust funds (other than Uniform Gift to Minor Act trusts) must submit a copy of the Trust Tax Form 1041, the beneficiary’s K-1 form, the year-end investment account statement for the trust assets, and a copy of the trust instrument governing the management of the trust by the Trustee to IDOC.

Returning Students

Returning students must reapply for financial aid each year. All applications and documents must be submitted by April 15. Eligibility is re-established annually and depends on the student’s maintaining satisfactory progress toward the degree and on her continued demonstrated need for assistance. The financial aid award may change each year as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members in college or the family’s adjusted gross income. Self-help expectations including campus employment and the amount of the federal loan a student is expected to borrow may increase each year.

College Scholarship Service (CSS) PROFILE: Submit the CSS Financial Aid/PROFILE at least two weeks before the deadline. If the student’s parent is divorced, separated or has never been married, submit the CSS Noncustodial Parent PROFILE. The Bryn Mawr College CSS code number is 2049.

Returning Students

As long as they are continually enrolled, international students are not required to re-submit a financial aid application annually. College grants and loans are automatically renewed. International students who have not attended Bryn Mawr for more than two semesters are required to submit a new financial aid application. Only international students who were awarded aid upon entrance to the College are eligible for college grant and loan support in subsequent years at Bryn Mawr.

For a list of scholarship funds and prizes that support the awards made, see the scholarship funds page. These funds are used to enhance Bryn Mawr’s need-based financial aid program. They are not awarded separately. For information on loan funds, see the loan funds page.

Federal Direct Stafford Loans

The Federal Direct Stafford Loan Program enables students who are enrolled at least half-time (two units) to borrow directly from the federal government rather than from a bank. Loans made through this program include the Direct Subsidized Stafford and the Direct Unsubsidized Stafford Loans.

Repayment begins six months after the student is no longer enrolled at least half-time at an accredited institution. The repayment term ranges from 10 to 25 years depending on the amount borrowed and the repayment plan chosen. The minimum monthly payment is $50. If the student borrows a smaller amount, she will have shorter payment terms. If the student borrows a larger amount, she may wish to consolidate her loan to extend the repayment term. The student should review her options at www.ed.gov/DirectLoan. The interest rate for Subsidized Federal Direct Loans first disbursed on or after July 1, 2012 is 6.8%.

The interest rate for Unsubsidized Federal Direct Stafford Loan is fixed at 6.8%. A loan origination fee of 1% will be deducted from the gross amount on all Federal Direct Stafford Loans first disbursed on or after July 1, 2012.

Additional information on the Federal Direct Stafford Loan Program is available from Student Financial Services or the Student Financial Services Handbook.

Perkins Loan

The Perkins Loan Program is administered by the College from allocated federal funds. Eligibility for a Perkins Loan is determined through a federal needs test. The 5% interest rate and repayment of the loan begin nine months after graduation, withdrawal from the College or dropping below half-time status. No interest accrues on the loan until repayment begins. Cancellation and deferment of loan payments are possible under certain circumstances, which are detailed in the loan promissory note. Awards range from $500 to $4,000 per year and are based on financial eligibility and the availability of funds.

Federal Direct PLUS Loan

The Federal Direct PLUS Loan is a federally subsidized loan program designed to help parents of dependent undergraduates pay for educational expenses. Repayment begins on the date of the last disbursement. Parent PLUS loan borrowers whose funds were first disbursed on or after July 1, 2012 have the option of delaying their repayment on the PLUS loan either 60 days after the loan is fully disbursed or six months after the dependent student is not enrolled at least half-time.

During this time, interest may be paid by the parent or capitalized.

Interest rate on the PLUS Loans borrowed on or after July 1, 2006 is fixed at 7.9%. A loan origination fee of 4% will be deducted from the gross amount on all Federal Direct PLUS Loans first disbursed on or after July 1, 2012 and before July 1, 2013. A PLUS borrower may pay the interest as it accrues during a deferment, or allow it to accrue and be capitalized at the end of the deferment period.

International Loan

The International Loan Program is administered by the College from institutional funds, and must be awarded as part of a student’s aid offer. Recipients must remain enrolled at the College at least half time to retain eligibility. The 5% interest rate and repayment of the loan begin 12 months after graduation, withdrawal from the College or dropping below half-time status. No interest accrues on the loan until repayment begins. The maximum repayment period is 10 years. Students who file for bankruptcy may still be required to pay back the loan. Students may not borrow more than the amount offered as part of a financial aid award from year to year.

The Maximilian and Reba E. Richter Scholarship Fund was established by Charles Segal, Esq., attorney for and one of the Trustees of the Estate of Max Richter, father of Helen R. Elser, Class of 1913. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid to a student from a New York City public high school or college. (1961)

The Alice Mitchell Rivlin Scholarship Fund was established by an anonymous donor in honor of Alice Mitchell Rivlin '52. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1996)

The Barbara Paul Robinson Scholarship Fund was established by Barbara Paul Robinson '62. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid who demonstrates the highest academic promise, a determined spirit and a personal commitment to public service and the values of Bryn Mawr College. (2007)

The Serena Hand Savage Memorial Scholarship Fund was established by family and friends of Serena Hand Savage '22, former President of the Alumnae Association in her memory. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid for a Junior who shows great distinction in scholarship and character, and who may need assistance to finish her last two years of College. (1951)

The Constance E. Schaar Memorial Fund was established by the parents, family, fellow students and friends of Constance E. Schaar '63, who died during the year following her graduation. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1964)

The Joseph and Gertrude Schrot Scholarship Fund was established through a bequest from Gertrude S. Schrot of Philadelphia. The fund shall be used to provide financial aid to students of non-traditional age. (2010)

The Mary Wilson Schwartz '41 Scholarship Fund was established by Mary Wilson Schwartz '41. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid with preference for a student studying chemistry. (2011)
The Marion B. Tinaglia Scholarship Fund was established by John J. Tinaglia in memory of his wife, Edith Marion Brunt Tinaglia '45. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1983)

The Kate Wendall Townsend Scholarship Fund was established by Katharine W. Sisson, Class of 1920, who died on July 6, 1978, in honor of her mother. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid with preference for a student from New England who has made a definite contribution to the life of the College in some way besides scholastic achievement. (1978)

The Hope Wearn Troxell Memorial Scholarship was established by Southern California Alumnae in memory of Hope Wearn Troxell '46. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid to a student who has contributed responsibly to the life of the College community. (1973)

The Suetse Li Tung ’50 and Mr. and Mrs. Sumin Li Scholarship Fund for International Students was established by Suetse Li Tung '50. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid for international students, with preference for students from China. (2008)

The Florence Green Turner Scholarship Fund was established to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1991)

The UPS Endowment Fund Scholarship was established by the Foundation for Independent Colleges, Inc. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1997)

The Anne Hawks Vaux Scholarship Fund was established by George Vaux of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania in memory of his wife, Anne Hawks Vaux ’35, M.A. ’41. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1979)

The Mildred and Carl Otto Von Kienbusch Fund for Undergraduate Scholarships was established by a bequest from Carl Otto von Kienbusch of New York City, husband of the late Mildred Pressinger von Kienbusch, Class of 1909. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1976)

The Julia Ward Scholarship Fund was established by an anonymous friend in memory of Julia Ward, Class of 1923. The scholarship is given in particular recognition of Julia Ward’s understanding and sympathy for young students. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1963)

The Elizabeth Vogel Warren ’72 Scholarship was established by Elizabeth Vogel Warren ’72. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (2008)
The Betsy Frantz Havens Watkins '61 Scholarship Fund was established in 2012 by Betsy Frantz Havens Watkins '61 and Charles Watkins. The fund shall be used to provide financial assistance to an undergraduate student with documented financial need who demonstrates the highest academic promise and a personal commitment to the values of Bryn Mawr College. (2011)

The Eliza Jane Watson Scholarship Fund was established by the John Jay and Eliza Jane Watson Foundation. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1964)

The Susan Opstad White '58 Scholarship Fund was established by Mrs. Raymond Opstad in honor of her daughter, Susan Opstad White. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1987)

Benjamin and Jennifer Suh Whitfield Scholarship Fund was established by Benjamin and Jennifer Suh Whitfield '98. This Fund provides financial assistance to an undergraduate student with documented financial need who demonstrates the highest academic promise and a personal commitment to the values of Bryn Mawr College. (2012)

The Anita McCarter Wilbur Scholarship Fund was established by a bequest from Anita McCarter Wilbur '43, Kensington, Maryland, who died on March 28, 1996. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1996)

The William H. Willis Endowed Scholarship Fund was established by Caroline C. Willis '66 in memory of her father. The Fund provides scholarship support for undergraduate students, with preference for students from the South or students who are studying Classical Studies. (2008)

The Margaret W. Wright and S. Eric Wright Scholarship was established by a bequest from Margaret White Wright '43, of Charleston, West Virginia. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid to students of Quaker lineage attending the College. (1985)

The D. Robert Yarnall Fund was established by a bequest from D. Robert Yarnall, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, who died on September 11, 1967. His mother, Elizabeth Biddle Yarnall '19, aunt Ruth Biddle Penfield '29 and daughter Kristina Yarnall-Sibinga '83 are graduates of the College. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1967)

The Nanar and Anthony Yoseloff Endowed Scholarship Fund was established by Nanar Tabrizi Yoseloff '97 and her husband, Anthony Yoseloff. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (2009)

The International Funds

The Ann Updegraff Allen '42 and Ann T. Allen '65 Endowed Scholarship Fund was established by Ann Updegraff Allen '42 and Ann T. Allen '65 for students in good academic standing, with preference for international students. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (2008)

The Frances Porcher Bowles Memorial Scholarship Fund was established by relatives and friends in memory of Frances Porcher Bowles '36. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid for international students. (1985)

The Chinese Scholarship was established by Beatrice MacGeorge, Class of 1901, M.A. '21. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1929)

The Lois Sherman Chope Scholarship Fund was established by Lois Sherman Chope '49, through the Chope Foundation. The purpose of the Fund is to provide undergraduate scholarship support for international students. (1992)

The Elizabeth Dodge Clarke Fund was established by the Cleveland H. Dodge Foundation. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid for international students. (1984)

The Middle East Scholarship Fund was established by Eliza Cope Harrison '58, of Ann Arbor, Michigan. The purpose of the Fund will be to enable the College to make scholarship awards to able students from a number of Middle Eastern countries. While the countries have not been specifically named, it is expected that Iran and Turkey will be included. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid. (1975)

The Elizabeth G. Vermey Scholarship Fund was established by friends of Elizabeth G. Vermey '58, who was the Director of Admissions at Bryn Mawr College from 1965 to 1995. The fund shall be used to provide undergraduate financial aid for an international student. (2008)

The ACADEMIC PROGRAM

The Curriculum

The Bryn Mawr curriculum is designed to encourage breadth of learning and training in the fundamentals of scholarship in the first two years, and mature and sophisticated study in depth in a major program during the last two years. Its overall purpose is to challenge the student and prepare her for the lifelong pleasure and responsibility of educating herself and playing a responsible role in contemporary society. The curriculum encourages independence within a rigorous but flexible framework of divisional and major requirements.

The Bryn Mawr curriculum obtains further breadth through institutional cooperation. Virtually all undergraduate courses and all major programs at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges are open to students from both schools, greatly increasing the range of available subjects. With certain restrictions, full-time Bryn Mawr students may also take courses at Swarthmore College, the University of Pennsylvania and Villanova University during the academic year without payment of additional fees.

Requirements for the A.B. Degree (for students who matriculated prior to fall 2011)

Thirty-two units of work are required for the A.B. degree. These must include:

- One Emily Balch Seminar.
- One unit to meet the quantitative skills requirement.
- Work to demonstrate the required level of proficiency in foreign language.
- Six units to meet the divisional requirements.
- A major subject sequence.
- Elective units of work to complete an undergraduate program.

In addition, all students must complete eight half-semesters of physical education, successfully complete a swim proficiency test and meet the residency requirement.

Emily Balch Seminar Requirement

The aim of the Emily Balch Seminar is to engage students in careful examination of fundamental issues and debates. By encouraging focused discussion and cogent writing, the seminars help prepare students for a modern world that demands critical thinking both within and outside of the frameworks of particular disciplines. Students who matriculated prior to the fall of 2009 complete one College Seminar to satisfy this requirement. Students who matriculate in the fall of 2009 or thereafter complete one Emily Balch Seminar to satisfy this requirement. Students must attain a grade of 2.0 or higher in the seminar in order to satisfy this requirement.

Quantitative Requirement

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have demonstrated competence in college-level mathematics or quantitative skills by:

- Passing with an honor grade an Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate (higher level) or A-level examination in mathematics or
- Passing one course (1 unit) with a grade of at least 2.0 from those designated with a “Q” in the Tri-Co Course Guide.

The purpose of the quantitative requirement is to provide the Bryn Mawr graduate with the competence to evaluate and manage the wide array of information underlying many of the decisions she will make as an individual and as a member of society. The range of potentially useful quantitative skills is extensive and cannot be covered by any individual course. However, a single course can give the student an appreciation of the value of quantitative analysis as well as increase the facility and confidence with which she uses quantitative skills in her later academic, professional and private roles.

A course meeting the quantitative requirement will provide the student with the skills to estimate and check answers to quantitative problems in order to determine reasonableness, identify alternatives and select optimal results. Such a course is designed to help students develop a coherent set of quantitative skills that become progressively more sophisticated and can be transferred to other contexts. In all cases, courses meeting the quantitative requirement will have rigor consistent with the academic standards of the department(s) in which they are located.

Students who matriculated in the fall of 2002 or thereafter may count a single course or exam towards both the quantitative requirement and a divisional requirement, so long as that course is identified as Q and Division I, II, or III in the Tri-Co Course Guide.

Foreign Language Requirement

Bryn Mawr recognizes the inherent intellectual value and fundamental societal importance of acquiring a level of proficiency in the use of one or more foreign languages. The study of foreign languages serves a number of convergent curricular and student interests, including the appreciation of cultural differences, a global perspective across academic disciplines, cognitive insights into the workings of language systems, and alternative models of perceiving and processing human experience.

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have demonstrated knowledge of one foreign language by:

- Passing a proficiency test offered by the College every spring and fall or
- Attaining a score of at least 690 in a language achievement test of the College Entrance Requirements for the A.B.

Examination Board, or by passing with an honor grade an Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate (higher level) or A-level test or

- Completing at the College two courses (two units) above the elementary level with an average grade of at least 2.0 or a grade of at least 2.0 in the second course or
- For a non-native speaker of English who has demonstrated proficiency in her native language, one College Seminar and one writing-intensive course.

Divisional Requirements

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have completed, with grades of 2.0 or higher, two units in the social sciences (Division I), two units in the natural sciences and mathematics (Division II), and two units in the humanities (Division III). Courses satisfying these requirements are marked “I,” “II,” or “III” in the Tri-Co Course Guide. Courses identified as interdivisional, e.g. “I or III,” may be used by a student to satisfy either one—but not both—of the appropriate divisional requirements. Only one of the two units used to satisfy any divisional requirement may be such an interdivisional course.

At least one required unit in Division II must be a laboratory course, designated “IIL” in the Tri-Co Course Guide. One unit of performance in music, dance or theater or one unit of studio art may be used to fulfill one of the two course requirements in the humanities. A student may not use courses in her major subject to satisfy requirements in more than one division, unless the courses are cross-listed in other departments. Only one of the two units used to satisfy any divisional requirement may be fulfilled by tests such as the Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate or A levels taken on work done before entering Bryn Mawr.

The goal of the divisional requirements is to increase the breadth and variety of the student’s intellectual experience at the College. The divisions represented in these requirements describe not only different aspects of human experience, but also characteristic methods of approach. Although any division of knowledge is imperfect, the current divisions—the social sciences, the natural sciences and mathematics, and the humanities—have the advantage of being specific while still broad enough to allow the student a good deal of flexibility in planning her coursework.

Social Sciences (Division I)

The social sciences are concerned with human social behavior; the motivations, institutions and processes that shape this behavior; and the outcomes of this behavior for different groups and individuals. Areas of inquiry include such wide-ranging topics as policy-making, cultural change, revolutions, poverty and wealth, generational conflict and international relations. The social sciences provide the student with a set of theoretical frameworks with which to organize her analysis of these substantive areas. At the same time, they offer a set of methodological tools with which to test empirically—in the uncontrolled laboratory of the real world—the hypotheses that these frameworks generate.

Natural Sciences and Mathematics (Division II)

Knowledge of the physical world is a fundamental part of human experience; understanding the workings of nature is essential to our lives. To achieve this understanding, the student should be familiar with the concepts and techniques of the natural sciences as well as mathematics, the language of science. This understanding must go beyond a knowledge of scientific facts to include a facility with the scientific method and the techniques of scientific inquiry, logical reasoning and clear exposition of results.

Humanities (Division III)

The humanities encompass the histories, philosophies, religions and arts of different cultural groups, as well as the various theoretical and practical modes of their investigation and evaluation. In humanities courses, the student creates and/or interprets many different kinds of artifacts, compositions, monuments, and texts that are and have been valued by human cultures throughout the world.

Requirements for the A.B. Degree (for students who matriculated in the fall of 2011 or later)

Thirty-two units of work are required for the A.B. degree. These must include:

- One Emily Balch Seminar.
- One unit to meet the Quantitative and Mathematical Reasoning Requirement (preceded by the successful completion of the Quantitative Readiness Assessment or Quantitative Readiness Seminar)
- Two units to satisfy the Foreign Language Requirement.
- Four units to meet the Distribution Requirement.
- A major subject sequence.
- Elective units of work to complete an undergraduate program.

In addition, all students must complete six half-semesters of physical education, including wellness, successfully complete a swim proficiency requirement and meet the residency requirement.

Emily Balch Seminar Requirement

The aim of the Emily Balch Seminar is to engage students in careful examination of fundamental issues and debates. By encouraging focused discussion and cogent writing, the seminars help prepare students for a modern world that demands critical thinking both within and outside of the frameworks of particular disciplines. Students must attain a grade of 2.0 or higher in the seminar in order to satisfy this requirement.

Quantitative and Mathematical Reasoning Requirement

Each student must demonstrate the application of the quantitative skills needed to succeed in her professional and personal life as well as many social and natural science courses by either a) a satisfactory score on the Quantitative Readiness Assessment offered before the start of the freshman year, or b) completing a Quantitative Readiness Seminar with a grade of 2.0 or higher during the freshman year.

In addition, each student must complete, with a grade of 2.0 or higher, before the start of her senior year, one course which makes significant use of at least one of the following: mathematical reasoning and analysis, statistical analysis, quantitative analysis of data or computational modeling. Courses that satisfy this requirement are designated “QM” in course catalogs and guides.

A student cannot use the same course to meet both the QM and distribution requirements. A student may use credits transferred from other institutions to satisfy these requirements only with prior approval.

Foreign Language Requirement

Before the start of the senior year, each student must complete, with a grade of 2.0 or higher, two units of foreign language. Courses that fulfill this requirement must be taught in the foreign language; they cannot be taught in translation. Students may fulfill the requirement by completing two sequential semester-long courses in one language, either at the elementary level or, depending on the result of their language placement test, at the intermediate level. A student who is prepared for advanced work may complete the requirement instead with two advanced free-standing semester-long courses in the foreign language(s) in which she is proficient. Non-native speakers of English may choose to satisfy all or part of this requirement by coursework in English literature.

Distribution Requirement

The student’s course of study in the major provides the opportunity to acquire a depth of disciplinary knowledge. In order to ensure exposure to a broad range of frameworks of knowledge and modes of analysis, the College has a distribution requirement that directs the student to engage in studies across a variety of fields, exposes her to emerging areas of scholarship, and prepares her to live in a global society and within diverse communities. The aim of this distribution requirement is to provide a structure to ensure a robust intellectual complement to the student’s disciplinary work in the major.

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have completed, with grades of 2.0 or higher, one unit in each of the following Approaches to Inquiry:

1. Scientific Investigation (SI): understanding the natural world by testing hypotheses against observational evidence.

   These are courses in which the student engages in the observational and analytical practices that aim at producing causal understandings of the natural world. They engage students in the process of making observations or measurements and evaluating their consistency with models, hypotheses or other accounts of the natural world. In most, but not all, cases this will involve participation in a laboratory experience and will go beyond describing the process of model testing or the knowledge that comes from scientific investigation.

2. Critical Interpretation (CI): critically interpreting works, such as texts, objects, artistic creations and performances, through a process of close-reading.

   These courses engage students in the practice of interpreting the meanings of texts, objects, artistic creations, or performances (whether one’s own or the work of others) through “close-reading” of those works.

3. Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC): analyzing the variety of societal systems and patterns of behavior across space.

   These courses encourage the student’s engagement with communities and cultures removed from her own. Using the tools, methodologies and practices that inform our scholarship, students will develop a clearer and richer sense of what it means to analyze or interpret a human life or community within a “culture.” A central goal is to overcome the tendency to think that our own culture is the only one that matters.

4. Inquiry into the Past (IP): inquiring into the development and transformation of human experience over time.
These courses encourage the student to engage intellectually with peoples, communities, and polities existing in a different historical context. Using the tools, methodologies and practices that inform our scholarship, students will develop a clearer and richer sense of what it means to analyze or interpret a human life or community in the past. The aim is to have students view cultures, peoples, polities, events, and institutions on their own terms, rather than through the lens of the present.

These Approaches are not confined to any particular department or discipline. Each course that satisfies the distribution requirement will focus on one (or possibly two) of these Approaches. The distribution classifications can be found in the course guide, and students should work with their deans and advisers to craft their course plan. Although some courses may be classified as representing more than one Approach to Inquiry, a student may use any given course to satisfy only one of the four Approaches.

Only one course within the major department may be used to satisfy both the distribution requirement and the requirements of the major. No more than one course in any given department may be used to satisfy distribution requirements.

Students will normally satisfy these requirements with courses taken while in residence at Bryn Mawr during the academic year. Students may use credits transferred from other institutions to satisfy these requirements only with prior approval. AP, A level, or IB credits may not be used to satisfy the distribution requirement, although they would allow a student to place into a more advanced course representing the same Approach.

THE MAJOR

In order to ensure that a student’s education involves not simply exposure to many disciplines but also some degree of mastery in at least one, she must choose an area to be the focus of her work in the last two years at the College.

The following is a list of major subjects.

Anthropology
Astronomy (Haverford College)
Biology
Chemistry
Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
Classical Culture and Society
Classical Languages
Comparative Literature
Computer Science
East Asian Studies
Economics
English
Fine Arts (Haverford College)
French and Francophone Studies
Geology
German and German Studies
Greek
Growth and Structure of Cities
History
History of Art
Italian
International Studies
Latin
Linguistics (through Tri-College Consortium)
Linguistics and Languages (through Tri-College Consortium)
Mathematics
Music (Haverford College)
Philosophy
Physics
Political Science
Psychology
Religion (Haverford College)
Romance Languages
Russian Sociology
Spanish

Each student must declare her major subject before the end of the sophomore year. The declaration process involves consulting with the departmental adviser and completing a major work plan. The student then submits the major work plan to her dean.

No student may choose to major in a subject in which she has incurred a failure, or in which her average is below 2.0.

A student may double major with the consent of both major departments and of her dean, but she should expect to complete all requirements for both major subjects. Even when a double major has been approved, scheduling conflicts may occur which make it impossible for a student to complete the plan.

Students may choose to major in any department at Haverford College, in which case they must meet the major requirements of Haverford College and the degree requirements of Bryn Mawr College. Procedures for selecting a Haverford major are available from the Haverford Dean’s Office at all times and are sent to all sophomores in the early spring.

Please note that Bryn Mawr students who choose to major at Haverford must hand in their major work plans to the Bryn Mawr Dean’s Office. If double-majoring with one department at Haverford and the other at Bryn Mawr, a Bryn Mawr student should fill out the Bryn Mawr double-major work plan and ask the Haverford department if she needs to fill out the Haverford form as well. If she does, the Haverford form still needs to be brought to the Bryn Mawr Dean’s Office.

Every student working for an A.B. degree is expected to maintain grades of 2.0 or higher in all courses in her major subject. A student who receives a grade below 2.0 in a course in her major is reported to the Committee on Academic Standing and may be required to change her major. If, at the end of her junior year, a student has a major-subject grade point average below 2.0, she must change her major. If she has no alternative major, she will be excluded from the College. A student who is excluded from the College is not eligible for readmission.

A student with unusual interest or preparation in several areas can consider an independent major, a double major, a major with a minor, or a major with an interdisciplinary concentration. Such programs can be arranged by consulting the dean and members of the departments concerned.

Each department sets its own standards and criteria for honors in the major, with the approval of the Curriculum Committee. Students should see departments for details.

The Independent Major Program

The Independent Major Program is designed for students whose interests cannot be accommodated by an established departmental major. An independent major is a rigorous, coherent and structured plan of study involving courses from the introductory through the advanced level in a recognized field within the liberal arts. Independent majors must be constructed largely from courses offered at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges.

The following is a list of some recent independent majors:

- Creative Writing
- Dance
- Feminist and Gender Studies
- Medieval Studies
- Peace and Conflict Studies
- Theater

Students interested in the Independent Major Program should attend the informational teas and meet with Assistant Dean Raima Evan in the fall of their sophomore year. In designing an independent major, students must enlist two faculty members to serve as sponsors. One, who acts as director of the program, must be a member of the Bryn Mawr faculty; the other may be a member of either the Bryn Mawr or Haverford faculty. To propose an independent major, students must submit completed applications by the following deadlines:

- the end of the first week of classes in the spring of the sophomore year (for students hoping to study abroad during one or two semesters of the junior year), or
- the end of the fourth week of classes in the spring of the sophomore year (for students planning to remain at Bryn Mawr throughout the junior year), or
- the end of the fourth week of classes in the fall of the junior year (for junior transfer students)

The application for an independent major consists of:

- A proposal developed with the advice of the sponsors describing the student’s reasons for designing the independent major, explaining why her interests cannot be accommodated by a related departmental or interdepartmental major, identifying the key intellectual questions her major will address, and explaining how each proposed course contributes to the exploration of those questions.
- An independent major work plan of 11 to 14 courses, at least seven of which must be taken at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. The plan will include up to two courses at the 100 level and at least four at the 300 or 400 level, including at least one semester of a senior project or thesis (403).
- Supporting letters from the two faculty sponsors, discussing the academic merits of the independent major work plan and the student’s ability to complete it.
- A letter from the student’s dean regarding her maturity and independence.
- A copy of the student’s transcript.

The Independent Majors Committee, composed of four faculty members, two students and one dean, evaluates the proposals on a case-by-case basis. Their decisions are final. The fact that a particular topic was approved in the past is no guarantee that it will be approved again.
The committee considers the following issues:

- Is the proposed independent major appropriate within the context of a liberal arts college?
- Could the proposed independent major be accommodated instead by an established major?
- Does the proposal effectively articulate the intellectual issues the major will investigate and the role each course will play in this inquiry?
- Does the student possess the intellectual depth necessary to investigate those issues?
- Are the proposed courses expected to be offered over the next two years?
- Will faculty members be available for consistent and good advising?
- Does the student’s record indicate likely success in the proposed independent major?

If the committee approves the proposed major and its title, the student declares an independent major. The committee continues to monitor the progress of students who have declared independent majors and must approve, along with the sponsors, any changes in the program. A grade of 2.0 or higher is required for all courses in the independent major. If this standard is not met, the student must change immediately to a departmental major.

Physical Education Requirement

Throughout its history, the College has been committed to developing excellence. The Department of Athletics and Physical Education affirms the College’s mission by offering a variety of opportunities to promote self-awareness, confidence and the development of skills and habits that contribute to a healthy lifestyle. The College’s comprehensive program includes competitive intercollegiate athletics, diverse physical education and wellness curricula, and leisure and recreational programs designed to enhance the quality of life.

Students matriculating on or before August, 2010, (class of 2013 and 2014) must complete eight (8) credits in PE, including a swim-proficiency test and a Wellness Issues class.

Students matriculating on or after August, 2011, are expected to complete their Core Requirements (Wellness Class and Swim Requirement) during their freshman year and must complete all components of their PE requirements before the start of Spring Break during their sophomore year. General Requirements can be met through semester or quarter long classes, participation in Varsity Athletics, or approved Clubs, or pre-approved independent study.

More information about PE Requirements, course offerings, and PE policies can be found at /www.brynmawr.edu/athletics/physical-education/index.htm.

Residency Requirement

Each student must complete six full-time semesters and earn a minimum of 24 academic units while in residence at Bryn Mawr. These may include courses taken at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges and the University of Pennsylvania during the academic year. The senior year must be spent in residence. Seven of the last 16 units must be earned in residence. Students do not normally spend more than the equivalent of four years completing the work of the A.B. degree. Exceptions to this requirement for transfer students entering as second-semester sophomores or juniors are considered at the time of matriculation.

Exceptions

All requests for exceptions to the above regulations are presented to the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for approval. Normally, a student consults her dean and prepares a written statement to submit to the committee.
ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

Registration

Each semester all Bryn Mawr students preregister for the next semester’s courses in consultation with their deans. Once a student has selected a major, she must instead consult her major adviser. Failure to preregister appropriately results in a $15 fine.

Students must then confirm their registration with the deans on the announced days at the beginning of each semester. Failure to confirm registration results in a $25 fine.

Students normally carry a complete program of four courses (four units) each semester. Requests for exceptions must be presented to the student’s dean. Students may not register for more than five courses (five units) per semester. Requests for more than five units are presented to the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for approval.

Credit/No Credit Option

A student may take four units over four years, not more than one in any semester, under the Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) option. A student registered for five courses is not permitted a second CR/NC registration.

Transfer students may take one CR/NC unit for each year they spend at Bryn Mawr, based on class year at entrance.

A student registered for a course under either the graded or the CR/NC option is considered a regular member of the class and must meet all the academic commitments of the course on schedule. The instructor is not notified of the student’s CR/NC registration because this information should in no way affect the student’s responsibilities in the course.

Faculty members submit numerical grades for all students in their courses. For students registered CR/NC, the registrar converts numerical grades of 1.0 and above to CR and the grade of 0.0 to NC. Numerical equivalents of CR grades are available to each student from the registrar, but once the CR/NC option is elected, the grade is converted to its numerical equivalent on the transcript only if the course becomes part of the student’s major.

When a course is taken under the CR/NC option, the grade submitted by the faculty member is not factored into the student’s grade point average. However, that grade is taken into consideration when determining the student’s eligibility for magna cum laude and summa cum laude distinctions.

Students may not take any courses in their major under the CR/NC option, but they may use it to take courses towards the College Seminar, Emily Balch Seminar, Quantitative, Quantitative and Mathematical Reasoning, Divisional, Distribution or Foreign Language Requirements. While all numerical grades of 1.0 or better will be recorded on the transcript as CR, the registrar will keep a record of whether the course meets the 2.0 minimum needed to count towards a requirement. It is the student’s responsibility to consult her Requirements Report to confirm whether she earned a grade high enough to satisfy a requirement.

Students wishing to take a semester-long course CR/NC must sign the registrar’s register by the end of the sixth week of classes. The deadline for half-semester courses is the end of the third week of the half-semester. No student is permitted to sign up for CR/NC after these deadlines. Students who wish to register for CR/NC for year-long courses in which grades are given at the end of each semester must register CR/NC in each semester because CR/NC registration does not automatically continue into the second semester in those courses. Haverford students taking Bryn Mawr courses must register for CR/NC at the Haverford Registrar’s Office.

Course Options

Some courses, including many introductory survey courses, are designed as two-semester sequences, but students may take either semester without the other and receive credit for the course. There are, however, a very few courses designed as year-long, two-semester sequences that require students to complete the second semester in order to retain credit for the first semester. Such courses are designated in each department’s course list. Students must have the permission of the professor to receive credit for only one semester of such a course.

Most departments allow students to pursue independent study as supervised work, provided that a professor agrees to supervise the work. Students pursuing independent study usually register for a course in that department numbered 403 and entitled “Supervised Work,” unless the department has another numerical designation for independent study. Students should consult with their deans if there are any questions regarding supervised work.

Students may audit courses with the permission of the instructor, if space is available in the course. There are no extra charges for audited courses, and they are not listed on the transcript. Students may not register to take the course for credit after the stated date for Confirmation of Registration.
Some courses are designated as limited enrollment in the Tri-Co Course Guide. The Tri-Co Course Guide provides details about restrictions. If consent of the instructor is required, the student is responsible for securing permission. If course size is limited, the final course list is determined by lottery. Only those students who have preregistered for a course will be considered for a lottery.

Students who confirm their registration for five courses may drop one course through the third week of the semester. After the third week, students taking five courses are held to the same standards and calendars as students enrolled in four courses.

No student may withdraw from a course after confirmation of registration, unless it is a fifth course dropped as described above. Exceptions to this regulation may be made jointly by the instructor and the appropriate dean only in cases when the student's ability to complete the course is seriously impaired due to unforeseen circumstances beyond her control. The decision to withdraw from a Bryn Mawr course must take place before the final work for the course is due. If the course is at Haverford College, Haverford's deadlines apply.

Half-Semester Courses

Some departments offer half-credit, half-semester courses that run for seven weeks on a normal class schedule. These courses, which are as in-depth and as fast-paced as full semester courses, provide students with an opportunity to sample a wider variety of fields and topics as they explore the curriculum (see Focus Courses in “Academic Opportunities”). Note that half-semester courses follow slightly different registration deadlines as full semester courses.

Cooperation with Neighboring Institutions

Full-time students at Bryn Mawr may register for courses at Haverford, Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania during the academic year without payment of additional fees according to the procedures outlined below. This arrangement does not apply to summer programs. Credit toward the Bryn Mawr degree (including the residency requirement) is granted for such courses with the approval of the student's dean, and grades are included in the calculation of the grade point average. Bryn Mawr also has a limited exchange program with Villanova University.

Students register for Haverford courses in exactly the same manner as they do for Bryn Mawr courses, and throughout most of the semester will follow Bryn Mawr procedures. If extensions beyond the deadline for written work or beyond the exam period are necessary, the student must be in compliance with both Bryn Mawr and Haverford regulations.

To register for a Swarthmore course, a student must take a signed permission form from her dean to the Swarthmore Registrar's Office in Parrish Hall. After obtaining the registrar's signature, the student must return the form to the Bryn Mawr Dean's Office. In addition to obtaining approval from the Swarthmore registrar, the student must also obtain the instructor’s signature on a Swarthmore form.

Bryn Mawr students may register for up to two liberal arts courses a semester in the College of Arts and Sciences or the College of General Studies at the University of Pennsylvania, on a space-available basis, provided that the course does not focus on material that is covered by courses at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. Scheduling problems are not considered an adequate reason for seeking admission to a course at Penn.

In order to register for a course at Penn, the student should consult the Penn Course Guide, fill out a Penn registration form which is available on the Bryn Mawr registrar's home page, obtain her dean's signature, and submit the completed form to the Bryn Mawr Registrar's Office. If the Penn Course Guide indicates that permission of the instructor is required for enrollment in a course, the student is responsible for securing this permission. Bryn Mawr students must meet all Penn deadlines for dropping and adding courses and must make arrangements for variations in academic calendars. Note that Bryn Mawr students cannot shop Penn classes. Students should consult their deans if they have any questions about Penn courses or registration procedures.

Bryn Mawr juniors and seniors may take one course per semester in the College of Arts and Sciences at Villanova University on a space-available basis, provided that the course is not offered at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. If the course is fully enrolled, Bryn Mawr students can be admitted only with the permission of the Villanova instructor. This exchange is limited to superior students for work in their major or in an allied field. Students must have permission of both their major adviser and their dean.

Courses at Villanova may be taken only for full grade and credit; Bryn Mawr students may not elect Villanova's pass/fail option for a Villanova course. Credits earned at Villanova are treated as transfer credits; the grades are not included in the student's grade point average, and these courses do not count toward the residency requirement.

In order to register for a course at Villanova, the student should consult the Villanova Course Guide, and obtain a registration form to be signed by her major adviser and returned to the Dean’s Office. The Dean’s Office forwards all registration information to Villanova: students do not register at Villanova. Students enrolled in a course at Villanova are subject to Villanova’s regulations and must meet all Villanova deadlines regarding dropping/adding, withdrawal and completion of work. It is the student’s responsibility to make arrangements for variations in academic calendars. Students should consult their deans if they have any questions about Villanova courses or registration procedures.

Bryn Mawr students enrolled in courses at Swarthmore, the University of Pennsylvania, or Villanova are subject to the regulations of these institutions. It is the student’s responsibility to inform herself about and to remain in compliance with these regulations as well as with Bryn Mawr regulations.

Conduct of Courses

Regular attendance at classes is expected. Responsibility for attendance—and for learning the instructor’s standards for attendance—rests solely with each student. Absences for illness or other urgent reasons are excused, and it is the student’s responsibility to contact her instructors and, if necessary, her dean, in a timely fashion to explain her absence. The student should consult her instructors about making up the work. If it seems probable to the dean that a student’s work may be seriously handicapped by the length of her absence, the dean may require the student to withdraw from a course or from the entire semester.

Quizzes, Examinations and Extensions

Announced quizzes—written tests of an hour or less—are given at intervals throughout most courses. The number of quizzes and their length are determined by the instructor. Unannounced quizzes may also be included in the work of any course. If a student is absent without previous excuse from a quiz, she may be penalized at the discretion of the instructor. The weight is decided by the instructor. If a student has been excused from a quiz because of illness or some other emergency, a make-up quiz is often arranged.

An examination is required of all students in undergraduate courses, except when the work for the course is satisfactorily tested by other means. If a student fails to appear at the proper time for a self-scheduled, scheduled or deferred examination, or fails to return a take-home exam, she is counted as having failed the examination.

A student may have an examination deferred by her dean only in the case of illness or some other emergency. When the deferral means postponement to a date after the conclusion of the examination period, she must take the examination at the next Deferred Examination Period.

Within the semester, the instructor in each course is responsible for setting the date when all written reports, essays, critical papers and laboratory reports are due. The instructor may grant permission for extensions within the semester; the written permission of the dean is not required. Instructors may ask students to inform their dean of the extension or may themselves inform the dean that they have granted an extension.

Two deadlines are important to keep in mind when planning for the end of the semester. Assignments due during the semester proper must be handed in by 5 p.m. on the last day of written work, which is the last day of classes. Final exams or final papers written in lieu of exams must be handed in by 12:30 p.m. on the last day of the exam period. Note that the exam period ends earlier for seniors. These deadlines are noted on the registrar’s website.

During the course of the semester, if a student is unable to complete her work for reasons she cannot control, she should contact her professor in advance of the deadline, if at all possible, to request an extension. Extensions are generally not given after a deadline has already passed.

Requests for extensions that go into the exam period or beyond involve conversations between the student, professor, and dean. A student should contact both her professor and her dean before the due date of the assignment in question. The dean and the professor must agree to all terms of the extension. Normally, the dean will support such an extension only if the delay results from circumstances beyond a student’s control, such as illness or family or personal emergency. Once the terms of the extension are agreed upon, the dean fills out an extension form, which is then submitted to the registrar.

If the instructor has not received a student’s work by the end of the exam period, the instructor will submit a grade of Incomplete if an extension has been agreed upon. An Incomplete is a temporary grade. Once the student submits her work, the Incomplete will be replaced by the numerical grade which is the student’s final grade in the class.

If a student does not meet the date set in her extension, and does not request and receive a further extension, the instructor is required to submit a final grade. When official extensions are not received by the registrar from the dean, and the instructor submits a grade of Incomplete or fails to submit a grade, that grade is temporarily recorded on the transcript as an Unauthorized Incomplete. No grade, except a failure, can be recorded in place of an Unauthorized Incomplete without an extension or other appropriate action taken jointly by the student’s dean and instructor.

Seniors must submit all written work and complete exams by 5 p.m. on the Saturday before senior grades are due in the Registrar’s Office. Extensions beyond that deadline cannot be granted to any senior who expects to graduate that year.

Specific dates for all deadlines are published and circulated by the registrar. It is the student’s responsibility to inform herself of these dates.

Once reported to the registrar, a grade may be altered by the faculty member who originally submitted the grade, or by the department or program chair on behalf of the absent faculty member, by submitting a change-of-grade form with a notation of the reason for the change. Once reported to the registrar, no grade may be changed after one year except by vote of the faculty.

Satisfactory Academic Progress

The following guidelines regarding satisfactory academic progress meet the standards set by the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College and those mandated by the Department of Education.

1. Qualitative Measures for Satisfactory Progress toward the Degree: Academic Standard of Work

At the close of every semester, the Committee on Academic Standing (CAS) reviews the records of all students who have failed to meet the college’s academic standard of work. Upon review, students must meet the requirements set by CAS in order to regain good standing at the college.

The Merit Rule requires that a student attain grades of 2.0 or higher in at least one half of the total number of courses taken while at Bryn Mawr. Courses from which the student has withdrawn are not considered. Covered grades for courses which the student elects to take Credit / No Credit are considered. She may be excluded from the College at the close of any semester in which she has failed to meet this requirement and is automatically excluded if more than one-half of her work falls below 2.0 at the close of her junior year. A student who is excluded from the College is not eligible for readmission.

The Standard of Work in the Major requires that every student working for an A.B. degree maintain grades of 2.0 or higher in all courses in her major subject. No student may choose as her major subject one in which she has received a grade below 1.0 or one in which her average is below 2.0. A student receiving a grade below 2.0 in any course in her major subject (including a course taken at another institution) is reported to the Committee on Academic Standing. After consulting with her major department, the Committee may require her to change her major. At the end of the junior year, a student having a major subject average below 2.0 must change her major. If she has no alternative major, she is excluded from the College and is not eligible for readmission.

Repeated Failure: A student who has incurred a grade of 0.0 or NC following a previous 0.0 or NC will be reported to the Committee on Academic Standing.

Deterioration of Work: A student whose work meets these specific standards but has deteriorated will be reported to the Committee on Academic Standing.

2. Quantitative Measures for Satisfactory Progress Toward the Degree

Students may request exceptions to these quantitative measures by petitioning their deans or the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing. Only the records of those students who fail to meet these standards or to secure an exception will be reviewed at the close of the semester by the Committee on Academic Standing (CAS). Upon review, students must meet the requirements set by CAS in order to regain good standing at the college.

Units:

Thirty-two units are required to complete the A.B. degree. Students normally carry a complete program of four courses (four units) each semester and are expected to complete the full-time course of study in eight enrolled semesters. A student may register for 3.0, 3.5, 4.5 or 5.0 units per semester with the approval of her dean. To enroll in 5.5 units, she must also secure the permission of the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing.

Pace:

Full-time students must earn a minimum of fifteen units before the start of the junior year. These units may include transfer credits. At the end of her second, third or fourth semester, any student who is unable to present to her dean a viable plan to meet this expectation must petition the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for an exception. Students who are not granted an exception will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Academic Standing.

All students must be on pace to complete the A.B. degree within 150% of the standard thirty-two units. To meet these guidelines, students must complete at least 67% of all courses attempted in any single semester and at least 67% cumulatively. Courses in which a student has earned the following grades for any reason, including non-attendance, will count as units attempted but not completed: W (withdrawal), 0.0 (failure), NC (a failure earned in a course taken credit / no credit), or NGR (no grade). Officially dropped and unofficially audited courses count as neither units attempted nor completed. Courses in which a student has earned a grade of UI (unauthorized incomplete) or I (incomplete) will not be counted as a unit attempted until the final grade has been assigned. These standards apply to students enrolled in dual degree programs. The maximum time frame for a transfer student may not exceed 150% of the thirty-two units minus the number of units accepted for transfer at the point of matriculation. Any student who is unable to meet this expectation may petition her dean for an exception.

Acceptance into a Major Program:

By the end of the sophomore year, every student must have declared a major. At the end of her fourth semester, any student who has failed to meet this expectation must petition the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for an exception. Students who are not granted an exception will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Academic Standing.

Completion of requirements:

Before the start of the sophomore year, all students must have completed the Emily Balch Seminar Requirement. At the end of her second semester, any student who has failed to meet this expectation must petition the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for an exception. Students who are not granted an exception will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Academic Standing.

Before the start of the junior year, all students who matriculated in August 2011 or later must have completed the physical education requirement. At the end of her fourth semester, any student who has failed to meet this expectation must petition the Department of Athletics for an exception. Students who are not granted an exception will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Academic Standing.

Before the start of the senior year, all students must have completed all remaining requirements, including the distribution, foreign language and quantitative requirements, and for students who matriculated prior to August 2011, the physical education requirement. At the end of her sixth semester, any student who is unable to present to her dean a viable plan to meet this expectation must petition the Special Cases Subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Standing for an exception. Students who are not granted an exception will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Academic Standing.

3. Procedure: The Committee on Academic Standing (CAS)

Every January and June, the Committee on Academic Standing (CAS) reviews the records of all students who have failed to meet the academic standards of the College or to make satisfactory progress towards the degree. A student whose record is reviewed by CAS must meet the requirements set by CAS in order to regain good standing at the college.

Each student whose record is reviewed will receive an official report from the Committee which lays out an academic plan and specifies the standards she must meet by the end of the following semester or before returning to the College. The student will also receive a letter from her dean. The student’s parent(s) or guardian(s) will receive a copy of this report and letter.

Any student previously in good standing whose record has been reviewed will be put on academic probation the following semester, or the semester of her return if she has been required to withdraw. If the student receives financial aid, she will also receive a financial aid warning. While on academic probation, she will be required to meet regularly with her dean and her instructors will be asked to submit mid-semester reports regarding her work. If the student meets the standards specified by the committee, she regains her good standing. If she fails to meet the standards, she may appeal to CAS for permission to continue for an additional semester of academic probation (and, if appropriate, for a semester of financial aid probation). Her appeal should specify the reasons she failed to make satisfactory academic progress (such as health issues, family crises, or other special circumstance) and the changes that have taken place that insure that the she can make satisfactory progress in the upcoming semester. The student may supply documentation to support her appeal.

Any student whose record is reviewed by CAS or who appeals to CAS for an additional semester of probation may be required to withdraw from the College and present evidence that she can do satisfactory work before being readmitted on probation. A withdrawn student may not register for classes at the College until she has been readmitted. The CAS may also recommend to the president that the student be excluded from the College. An excluded student is not eligible for readmission to the College.

4. Readmission process for students who have been required to withdraw

A student who has been required by the CAS to withdraw may apply to return on probation when she has met the expectations set by the CAS and can demonstrate that she is ready to do satisfactory work at the college. Students who hope to return in September must submit a re-enrollment application and all supporting materials by May 1. Those who hope to return in January must submit their application and materials by November 1. Re-enrollment applications are reviewed by CAS in June and in December.

Cumulative Grade Point Averages

In calculating cumulative grade-point averages, grades behind CR, NC or NNG are not included. Summer school grades from Bryn Mawr earned on this campus are included, as are summer school grades earned from the Bryn Mawr programs at Avignon. No other summer school grades are included. Term-time grades from Haverford College, Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania earned on the exchange are included. Term-time grades transferred from other institutions are not included.

Distinctions

The A.B. degree may be conferred cum laude, magna cum laude and summa cum laude.

Cum laude

All students with cumulative grade point averages of 3.40 or higher, calculated as described above, are eligible to receive the degree cum laude.

Magna cum laude

To determine eligibility for magna cum laude, grade point averages are recalculated to include grades covered by CR, NC and NNG. All students with recalculated grade point averages of 3.60 or higher are eligible to receive the degree magna cum laude.

Summa cum laude

To determine eligibility for summa cum laude, grade point averages are recalculated to include grades covered by CR, NC and NNG. The 10 students with the highest recalculated grade point averages in the class receive the degree summa cum laude, provided their recalculated grade point averages equal or exceed 3.80.

Credit for Work Done Elsewhere

All requests for transfer credit are approved by the Registrar. The following minimal guidelines are not exhaustive. To ensure that work done elsewhere will be eligible for credit, students must obtain approval for transfer credit before enrolling. These guidelines apply to all of the specific categories of transfer credit listed below.

- Only liberal arts courses taken at accredited four-year colleges and universities will be considered for transfer.
- Four semester credits (or six quarter credits) are equivalent to one unit of credit at Bryn Mawr.
- A minimum grade of 2.0 or C or better is required for transfer. Grades of C minus or “credit” are not acceptable.
- Courses taken by correspondence or distance learning, even those sponsored by an accredited four-year institution, are not eligible for transfer.
- The Registrar cannot award credit without the receipt of an official transcript from the outside institution recording the course completed and the final grade.

To count a transferred course towards a College requirement (such as the quantitative or distribution requirements), a student must obtain prior approval from her dean or the Registrar. In some cases, the student may be asked to obtain the approval of the appropriate department.

Domestic study away: A student who wishes to receive credit for a semester or a year away from Bryn Mawr as a full-time student at another institution in the United States must have the institution and her program approved in advance by her dean, major adviser and other appropriate departments.

Study Abroad: A student who plans foreign study during the academic year must obtain the approval of the Foreign Study Committee in addition to that of her dean, major adviser and other appropriate departments. Students must enroll in a normal full-time program during their time away.

Summer Work: A student who wishes to receive credit for summer school work must obtain advance approval of her plans from her dean and the Registrar and present to the Registrar an official transcript within one semester of completion of the course. A total of no more than four units earned in summer school may be counted toward the degree; of these, no more than two units may be earned in any one summer.

Work done prior to matriculation: Students may receive up to four units of transfer credit for courses taken at a college prior to graduation from secondary school. The courses must have been taught on the college campus (not in the high school) and have been open to students matriculated at that college. The courses cannot have been counted toward secondary school graduation requirements. These courses may include those taken at a community college. In all other respects, requests for transfer credit for work done prior to secondary school graduation are subject to the same provisions, procedures and limits as all other requests for transfer credit.

Transfer Students: Students who transfer to Bryn Mawr from another institution may transfer a total of eight units. These courses may include those taken at a community college. Exceptions to this rule for second-semester sophomores and for juniors are considered at the time of the student’s transfer application. Credit for work completed before matriculating at Bryn Mawr will be calculated as described above.

Departure from the College Prior to Graduation

Every student who leaves Bryn Mawr prior to graduation is required to see her dean and complete a Notice of Departure.

Medical Leaves of Absence

A student may, on the recommendation of the College’s medical director or her own doctor, at any time request a medical leave of absence for reasons of health. The College reserves the right to require a student to take a leave of absence if, in the judgment of the medical director and her dean, she is not in sufficiently good health to meet her academic commitments or to continue in residence at the College.

Medical leaves of absence for psychological reasons

A student may experience psychological difficulties that interfere with her ability to function at college. Taking time away from college to pursue therapy may be necessary. The College sees this decision as restorative, not punitive. With evidence of sufficient improvement in health to be successful, Bryn Mawr welcomes the student’s return. Medical leaves for psychological reasons normally last at least two full semesters to allow sufficient time for growth, reflection and meaningful therapy. Students who return prematurely are often at higher risk of requiring a second leave of absence.

Leaving the College

Prior to leaving the college, the student meets with her dean to discuss her situation and to fill out a Notice of Departure. She also authorizes the medical director or the director of counseling services to inform the dean of the medical condition that prompted the leave of absence and recommendations for treatment for the duration of the leave. Failure to complete this step will compromise the student’s eligibility to return to the College. If the student is working with a medical professional who is not affiliated with the college, she should give that person permission to speak with the medical director or the director of counseling services before they provide their recommendations to the dean.

After leaving the college, the student may expect to receive a follow-up letter from her dean along with a copy of the Notice of Departure and of the treatment recommendations of the Health Center. She should expect that her parents or guardians will receive a letter from the dean and a copy of the Notice of Departure. The student is encouraged to share the Health Center’s recommendations with her parents or guardians.

While away, the student is advised to avoid visiting Haverford or Bryn Mawr without receiving prior permission from her dean. Students who fail to follow this advice risk compromising their eligibility to return to the College.

Returning to the College

When a student is ready to apply to return, she should contact her dean to inform the dean of her interest in returning. The application and instructions are available on the Dean’s Office website (www.brynmawr.edu/deans/ReenrollmentApplication_001.html). In addition, she should ask the physician or counselor with whom she has worked while on leave to contact the appropriate person at the College’s Health Center. Permission to return from a medical leave is granted when the Dean’s Office and the College’s Health Center receive satisfactory evidence of recovery and believe that the student is ready to resume her studies. Students who are eligible to return in September must submit all application materials by May 1. Those who are eligible to return in January must submit their materials by November 1.

Personal Leaves of Absence

Any student in good academic standing may apply for a one- or two-semester leave of absence from the College. She should discuss her plans with her dean and fill out a Notice of Departure by June 1 or, for a leave beginning in the spring, by November 1. During her leave of absence, she is encouraged to remain in touch with her dean and is expected to confirm her intention to return to the College by March 1 (for return in the fall) or November 1 (for return in the spring). Reinstatement is always contingent upon the availability of space in the residence halls.

A student on a semester-long leave of absence who chooses not to return at the scheduled time may ask to extend her leave by one additional semester by notifying her dean by the above deadlines. If a student on a leave of absence chooses not to return to the College after two semesters, her status changes to “withdrawn” (see “Voluntary Withdrawal” below).

Voluntary Withdrawals

A student in good standing who leaves the College in the following circumstances will be categorized as “withdrawn” rather than on leave and will need to apply for permission to return (see below, “Permission to Return After Withdrawal”):

• if she leaves the college in mid-semester (unless she qualifies instead for a medical or psychological leave of absence),
• if she matriculates as a degree candidate at another school,
• if her leave of absence has expired, or
• if she loses her good standing after having applied for a leave of absence.

Required Withdrawals

Any student may be required to withdraw from the College because she fails to meet the academic standards of the College, because of an infraction of the Honor Code or other community norm, or because she is not healthy enough to meet her academic commitments.

In addition, any student whose behavior disrupts either the normal conduct of academic affairs or the conduct of life in the residence halls may be required to withdraw by the Dean of the Undergraduate College. If the student wishes to appeal the decision, a committee consisting of three faculty members from the Committee on Academic Standing, the president of the Self Government Association and the head of the Honor Board hears the student and the dean. The committee makes its recommendations to the president of the College; the president’s decision is binding. In cases of required withdrawal, no fees are refunded.

Permission to Return After Withdrawal

Students who withdraw, whether by choice or as a result of the above procedures, must apply for permission to return. The application and instructions are available on the Dean’s Office website (www.brynmawr.edu/deans/ReenrollmentApplication_001.html). Students must submit their application and all supporting documents no later than May 1 (for return in the fall) or November 1 (for return in the spring).

ACADEMIC OPPORTUNITIES

Minors and Concentrations

Many departments, but not all, offer a minor. Students should see departmental entries for details. The minor is not required for the A.B. degree. A minor usually consists of six units, with specific requirements to be determined by the department. If a course taken under the Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) or Haverford College’s No Numerical Grade (NNG) option subsequently becomes part of a student’s minor, the grade is not converted to its numerical equivalent. There is no required average for a minor.

The following is a list of subjects in which students may elect to minor. Minors in departments or programs that do not offer majors appear in italics.

complete two full years of work there. At the end of five years she is awarded an A.B. degree by Bryn Mawr and a Bachelor of Science degree by Caltech. Programs are available in many areas of specialization.

In her three years at Bryn Mawr, the student must complete a minimum of 24 units, most of the coursework required by her major (normally physics or chemistry), and all other Bryn Mawr graduation requirements. She must also complete all courses prescribed by Caltech. See the Caltech website at http://admissions.caltech.edu/applying/32.

Students do not register for this program in advance; rather, they complete a course of study that qualifies them for recommendation by the appropriate Caltech 3-2 Plan Liaison Officer at Bryn Mawr College for application in the spring semester of their third year at the College. Approval of the student’s major department is necessary at the time of application and for the transfer of credit from the Caltech program to complete the major requirements at Bryn Mawr.

Students considering this option should consult the program liaison in the Department of Physics or Chemistry at the time of registration for Semester I of their first year and each semester thereafter to ensure that all requirements are being completed on a satisfactory schedule. Financial aid at Caltech is not available to non-U.S. citizens.

4+1 Partnership with Penn’s School of Engineering and Applied Science

The College’s new 4+1 Partnership with the University of Pennsylvania School of Engineering and Applied Science allows a student to begin work on a Master’s degree in Engineering while still enrolled as an undergraduate at Bryn Mawr. Students may apply to the program as early as their fourth semester or as late as their seventh semester. Applicants would be required to major in math or a relevant science and to have both a major and a cumulative GPA of at least 3.0. Applicants would also be encouraged to submit GRE scores. Successful applicants would be permitted to take up to three graduate courses at Penn while undergraduates through the Quaker Consortium. These courses would count towards a student’s undergraduate degree and at the discretion of her major department might also count towards a student’s major. Successful applicants would also be eligible to participate in Penn’s summer undergraduate research program.

Upon completion of her undergraduate degree, students in the 4+1 Partnership would then matriculate at the University of Pennsylvania and complete her Master’s Degree. Students who had already completed three graduate courses would be able to complete the degree (seven remaining courses) in one year.
Students interested in this program should consult their major adviser. It may be advisable for such students to enroll in one or more introductory engineering courses at Penn during their sophomore year to learn more about engineering and better prepare for graduate level courses.

3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning

This arrangement with the Department of City and Regional Planning at the University of Pennsylvania allows a student to earn an A.B. degree with a major in the Growth and Structure of Cities Program at Bryn Mawr and a degree of Master of City Planning at the University of Pennsylvania in five years. While at Bryn Mawr the student must complete the College Seminar, quantitative, foreign-language, and divisional requirements and the basis of a major in the Growth and Structure of Cities Program. The student applies to the M.C.P. program at Penn in her junior year. GRE scores will be required for the application. No courses taken prior to official acceptance into the M.C.P. program may be double-counted toward both the A.B. and the M.C.P. after acceptance. For further information students should consult Carola Hein early in their sophomore year.

Combined Master’s and Teacher Certification Programs at the University of Pennsylvania, Graduate School of Education (GSE)

Bryn Mawr and Haverford students interested in obtaining both the M.S.Ed. degree as well as faculty approval for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania teaching certificate may choose to submatriculate as undergraduates into the University of Pennsylvania’s Graduate School of Education’s 10-month, urban-focused Master’s Program in Elementary or Secondary Education. Students usually submatriculate at the beginning of their junior year.

Bryn Mawr and Haverford students who submatriculate may take up to two graduate-level education courses at Penn while they are undergraduates (usually during their junior or senior years) that will double count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. To submatriculate into the program, students must have a GPA of a 3.0 or above and a combined GRE score of at least 1000 and must complete an application for admission.

Summer Language Programs

Summer language programs offer students the opportunity to spend short periods of time studying a language, conducting research and getting to know another part of the world well.

Bryn Mawr offers a six-week summer program in Avignon, France. This total-immersion program is designed for undergraduate and graduate students with a serious interest in French language, literature and culture. The faculty of the institut is composed of professors teaching in colleges and universities in the United States and Europe. Classes are held at the Palais du Roure and other sites in Avignon; the facilities of the Médiathèque Ceccano as well as the Université d’Avignon library are available to the group. Students are encouraged to live with French families or foyers. A certain number of independent studios are also available.

Applicants for admission must have strong academic records and have completed a course in French at a third-year college level or the equivalent. For detailed information concerning admission, curriculum, fees, academic credit and scholarships, students should consult Professor Brigitte Mahuzier of the Department of French and/or visit the Avignon website at www.brynmawr.edu/avignon.

The College also participates in summer programs with the American Council of Teachers of Russian (A.C.T.R.) in Moscow, St. Petersburg and other sites in Russia. These overseas programs are based at several leading Russian universities and are open to Bryn Mawr students who have reached the intermediate level of proficiency in speaking and reading. Summer programs are 8 weeks in length and provide the equivalent of 2 course units of work in advanced Russian language and culture. Many Bryn Mawr students also take part in the semester (4 units) or academic year (8 units) programs in Russia as well. For further information about the A.C.T.R. programs, students should consult the Department of Russian or ACTR at www.actr.org.

Bryn Mawr offers an eight-week intensive summer program in Russian language and culture on campus available through the Russian Language Institute (RLI). The program is open to bi-college students as well as to qualified students from other colleges, universities, and high schools.

The Russian Language Institute offers a highly-focused curriculum (6 hours per day) and co-curricular environment conducive to the rapid development of linguistic and cultural proficiency. Course offerings are designed to accommodate a full range of language learners, from the beginner to the advanced learner (three levels total). This highly-intensive program

More information about the secondary education and elementary education master’s programs are available on the GSE website: http://tep.gse.upenn.edu/.
provides the equivalent of a full academic year of Russian to participants who complete the program. Students may use units completed at RLI to advance to the next level of study at their home institution or to help fulfill the language requirement. Most RLI participants elect to reside on-campus at the Russian-speaking residential hall, as part of the overall RLI learning experience.

For detailed information, please contact Billie Jo Ember (610-526-5187) or visit: www.brynmawr.edu/russian/rlf.htm.

Study Abroad in the Junior Year

Bryn Mawr believes that study abroad is a rewarding academic endeavor that when carefully incorporated into students’ academic career can enhance students’ language skills, broaden their academic preparation, introduce them to new cultures, and enhance their personal growth and independence. The College has approved about 70 programs in colleges and universities in other countries. Students who study abroad include majors across the humanities, the social sciences and the natural sciences. In previous years, students studied in Argentina, Australia, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Czech Republic, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Hong Kong, Iceland, India, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Korea, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, New Zealand, South Africa, Spain, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom.

The Foreign Studies Committee is responsible for evaluating applications from all Bryn Mawr students who want to study abroad during the academic year as part of their Bryn Mawr degrees. The Foreign Studies Committee determines a student’s eligibility by looking at a variety of factors, including the overall and major grade point averages, the intellectual coherence of the study abroad experience with the academic program, the student’s overall progress towards the degree, and faculty recommendations. After careful review of applications, the Committee will notify the student of their decision granting, denying, or giving conditions for permission to study abroad. Only those students whose plans are approved by the Committee will be allowed to transfer courses from their study abroad programs towards their Bryn Mawr degrees. Students with a grade point average below 3.0 should consult the Director of International Programs regarding eligibility. Most non-English speaking programs expect students to meet at least intermediate proficiency level before matriculation, and some require more advanced preparation. The student must also be in good disciplinary standing.

Most students may study abroad for one semester only during their academic career. The committee will consider requests for exceptions to this rule from students majoring in a foreign language and those accepted to Cambridge, Oxford or the London School of Economics, which are yearlong programs for which one semester is not an option. All students interested in study abroad in their junior year must declare their major(s) and complete the Bryn Mawr study abroad application by the required deadline stated on the Office of International Programs website and the study abroad guide.

Study abroad students continue to pay Bryn Mawr tuition and pay the overseas programs directly for housing and food. The College, in turn, pays the program tuition and academic related fees directly to the institution abroad. Financial aid for study abroad is available for students who are eligible for assistance and have been receiving aid during their first and sophomore years. If the study abroad budget is not able to support all of those on aid who plan to study abroad, priority will be given to those for whom it is most appropriate academically and to those who have had the least international experience. For details, see the Study Abroad Guide, which is updated and published every year.

Preparation for Careers in Architecture

Although Bryn Mawr offers no formal degree in architecture or a set pre-professional path, students who wish to pursue architecture as a career may prepare for graduate study in the United States and abroad through courses offered in the Growth and Structure of Cities Program. Students interested in architecture and urban design should pursue the studio courses (226, 228) in addition to regular introductory courses. They should also select appropriate electives in architectural history and urban design (including courses offered by the departments of Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, East Asian Studies and History of Art) to gain a broad exposure to architecture over time as well as across cultural traditions. Affiliated courses in physics and calculus meet requirements of graduate programs in architecture; theses may also be planned to incorporate design projects. These students should consult as early as possible with Senior Lecturer Daniela Voith and the program director in the Growth and Structure of Cities Program.

Preparation for Careers in the Health Professions

The Bryn Mawr curriculum offers courses that meet the requirements for admission to professional schools in medicine, dentistry, and veterinary medicine. Each year a significant number of Bryn Mawr graduates enroll in these schools. The minimal requirements for most medical and dental schools are met by one year of English, one year of biology, one year of general chemistry, one year of organic chemistry and one year of physics; however, several medical schools and dental schools do require one additional semester of upper-level coursework in biology as well as math courses. Schools of veterinary medicine usually require upper-level coursework in biology as well as extensive experience working with a diversity of animal species. Students considering careers in one of the health professions are encouraged to discuss their plans with the undergraduate health professions adviser in Canwyll House. International students should be aware that students who are not U.S. citizens or permanent residents comprise less than 1% of the medical school students in the United States. Many medical schools do not accept applications from international students, and schools that do accept international students often require them to document their ability to pay the entire cost of a four year medical school education. International students are encouraged to contact the undergraduate health professions adviser to discuss the significant challenges faced by international students seeking admission to U.S. medical schools as well as to other health professional schools.

The Health Professions Advising Office publishes the Guide for First- and Second-Year Students Interested in the Health Professions. This handbook is available at the meeting for first-year students during Customs Week and at the Health Professions Advising Office in Canwyll House. More information about preparing for careers in the health professions, including the Guide for First- and Second-Year Students, is also available at the Health Professions Advising Office website, www.brynmawr.edu/healthpro.

Preparation for Careers in Law

Because a student with a strong record in any field of study can compete successfully for admission to law school, there is no prescribed program of “pre-law” courses. Students considering a career in law may explore that interest at Bryn Mawr in a variety of ways—e.g., by increasing their familiarity with U.S. history and its political process, participating in Bryn Mawr’s well established student self-government process, “shadowing” alumnae/i lawyers through the Career Development Office’s externship program, attending law career panels and refining their knowledge about law-school programs in the Pre-Law Club. Students seeking guidance about the law-school application and admission process should consult with the College’s pre-law advisor, Jennifer Beale, at the Career Development Office (www.brynmawr.edu/cdo).

Teacher Certification

Students majoring in biology, chemistry, English, French, history, Latin, mathematics, physics, political science, Spanish and a number of other fields that are typically taught in secondary school, may get certified to teach in public secondary high schools in Pennsylvania. By reciprocal arrangement, the Pennsylvania certificate is accepted by most other states as well. A student who wishes to teach should consult her dean, the Education Program adviser and the chair of her major department early in her college career so that she may make appropriate curricular plans. Students may also choose to get certified to teach after they graduate through the Bryn Mawr/Haverford Post-Baccalaureate Teacher Education Program. For further information, see the Education Program.

Air Force Reserve Officers’ Training Corps (AFROTC)

The Department of Aerospace Studies through Saint Joseph’s University offers Bryn Mawr College students a three-year and four-year curriculum leading to a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Air Force. In the four-year curriculum, a student takes the General Military Course (GMC) during the freshman and sophomore years, attends a four-week summer training program, and then takes the Professional Officer Course (POC) in the junior and senior years. A student is under no contractual obligation to the Air Force until entering the POC or accepting an Air Force scholarship. In the three-year curriculum, a student completes AER 101, AER 102, AER 201, and AER 202 during the sophomore year, and then enters the POC in the junior year. The subject matter of the freshman and sophomore years is developed from a historical perspective and focuses on the scope, structure, and history of military power with the emphasis on the development of air power and its relationship to current events. During the junior and senior years the curriculum concentrates on the concepts and practices of leadership and management, and the role of national security forces in contemporary American society.

In addition to the academic portion of the curricula, each student participates in a two-hour Leadership Laboratory (AER 251, 252, 351, or 352) each week. During this period the day-to-day skills and working environment of the Air Force are discussed and explained. The Leadership Lab utilizes a student organization designed for the practice of leadership and management techniques.

Air Force ROTC offers scholarships for two, three, and four years on a competitive basis to qualified applicants. All scholarships are applied to tuition and lab fees, and include a textbook allowance, plus a tax-free monthly stipend which varies from $300 to $500, depending on graduation date."

The Center for Visual Culture is dedicated to the study of visual forms and experience of all kinds, from ancient artifacts to contemporary films and computer-generated images. It serves as a forum for explorations of the visual aspect of the natural world as well as the diverse objects and processes of visual invention and interpretation around the world.

Summer Courses

During Summer Sessions I and II, qualified women and men, including high-school students, may take courses in the sciences, mathematics and intensive language studies in Russian. Students may use these courses to fulfill undergraduate requirements or prepare for graduate study. The current summer-session calendar should be consulted for dates and course descriptions. Each course carries full academic credit.

Continuing Education Program

The Continuing Education Program provides highly qualified women, men and high-school students who do not wish to undertake a full college program leading to a degree the opportunity to take courses at Bryn Mawr College on a fee basis, prorated according to the tuition of the College, space and resources permitting. Students accepted by the Continuing Education Program may apply to take up to two undergraduate courses or one graduate course per semester; they have the option of auditing courses or taking courses for credit. Alumnae/i who have received one or more degrees from Bryn Mawr (A.B., M.A., M.S.S., M.L.S.P. and/or Ph.D.) and women and men over 65 years of age are entitled to take undergraduate courses for credit at the College at a special rate. This rate applies only to continuing-education students and not to matriculated McBride Scholars. Continuing-education students are not eligible to receive financial aid from the College. For more information or an application, go to www.brynmawr.edu/academics/continuing_ed.shtml.

Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program

The Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program serves women beyond the traditional college-entry age who wish to earn an undergraduate degree at Bryn Mawr. The program admits women who have demonstrated talent, achievement and intelligence in various areas, including employment, volunteer activities and home or formal study. McBride Scholars are admitted directly as matriculated students.

Once admitted to the College, McBride scholars are subject to the residency rule, which requires that a student take a minimum of 24 course units while enrolled at Bryn Mawr. Exceptions will be made for... students who transfer more than eight units from previous work. Such students may transfer up to 16 units and must then take at least 16 units at Bryn Mawr. McBride Scholars may study on a part-time or full-time basis. For more information or an application, visit the McBride Program website at www.brynmawr.edu/mcbride or call (610) 526-5152.

Postbaccalaureate Premedical Program

Women and men who hold bachelor’s degrees but need introductory science courses before making initial application to schools of medicine, dentistry and veterinary medicine may apply to the Postbaccalaureate Premedical Program. The Postbac Program stresses intensive work in the sciences. It is designed primarily for students who are changing fields and who have not previously completed the premedical requirements. Applications are considered for admission in the summer or fall only. Applications should be submitted as early as possible because decisions are made on a rolling admissions basis. The Postbac Program is highly selective. Please visit www.brynmawr.edu/postbac for more information.

Students enrolled in the Postbac Program may elect to apply early for provisional admission to an outstanding group of medical schools with which Bryn Mawr has a "consortial" arrangement. Students who are accepted at a medical school through the consortial process enter medical school in the September immediately following the completion of their postbaccalaureate year. Otherwise, students apply to medical school during the summer of the year they are completing the program. The following are Bryn Mawr’s "consortial" medical schools:

Boston University School of Medicine
Brown Alpert Medical School
Dartmouth Medical School
Drexel University College of Medicine
George Washington University School of Medicine and Health Sciences
Hofstra North Shore-LIJ School of Medicine
Jefferson Medical College of Thomas Jefferson University
Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine

The Emily Balch Seminars

Co-Directors
Michelle Francl, Department of Chemistry
Gail Hemmeter, Department of English

The Emily Balch Seminars introduce all first-year students at Bryn Mawr to a critical, probing, thoughtful approach to the world and our roles in it. The seminars are named for Emily Balch, Bryn Mawr Class of 1889. She was a gifted scholar with a uniquely global perspective who advanced women’s rights on an international level and who, in 1946, was awarded the Nobel Prize for Peace.

These challenging seminars are taught by scholar/teachers of distinction within their fields and across academic disciplines. They facilitate the seminars as active discussions among students, not lectures. Through intensive reading and writing, the thought-provoking Balch Seminars challenge students to think about complex, wide-ranging issues from a variety of perspectives.

While books and essays are core texts in the Balch Seminars, all source materials that invite critical interpretation and promote discussion and reflection may be included—films, performances, material objects, research surveys and experiments, or studies of social practices and behavior.

The seminars are organized around fundamental questions in contemporary or classical thought that students will inevitably address in their lives, regardless of the majors they elect at Bryn Mawr or the profession or career they pursue after graduating. Seminar topics vary from year to year.

Students can expect to write formal and informal assignments weekly during the semester. Students also meet one-on-one with their teachers every other week outside of class to discuss their written work and their progress in becoming a critical thinker.

In the Balch Seminars, students form a tightly knit, collaborative learning community that will serve as a model for much of their intellectual life at Bryn Mawr, both in and out of the classroom. As a result, students will enrich their educational experience in whatever fields of knowledge they pursue at Bryn Mawr, and be better prepared for a more reflective and critical life in a complex and changing world beyond college.
For more information and a list of current courses, visit www.brynmawr.edu/balch/.

360º creates an opportunity for students to participate in a cluster of multiple courses that connect students and faculty in a single semester (or in some cases across contiguous semesters) to focus on common problems, themes, and experiences for the purposes of research and scholarship.

Interdisciplinary and interactive, 360º builds on Bryn Mawr’s strong institutional history of learning experiences beyond the traditional classroom, placed within a rigorous academic framework.

360º is a unique academic opportunity that is defined by the following five characteristics:

1. 360º offers an interdisciplinary experience for students and faculty.

   Reflecting the fact that many interesting questions are being explored at the edges or intersections of fields, each cluster of courses in 360º emphasizes interdisciplinary, multidisciplinary or transdisciplinary coursework. 360º clusters may involve two or more courses bridging the humanities and the natural and social sciences; collaborations within each broad division, or even two or more courses within the same department with very different subfields. What is central is that these courses engage problems using different approaches, theories, prior data and methods.

2. 360º is unified by a focused theme or research question.

   These unifying themes can be topics that cut across disciplines such as “poverty,” refer to a particular space or time like “Vienna at the turn of the 20th century”, or define a complex research question, such as the impact of Hurricane Katrina in the city of New Orleans.

3. 360º engages students and faculty in active and interactive ways in a non-traditional classroom experience.

   Essential to 360º is a component beyond traditional classroom walls. This could occur through data gathering or research trips, praxis-like community based partnerships, artistic productions, and/or intensive laboratory activity.

4. 360º will encourage students and faculty to reflect on these different perspectives in explicit ways.

   Over their course of study, students often informally put together a set of related courses. 360º makes these connections explicit and explored reflectively among faculty and fellow students.

5. 360º participants enrich the entire community by sharing their work in some form.

All 360º participants will share their experiences through such activities as poster sessions, research talks, web postings, panel discussions and/or data sharing of data, research, visuals etc. Data and other materials produced in 360º are archived for later use by others within the College community.

Because 360º will allow students to experience the shifting and questioning of frames that sometimes comes from interdisciplinary work with faculty, most will be targeted for sophomores and juniors who have some foundation/engagement with disciplines.

Students interested in learning more about or registering for 360º should contact their Dean. For more information and a list of current courses, visit www.brynmawr.edu/360/.

Focus Courses

Focus Courses are 7-week long, half-semester courses that provide students with an opportunity to sample a wider variety of fields and topics as they explore the curriculum. While some Focus Courses have been designed to whet the appetite for further study, several upper level topics lend themselves to a more in-depth, shorter experience. Focus courses are as rigorous and fast-paced as full semester courses and are used to experiment and engage with more of Bryn Mawr’s stellar academic offerings.

Cycling to Zumba Fitness! The fitness center has over 100 different workout options, including drop in classes, free weights, indoor cycling bicycles, and cardiovascular and strength training machines.

The building hosts two-courts in the Class of 1958 Gymnasium, an eight lane pool, a fitness center with varsity weight training area, an athletic training room, locker rooms, a conference smart room and the Department of Athletics & Physical Education offices. The fitness center is located on the second floor directly up the circular staircase as you enter the Bern Schwartz Fitness and Athletic Center. For more information please consult www.brynmawr.edu/athletics/facilities.

The outdoor athletics and recreation facilities include two varsity athletics playing fields, seven tennis courts and two fields for recreational and club sport usage. The Shillingford and Applebee Fields are home to the College’s field hockey, soccer and lacrosse programs. In the fall of 2011 the College completed construction on Applebee, converting it from natural grass to a NCAA regulation sized synthetic field.

Praxis Program

Praxis is an experiential, community-based learning program that integrates theory and practice through student engagement in active, relevant fieldwork. The program provides consistent, equitable guidelines along with curricular coherence and support to students and faculty who wish to combine coursework with fieldwork and community-based research. The three designated types of Praxis courses—Praxis I and II departmental courses and Praxis III independent studies—are described below and at www.brynmawr.edu/praxis.

Praxis courses on all levels are distinguished by genuine collaboration with fieldsite organizations and by a dynamic process of reflection that incorporates lessons learned in the field into the classroom setting and applies theoretical understanding gained through classroom study to work done in the broader community. The nature of fieldwork assignments and projects varies according to the learning objectives for the course and according to the needs of the community partner. In most Praxis courses, students are engaged in field placements or working on community-connected projects that meet an identified need in the community. In other courses, the focus is on developing a relationship between the College and a community organization that will ultimately benefit the organization as well as the College.

The Praxis Program is coordinated by the Civic Engagement Office, located in Dolwen on Cambrian Row. The Civic Engagement Office builds relationships between the College and the community with an emphasis on collaboration, reciprocity and sustainability. The Praxis Program staff assist faculty in identifying, establishing and supporting field placements in a wide variety of organizations, such as public health centers, community art programs, museums, community-development and social service agencies, schools, and local government offices. Faculty members retain ultimate responsibility and control over the components of the Praxis Program that make it distinctly academic: course reading and discussion, rigorous process and reflection, and formal presentation and evaluation of student progress.

There are three levels of Praxis courses (see below), which require increasing amounts of fieldwork but do not need to be taken successively. Praxis I and II courses are offered within a variety of academic departments and are developed by faculty in those departments. Praxis III courses are Independent Study courses and are developed by individual students, in collaboration with faculty and field supervisors. Students may enroll in more than one Praxis course at a time and are sometimes able to use the same field placement to meet the requirements of both courses. Praxis-style courses taken at other institutions are subject to prior approval by the Praxis Office and the Dean’s Office.

Praxis I Departmental Courses provide opportunities for students to explore and develop community connections in relation to the course topic by incorporating a variety of activities into the syllabus, such as: field trips to local organizations, guest speakers from those organizations, and assignments that ask students to research local issues. In some cases, students in Praxis I courses are engaged in introductory fieldwork activities; the time commitment for this fieldwork does not exceed 2 hours per week or 20 hours per semester. The Praxis component in all Praxis I courses constitutes less than 25 percent of the total coursework assigned.

Praxis II Departmental Courses include a more substantial fieldwork component that engages students in activities and projects off-campus that are linked directly to course objectives and are useful to the community partner. The time commitment for fieldwork varies greatly from course to course but falls within the range of 2-7 hours per week or 20-70 hours per semester. Praxis II courses might include: weekly fieldwork, such as assisting in local classrooms, urban farms, community-based organizations; conducting research that has been requested by a community partner; project-based activities such as creating a curriculum or workshop, designing websites or brochures, writing grant proposals.

The Praxis Fieldwork Agreement is an important part of all Praxis II courses. This document outlines the learning and placement objectives of the Praxis component and is signed by the course instructor, the field supervisor, the Praxis coordinator and the student.

The Praxis component in Praxis II courses constitutes between 25-50 percent of total coursework assigned.

Praxis III Independent Study places fieldwork at the center of a supervised learning experience. Fieldwork is supported by appropriate readings and regular meetings with a faculty member who must agree in advance to supervise the project. Faculty are not obligated to supervise Praxis III courses and may decline to do so. Departments may limit the number of Praxis III courses that a faculty member may supervise.

Students who plan to undertake Praxis III Independent Study should submit a completed Praxis III proposal to their dean for her/his signature at pre-registration and then return the form to the Praxis Office to be reviewed by the Praxis Program Director. The Praxis III learning plan—which must include a description of the student’s course, all stipulated coursework, a faculty supervisor, a fieldsite, a fieldsite supervisor and fieldwork responsibilities—must be approved by the Praxis Program Director by the beginning of the semester in which the course will take place. The Praxis Program Director will notify the Registrar’s Office when the Praxis III learning plan is approved, at which point a course registration number will be created for the course. Students are encouraged to visit the Praxis Office to discuss possible field placements, although they are not discouraged from developing their own fieldsites.

Praxis III fieldwork typically constitutes 75 percent of total coursework assigned, with students typically completing two, four- to five hour fieldsite visits per week. Praxis III courses are available to sophomore and higher-level students who are in good academic standing. No student may take more than two Praxis III courses during her time at Bryn Mawr.

Collaboration with the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research

At Bryn Mawr, we embrace a distinctive academic model that offers a select number of outstanding coeducational graduate programs in arts and sciences and social work in conjunction with an exceptional undergraduate college for women. As such, Bryn Mawr undergraduates have significant opportunities to do advanced work by participating in graduate level courses offered in several academic areas. These areas include Chemistry; Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology; Greek, Latin, and Classical Studies; History of Art; Mathematics; Physics; and Social Work. An undergraduate must meet the appropriate prerequisites for a particular course and obtain departmental approval if she wishes the course to count towards her major.
The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences (GSAS)

Founded in 1885, the Bryn Mawr Graduate School was the first graduate school to open its doors to women in the United States. This radical innovation of graduate education in a women’s college was the beginning of a distinguished history of teaching and learning designed to enable every student to reach the apex of her intellectual capacity. Today, students in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences are a vital component in a continuum of learning and research, acting as role models for undergraduates and as collaborators with the faculty. Renowned for excellence within disciplines, Bryn Mawr also fosters connections across disciplines and the individual exploration of newly unfolding areas of research.

Examples of GSAS graduate level courses that are open to advanced undergraduates include:

- ARCH 693 Studies in Greek Pottery
- CHEM 534 Organometallic Chemistry
- HART 607 Women in Medieval Art
- GREK 643 Readings in Greek History
- MATH 506 Graduate Topology
- PHYS 503 and 504 Electromagnetic Theory I and II

The Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research (GSSWSR)

Social work was woven into the very fabric of Bryn Mawr College since it first opened its doors in 1885. Founded by Joseph Wright Taylor, a Quaker physician who wanted to establish a college for the advanced education of women, Bryn Mawr College soon became nondenominational but continued to be guided by Quaker values, including the freedom of conscience and a commitment to social justice and social activism. The Bryn Mawr College Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research (GSSWSR) was established through a bequest in 1912 from an undergraduate alumna of the College, Carola Woerishoffer, who at the time of her death at age 25 was investigating factory conditions for the New York Department of Labor. Her gift of $750,000 (about $14 million in today’s dollars) was the largest gift the College had received at that time, and was made so that others would be prepared to engage in social work, the field to which Carola Woerishoffer had committed herself.

As part of the Bryn Mawr College academic community and throughout its 95 year history, the School has placed great emphasis on critical, creative, and independent habits of thought and expression as well as an unwavering commitment to principles of social justice. It has been instrumental in promoting the social work profession by providing a rigorous educational environment to prepare clinicians, administrators, policy analysts, advocates, and educators who are committed to addressing the needs of individuals, families, organizations, and communities, both locally and globally.

Moving forward, the School has reaffirmed its commitment through a redesigned outcomes/abilities-based curriculum, providing all students with an integrated perspective on policy, practice, theory, and research. Both Master’s and PhD graduates are prepared to address the rapidly growing and complex challenges impacting the biological, psychological, and social conditions of children and families within their communities. GSSWSR graduates are leaders in defining standards of practice, shaping social welfare policy, and undertaking ethically grounded research in the social and behavioral sciences.

Examples of GSSWSR graduate level courses that are open to advanced undergraduates include:

- SOWK 302 Perspectives on Inequality
- SOWK 306 Social Determinants of Health and Health Equity
- SOWK 308 Adult Development and Aging
- SOWK 309 Organizational Behavior: The Art and Science
- SOWK 352 Child Welfare: Policy, Practice, and Research
- SOWK 354 To Protect the Health of the Public
- SOWK 408 Women and the Law
- SOWK 411 Family Law
ACADEMIC AWARDS AND PRIZES

The following awards, fellowships, scholarships, and prizes are awarded by the faculty and are given solely on the basis of academic distinction and achievement. The Academy of American Poets Prize, awarded in memory of Marie Bullock, the Academy's founder and president, is given each year to the student who submits to the Department of English the best poem or group of poems. (1957)

The Seymour Adelman Book Collector's Award is given each year to a student for a collection on any subject, single author or group of authors, which may include manuscripts and graphics. (1980)

The Seymour Adelman Poetry Award was established by Daniel and Joanna Semel Rose '52, to provide an award in honor of Seymour Adelman. The award is designed to stimulate further interest in poetry at Bryn Mawr. Any member of the Bryn Mawr community—undergraduate or graduate student, staff or faculty member—is eligible for consideration. The grant may be awarded to fund research in the history or analysis of a poet or poem, to encourage the study of poetry in interdisciplinary contexts, to support the writing of poetry or to recognize a particularly important piece of poetic writing. (1985)

The Horace Alwyne Prize was established by the Friends of Music of Bryn Mawr College in honor of Horace Alwyne, Professor Emeritus of Music. The award is presented annually to the student who has contributed the most to the musical life of the College. (1970)

The Areté Fellowship Fund was established by Doreen Canaday Spitzer '31. The fund supports graduate students in the Departments of Greek, Latin and Classical Studies, History of Art, and Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology. (2003)

The Bain-Swiggett Poetry Prize was established by a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Levin Swiggett. This prize is to be awarded by a committee of the faculty on the basis of the work submitted. (1958)

The Berle Memorial Prize Fund in German Literature was established by Lillian Berle Dare in memory of her parents, Adam and Katharina Berle. Some courses listed together are full-year courses. Students must complete the second semester of a full-year course in order to receive credit for both semesters. Full-year courses are indicated by the phrase “both semesters are required for credit” in the course description. Other courses listed together are designed as two-semester sequences, but students receive credit for completing either semester without the other.

A semester course usually carries one unit of credit. Students should check the course guide for unit listing. One unit equals four semester hours or six quarter hours.

KEY TO REQUIREMENT INDICATORS

Quantitative Skills: Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in Quantitative Skills.

Division I: Indicates courses that meet part of the divisional requirement for work in the social sciences.

Division III: Indicates courses that meet part of the divisional requirement for work in the humanities.

Division I or III, II or III, etc.: Indicates courses that can be used to meet part of the divisional requirement for work in either division, but not both.

Quantitative and Mathematical Reasoning (QM): Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in QM.

Quantitative Readiness (QR): Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in QR.

Scientific Inquiry (SI): Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in SI.

Critical Interpretation (CI): Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in CI.

Inquiry Into the Past (IP): Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in IP.
Neighboring College Courses

Selected Haverford College courses may be listed in this catalog when applicable to Bryn Mawr programs. Consult the Haverford catalog for full course descriptions. Students should consult their deans or major advisers for information about Swarthmore College, University of Pennsylvania and Villanova University courses pertinent to their studies. Catalogs and course guides for Swarthmore are available through the Tri-Co Course Guide. Catalogs and course guides for Penn and Villanova are available through each institution’s website.

Course Descriptions

Following the description are the name(s) of the instructor(s), the College requirements that the course meets, if any, and information on cross-listing. Information on prerequisite courses may be included in the descriptions or in the prefatory material on each department.

At the time of this printing, the course offerings and descriptions that follow were accurate. Whenever possible, courses that will not be offered in the current year are so noted. There may be courses offered in the current year for which information was not available at the time of this catalog printing. For the most up-to-date and complete information regarding course offerings, faculty, status and divisional requirements, please consult the Tri-Co Course Guide, which can be found on the College website at www.trico.haverford.edu.

AFRICANA STUDIES

Students may complete a minor in Africana Studies.

Steering Committee

Michael Allen, Professor of Political Science
Linda-Susan Beard, Associate Professor of English
Pim Higginson, Associate Professor of French and Director of Africana Studies
Philip Kilbride, Professor of Anthropology
Elaine Mshomba, Instructor of Swahili
Kalala Ngalamulume, Chair and Professor of Africana Studies and History
Mary Osirim, Dean of Graduate Studies and Professor of Sociology
Robert Washington, Chair and Professor of Sociology
Susan White, Professor of Chemistry

The Africana Studies Program brings a global outlook to the study of Africa and its Diasporas. Drawing on analytical perspectives from anthropology, economics, history, literary studies, political science and sociology, the program focuses on peoples of African descent within the context of increasing globalization and dramatic social, economic and political changes.

Bryn Mawr’s Africana Studies Program participates in a U.S. Department of Education-supported consortium with Haverford College, Swarthmore Colleges, and the University of Pennsylvania. Through this consortium, Bryn Mawr students have the opportunity to take a broad range of courses by enrolling in courses offered by all participating institutions. Also, Bryn Mawr’s Africana Studies Program sponsors a study abroad semester at the University of Nairobi, Kenya, and participates in other study abroad programs offered by its consortium partners in Zimbabwe, Ghana, and Senegal.

Students are encouraged to begin their work in the Africana Studies Program by taking “Introduction to African Civilizations” (HIST B102). This required introductory level course, which provides students with a common intellectual experience as well as the foundation for subsequent courses in Africana Studies, should be completed by the end of the student’s junior year.
Minor Requirements

The requirements for a minor in Africana Studies are the following:

1. One-semester interdisciplinary course Bryn Mawr HIST B102: Introduction to African Civilizations (ICPR 101 at Haverford).
2. Five additional semester courses from an approved list of courses in Africana studies.
3. A senior thesis or seminar-length essay in an area of Africana studies.

Students are encouraged to organize their course work along one of several prototypical routes. Such model programs might feature:

1. Regional or area studies; for example, focusing on blacks in Latin America, the English-speaking Caribbean or North America.
2. Thematic emphases; for example, exploring class politics, ethnic conflicts and/or economic development in West and East Africa.
3. Comparative emphases; for example, problems of development, governance, public health or family and gender.

The final requirement for the Africana Studies minor is a senior thesis or its equivalent. If the department in which the student is majoring requires a thesis, she can satisfy the Africana Studies requirement by writing on a topic that is approved by her department and the Africana Studies Program coordinator. If the major department does not require a thesis, an equivalent written exercise—that is, a seminar-length essay—is required. The essay may be written within the framework of a particular course or as an independent study project. The topic must be approved by both the instructor in question and the Africana Studies Program coordinator.

COURSES

ANTH B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800

The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies

Crosslisting(s): HIST-B200
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B253 Childhood in the African Experience

An overview of cultural contexts and indigenous literatures concerning the richly varied experience and interpretation of infancy and childhood in selected regions of Africa. Cultural practices such as pregnancy customs, naming ceremonies, puberty rituals, sibling relationships, and gender identity are included. Modern concerns such as child abuse, street children, and other social problems of recent origin involving children are considered in terms of theoretical approaches current in the social sciences. Prerequisites: anthropology major, any social sciences introductory course, Africana studies concentration, or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0

ANTH B341 Cultural Perspectives on Marriage and Family

This course considers various theoretical perspectives that inform our understanding of cross-cultural constructions of marriage and the family. Sociobiology, deviance, feminism, social constructionism, and cultural evolutionary approaches will be compared using primarily anthropological-ethnographic case examples. Cultural material from Africa and the United States will be emphasized. Applications will emphasize current U.S. socially contested categories such as same-sex marriage, plural marriage, gender diversity, divorce, and the blended family. Prerequisites: any history, biology, or social science major.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0

Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç, M.
(Fall 2012)
ARCH B230 Archaeology and History of Ancient Egypt
A survey of the art and archaeology of ancient Egypt from the Pre-Dynastic through the Graeco-Roman periods, with special emphasis on Egypt’s Empire and its outside connections, especially the Aegean and Near Eastern worlds. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Africana Studies; Middle East Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B237 Urbanization in Africa
The course examines the cultural, environmental, economic, political, and social factors that contributed to the expansion and transformation of preindustrial cities, colonial cities, and cities today. We will examine various themes, such as the relationship between cities and societies; migration and social change; urban space, health problems, city life, and women. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Africana Studies; Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B237 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B266 Schools in American Cities
This course examines issues, challenges, and possibilities of urban education in contemporary America. We use as critical lenses issues of race, class, and culture; urban learners, teachers, and school systems; and restructuring and reform. While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal “case” that students investigate through documents and school placements. Enrollment is limited to 25 with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies and to majors in Sociology and Growth and Structure of Cities. This is a Praxis I course (weekly fieldwork in a school required). Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Africana Studies; Environmental Studies; Praxis Program Crosslisting(s): EDUC-B266; SOCL-B266 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Cohen, J. (Spring 2013)

CITY B269 Black America in Sociological Perspective
This course provides sociological perspectives on various issues affecting black America: the legacy of slavery; the formation of urban ghettos; the struggle for civil rights; the continuing significance of discrimination; the problems of crime and criminal justice; educational under-performance; entrepreneurial and business activities; the social roles of black intellectuals, athletes, entertainers, and creative artists. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Africana Studies Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B229 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B338 The New African Diaspora: African and Caribbean Immigrants in the United States
An examination of the socioeconomic experiences of immigrants who arrived in the United States since the landmark legislation of 1965. After exploring issues of development and globalization at “home” leading to migration, the course proceeds with the study of immigration theories. Major attention is given to the emergence of transnational identities and the transformation of communities, particularly in the northeastern United States. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Africana Studies Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B338 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B279 Introduction to African Literature
Taking into account the oral, written, aural and visual forms of African “texts” over several thousand years, this course will explore literary production, translation and audience/critical reception. Representative works to be studied include oral traditions, the Sundiata Epic, Chinua Achebe’s Anthills of the Savannah, Ayi Kwei Armah’s Fragments, Mariama Bâ’s Si Longue une Lettre, Tsitsi Danga-rembga’s Nervous Conditions, Bessie Head’s Maru, Sémbène Ousmane’s Xala, plays by Wole Soyinka and his Burden of History, The Muse of Forgiveness and Ngugi wa Thiong’o’s A Grain of Wheat. We will address the “transliteration” of Christian and Muslim languages and theologies in these works. COML B388 Contemporary African Fiction
Noting that the official colonial independence of most African countries dates back only half a century, this course focuses on the fictive experiments of the most recent decade. A few highly controversial works from the 90’s serve as an introduction to very recent work. Most works are in English. To experience depth as well as breadth, there is a small cluster of works from South Africa. With novels and tales from elsewhere on the

ENGL B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures

(Fall 2012)

ENGL B219 Facing the Facts/Essaying the Subjective
Nonfictional prose genres, which may well constitute the majority of all that has been written, are very seldom the focus of literature courses. This class will address that gap, by exploring the use-value of the category of non-fictional prose in organizing our experience of, and our thinking about, literature. Might our attending to such texts alter our sense of what literature is?
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Africana Studies

While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal "case" that students investigate through documents and school placements.

ENGL B235 Reading Popular Culture: Freaks
This course traces the iconic figure of the “freak” in American culture, from 19th c. sideshows to the present. Featuring literature and films that explore “extraordinary Others”, we will flesh out the ways in which our current understandings of gender, sexuality, normalcy, and race are constituted through images of “abnormality.”
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B245 Focus: “I remember Harlem”
A transdisciplinary study of the famous Black metropolis as a historic, geo-political, and cultural center (from the Jazz Age to the Hip Hop revolution) this course acknowledges 400 years of history and analyzes the contemporary gentrification of Harlem. We interrogate closely the seismic changes in “Harlem” as a signifier.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B262 Survey in African American Literature
Pairing canonical African American fiction with theoretical, popular, and filmic texts from the late-19th Century through to the present day, we will address the ways in which the Black body, as cultural text, has come to be both constructed and consumed within the nation’s imagination and our modern visual regime.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B263 Toni Morrison and the Art of Narrative Conjure

ENGL B279 Introduction to African Literature
Taking into account the oral, written, aural and visual forms of African “texts” over several thousand years, this course will explore literary production, translation and audience/critical reception. Representative works to be studied include oral traditions, the Sundial Epic, Chinua Achebe’s Anthills of the Savannah, Ayi Kwei Armah’s Fragments, Mariama Bâ’s Si Longe une Lettre, Tsitsi Danga-rembga’s Nervous Conditions, Bessie Head’s Maru, Sembène Ousmane’s Xala, plays by Wole Soyinka and his Burden of History, The Muse of Forgiveness and Ngugi wa Thiong’o’s A Grain of Wheat. We will address the “transliteration” of Christian and Muslim languages and theologies in these works.

ENGL B344 After Beloved: Black Women Writers in the 21st Century
This course focuses on fiction, poetry and drama by Black women (African and Caribbean American) published since 2000. Attendant to the diversity of aesthetic and thematic approaches in this body of literature, we will explore exploding notions of racial identity and allegiance, as well as challenges to the boundaries of genre. Prerequisites: one African or African-American literature course at the 200-level or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s):Beard,L.
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B345 Topics in Narrative Theory
Narrative theory through the lens of a specific genre, period or style of writing. Recent topics include Victorian Novels and Ethnic Novels. Current topic description: This course traces the development of the U.S. ethnic novel. We will examine novels by Native Americans, Chicana/os, and African Americans, focusing on key formal innovations in their respective traditions. In addition, we will become versed in key concepts developed by narrative theorists to understand the genre of the novel.

Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/ Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): COML-B345
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J.
(Spring 2013)

ENGL B346 Theories of Modernism
This course will investigate a wide range of works that have been labeled “modernist” in order to raise the question, “Was there one modernism or were there many disparate and competing ones?”

ENGL B388 Contemporary African Fiction
Noting that the official colonial independence of most African countries dates back only half a century, this course focuses on the fictive experiments of the most recent decade. A few highly controversial works from the ‘90s serve as an introduction to very recent work. Most works are in English. To experience depth as well as breadth, there is a small cluster of works from South Africa. With novels and tales from elsewhere on the huge African continent, we will get a glimpse of “living in the present” in history and letters.

HIST B243 Atlantic Cultures

This is a topics course. Course content varies. Current topic description: The course explores the process of self-emancipation by slaves in the early modern Atlantic World. What was the nature of the communities that free blacks forged? What were their relationships to the empires from which they had freed themselves? How was race constructed in the early modern period? Did conceptions of race change over time?

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Instructor(s): Gallup-Diaz, I.
(Fall 2012)

HIST B303 Topics in American History

This is a topics course. Course content varies. Recent topics have included medicine, advertising, and history of sexuality. Current topic description: In the twenty years following World War II, Americans were faced with unexpected fears and anxieties. Despite the emergence of American as a superpower, Americans became deeply paranoid and insecure. Most famous as the era of McCarthy persecutions, Cold War political culture also produced the Civil Rights Movement, debates over the role of the individual and the state, critiques of conformity, and challenges to social status quo through personal politics and cultural revolutions in multiple arenas. This course will focus on the ways in which Cold War political culture offered a fundamentally new – and profoundly influential – paradigm for modern American life.

SOCL B266 Schools in American Cities

This course examines issues, challenges, and possibilities of urban education in contemporary America. We use as critical lenses issues of race, class, and culture; urban learners, teachers, and school systems; and restructuring and reform. While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal “case” that students investigate through documents and school placements. Enrollment is limited to 25 with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies and to majors in Sociology and Growth and Structure of Cities. This is a Praxis I course (weekly fieldwork in a school required).

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies; Environmental Studies; Praxis Program

(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Concentration in Geoarchaeology
The Department of Anthropology participates with Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology and Geology in offering a concentration within the major in geoarchaeology.

Cooperation with Other Programs
The Department of Anthropology actively participates and regularly contributes to the minors in Africana Studies, Environmental Studies, and Gender and Sexuality. In addition, Anthropology cross-lists several courses with Biology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, German, Growth and Structure of Cities, History, Peace and Conflict Studies, Political Sciences, and Sociology. Anthropology at Bryn Mawr also works in close cooperation with our counterpart department at Haverford College.

COURSES

ANTH B101 Introduction to Anthropology: Prehistoric Archaeology and Biological Anthropology
An introduction to the place of humans in nature, primates, the fossil record for human evolution, human variation and the issue of race, and the archaeological investigation of culture change from the Old Stone Age to the rise of early civilizations in the Americas, Eurasia and Africa. There are four lab sections for ANTH 101. In addition to the lecture/discussion classes, students must select and sign up for one lab section. Limited enrollment: 18 students per lab section. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Davis, R. (Fall 2012)

ANTH B102 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology
An introduction to the methods and theories of cultural anthropology in order to understand and explain cultural similarities and differences among contemporary societies. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Major; International Studies Minor Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Kilbride, P., Uzwiak, B. (Spring 2013)

ANTH B111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies
A broad and interdisciplinary overview of the study of conflict management. Areas to be introduced will include interpersonal conflict and conflict management, alternative dispute resolution and the law, community conflict and mediation, organizational, intergroup, and international conflict, and conflict management. This course will also serve as a foundation course for students in or considering the peace and conflict studies concentration. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): POLS-B111 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B185 Urban Culture and Society
Examines techniques and questions of the social sciences as tools for studying historical and contemporary cities. Topics include political-economic organization, conflict and social differentiation (class, ethnicity and gender), and cultural production and representation. Philadelphia features prominently in discussion, reading and exploration as do global metropolitan comparisons through papers involving fieldwork, critical reading and planning/problem solving using qualitative and quantitative methods. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Crosslisting(s): CITY-B185 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Arbona, J., Zhang, J. (Fall 2012)

ANTH B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800
The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history. Requirement(s): Division I or Division III Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/ Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B200 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B203 Human Ecology
The relationship of humans with their environment; culture as an adaptive mechanism and a dynamic component in ecological systems. Human ecological perspectives are compared with other theoretical orientations in anthropology. Prerequisites: ANTH 101, 102, or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B204 North American Archaeology
For millennia, the North American continent has been home to a vast diversity of Native Americans. From the initial migration of big game hunters who spread throughout the continent more than 12,000 years ago to the high civilizations of the Maya, Teotihuacan, and Aztec, there remains a rich archaeological record that reflects the ways of life of these cultures. This course will introduce the culture history of North America as well as explanations for culture change and diversification. The class will include laboratory study of North American archaeological and ethnographic artifacts from the College’s Art and Archaeology collections. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Davis, R. (Fall 2012)

ANTH B206 Conflict and Conflict Management: A Cross-Cultural Approach
This course examines cross-cultural differences in the levels and forms of conflict and its management through a wide range of cases and alternative theoretical perspectives. Conflicts of interest range from the interpersonal to the international levels and an important question is the relevance of conflict and its management in small-scale societies as a way to understand political conflict and dispute settlement in the United States and modern industrial settings. Prerequisite: one course in political science, anthropology, or sociology. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): POLS-B206 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B208 Human Biology
This course will be a survey of modern human biological variation. We will examine the patterns of morphological and genetic variation in modern human populations and discuss the evolutionary explanations for the observed patterns. A major component of the class will be the discussion of the social implications of these patterns of biological variation, particularly in the construction and application of the concept of race. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B209 Human Evolution
The position of humans among the primates, processes of biocultural evolution, the fossil record and contemporary human variation. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B212 Primate Evolution and Behavior
An exploration of the aspects of the biology and behavior of living primates as well as the evolutionary history of these close relatives. The major focus of this study is to provide the background upon which human evolution is best understood. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Child and Family Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B214 Third World Feminisms
The course focuses on the figure of the “exploited Filipina body” as a locus for analyzing the politics of gendered transnational labor within contemporary capitalist globalization. We will examine gendered migrant labor, the international sex trade, the “traffic in women” discourse, feminist and women’s movements, and transnational feminist theory. Counts toward the Gender and Sexuality Studies Concentration. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)
ANTH B219 Visual Anthropology, Latin America and Social Movements

Focusing on indigenous communities and social movements, this course examines the cultural uses of visual art, photography, film, and new media in Latin America. Students will analyze a variety of materials to reconsider western conceptions of art. As well, students will explore how anthropologists employ visual methods in ethnographic research. Prerequisites: ANTH B102 or sophomore standing.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Uzwiak, B.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B220 Methods and Theory in Archaeology

An examination of techniques and theories archaeologists use to transform archaeological data into statements about patterns of prehistoric cultural behavior, adaptation and culture change. Theory development, hypothesis formulation, gathering of archaeological data and their interpretation and evaluation are discussed and illustrated by examples. Theoretical debates current in American archaeology are reviewed and the place of archaeology in the general field of anthropology is discussed. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0

ANTH B223 Anthropology of Dance

This course surveys ethnographic approaches to the study of global dance in a variety of contemporary and historical contexts. Recognizing dance as a kind of shared cultural knowledge and drawing on theories and literature in anthropology, dance and related fields such as history, and ethnomusicology, we will examine dance’s relationship to social structure, ethnicity, gender, spirituality and politics. Lectures, discussion, media, and guest speakers are included. Prerequisite: a course in anthropology or related discipline, or a dance lecture/seminar course, or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ARTD-B223
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B226 Post Communist Transitions in Eastern Europe

This comparison of pre- and post-communist social formations in Eastern Europe in specific nation-states considers how social changes influenced spheres of life, such as family, morality, religion, economic institutions and nationalism. The course will take an interdisciplinary perspective, drawing from literature of social sciences, especially anthropology. Prerequisite: an introductory social science course, or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B216
Units: 1.0

ANTH B229 Topics in Comparative Urbanism

This is a topics course. Topics vary. Current topic description: This course will examine different building forms and processes in greater China, including Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan, from the imperial to the contemporary eras. It starts with the concrete buildings (residential houses) to the more abstract building (ethnicity, nation-state, historical narratives). With a comparative perspective and an historical approach, this course seeks to familiarize students with the perception of seeing cities as built environments as well as processes.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B229; EAST-B229; HART-B229; SOCL-B230

Instructor(s): Zhang, J.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile

This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B231; COML-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B234 Forensic Anthropology

Introduces the forensic subfield of biological anthropology, which applies techniques of osteology and biomechanics to questions of forensic science, with practical applications for criminal justice. Examines the challenges of human skeletal identification and trauma analysis, as well as the broader ethical considerations and implications of the field. Topics will include: human osteology; search and recovery of human remains; taphonomy; trauma analysis; and the development and application of innovative and specialized techniques.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Instructor(s): Hutton, V.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B236 Evolution

A lecture/discussion course on the development of evolutionary thought, generally regarded as the most profound scientific event of the 19th century; its foundations in biology and geology; and the extent of its implications to many disciplines. Emphasis is placed on the nature of evolution in terms of process, product, patterns, historical development of the theory, and its applications to interpretations of organic history. Lecture three hours a week.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B236; GEOL-B236
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gardiner, S., Marenco, P.

ANTH B237 Environmental Health

This course introduces principles and methods in environmental anthropology and public health used to analyze global environmental health problems globally and develop health and disease control programs. Topics covered include risk; health and environment; food production and consumption; human health and agriculture; meat and poultry production; and culture, urbanization, and disease. Prerequisite: ANTH 102; permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Pashigian, M.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B240 Traditional and Pre-Industrial Technology

An examination of several traditional technologies, including chipped and ground stone, ceramics, textiles, metallurgy (bronze), simple machines and energy production; emphasizing the physical properties of various materials, production processes and cultural contexts both ancient and modern. Weekly laboratory on the production of finished artifacts in the various technologies studied. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0

ANTH B247 Gender, Nation, Diaspora

This course examines the relationship of gender to both the nation and the diaspora, within a context of globalization. We will study the co-constitutive relationship of gender, sexuality, race/ethnicity, and class in national and transnational contexts. Although focused primarily on Filipino American/Philippine cultural production, we examine multiple geopolitical sites. Counts toward the Gender and Sexuality Studies Concentration.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0

ANTH B248 Race, Power and Culture

This course examines race and power through a variety of topics including colonialism, nation-state formation, genocide, systems of oppression/privilege, and immigration. Students will examine how class, gender, and other social variables intersect to affect individual and collective experiences of race, as well as the consequences of racism in various cultural contexts.

Prerequisites: ANTH B102 or sophomore standing.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Uzwiak, B.

ANTH B249 Asian American Communities

This course is an introduction to the study of Asian American communities that provides comparative analysis of major social issues confronting Asian Americans. Encompassing the varied experiences of Asian Americans and Asians in the Americas, the course examines a broad range of topics—community, migration, race and ethnicity, and identities—as well as what it means to be Asian American and what that teaches us about American society.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B249; CITY-B249
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Takenaka, A.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B253 Childhood in the African Experience

An overview of cultural contexts and indigenous literatures concerning the richly varied experience... and interpretation of infancy and childhood in selected regions of Africa. Cultural practices such as pregnancy customs, naming ceremonies, puberty rituals, sibling relationships, and gender identity are included. Modern concerns such as child abuse, street children, and other social problems of recent origin involving children are considered in terms of theoretical approaches current in the social sciences. Prerequisites: anthropology major, any social sciences introductory course, Africana studies concentration, or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B258 Immigrant Experiences
The course will examine the causes and consequences of immigration by looking at various immigrant groups in the United States in comparison with Western Europe, Japan, and other parts of the world. How is immigration induced and perpetuated? How are the types of migration changing (labor migration, refugee flows, return migration, transnationalism)? How do immigrants adapt differently across societies? We will explore scholarly texts, films, and novels to examine what it means to be an immigrant, what generational and cultural conflicts immigrants experience, and how they identify with the new country and the old country.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B246
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B261 Palestine and Israeli Society
Considers the legacy of Palestine and the centrality of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict as key in the formation of Israeli society, shaped by ongoing political conflict. New ethnographic writings disclose themes like Zionism, Holocaust, immigration, religion, Palestinian citizenry, Middle Eastern Jews and military occupation and resulting emerging debates among different social sectors and populations. Also considers constitution of ethnographic fields and the shaping of anthropological investigations by arenas of conflict. Prerequisites: sophomore standing and POLS B111 or ANTH B101 or B102 or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B267 The Development of the Modern Japanese Nation
An introduction to the main social dimensions central to an understanding of contemporary Japanese society and nationhood in comparison to other societies. The course also aims to provide students with training in comparative analysis in sociology.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B267; EAST-B267
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Takenaka, A.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B270 Geoarchaeology
Societies in the past depended on our human ancestors’ ability to interact with their environment. Geoarchaeology analyzes these interactions by combining archaeological and geological techniques to document human behavior while also reconstructing the past environment. Course meets twice weekly for lecture, discussion of readings and hands on exercises. Prerequisite: one course in anthropology, archaeology or geology.

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B270; GEOL-B270
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber, D., Magee, P.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B275 Cultures and Societies of the Middle East
Through a close reading of ethnographic, historical, and literary materials, this course will introduce students to some of the key conceptual issues and regional distinctions that have emerged from classic and contemporary studies of culture and society in the Middle East. The course will survey the following themes: orientalism; gender and patriarchy; democracy and state-formation; political Islam; oil and Western dominance; media and religion; violence and nationalism; identity and diaspora. Prerequisite: Introduction to Anthropology or equivalent. No knowledge of the Middle East is assumed. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Middle East Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B276 Islam in Europe
This course will focus on recent immigration of Muslims in Europe. Anthropological theories will be helpful for understanding various issues such as the colonization and production of ethnicity, problems of identity concerning different generations and gender. Politics from the points of view of the nation-state will be important. Prerequisite: One course in Anthropology or instructor’s permission. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Middle East Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B276 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B281 Language in Social Context
Studies of language in society have moved from the idea that language reflects social position/identity to the idea that language plays an active role in shaping and negotiating social position, identity, and experience. This course will explore the implications of this shift by providing an introduction to the fields of sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology. We will be particularly concerned with the ways in which language is implicated in the social construction of gender, race, class, and cultural/national identity. The course will develop students’ skills in the ethnographic analysis of communication through several short ethnographic projects. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI) Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): LING-B281 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B286 Cultural Perspectives on Ethnic Identity in the Post Famine Irish Diaspora
Theoretical perspectives and case studies on exclusion and assimilation in the social construction of Irish ethnic identity in the United States and elsewhere in the Irish diaspora. Symbolic expressions of Irish ethnicity such as St. Patrick’s Day celebrations will consider race, class, gender, and religion. Racism and benevolence in the Irish experience will highlight a cultural perspective through use of ethnographies, personal biographies, and literary products such as novels and films. Prerequisite: introductory course in social science or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI) Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B286 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B287 Sex, Gender and Culture
Introduces students to core concepts and topics of the cultural anthropological study of gender, sexuality difference and power in today’s world. Focusing on the body as a site of lived experience, the course explores the varied intersections of gender, race, ethnicity, economics, class, location and sexual preference that produce different experiences for people both within and across nations. Particular attention will be paid to how gender and other forms of difference are shaped and transformed by global forces, and how these processes are gendered and raced. Topics include: scientific discourses, femininity/masculinity, marriage and intimacy, media and childhood, gender and variance, systems of inequality, race and ethnicity, sexuality, queer theory, labor, globalization and social change, and others. Prerequisites: ANTH B102 or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Uzwiak,B. (Fall 2012)

ANTH B290 The Prehistory of Iberia
During the past million years, the Iberian Peninsula has served as a crossroads for many waves of human and hominin migration. In this course, we will examine the traces that these peoples have left behind as well as fluctuations and changes in their environment that shape where they settle and how they make their living. We will look at Pre-Neandertal and Neandertal sites (Atapuerca, Gibraltar, Lagar Velho, Zafarraya), Upper Paleolithic tool cultures and art, later migrations of cultures into the region via the Mediterranean and the Atlantic during the Neolithic, Chalcolithic and Bronze Ages (Bell-Beaker phenomenon, Celts, Phoenicians, and Greeks), the origin of the Basques, and finally the coalescence of Iberian cultures recorded by the Romans. Prerequisites: ANTH B101 or permission of the instructor Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
ANTH B303 History of Anthropological Theory
A consideration of the history of anthropological theories and the discipline of anthropology as an academic discipline that seeks to understand and explain society and culture as its subjects of study. Several vantage points on the history of anthropological theory are engaged to enact an historically charged anthropology of a disciplinary history. Anthropological theories are considered not only as a series of models, paradigms, or orientations, but as configurations of thought, technique, knowledge, and power that reflect the ever-changing relationships among the societies and cultures of the world. Prerequisite: at least one additional anthropology course at the 200 or 300 level. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Kilbride, P. (Fall 2012)

ANTH B312 Anthropology of Reproduction
An examination of social and cultural constructions of reproduction, and how power in everyday life shapes reproductive behavior and its meaning in Western and non-Western cultures. The influence of competing interests within households, communities, states, and institutions on reproduction is considered. Prerequisite: at least one 200-level ethnographic area course or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B316 Gender in South Asia
Examines gender as a culturally and historically constructed category in the modern South Asian context, focusing on the ways in which everyday experiences of and practices relating to gender are informed by media, performance, and political events. Prerequisite: One 200-level course including material on a non-Western society and permission of the instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B317 Disease and Human Evolution
Pathogens and humans have been having an "evolutionary arms race" since the beginning of our species. In this course, we will look at methods for tracing diseases in our distant past through skeletal and genetic analyses as well as tracing the paths and impacts of epidemics that occurred during the historic past. We will also address how concepts of Darwinian medicine impact our understanding of how people might be treated most effectively. There will be a midterm, a final, and an essay and short presentation on a topic developed by the student relating to the class. Prerequisites: ANTH B101 or permission of the instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Hutton, V. (Spring 2013)

ANTH B322 Anthropology of the Body
This course examines a diversity of meanings and interpretations of the body in anthropology. It explores anthropological theories and methods of studying the body and social difference via a series of topics including the construction of the body in medicine, identity, race, gender, sexuality and as explored through cross-cultural comparison. Prerequisite: ANTH B102 and preferably a 200 level cultural anthropology course. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B330 Archaeological Theory and Method
A history of archaeology from the Renaissance to the present with attention to the formation of theory and method; special units on gender and feminist theory and post-modern approaches. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B330 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B331 Advanced Topics in Medical Anthropology
The purpose of the course is to provide a survey of theoretical frameworks used in medical anthropology, coupled with topical subjects and ethnographic examples. The course will highlight a number of sub-specializations in the field of medical anthropology, coupled with topical subjects and ethnographic examples. The course will highlight a number of sub-specializations in the field of Medical Anthropology including genomics, science and technology studies, ethnomedicine, cross-cultural psychiatry/psychology, cross-cultural bioethics, ecological approaches to studying health and behavior, and more. Prerequisites: ANTH B102 Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Pashigian, M. (Spring 2013)
ANTH B333 Anthropological Demography

Anthropological demography examines human population structure and dynamics through the understanding of birth, death and migration processes. It includes study of the individual’s life history. Population dynamics in small- and large-scale societies, the history of human populations and policy implications of demographic processes in the developed and developing world will be discussed through a cross-cultural perspective.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0

ANTH B335 Topics in City and Media

Mass media raises ever-changing global issues in study and praxis in Cities. This advanced seminar looks closely at media through a limited lens - the mediation of a single city (Hong Kong, Philadelphia, Los Angeles), questions of genre (cinema, television, web) or around particular theoreticians and questions (Barthes and myth; Marxism and media). Topics will vary. Current topic description: This course examines different forms of popular culture in East Asia. Looking at TV soap operas, animation, music, and fast food, we will explore how class, gender and national identities are constructed and contested through pop culture that is shaped by these social relationships in specific political and historical contexts.

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B335
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Zhang,J.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced Topics

A seminar course on current issues in evolution. Discussion based on readings from the primary literature. Topics vary from year to year. One three-hour discussion a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 236 or permission of instructor.
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B336; GEOL-B336
Units: 1.0

ANTH B337 Comparative Colonial Formations

This course aims to comparatively examine the key features of settler colonialism and its legacies in the 20th centuries. Settler colonialism will be re-examined in light of recent scholarship which defines it as a particular kind of colonial venture that has focused on eliminating indigenous populations and seizing land.
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B338 Applied Anthropology: Ethics, Methods & Rights

This course will explore anthropology and social change, specifically how anthropologists challenge forms of oppression and injustice. Through readings, discussions, and practice, we will examine and radically reconsider what anthropology has been, what it is, and what it can be as a tool for engaging the world outside academia. We will read a variety of examples of how public anthropologists have used ethnographic methods to address social inequalities both in the United States and globally. We will discuss both the process and product of such research and myriad ways that insight from ethnographic fieldwork and qualitative analysis lends visibility and public voice to a variety of issues including human rights, health, poverty and inequality, homelessness, humanitarian aid, and war. Prerequisites: ANTH B102 or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Uzwiak,B.

ANTH B341 Cultural Perspectives on Marriage and Family

This course considers various theoretical perspectives that inform our understanding of cross-cultural constructions of marriage and the family. Sociobiology, deviance, feminism, social constructionism, and cultural evolutionary approaches will be compared using primarily anthropological-ethnographic case examples. Cultural material from Africa and the United States will be emphasized. Applications will emphasize current U.S. socially contested categories such as same-sex marriage, plural marriage, gender diversity, divorce, and the blended family. Prerequisites: any history, biology, or social science major.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies

An in-depth examination of crucial issues and particular cases of interest to advanced students in peace and conflict studies through common readings and student projects. Various important theories of conflict and conflict management are compared and students undertake semester-long field research. The second half of the semester focuses on student research topics with continued exploration of conflict-resolution theories and research methods. Prerequisite: POLS 206, 111, or Haverford’s POLS 247.
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B347
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
ANTH B350 Advanced Topics in Gender Studies
This is a topics course. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kilbride,P.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B351 Transnationalism, Culture and Globalization
Introduces students to transnationalism, globalization and what it means to live in culturally diverse societies. Through media, art, technology, fashion, food, and music this course examines the sociopolitical contours of contemporary multiculturalism in our globalizing world. The course will examine the impact of global forces such as immigration, media, and labor markets on cultural diversity. We will look critically at the concept of multiculturalism as it differs across the world, and consider the power of culture as a means of oppression as well as a tool for social change. We will consider how people create and deploy culture through art production, visual media, social movements and other phenomena. Prerequisites: ANTH B102 or permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Uzwiak,B.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B359 Topics in Urban Culture and Society
This is a topics course. Course content varies.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B360; HART-B359; SOCL-B360
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B360 Advanced Topics in Human Evolution
This course will explore central issues in the study of human origins. We will examine Miocene hominoids from Africa, Asia, and Europe to better understand the ongoing debate about the origins of the hominin lineage, particularly issues pertaining to the location and hominoid group from which hominins arose. We will also look at the earliest putative hominins from Africa within the context of the earlier Miocene hominoids for a better understanding of their taxonomic position. Prerequisite: ANTH 209.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B382 Religious Fundamentalism in the Global Era
Through a comparison of Jewish, Islamic, Christian and Hindu political movements, the course seeks to investigate the religious turn in national and transnational contexts. We will also seek to find commonalities and differences in religious movements, and religious regimes, while considering the aspects of globalization which usher in new kinds of transnational affiliation. Prerequisite: An introductory course in Anthropology, Political Science or History or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B382; POLS-B382
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B398 Senior Conference
The topic of each seminar is determined in advance in discussion with seniors. Sections normally run through the entire year and have an emphasis on empirical research techniques and analysis of original material. Class discussions of work in progress and oral and written presentations of the analysis and results of research are important. A senior’s thesis is the most significant writing experience in the seminar.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kilbride,P., Pashigian,M., Hutton, V.
(Fall 2012)

ANTH B399 Senior Conference

ARABIC

Faculty

Grace Armstrong, Professor and Director of Middle Eastern Languages

Manar Darwish, Instructor and Coordinator of Bi-Co Arabic Program

Fernaz Perry, Drill Instructor

Arabic language instruction is offered through Tri-College cooperation. Courses are available at Bryn Mawr, Haverford, and Swarthmore Colleges. The teaching of Arabic is a component of the three colleges' efforts to increase the presence of the Middle East in their curricula. Bryn Mawr offers courses on the Middle East in the departments of Anthropology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, Comparative Literature, General Studies, History, and Political Science.

College Foreign Language Requirement

The College's foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing ARAB 001 and 002 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in ARAB 002.

COURSES

ARAB B003 Second Year Modern Standard Arabic

Combines intensive oral practice with writing and reading in the modern language. The course attempts to increase students' expressive ability through the introduction of more advanced grammatical patterns and idiomatic expressions. Introduces students to authentic written texts and examples of Arabic expression through several media.

Requirement(s): Language Level 2

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Suleiman, C.

ARAB B004 Second-Year Modern Standard Arabic

Combines intensive oral practice with writing and reading in the modern language. The course attempts to increase students' expressive ability through the introduction of more advanced grammatical patterns and idiomatic expressions. Introduces students to authentic written texts and examples of Arabic expression through several media.

Requirement(s): Language Level 2

Courses in the arts are designed to prepare students who might wish to pursue advanced training in their fields and are also for those who want to broaden their academic studies with work in the arts that is conducted at a serious and disciplined level. Courses are offered at introductory as well as advanced levels.

ARTS IN EDUCATION

The Arts Program offers a Praxis II course for students who have substantial experience in an art form and are interested in extending that experience into teaching and learning at educational and community sites.

ARTA B251 Arts Teaching in Educational and Community Settings

This is a Praxis II course intended for students who have substantial experience in an art form and are interested in extending that experience into teaching and learning at educational and community sites. Following an overview of the history of the arts in education, the course will investigate underlying theories. The praxis component will allow students to create a fluid relationship between theory and practice through observing, teaching and reflecting on arts practices in education contexts. School or community placement 4-6 hours a week. Prerequisite: at least an intermediate level of experience in an art form. This course counts toward the minor in Dance or in Theater. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Praxis Program
Crosslisting(s): EDUC-B251
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CREATIVE WRITING

Courses in Creative Writing within the Arts Program are designed for students who wish to develop their skills and appreciation of creative writing in a variety of genres (poetry, prose fiction and nonfiction, playwriting, screenwriting, etc.) and for those intending to pursue studies in creative writing at the graduate level. Any English major may include one Creative Writing course in the major plan. Students may pursue a minor as described below. While there is no existing major in Creative Writing, exceptionally well-qualified students with a GPA of 3.7 or higher in Creative Writing courses completed in the Tri-College curriculum may consider submitting an application to major in Creative Writing through the Independent Major Program after meeting with the Creative Writing Program director. When approved, the independent major in Creative Writing may also be pursued as a double major with another academic major subject.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in Creative Writing are six units of course work, generally including three beginning/intermediate courses in at least three different genres of creative writing (chosen from ARTW 159, 231, 236, 240, 251, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 268, 269) and three electives, including at least one course at the 300 level (ARTW 360, 361, 362, 364, 366, 367, 371, 373, 382), allowing for advanced work in one or more genres of creative writing which are of particular interest to the student. The objective of the minor in Creative Writing is to provide both depth and range, through exposure to several genres of creative writing. Students should consult with the Creative Writing Program director by the end of their sophomore year to submit a plan for the minor in order to ensure admission to the appropriate range of courses.
Concentration in Creative Writing

English majors may elect a three-course concentration in Creative Writing as part of the English major program. Students interested in the concentration must meet with the Creative Writing Program director by the end of their sophomore year to submit a plan for the concentration and must also confirm the concentration with the chair of the English Department.

COURSES

ARTW B125 Writing Science
How does scientific research make its way out of the lab? Science translates from research experience to journals written for the expert and is often translated again for more general audiences—appearing in venues such as newspapers, essays and memoirs. What is gained and what is lost when science is translated? This is a half-semester, half-credit course.
Crosslisting(s): CHEM-B125
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARTW B159 Introduction to Creative Writing
This course is for students who wish to experiment with three genres of creative writing: short fiction, poetry and drama. Priority will be given to interested first-year students; additional spaces will be made available to upper-year students with little or no experience in creative writing. Students will write or revise work every week; roughly four weeks each will be devoted to short fiction, poetry, and drama. There will be individual conferences with the instructor to discuss their progress and interests. Half of class time will be spent discussing student work and half will be spent discussing syllabus readings.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Todd,J.
(Spring 2013)

ARTW B260 Writing Short Fiction I
An introduction to fiction writing, focusing on the short story. Students will consider fundamental elements of fiction and the relationship of narrative structure, style, and content, exploring these elements in their own work and in the assigned readings in order to develop an understanding of the range of possibilities open to the fiction writer. Weekly readings and writing exercises are designed to encourage students to explore the material and styles that most interest them, and to push their fiction to a new level of craft, so that over the semester their writing becomes clearer, more controlled, and more absorbing.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Torday,D.
(Spring 2013)

ARTW B261 Writing Poetry I
This course will provide a survey of craft resources available to students wishing to write print-based poems in English: figure, line, measure, meter, rhyme, and rhythm. In concert with close reading of model poems, students will gain experience in writing in a variety of verse forms, including haiku, sonnet, free verse, and prose poem. The course is writing-intensive: students write or revise poems most weeks. The course objective is to provide students with the skills to explore poetic form, both received and invented, and to develop a voice with which to express themselves on the printed page.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Fried,D.
(Spring 2013)

ARTW B262 Playwriting I
An introduction to playwriting through a combination of reading assignments, writing exercises, discussions about craft and ultimately the creation of a complete one-act play. Students will work to discover and develop their own unique voices as they learn the technical aspects of the craft of playwriting. Readings will include work by Sarah Ruhl, Deb Margolin, Nilo Cruz, Suzan-Lori Parks, David Greenspan, Lisa Kron, and others. Short writing assignments will complement each reading assignment. The final assignment will be to write an original one-act play.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ARTT-B262
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Feldman,L.
(Fall 2012)

ARTW B263 Writing Memoir I
The purpose of this course is to provide students with practical experience in writing about the events, places and people of their own lives in the form of memoir. Initial class discussions attempt to distinguish memoir from related literary genres such as confession and autobiography. Writing assignments and in-class discussion of syllabus readings explore the range of memoirs available for use as models (excerpts by writers including James Baldwin, Lorene Cary, Annie Dillard, Arthur Koestler, Rick Moody, Lorrie Moore, and Tim O’Brien) and elements such as voice and perspective, tone, plot, characterization and symbolic and figurative language.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Staff
(Spring 2013)
ARTW B264 News and Feature Writing

Students in this class will learn how to develop, report, write, edit and revise a variety of news stories, beginning with the basics of reporting and writing the news and advancing to longer-form stories, including personality profiles, news features and trend stories, and concluding with point-of-view journalism (columns, criticism, reported essays). The course will focus heavily on work published in The Philadelphia Inquirer and The New York Times. Several working journalists will participate as guest speakers to explain their craft. Students will write stories that will be posted on the class blog, the English House Gazette.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ferrick, T.

ARTW B265 Creative Nonfiction

This course will explore the literary expressions of nonfiction writing by focusing on the skills, process and craft techniques necessary to the generation and revision of literary nonfiction. Using the information-gathering tools of a journalist, the analytical tools of an essayist and the technical tools of a fiction writer, students will produce pieces that will incorporate both factual information and first person experience. Readings will include a broad group of writers ranging from E.B. White to Anne Carson, George Orwell to David Foster Wallace, Joan Didion to James Baldwin, among many others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Torday, D.

ARTW B266 Screenwriting

An introduction to screenwriting. Issues basic to the art of storytelling in film will be addressed and analyzed: character, dramatic structure, theme, setting, image, sound. The course focuses on the film adaptation; readings include novels, screenplays, and short stories. Films adapted from the readings will be screened. In the course of the semester, students will be expected to outline and complete the first act of an adapted screenplay of their own.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Film Studies
Units: 1.0

ARTW B269 Writing for Children

In this course, students have the opportunity to write imaginatively for children and young adults. Through reading and in-class discussion, we will examine the specific requirements of the picture book, the chapter book and the young adult novel. This analytical study of classic and contemporary literature will inspire and inform students’ creative work through the discoveries they make about style and structure, creating compelling characters, the roles of illustration and page composition in story narration, and the ever-evolving fairy tale. Students will receive guidance for their creative work through in-class exercises, peer review and private conferences with the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Mosier, E.
(Spring 2013)

ARTW B360 Writing Short Fiction II

An exploration of approaches to writing short fiction designed to strengthen skills of experienced student writers as practitioners and critics. Requires writing at least five pages each week, workshopping student pieces, and reading texts ranging from realist stories to metafictional experiments and one-page stories to the short novella, to explore how writers can work within tight confines. Prerequisite: ARTW 260 or work demonstrating equivalent expertise in writing short fiction. A writing sample of 5-10 pages in length (prose fiction) must be submitted to the Creative Writing Program during the preregistration period to be considered for this course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Black, R.

ARTW B361 Writing Poetry II

While writing a poem a week, according to assignments both formal and strategic, students will read at least six volumes of contemporary poetry, immersing themselves in the pleasurable estrangements and rearrangements of a variety of voices, with the goal of forcing positive changes in their own poems. Students in this course are expected to become not only better writers, but also better critics of their own and each other’s work, and the term grade is determined partly by written work and partly by in-class participation during discussions of syllabus reading and student poems.

ARTW B364 Longer Fictional Forms

An advanced workshop for students with a strong background in fiction writing who want to write longer works: the long short story, novella and novel. Students
Minor and Major Requirements

Requirements for the dance minor are six units of coursework: three required (ARTD 140, 142, and one credit which may be distributed among the following: 138, 139, 230, 232, 330, 331 or 345); three approved electives; and requisite attendance at a prescribed number of performances/events. The major requires eleven courses, drawn primarily from our core academic curriculum and including: ARTD 140 and one additional dance lecture/seminar course; ARTD 142; one 0.5 technique course each semester after declaring the major distributed among ARTD 230, 231, 232, 330, and 331). The major also requires attendance at a prescribed number of performances/events, demonstration of basic writing competency in dance, and a senior capstone experience. With the adviser’s approval, one elective in the minor and two electives in the major may be selected from allied Tri-College departments. In both the minor and the major, students may choose to emphasize one aspect of the field, but must first consult with the dance faculty regarding their course of study.

Technique Courses and Performance
Ensemble Courses

The Dance Program offers a full range of dance instruction including courses in ballet, modern, jazz, and African as well as techniques developed from other cultural art and social forms such as flamenco, Classical Indian, hip-hop, Latin social dance, and tap dance, among others. Performance ensembles, choreographed or re-staged by professional artists, are by audition only and are given full concert support. Dance Outreach ensemble tours regional schools. Technique courses in Ballet, Modern, Jazz, African and Hip-hop are offered for a full semester; other courses may be offered for a half-semester. All technique courses and ensemble courses may be taken for Physical Education credit (see listing below). Technique courses ARTD 138, 139, 230, 231, 232, 330, 331, as well as ARTD B345, Dance Ensembles, may be taken instead for academic credit.

COURSES

ARTD B138 Introduction to Dance Techniques I

Students enrolling must take one full semester of elementary modern (section 001) or ballet (section 002) and, concurrently, another full semester of technique selected from approved Dance Program courses. This may be either a course running across the full semester, for example Jazz I, or two half semester courses, for example, Classical Indian and Hip-hop. The list of these courses can be found on the Dance Program website www.brynmawr.edu/dance/courses/schedule.html and, at the beginning of each semester, on VBM. Before enrolling, students must get approval of dance class selection from the Dance Program. Students must attend the required number of technique class sessions; additional requirements for a passing grade include attendance at two mandatory lectures and one live dance performance and completion of three short writing assignments. Course offered on a Pass/Fail basis only.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Caruso Haviland,L., Cantor,M.

ARTD B139 Introduction to Dance Techniques II

Students enrolling must take one full semester of elementary modern (section 001) or ballet (section 002) and, concurrently, another full semester of technique selected from approved Dance Program courses. This may be either a course running across the full semester, for example Jazz I, or two half semester courses, for example, Classical Indian and Hip-hop. The list of these courses can be found on the Dance Program website www.brynmawr.edu/dance/courses/schedule.html and, at the beginning of each semester, on VBM. Before enrolling, students must get approval of dance class selection from the Dance Program. Students must attend the required number of technique class sessions; additional requirements for a passing grade include attendance at and critique of one live dance event and a short paper on a topic selected in consultation with the faculty coordinator. Course offered on a Pass/Fail basis only. Prerequisite: ARTD B138.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Instructor(s): Caruso Haviland,L., Cantor,M.
(Fall 2012)

ARTD B140 Approaches to Dance: Themes and Perspectives

This course introduces students to dance as a multi-layered, significant and enduring human behavior that ranges from art to play to ritual to politics and beyond. It engages students in the creative, critical and conceptual processes that emerge in response to the study of dance. It also explores the research potential that arises when other areas of academic inquiry, including criticism, ethnology, history and philosophy, interact with dance and dance scholarship. Lectures, discussion, film, video, and guest speakers are included. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

ARTD B230 Intermediate Technique: Modern
Intermediate level dance technique courses focus on expanding the movement vocabulary, on introducing movement phrases that are increasingly complex and demanding, and on further attention to motional dynamics and spatial contexts. Students at this level are also expected to begin demonstrating an intellectual and kinesthetic understanding of these technical challenges and their actual performance. Students will be evaluated on their openness and commitment to the learning process, increased understanding of the technique, and demonstration in class of their technical and stylistic progress as articulated within the field.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Mintzer, L., Staff
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ARTD B231 Intermediate Technique: Jazz
Intermediate level dance technique courses focus on expanding the movement vocabulary, on introducing movement phrases that are increasingly complex and demanding, and on further attention to motional dynamics and spatial contexts. Students at this level are also expected to begin demonstrating an intellectual and kinesthetic understanding of these technical challenges and their actual performance. Students will be evaluated on their openness and commitment to the learning process, increased understanding of the technique, and demonstration in class of their technical and stylistic progress as articulated within the field.

ARTD B241 Dance History II: A History of Contemporary Western Theater Dance

This course investigates the history of dance with particular emphasis on its development in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries as a Western Theatre Art form within a broader context of global art and culture. The course investigates the historical and cultural forces that shape both the form and function of dance as well as the reciprocal relationship of dance to or impact on those same forces. Dance will be considered both chronologically and theoretically as cultural, social, aesthetic, and personal phenomena. The course will provide students with an introduction to both traditional and more contemporary models of historiography with particular reference to the changing modes of documenting, researching and analyzing dance. In addition to lectures and discussion, the course will include film, video, slides, and some movement experiences.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARTD B242 Dance Composition II

This course builds on work accomplished in Composition I and develops an understanding of and skill in the theory and craft of choreography. This includes deepening movement invention skills; exploring form and structure; investigating sources for sound, music, text and language; developing group design; and broadening critical understanding. Students will work on multiple projects and will have some opportunity to revise and expand work. Readings and viewings will be assigned and related production problems will be considered. Concurrent attendance in any level technique course is required. Prerequisite: ARTD B142

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARTD B250 Performing the Political Body

Artists, activists, intellectuals, and ordinary people have used dance and performance to support political goals and ideologies or to perform social or cultural interventions in the private and public spheres. We will focus on how dance is a useful medium for both embodying and analyzing ideologies and practices of power particularly with reference to gender, class, and ethnicity. In addition to literary, anthropological, and political texts, the course includes introductory group improvisation and performance exercises and an in-class mini-performance project; willingness to research topics and to explore movement or other performance approaches is more important than prior training or experience.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0

ARTD B265 Dance, Migration and Exile

Highlighting aesthetic, political, social and spiritual powers of dance as it travels, transforms, and is accorded meaning both domestically and transnationally, especially in situations of war and social and political upheaval, this course investigates the recreation of heritage and the production of new traditions in refugee camps and in diaspora. Prerequisite: a Dance lecture/seminar course or a course in a relevant discipline such as anthropology, sociology, or Peace and Conflict Studies, or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B265
Units: 1.0

ARTD B310 Performing the City: Theorizing Bodies in Space

Building on the premise that space is a concern in performance, choreography, architecture and urban planning, this course will interrogate relationships between (performing) bodies and (city) spaces. Using perspectives from dance and performance studies, urban studies and cultural geography, it will introduce space, spatiality and the city as material and theoretical concepts and investigate how moving and performing bodies and city spaces intersect in political, social and cultural contexts. Lectures, discussion of assigned readings, attendance at live performance and 2-3 field trips are included. Prerequisites: One Dance lecture/seminar course or one course in relevant discipline e.g. cities, anthropology, sociology or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ARTT-B310
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Vriend,L.
ARTD B330 Advanced Technique: Modern

Advanced level technique courses continue to expand movement vocabulary and to introduce increasingly challenging movement phrases and repertory. Students are also expected to begin recognizing and incorporating the varied gestural and dynamic markers of styles and genres, with an eye to both developing their facility for working with various choreographic models and for beginning to mark out their individual movement preferences. There is also a continuing emphasis on cultivating the relationship between an intellectual and kinesthetic understanding and command of technical challenges and their actual performance. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Malcolm-Naib,R.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ARTD B331 Advanced Technique: Ballet

Advanced level technique courses continue to expand movement vocabulary and to introduce increasingly challenging movement phrases and repertory. Students are also expected to begin recognizing and incorporating the varied gestural and dynamic markers of styles and genres, with an eye to both developing their facility for working with various choreographic models and for beginning to mark out their individual movement preferences. There is also a continuing emphasis on cultivating the relationship between an intellectual and kinesthetic understanding and command of technical challenges and their actual performance. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ARTD B342 Advanced Choreography

Independent study in choreography under the guidance of the instructor. Students are expected to produce one major choreographic work and are responsible for all production considerations. Concurrent attendance in any level technique course is required. Prerequisite: ARTD 242
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 0.5, 1.0
Instructor(s): Caruso Haviland,L., Cantor,M.

ARTD B345 Dance Ensemble

Dance ensembles are offered in Ballet, Modern, Jazz, African, and Dance Outreach and are designed to offer students significant opportunities to develop dance technique, particularly in relationship to dance as a performance art. Students audition for entrance into individual ensembles. Original works choreographed by faculty or guest choreographers or works reconstructed / restaged from classic or contemporary repertories are rehearsed and performed in concert. Students are evaluated on their participation in rehearsals, their demonstration of full commitment and openness to the choreographic and performance processes both in terms of attitude and technical practice, and their achieved level of performance. This course is suitable for intermediate and advanced level dancers. These and additional ensembles, such as Hip-hop, may be taken, instead, for Physical Education credit.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Cantor,M., Rainey,M.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ARTD B390 Senior Project/Thesis

Majors develop, in conjunction with a faculty adviser, a senior capstone experience that is complementary to and will expand and deepen their work and interests within the field of dance. This can range from a significant research or expository paper to a substantial choreographic work that will be supported in a full studio performance. Students who elect to do choreographic or performance work must also submit a portfolio (10 pages) of written work on dance. Work begins in the Fall semester and should be completed by the middle of the Spring semester. One outside evaluator may be invited to offer additional comment.
Units: 0.5, 1.0

ARTD B403 Supervised Work

Research in a particular topic of dance under the guidance of an instructor, resulting in a final paper or project.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5, 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

FINE ARTS

Students may complete a major in Fine Arts at Haverford College.

The fine arts courses offered by the department are structured to accomplish the following: (1) For students not majoring in fine arts: to develop a visual perception of form and to present knowledge and understanding of it in works of art. (2) For students intending to major in fine arts: beyond the foregoing, to promote thinking in visual terms and to foster the skills needed to give expression to these in a coherent body of art works.

Major Requirements

Fine arts majors are required to concentrate in either painting, drawing, sculpture, photography or printmaking: four 100-level foundation courses in each discipline from each faculty member; two different 200-level courses outside the area of concentration; two 200-level courses and one 300-level course within that area; three art history courses to be taken at Bryn Mawr College or equivalent, and Senior Departmental Studies 499. For majors intending to do graduate work, it is strongly recommended that they take an additional 300-level studio course within their area of concentration and an additional art history course at Bryn Mawr College.

MUSIC

The Department of Music is located at Haverford and offers well-qualified students a major and minor in music. For a list of requirements and courses offered, see Music at Haverford.

Music Performance

The following organizations are open to all students by audition. For information on academic credit for these groups, and for private vocal or instrumental instruction, see Music at Haverford.

- The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra, with more than 70 members, rehearses once a week, and concerts are given regularly on both campuses. The annual concerto competition affords one or more students the opportunity to perform with the orchestra in a solo capacity.
- The Chamber Music Program is open to all members of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra and to pianists who have passed an audition that includes sight reading. Students rehearse once a week on their own, in addition to once-weekly coaching. Performances, rehearsals and coachings are held on both campuses depending on students’ schedules and preferences.
- The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chamber Singers is a select ensemble that demands a high level of vocal ability and musicianship. The group performs regularly on both campuses and in the Philadelphia area. Tours are planned within the United States and abroad.
- The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chorale is a large auditioned chorus that gives concerts with the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra each year.
- The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Women’s Ensemble emphasizes music for women’s voices and trebles and performs several times in the academic year.
- Chamber Ensemble Groups are formed within the context of the Chamber Music Seminar (MUSC 215). Performances are held both on and off campus; students have the opportunity to perform in master classes with internationally known chamber musicians.

- The Bryn Mawr Chamber Music Society offers extracurricular opportunities for experienced Bryn Mawr and Haverford students, faculty and staff to perform a variety of chamber works in a series of concerts held in the Music Room.

THEATER

The curricular portion of the Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges’ Theater Program focuses on the point of contact between creative and analytic work. Courses combine theory (reading and discussion of dramatic literature, history and criticism) and practical work (creative exercises, scene study and performance) to provide viable theater training within a liberal-arts context.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in Theater are six units of course work, three required (ARTT 150, 251 and 252) and three elective. Students must consult with the Theater faculty to ensure that the necessary areas in the field are covered. Students may submit an application to major in Theater through the independent major program.

Theater Performance

Numerous opportunities exist to act, direct, design and work in technical theater. In addition to the Theater Program’s mainstage productions, many student theater groups exist that are committed to musical theater, improvisation, community outreach, Shakespeare, film and video work, etc. All Theater Program productions are open and casting is routinely blind with respect to race and gender.

COURSES

ARTT B142 Dance Composition I

In this introduction to the art of making dances, an array of compositional tools and approaches is used to evolve and refine choreographic ideas. Basic concepts such as space, phrasing, timing, image, energy, density and partnering are introduced and explored alongside attention to the roles of inspiration and synthesis in the creative process. Improvisation is used to explore choreographic ideas and students learn to help and direct others in generating movement. Discussion and feedback on weekly choreographic assignments and readings contributes to analyzing and refining choreography. Concurrent attendance in any level technique course is required.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ARTD-B142
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)
ARTT B150 Introduction to Theater
An exploration of a wide range of dramatic works and history of theater through research, analysis and discussion to develop understanding and foundations for a theatrical production.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B230 Topics in American Drama
Considers American plays of the 20th century, reading major playwrights of the canon alongside other dramatists who were less often read and produced. Will also study later 20th century dramatists whose plays both develop and resist the complex foundation established by canonical American playwrights and how American drama reflects and responds to cultural and political shifts. Considers how modern American identity has been constructed through dramatic performance, considering both written and performed versions of these plays.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B230
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B241 Modern Drama
A survey of modern drama from the 19th century to the present, beginning with Georg Buchner and ending with living writers. We will explore the formation of modern sensibilities in playwriting through careful study of the evolution of dramatic form and the changing relationship between written text and performance.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B241
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B250 Twentieth-Century Theories of Acting
An introduction to 20th-century theories of acting emphasizing the intellectual, aesthetic, and sociopolitical factors surrounding the emergence of each director’s approach to the study of human behavior on stage. Various theoretical approaches to the task of developing a role are applied in workshop and scene study.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B251 Fundamentals of Acting
An introduction to the fundamental elements of acting (scene analysis, characterization, improvisation, vocal and gestural presentation, and ensemble work) through the study of scenes from significant 20th-century dramatic literature.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Matsushima, M.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B252 Fundamentals of Technical Theater
A practical, hands-on workshop in the creative process of turning a concept into a tangible, workable end through the physical execution of a design. Exploring new and traditional methods of achieving a coherent synthesis of all areas of technical production.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B253 Performance Ensemble
An intensive workshop in the methodologies and aesthetics of theater performance, this course is open to students with significant experience in performance. In collaboration with the director of theater, students will explore a range of performance techniques and styles in the context of rehearsing a performance project. Admission to the class is by audition or permission of the instructor. The class is offered for a half-unit of credit.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 0.5
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B254 Fundamentals of Theater Design
An introduction to the creative process of visual design for theater; exploring dramatic context and influence of cultural, social, and ideological forces on theater and examining practical applications of various technical elements such as scenery, costume, and lighting while emphasizing their aesthetic integration.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B255 Fundamentals of Costume Design
Hands-on practical workshop on costume design for performing arts; analysis of text, characters, movement, situations; historical and stylistic research; cultivation of initial concept through materialization and plotting to execution of design.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Matsushima, M.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B262 Playwriting I
An introduction to playwriting through a combination of reading assignments, writing exercises, discussions about craft and ultimately the creation of a complete one-act play. Students will work to discover and develop their own unique voices as they learn the technical aspects of the craft of playwriting. Readings will include work by Edward Albee, Maria Irene Fornes, John Guare, Tony Kushner, Suzan-Lori Parks, Paula Vogel and others. Short writing assignments will complement each reading assignment. The final assignment will be to write an original one-act play.

ARTT B310 Performing the City: Theorizing Bodies in Space

Building on the premise that space is a concern in performance, choreography, architecture and urban planning, this course will interrogate relationships between (performing) bodies and (city) spaces. Using perspectives from dance and performance studies, urban studies and cultural geography, it will introduce space, spatiality and the city as material and theoretical concepts and investigate how moving and performing bodies and city spaces intersect in political, social and cultural contexts. Lectures, discussion of assigned readings, attendance at live performance and 2-3 fieldtrips are included. Prerequisites: One Dance lecture/seminar course or one course in relevant discipline e.g. cities, anthropology, sociology or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ARTD-B310
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Vriend, L.

ARTT B351 Acting II

Builds on the methods learned in ARTT 251, with an emphasis on strategies of preparing short solo performances. In addition to intensive exercises in naturalistic and anti-naturalistic performance techniques, the course provides opportunities for exploration of principles of design, directing, dramaturgy and playwriting as they pertain to specific projects conceived by members of the class. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARTT B353 Advanced Performance Ensemble

An advanced, intensive workshop in theater performance. Students explore a range of performance techniques in the context of rehearsing a performance project, and participate in weekly seminars in which the aesthetic and theatrical principles of the play and production will be developed and challenged. The course may be repeated.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Slusar, C.
(Fall 2012)

ARTT B354 Shakespeare on the Stage

An exploration of Shakespeare’s texts from the point of view of the performer. A historical survey of the various approaches to producing Shakespeare from Elizabethan to contemporary times, with intensive scenework culminating in on-campus performances.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0

ARTT B359 Directing for the Stage

A semiotic approach to the basic concepts and methods of stage direction. Topics explored through readings, discussion and creative exercises include directorial concept, script analysis and research, stage composition and movement, and casting and actor coaching. Students rehearse and present three major scenes.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARTT B403 Supervised Work

Units: 1.0

ASTRONOMY

Students may complete a major or minor in Astronomy at Haverford College.

Faculty

Stephen P. Boughn, Professor
R. Bruce Partridge, Professor Emeritus
Beth Willman, Assistant Professor

The astronomy department’s curriculum is centered on studying the phenomena of the extraterrestrial Universe and on understanding them in terms of the fundamental principles of physics. We emphasize student research with faculty members, and upper level courses contain substantial project- and/or research-based investigation. Our department offers two majors: astronomy or astrophysics. Both majors provide substantial training in quantitative reasoning and independent thinking through work in and out of the classroom. The astronomy major is appropriate for students who desire an in-depth education in astronomy that can be applied to a wide-range of career trajectories, but who do not necessarily intend to pursue graduate study in astronomy. The astrophysics major is appropriate for students who wish to pursue the study of astronomy with additional attention to the physical principles that underlie astrophysical phenomena. The depth of the physics training required for a degree in astrophysics will prepare students who wish to pursue a career in astronomy or astrophysics, or to enter graduate study in astronomy or astrophysics. The department also offers a minor in astronomy.

Although a variety of pathways can lead to a major in the department, prospective astronomy or astrophysics majors are advised to study physics (Physics 105 and 106, or 101 and 102, or Bryn Mawr equivalents) beginning in their first year, and to enroll in Astronomy 205/206 and Physics 213/214 in their sophomore year. It is also recommended to take Astronomy/Physics 152 in the second semester of the first year.

The department offers three courses, Astronomy 101a, Astronomy 112, and Astronomy 114b, which can be taken with no prerequisites or prior experience in astronomy. The department also offers a half-credit course, Astronomy/Physics 152, intended for first-year students who are considering a physical science major and wish the opportunity to study some of the most recent developments in astrophysics.

Students may major in astronomy or astrophysics, but not both. Astrophysics majors may not double major in either physics or astronomy. Astronomy majors may pursue a double major or a minor in physics. A concentration in scientific computing is available for astronomy and astrophysics majors. The department coordinator for this concentration is Beth Willman.

Major Requirements

1. Physics 105 (or 101), Physics 106 (or 102), Physics 213, Physics 214.
2. Two mathematics courses; Mathematics 121 and all 200 level or higher mathematics courses can be used to satisfy this requirement.
3. Astronomy 205, Astronomy 206, four 300-level astronomy courses, one of which may be replaced by an upper-level physics course.
4. Astronomy 404, which may be replaced by approved independent research either at Haverford or elsewhere.
5. Written comprehensive examinations.

Bryn Mawr equivalents may be substituted for the non-astronomy courses. Astronomy/Physics 152 is recommended but not required.

Astrophysics Major Requirements

1. Physics 105 (or 101), Physics 106 (or 102), Physics 213, Physics 214, Physics 211 (usually taken concurrently with Physics 213).
2. Two mathematics courses. Mathematics 121 and all 200 level or higher mathematics courses can be used to satisfy this requirement.
3. Astronomy 205, Astronomy 206, and any two 300 level astronomy courses.
5. The Senior Seminar, Physics 399, including a talk and senior thesis on research conducted by the student. This research can be undertaken in a 400-level research course with any member of the Physics or Astronomy departments or by doing extracurricular research at Haverford or elsewhere, e.g., an approved summer research internship at another institution. The thesis is to be written under the supervision of both the research adviser and a Haverford adviser if the research adviser is not a Haverford faculty member.

Bryn Mawr equivalents may be substituted for the non-astronomy courses. Astronomy/Physics 152 and Physics 308 are recommended but not required.
Minor Requirements

1. Physics 105 (or 101); Physics 106 (or 102).
2. Astronomy 205; Astronomy 206; one 300 level astronomy course.

Astronomy/Physics 152 is recommended but not required.

Requirements for Honors

All astronomy and astrophysics majors are regarded as candidates for Honors. For both majors, the award of Honors will be made in part on the basis of superior work in the departmental courses and in certain related courses. For astronomy majors, the award of Honors will additionally be based on performance on the comprehensive examinations, with consideration given for independent research. For astrophysics majors, the award of Honors will additionally be based on the senior thesis and talk.

COURSES

ASTR H101 Astronomical Ideas

Fundamental concepts and observations of modern astronomy, such as the properties of planets, the birth and death of stars, and the properties and evolution of the Universe. Not intended for students majoring in the physical sciences.
B.Willman

ASTR H112 Survey of the Cosmos

Properties and evolution of the Universe and of large systems within it. The qualitative aspects of general relativity including black holes and of mathematical models for the geometry of the Universe are studied, along with the history of the Universe from its early exponential expansion to the formation of galaxies. The role of observations in refining modern scientific understanding of the structure and evolution of the Universe is stressed. The approach is quantitative, but any mathematics beyond straightforward algebra is taught as the class proceeds. No prerequisites but Astronomy 101 is useful. Typically offered in alternate years.
Staff

ASTR H114 Planetary Astronomy

A survey of the overall structure of the Solar System, the laws governing the motions of the planets and the evolution of the Solar System. Next, we study general processes affecting the surface properties of planets. This takes us to a detailed treatment of the properties of several planets. We end by studying the (surprising) properties of planets found in other stellar systems. Typically offered in alternate years.

ASTR H152 Freshman Seminar in Astrophysics

This half-credit course is intended for prospective physical science majors with an interest in recent developments in astrophysics. Topics in modern astrophysics will be viewed in the context of underlying physical principles. Topics include black holes, quasars, neutron stars, supernovae, dark matter, the Big Bang, and Einstein’s relativity theories. Prerequisite: Physics 101a or 105a and concurrent enrollment in Physics 102b or 106b (or Bryn Mawr equivalents). Typically offered every Spring.
S.Boughn

ASTR H205 Introduction to Astrophysics I NA

General introduction to astronomy including: the structure and evolution of stars; the properties and evolution of the solar system including planetary surfaces and atmospheres; exoplanets; and observational projects using the Strawbridge Observatory telescopes. Prerequisite: Physics 105 and 106 & Math 114 or equivalent. Typically offered every Fall.
S.Boughn

ASTR H206 Introduction to Astrophysics II

Introduction to the study of: the structure and formation of the Milky Way galaxy; the interstellar medium; the properties of galaxies and their nuclei; and cosmology including the Hot Big Bang model. Prerequisite: Astr 205a and Math 114b or equiv or consent. Typically offered every Spring.
B.Willman

ASTR H341 Advanced Topics: Observational Astronomy

Prerequisite: Astronomy 205. Typically offered in alternate years.
S.Boughn,B.Willman

ASTR H342 Advanced Topics: Modern Galactic Astronomy

Prerequisite: Astronomy 205 and 206. Typically offered in alternate years.
B.Willman/R.Fadely

ASTR H343 Advanced Topics: Stellar Structure and Evolution

The theory of the structure of stellar interiors and atmospheres and the theory of star formation and stellar evolution, including compact stellar remnants. Prerequisite: Astronomy 205 and Physics 214. Typically offered in alternate years.
S.Boughn
BIOLOGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Biology.

Faculty

Peter Brodfuehrer, Professor
Monica Chander, Assistant Professor
Gregory Davis, Assistant Professor
Tamara Davis, Associate Professor and Chair
Wilfred Franklin, Instructor (on leave semester I)
Stephen Gardiner, Senior Lecturer
Karen Greif, Professor
Joy Little, Lecturer and Laboratory Instructional Assistant
Thomas Mozdzer, Assistant Professor
Joshua Shapiro, Visiting Assistant Professor
Michelle Wien, Lecturer

The programs of the department are designed to introduce students to unifying concepts and broad issues in biology, and to provide the opportunity for in-depth inquiry into topics of particular interest through coursework and independent research. Introductory- and intermediate-level courses examine the structures and functions of living systems at all levels of organization, from molecules, cells and organisms to populations. Advanced courses encourage the student to gain proficiency in the critical reading of research literature, leading to the development, defense and presentation of a senior paper. Opportunities for supervised research with faculty are available and highly encouraged.

Major Requirements

Course requirements for a major in Biology include four quarters of introductory biology, BIOL110-113, six courses at the 200 and 300 level (excluding BIOL 390-398), of which at least three must be laboratory courses; and one senior seminar course (BIOL 390-395, or 398-399). Two semesters of supervised laboratory research, BIOL 401 or 403, may be substituted for one of the required laboratory courses. In addition, two semester courses in general chemistry and three additional semester courses in allied sciences, to be selected from Anthropology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Geology, Mathematics, Physics or Psychology are required for all majors. Selection of the three additional allied science courses must be done in consultation with the student’s major adviser and be approved by the department. Students interested in pursuing graduate studies or medical school are encouraged to take two semesters

ASTR H344 Advanced Topics: Cosmology

The study of the origin, evolution and large-scale structure of the Universe (Big Bang Theory). Review of the relevant observational evidence. Prerequisite: Astronomy 206b. Typically offered in alternate years. S.Boughn

ASTR H404 Research in Astrophysics

Intended for those students who choose to complete an independent research project in astrophysics under the supervision of a faculty member. Prerequisite: Consent of instructor. S.Boughn,B.Willman

ASTR H480 Independent Study

Intended for students who want to pursue some topic of study that is not currently offered in the curriculum. In order to enroll, a student must have a faculty sponsor. Prerequisite: Astronomy 206. S.Boughn,B.Willman each of physics and organic chemistry. In addition, all biology students are encouraged to take courses that enhance their quantitative reasoning skills.

A score of 5 on the Advanced Placement examination, or equivalent International Baccalaureate scores, can be used to satisfy one semester (2 quarters) of the introductory biology requirement for the major. Two additional quarters of BIOL 110-113 are required to fulfill the introductory biology requirement. The department, however, highly recommends 4 quarters of introductory biology for majors. Placement out of 2 quarters of introductory biology does not satisfy the introductory biology pre-requisite for 200/300-level courses.

Honors

Departmental honors are awarded to students who have distinguished themselves academically or via their participation in departmental activities. Final selection for honors is made by the Biology faculty.

Minor Requirements

A minor in Biology consists of six semester courses in Biology.

Minors in Environmental Studies, Computational Methods, and Neuroscience

Minors in Environmental Studies, Computational Methods, and Neuroscience are available for students interested in interdisciplinary exploration in these areas. Check the Table of Contents for page numbers of the complete descriptions of the minors.

Teacher Certification

The College offers a certification program in secondary teacher education. Visit www.brynmawr.edu/education/academic/fifth_year_certification.html for more information.

Animal Experimentation Policy

Students who object to participating directly in laboratory activities involving the use of animals in a course required for the major are required to notify the faculty member of her or his objections at the beginning of the course. If alternative activities are available and deemed consistent with the pedagogical objectives of the course by the faculty member, then a student will be allowed to pursue alternative laboratory activities without penalty.

COURSES

BIOL B101 Introduction to Biology I: Genetics and the Central Dogma

For post-baccalaureate premedical students only. A comprehensive examination of topics in genetics, molecular biology and cancer biology. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Current topic description: For post-baccalaureate premedical students only. A comprehensive examination of topics in genetics, molecular biology and cancer biology. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Wien, M. (Fall 2012)

BIOL B102 Topics in Introduction to Biology II

For post-baccalaureate premedical students only. A comprehensive examination of topics in biochemistry, cell biology and physiology. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. BIOL 101 is strongly recommended. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Wien, M. (Spring 2013)

BIOL B103 Biology: Basic Concepts

An introduction to the major concepts of modern biology that both underlie and emerge from exploration of living systems at levels of organization ranging from the molecular and biochemical through the cellular and organismal to the ecological. Emphasis is placed on the observational and experimental bases for ideas that are both common to diverse areas of biology and represent important contributions of biology to more general intellectual and social discourse. Topics include the chemical and physical bases of life, cell theory, energetics, genetics, development, physiology, behavior, ecology and evolution. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B110 Focus: Biological Exploration I

BIOL 110-113 are introductory-level courses, designed to encourage students to explore the field of biology at multiple levels of organization: molecular, cellular, organismal and ecological. Each course will explore these areas of biology through a unifying theme. This year, BIOL 110 will center on the reading of “The Emperor of All Maladies: A Biography of Cancer” by Siddhartha Mukherjee, and will examine its biological concepts and issues. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. There are no prerequisites for this
BIOL B111 Focus: Biological Exploration II
BIOL 110-113 are introductory-level courses, designed to encourage students to explore the field of biology at multiple levels of organization: molecular, cellular, organismal and ecological. Each course will explore these areas of biology through a unifying theme. This year, BIOL 111 will investigate the molecular and cellular basis of cystic fibrosis, its inheritance in families and populations, and associated epidemiological and public policy implications. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. There are no prerequisites for this course.

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Greif,K.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B112 Biological Exploration III
BIOL 110-113 are introductory-level courses, designed to encourage students to explore the field of biology at multiple levels of organization: molecular, cellular, organismal, and ecological. Each course will explore these areas of biology through a unifying theme. This year, Biology 112 will investigate the underlying physiology associated with echolocation and thermoregulation in bats. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. There are no prerequisites for this course.

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Davis,T.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B113 Biological Exploration IV
BIOL 110-113 are introductory-level courses, designed to encourage students to explore the field of biology at multiple levels of organization: molecular, cellular, organismal, and ecological. Each course will explore these areas of biology through a unifying theme. This year, Biology 113 will examine the proximate and ultimate explanations of ecological case studies that every biologist should know. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. There are no prerequisites for this course.

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Brodfuehrer,P., Franklin,W.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B201 Genetics
An introduction to heredity and variation, focusing on topics such as classical Mendelian genetics, linkage, and recombination, chromosome abnormalities, population and developmental genetics. Examples of genetic analyses are drawn from a variety of organisms, including bacteria, Drosophila, C. elegans and humans. Lecture three hours. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and CHEM 103, 104.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR);
Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Davis,T.

BIOL B202 Introduction to Neuroscience
An introduction to the nervous system and its broad contributions to function. The class will explore fundamentals of neural anatomy and signaling, sensory and motor processing and control, nervous system development and examples of complex brain functions. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: two quarters of Bio 110-113 or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Greif,K.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B205 Brain, Education and Behavior
A lecture/discussion course exploring intersections between the neural and cognitive sciences and the theory and practice of education, with the aim of generating useful new insights and productive lines of inquiry in both realms. Prerequisite: Some college-level course work in Biology, Psychology or Education; permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Crosslisting(s): EDUC-B205
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B210 Biology and Public Policy
A lecture/discussion course on major issues and advances in biology and their implications for public policy decisions. Topics discussed include reproductive technologies, genetic screening and gene therapy, environmental health hazards, and euthanasia and organ transplantation. Readings include scientific articles, public policy and ethical considerations, and lay publications. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: two quarters of BIOL 110-113, or permission of instructor.

BIOL B214 The Historical Roots of Women in Genetics and Embryology

This course provides a general history of genetics and embryology from the late 19th to the mid-20th century with a focus on the role that women scientists and technicians played in the development of these sub-disciplines. We will look at the lives of well known and lesser-known individuals, asking how factors such as their educational experiences and mentor relationships influenced the roles these women played in the scientific enterprise. We will also examine specific scientific contributions in historical context, requiring a review of core concepts in genetics and developmental biology. One facet of the course will be to look at the Bryn Mawr Biology Department from the founding of the College into the mid-20th century.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP); Scientific Investigation (SI)

Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies

Crosslisting(s): HIST-B214

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Davis,G.

BIOL B220 Ecology

A study of the interactions between organisms and their environments. The scientific underpinnings of current environmental issues, with regard to human impacts, are also discussed. Students will also become familiar with ecological principles and with the methods ecologists use to address ecological issues. Students will apply these principles through the design and implementation of experiments both in the laboratory and the field. Lecture three hours a week, laboratory/field investigation three hours a week. There will be optional field trips throughout the semester. Prerequisite: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab

Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Mozdzer,T.

BIOL B223 The Story of Evolution and the Evolution of Stories

In this course we will experiment with two interrelated and reciprocal inquiries—whether the biological concept of evolution is a useful one in understanding the phenomena of literature (in particular, the generation of new stories), and whether literature contributes to a deeper understanding of evolution. We will begin with science texts that explain and explore evolution and turn to stories that (may) have grown out of one another, asking where they come from, why new ones emerge, and why some disappear. We will consider the parallels between diversity of stories and diversity of living organisms. Lecture three hours a week.

Requirement(s): Division II or Division III

Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B223

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B225 Biology of Plants

In-depth examination of the structures and processes underlying survival, growth, reproduction, competition and diversity in plants. Three hours of lecture a week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113.

Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)
BIOL B236 Evolution
A lecture/discussion course on the development of evolutionary thought, generally regarded as the most profound scientific event of the 19th century; its foundations in biology and geology; and the extent of its implications to many disciplines. Emphasis is placed on the nature of evolution in terms of process, product, patterns, historical development of the theory, and its applications to interpretations of organic history. Lecture three hours a week.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B236; GEOL-B236
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gardiner,S., Marenco,K.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B244 Behavioral Endocrinology
An interdisciplinary-based analysis of the nature of hormones, how hormones affect cells and systems, and how these effects alter the behavior of animals. Topics will be covered from a research perspective using a combination of lectures, discussions and student presentations. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 or one of the following courses: B202, PSYC B218 or PSYC H217.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B250 Computational Methods in the Sciences
A study of how and why modern computation methods are used in scientific inquiry. Students will learn basic principles of simulation-based programming through hands-on exercises. Content will focus on the development of population models, beginning with simple exponential growth and ending with spatially-explicit individual-based simulations. Students will design and implement a final project from their own disciplines. Six hours of combined lecture/lab per week.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B250; GEOL-B250
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B255 Microbiology
Invisible to the naked eye, microbes occupy every niche on the planet. This course will examine how microbes have become successful colonizers; review aspects of interactions between microbes, humans and the environment; and explore practical uses of microbes in industry, medicine and environmental management.

BIOL B271 Developmental Biology
An introduction to embryology and the concepts of developmental biology. Concepts are illustrated by analyzing the experimental observations that support them. Topics include gametogenesis and fertilization, morphogenesis, cell fate specification and differentiation, pattern formation, regulation of gene expression, neural development, and developmental plasticity. The laboratory focuses on observations and experiments on living embryos. Lecture three hours, laboratory three scheduled hours a week; most weeks require additional hours outside of the regularly scheduled lab. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chander,M.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B301 Organismal Biology: Vertebrate Structure
A comparative study of major organ systems in different vertebrate groups. Similarities and differences are considered in relation to organ system function and in connection with evolutionary relationships among vertebrate classes. Laboratory activities emphasize dissection of several vertebrate representatives, but also include examination of prepared microscope slides and demonstrations. Two three-hour lecture/laboratory meetings a week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113, one 200-level Biology course, and permission of instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B303 Animal Physiology
A comprehensive study of the physical and chemical processes in tissues, organs and organ systems that form the basis of animal function. Homeostasis, control systems and the structural bases of function are emphasized. Laboratories are designed to introduce basic physiological techniques and the practice of scientific inquiry. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113, CHEM 103, 104 and one 200-level biology course.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
BIOL B304 Cell and Molecular Neurobiology
A problem-based laboratory course in which students investigate cellular and molecular properties of neurons and small networks of neurons using neuron simulations and animal experiments, and through critical reading of the primary literature. Two three-hour laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113, and one of the following BIOL B202, PSYC B218 or PSYC H217 at Haverford.
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B309 Biological Oceanography
A comprehensive examination of the principal ecosystems of the world's oceans, emphasizing the biotic and abiotic factors that contribute to the distribution of marine organisms. A variety of marine ecosystems are examined, including rocky intertidal, and hydrocarbon seeps, with an emphasis on the distinctive characteristics of each system and the assemblage of organisms associated with each system. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. One required three-day field trip, for which an extra fee is collected, and other occasional field trips as allowed for by scheduling. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and one 200-level science course, or permission of instructor.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gardiner,S.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B313 Integrative Organismal Biology I
The first semester of a two-semester course focusing on how organisms cope with environmental challenges by investigating the requirements for life at the level of individual cells and multi-cellular organisms, the anatomical and physiological properties of cells, tissues and organ systems, and how these properties allow organisms to interact successfully with their environment. Two three-hour lecture/laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and one 200-level biology course. Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B314 Integrative Organismal Biology II
The second semester of Integrative Organismal Biology. Two three-hour lecture/laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisite: BIOL 313 or permission of instructor. Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B320 Evolutionary Ecology
This course will examine how phenotypic variation in organisms is optimized and constrained by ecological and evolutionary factors. We will cover concepts and case studies in life history evolution, behavioral ecology, and population ecology with an emphasis on both mathematical and experimental approaches. Recommended Prerequisites: BIOL B111-B114 or BIOL B220
Requirement(s): Quantitative
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B321 Neuroethology
This course provides an opportunity for students to understand the neuronal basis of behavior through the examination of how particular animals have evolved neural solutions to specific problems posed to them by their environments. The topics will be covered from a research perspective using a combination of lectures, discussions and student presentations. Prerequisite: BIOL 202, PSYC 218 or PSYC 217 at Haverford.
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Brodfuehrer,P.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B326 From Channels to Behavior
Introduces the principles, research approaches, and methodologies of cellular and behavioral neuroscience. The first half of the course will cover the cellular properties of neurons using current and voltage clamp techniques along with neuron simulations. The second half of the course will introduce students to state-of-the-art techniques for acquiring and analyzing data in a variety of rodent models linking brain and behavior. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and one of the following: PSYC 218, PSYC 217 at Haverford, or BIOL 202.
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Crosslisting(s): PSYC-B326
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thomas,E., Brodfuehrer,P.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B327 Evolutionary Genetics and Genomics
This seminar course will discuss evolution primarily at the level of genes and genomes. Topics will include the roles of selection and drift in molecular evolution, evolution of gene expression, genomic approaches to the study of quantitative variation, evolutionary history of humans, and evolutionary perspectives on the study of human disease. Students will read papers from the primary literature, lead and participate in class discussions and debates, and write reviews of research articles. Quantitative proficiency required. Prerequisites: Two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and BIOL 201, or BIOL 236, or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Shapiro, J.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; ARCH-B328; GEOL-B328
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced Topics
A seminar course on current issues in evolution. Discussion based on readings from the primary literature. Topics vary from year to year. One three-hour discussion a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 236 or permission of instructor.
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B336; GEOL-B336
Units: 1.0

BIOL B340 Cell Biology
A lecture course with laboratory emphasizing current knowledge in cell biology. Among topics discussed are cell membranes, cell surface specializations, cell motility and the cytoskeleton, regulation of cell activity, energy generation and protein synthesis. Laboratory experiments are focused on studies of cell structure, making use of techniques in cell culture and immunocytochemistry. Lecture three hours, laboratory four hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 201 or 271, or with permission of instructor. This course may be taken concurrently with CHEM 211.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B354 Basic Concepts and Special Topics in Biochemistry
For post-baccalaureate premedical students and non-majors who meet the prerequisites. Course does not count toward the biology major, majors should take BIOL B375. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 or equivalent, CHEM 211 or permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Porello, S.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B361 Emergence
A multidisciplinary exploration of the interactions underlying both real and simulated systems, such as ant colonies, economies, brains, earthquakes, biological evolution, artificial evolution, computers, and life. These emergent systems are often characterized by simple, local interactions that collectively produce global phenomena not apparent in the local interactions. Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B361
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B364 Developmental Neurobiology
A lecture/discussion course on major topics in the development of the nervous system. Some of the topics to be addressed are cell generation, cell migration, cell survival and growth, axon guidance and target specificity, synapse formation and behavioral development. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 201 or 271, BIOL 202 or equivalent, or permission of instructor.
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Greif, K.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B369 Biochemical Mechanisms of Disease Progression
An interdisciplinary course exploring the biochemical mechanisms involved in disease progression, their therapeutic strategies, experimental techniques and challenges facing scientists. Topics will be covered from a research perspective using a combination of lectures, discussions, presentations and group activities. Prerequisites: BIOL B375 or CHEM B242.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B375 Integrated Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I
The first semester of a two-semester course that focuses on the structure and function of proteins, carbohydrates, lipids and nucleic acids, enzyme kinetics, metabolic pathways, gene regulation and recombinant DNA techniques. Students will explore these topics via lecture, critical reading and discussion of primary literature and laboratory experimentation. Three hours of lecture, three hours of lab per week. Prerequisite: BIOL 110 and 111, and two semesters of organic chemistry.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chander, M.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B376 Integrated Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II
This second semester of a two-semester sequence will continue with analysis of nucleic acids and gene regulation through lecture, critical reading and discussion of primary literature and laboratory experimentation. Three hours of lecture, three hours of lab per week. Prerequisite: BIOL B375 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Davis, T.

BIOL B391 Senior Seminar in Biochemistry

Topics of current interest and significance in biochemistry are examined with critical readings and oral presentations of work from the research literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisites: BIOL 341, 375 or permission of instructor.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chander, M.

BIOL B392 Senior Seminar

An advanced course in the study of the organization and function of physiological systems from the molecular level to the organismal level. Specific topics related to the organization and function of physiological systems are examined in detail using the primary literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students.

Units: 1.0

BIOL B393 Senior Seminar in Molecular Genetics

This course focuses on topics of current interest and significance in molecular genetics, such as chromatin structure and mechanisms of gene regulation. Students critically read, present and discuss in detail primary literature relevant to the selected topic. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students.

Prerequisite: BIOL 201 or 376, or permission of instructor.

Units: 1.0

BIOL B394 Senior Seminar in Evolutionary Developmental Biology

Topics of current interest and significance in evolutionary developmental biology are examined with critical readings and oral presentations of work from the research literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present a research paper based on their readings. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students.

Prerequisite: BIOL 201, 236 or 271, or permission of instructor.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Brodfuehrer, P.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B395 Senior Seminar in Cellular Biology

This is a topics course. Topics vary.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Greif, K.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B396 Topics in Neuroscience

A seminar course dealing with current issues in the neurosciences. It provides advanced students minoring in neuroscience with an opportunity to read and discuss in depth seminal papers that represent emerging thought in the field. In addition, students are expected to make presentations of their own research. Required for those with the minor.

Crosslisting(s): PSYC-B396

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B398 Senior Seminar in Science in Society

A seminar that addresses a variety of topics at the interface of biology and society. Students prepare and present a major scholarly work at the end of the semester. Three hours of discussion per week.

Units: 1.0

BIOL B399 Senior Seminar in Laboratory Investigations

This seminar provides students with a collaborative forum to facilitate the exchange of ideas and broaden their perspective and understanding of research approaches used in various sub-disciplines of biology. There will be a focus on the presentation, interpretation and discussion of data, and communication of scientific findings to diverse audiences. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present a paper on their supervised research project. Three hours of class discussion each week. Co-requisite: enrollment in the second semester of BIOL 403.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Brodfuehrer, P.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B401 Supervised Research in Neuroscience

Laboratory or library research under the supervision of a member of the Neuroscience committee. Required for those with the concentration. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
Chemistry Program Requirements and Opportunities

The Chemistry major is offered with several different options:

- American Chemical Society Certified A.B., recommended for graduate school
- Chemistry major, A.B. Only
- Chemistry minor
- Chemistry major with concentration in biochemistry
- Chemistry major with concentration in geochemistry

FAQ About The Chemistry Major
www.brynmawr.edu/chemistry/undergraduate/FAQ.html

ACS Certified A.B. Major Requirements

A student may qualify for a major in chemistry by completing a total of 13 units in chemistry with the distribution:

- Chem 103, 104
- Chem 211, 212
- Chem 221, 222
• Chem 231
• Chem 242
• Chem 251, 252
• Chem 398, 399
• two other Chem 3xx

Other required courses: Math 101, 102, 201; Physics 121/122 (preferred) or 101/102. Students who plan to do graduate work in chemistry should also consider taking Physics 201.

Major, A.B. only

A non-ACS certified major requires all of the above coursework except Chem 398, 399.

TIMETABLES FOR MEETING MAJOR REQUIREMENTS

Students may follow various schedules to meet their major requirements. However, a fairly typical one is:

- freshman year: Chem 103 and 104, Math 101 and 102
- sophomore year: Chem 211 and 212, Math 201, Physics 121/122 or 101/102
- junior year: Chem 221, 222, 231, 242, 251, 252
- senior year: two or more Chem 3xx

In particular note that

- Math 201 must be completed before taking Chem 221, a required junior-year course. Math 201 is offered at Bryn Mawr only in the fall, but an equivalent course is offered at Haverford in the spring term.
- Every effort should be made to complete the two semesters of college physics by the end of the sophomore year.
- The required 300x courses all have prerequisites that generally include Chem 212 and/or Chem 222.

Students who wish to deviate from the usual schedule should consult with the major adviser as early as possible to devise an alternative.

Honors

The requirements for departmental honors are:

- Complete one of the major plans.
- Maintain a chemistry GPA of 3.7 or better.
- Complete Chem 398 and 399 with a grade of 3.3 or better each semester.
- Participate in research oral/poster presentations.
- Write an acceptable thesis, and meet all department deadlines for submission of the thesis.
- Complete an additional unit of Chem 3xx (for a total of three 300-level chemistry units). With department approval, one unit of 300-level work in certain fields may be substituted.

Minor

A student may qualify for a minor in chemistry by completing a total of 7.0 units in chemistry with the distribution:

- Chem 103, 104
- Chem 211, 212
- Chem 221* or 222*
- Chem 231 or 242
- Chem 251 or 252

*Pre-/co-requisites: Math 201, Physics 121/122 or 101/102
Bio 375 may be substituted for Chem 242

Other required courses: Math 101, 102

At least two of the six courses must be taken at Bryn Mawr.

Major with Concentration in Biochemistry

- Chem 103, 104
- Chem 211, 212
- Chem 221*, 222*, 231 or 242 (choose 3 of 4)
- Chem 251, 252
- Chem 345
- Chem 3xx
- Bio 201
- Bio 376

*Pre-/co-requisites: Math 201, Physics 121/122 or 101/102
Bio 375 may be substituted for Chem 242
Bio 242 satisfies the pre-requisite for this course

Other required courses: Math 101, 102

Equivalent biology courses at Haverford may be substituted.

Major with Concentration in Geochemistry

- Chem 103, 104
- Chem 211, 212
- Chem 221*, 222*, 231 or 242 (choose 3 of 4)
- Chem 251, 252
CHEM B100 The Stuff of Art
An introduction to chemistry through fine arts, this course emphasizes the close relationship of the fine arts, especially painting, to the development of chemistry and its practice. The historical role of the material in the arts, in alchemy and in the developing science of chemistry, will be discussed, as well as the synergy between these areas. Relevant principles of chemistry will be illustrated through the handling, synthesis and/or transformations of the material. This course does not count towards chemistry major requirements, and is not suitable for premedical programs. Lecture 90 minutes, laboratory three hours a week. Enrollment limited to 20.
Requirement(s); Division II with Lab
Crosslisting(s): HART-B100
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B101 Focus: Chemistry Fundamentals
This is a half semester Focus course. For students with little background in Chemistry. Prepares students for Chemistry 103 by covering problem-solving techniques, mathematics needed for chemistry, atoms, molecules, chemical structures, chemical reactions and solutions. Depending on interest, there may be a topical focus such as drugs and doses, food and energy, or the environment. The course may include Individual student conferences and electronic resources. Offered in the second half of the Fall and Spring semesters. Enrollment is based on performance on a placement test or permission of the instructor. Prerequisite: Quantitative Skills requirement met or concurrent enrollment in a Quantitative Skills course.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Porello,S.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B103 General Chemistry I
For students with some background in chemistry. Sections usually have a maximum of 55 students. Topics include aqueous solutions and solubility; the electronic structure of atoms and molecules; chemical reactions and energy; intermolecular forces. Examples discussed in lecture and laboratory workshop include environmental sciences, material sciences and biological chemistry. Lecture three hours and Chemistry workshop three hours a week. The laboratory workshop period will be used for traditional chemical experimentation or related problem solving. The course may include individual conferences, evening problem or peer-led instruction sessions. Pre-requisites: Satisfactory performances on the Chemistry Placement Test and on the Quantitative Reasoning Assessment.
Requirement(s); Division II w/Lab and Quantitative Skills
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): White,S., Goldsmith,J., Lukacs,K., Francl,M.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
CHEM B104 General Chemistry II
A continuation of CHEM 103. Topics include chemical reactions; introduction to thermodynamics and chemical equilibria; acid-base chemistry; electrochemistry; chemical kinetics. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory three hours a week. May include individual conferences, evening problem or peer-led instruction sessions. Prerequisite: CHEM 103 with a grade of at least 2.0, strong performance on the chemistry placement test. Requirement(s): Division II w/Lab and Quantitative Skills Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Lukacs,K., Francl,M., Porello,S. (Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

CHEM B105 Intimate Interactions Chemical Bonding
This half-semester course will focus on chemical bonding, starting with the simplest bonding models and describing how these develop into more complex bonding models. The aim is to integrate bonding concepts that are currently taught in separate courses to present a unified evolution of bonding theories. Prerequisite: CHEM B104 or equivalent. Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR) Units: 0.5 Instructor(s): Burgmayer,S. (Spring 2013)

CHEM B113 General Chemistry
A half-unit course for students with strong preparation in chemistry, but who are not ready to take CHEM 211 (Organic Chemistry). Topics include aqueous solutions and solubility; the electronic structure of atoms and molecules; radiochemistry. Recitation one hour, laboratory three hours a week. Enrollment limited to 25 first-year students. Prerequisite: Advanced Placement score of 3 (or International Baccalaureate equivalent), or satisfactory performance on Bryn Mawr’s placement test given on the first day of class, or permission of instructor. Does not meet Division II requirement by itself; students must continue with CHEM 104 to receive Division II credit. Units: 0.5 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B116 Drugs and How They Work
An introductory half course exploring fundamental structure-related principles in chemistry through a study of drug action. Prerequisite: CHEM B103 or equivalent or permission of the instructor. This is a half-semester, half-credit course. Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science Units: 0.5 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B125 Writing Science
How does scientific research make its way out of the lab? Science translates from research experience to journals written for the expert and is often translated again for more general audiences—appearing in venues such as newspapers, essays and memoirs. What is gained and what is lost when science is translated? This is a half-semester, half-credit course. Crosslisting(s): ARTW-B125 Units: 0.5 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B206 The Science of Renewable Energy
In this course the chemistry and physics of renewable energy, including solar, wind, geothermal and others, will be explored. Methodologies for energy storage will also be discussed. Quantitative tools will be developed to enable students to make effective and accurate comparisons between various types of energy generation processes. Prerequisites: completion of CHEM 103 and CHEM 104 with merit grades in both, or permission of instructor. Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Goldsmith,J. (Fall 2012)

CHEM B211 Organic Chemistry I
An introduction to the principles of organic chemistry, including synthetic and spectroscopic techniques. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory five hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 104 with a grade of at least 2.0. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Nerz-Stormes,M., Malachowski,B., Schmink,J. (Fall 2012)

CHEM B212 Organic Chemistry II
A continuation of CHEM 211 with an exploration of complex chemical reactions and syntheses utilizing structure-reactivity principles. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory five hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 211 with a grade of at least 2.0. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Nerz-Stormes,M., Malachowski,B. (Spring 2013)

CHEM B221 Physical Chemistry I
Introduction to quantum theory and spectroscopy. Atomic and molecular structure; molecular modeling;
CHEM B222 Physical Chemistry II
Modern thermodynamics, with application to phase equilibria, interfacial phenomena and chemical equilibria; statistical mechanics; chemical dynamics. Kinetic theory of gases; chemical kinetics. Lecture three hours. Prerequisites: CHEM 104, PHYS 122 or 102 and MATH 201. May be taken concurrently with CHEM 212 and PHYS 122 or 102.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Goldsmith,J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B231 Inorganic Chemistry
Bonding theory; structures and properties of ionic solids; symmetry; crystal field theory; structures, spectroscopy, stereochemistry, reactions and reaction mechanisms of coordination compounds; acid-base concepts; descriptive chemistry of main group elements. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Burgmayer,S.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B242 Biological Chemistry
The structure, chemistry and function of amino acids, proteins, lipids, polysaccharides and nucleic acids; enzyme kinetics; metabolic relationships of carbohydrates, lipids and amino acids, and the control of various pathways; protein synthesis. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): White,S.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B251 Research Methodology in Chemistry I
This laboratory course integrates advanced concepts in chemistry from biological, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry. Students gain experience in the use of departmental research instruments and in scientific literature searches, quantitative data analysis, record-keeping and writing. Prerequisite: CHEM B212. Co-
Requisite: CHEM B221 or B231 or B242.
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Burgmayer,S., White,S.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B252 Research Methodology II
This laboratory course integrates advanced concepts in chemistry from biological, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry. Students will gain experience in the use of departmental research instruments and in scientific literature searches, quantitative data analysis, record-keeping, and writing. Course Prerequisites: CHEM B212. Course Co-requisites: CHEM B222 or CHEM B231 or CHEM B242
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Schmink,J., Goldsmith,J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B311 Advanced Organic Chemistry
A survey of the methods and concepts used in the synthesis of complex organic molecules. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: CHEM 212 and 222.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B312 Advanced Organic Chemistry
Principles of physical organic chemistry with emphasis on reaction mechanisms, reactive intermediates, stereochemistry, and qualitative molecular orbital theory reasoning. Prerequisites: a standard two-semester course in organic chemistry (such as BMC Chemistry 211/212), and some coursework in physical chemistry. Prerequisites: CHEM 212 and 222.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Schmink,J.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B321 Advanced Physical Chemistry
Topics vary. Prerequisites: CHEM 221 and 222 or permission of the instructor. Lecture/seminar three hours per week.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Francl,M.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B332 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry
A survey of metals in biology illustrating structural, enzymatic and pharmaceutical applications of transition metals in biological chemistry and including discussion of structural themes and bonding, reaction types, and catalysis. Lecture three hours per week. Prerequisites:
CHEM 231 and 242 or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B345 Advanced Biological Chemistry
This is a topics course. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): White, S.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B350 Selected Topics in Current Chemical Research
A combination lecture/seminar course on the physical, structural, chemical, photochemical, mechanistic and spectroscopic properties of novel organic compounds, including oral presentations by students on very recently published research articles. Lecture three hours a week.
Prerequisites: CHEM 211-212, CHEM 221-222, and any 300/500 level course in organic, physical, inorganic or biological chemistry.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Burgmayer, S., Schmink, J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B398 Senior Seminar
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Francl, M., Burgmayer, S., Nerz-Stormes, M., White, S., Malachowski, B., Porello, S., Goldsmith, J., Schmink, J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B399 Senior Seminar
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Mallory, F., Francl, M., Burgmayer, S., Nerz-Stormes, M., White, S., Malachowski, B., Porello, S., Goldsmith, J., Schmink, J., Goldsmith, J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B403 Supervised Research
Many individual research projects are available, each under the supervision of a member of the faculty. Laboratory at least 10 hours a week. Oral or written presentations are required at the end of each semester.
Prerequisite: permission of faculty supervisor.
Units: 0.5, 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

CHEM B511 Advanced Organic Chemistry I
A survey of the methods and concepts used in the synthesis of complex organic molecules. Lecture three hours a week.
Prerequisites: CHEM 212 and 222.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B512 Advanced Organic Chemistry
Principles of physical organic chemistry with emphasis on reaction mechanisms, reactive intermediates, stereochemistry, and qualitative molecular orbital theory reasoning. Prerequisites: a standard two-semester course in organic chemistry (such as BMC Chemistry 211/212), and some coursework in physical chemistry.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Schmink, J.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B515 Topics in Physical Organic Chemistry
A survey of topics related to drug discovery including lead discovery, target interactions, structural optimization, drug metabolism and drug synthesis. The course will engage in an advanced treatment of these topics with particular attention to an understanding of drug design and development on the molecular level. Case studies will be used to illustrate the application of these principles. Discussions may include OxyContin and related opiate analgesics; aspirin and related NSAIDs; penicillin and other antibacterial agents; Tamiflu and related anti-virals; Alzheimer’s disease drugs; and anti-depressants. Prerequisites: CHE 212 or the equivalent
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B521 Advanced Physical Chemistry
Quantum mechanics and its application to problems in chemistry. Topics will include molecular orbital theory, density functional theory. Readings and problem sets will be supplemented with material from the current research literature. Students will gain experience with programming in Mathematica.
Prerequisites: CHEM 221 and 222 or permission of the instructor. Lecture/seminar three hours per week.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Francl, M.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B532 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry
A survey of metals in biology illustrating structural, enzymatic and pharmaceutical applications of transition metals in biological chemistry and including discussion of structural themes and bonding, reaction types, and catalysis. Lecture three hours per week.
Prerequisites: CHEM 231 and 242 or permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B534 Organometallic Chemistry
Fundamental concepts in organometallic chemistry, including structure and bonding, reaction types, and catalysis, and applications to current problems in organic synthesis. Lecture three hours a week. Course is open to graduate students and those undergraduates with CHEB231 or permission from the instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B535 Inorganic Seminar: Group Theory
Fundamental concepts of mathematical groups, their derivation and their application to problems in bonding, spectroscopy, and chemical reactivity.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Burgmayer, S.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B545 Advanced Biological Chemistry
During the first part of the semester, metabolic pathways not covered in CH. 242 will be covered. Biosynthesis and breakdown of carbohydrates, fats, amino acids, and other molecules will be discussed. Current literature about obesity, diabetes, and metabolic diseases will be discussed in a seminar format. Students will have problem sets as well as written and oral presentations.
Pre-requisite: Any course in Biochemistry.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): White, S.
(Fall 2012)

CHEM B550 Selected Topics in Chemistry
A combination lecture/seminar course on physical, structural and spectroscopic properties of organic compounds, including oral presentations by students on very recently published research articles.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Burgmayer, S., Schmink, J.
(Spring 2013)

CHEM B701 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

CHILD AND FAMILY STUDIES MINOR

Students may complete a Child and Family Studies minor as an adjunct to any major at Bryn Mawr or Haverford, pending approval of the student’s coursework plan by the Child and Family Studies adviser in the student’s major department.

Steering Committee
Marissa Golden, Associate Professor of Political Science on the Joan Coward Chair in Political Economics
Philip Kilbride, Professor of Anthropology
Alice Lesnick, Director and Term Professor in the Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program, and Assistant Professor, Child and Family Studies Program
Mary Osirim, Dean of Graduate Studies and Professor of Sociology
Leslie Rescorla, Professor of Psychology on the Class of 1897 Professorship of Science, and Director of Child Study Institute
Janet Shapiro, Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research

The Child and Family Studies (CFS) minor provides a curricular mechanism for inter-disciplinary work focused on the contributions of biological, familial, psychological, socioeconomic, political, and educational factors to child and family well-being. The minor will not only addresses the life stages and cultural contexts of infancy through adolescence but also includes issues of parenting; child and family well-being; gender; schooling and informal education; risk and resilience; and the representation, and the voice of children in society and culture.

General inquiries concerning the minor should go to the CFS Director Alice Lesnick (alesnickl@brynmawr.edu). Specific questions can be addressed to the adviser for the CFS minor in the student’s major department: Leslie Rescorla (Psychology), Marissa Golden (Political Science), Philip Kilbride (Anthropology), and Mary Osirim (Sociology). Students in other departments wishing to enroll in the CFS minor should confer with Leslie Rescorla so that a departmental adviser can be selected.

Requirements for the Child and Family Studies Minor
The minor comprises six courses: one gateway course (PSYCH 206 Developmental Psychology, PSYCH 203 Educational Psychology, EDUC 200 Critical Issues in Education, or SOCL B201 Study of Gender in Society), plus five additional courses, at least two of which must be outside of the major department and at least one of which must be at the 300 level. Advanced Haverford and Swarthmore courses typically taken by juniors and seniors that are more specific than introductory and survey courses will count as 300 level courses. No more than two courses may be double-counted with each major, minor, or other degree credential.

Students will craft a pathway in the minor as they engage in course selection through ongoing discussions with their adviser. Sample pathways might include: political science/child and family law; sociology/educational policy; child and family mental health; depictions of children/families in literature and film; child and family public health issues; social work/child welfare; anthropology/cross-cultural child and family issues; gender issues affecting children and families; social justice/diversity issues affecting children and families; economic factors affecting children and families.

The minor also requires participation in at least one semester or summer of volunteer, practicum, praxis, community-based work study, or internship experience related to Child and Family Studies, with reflections to be recorded in a journal, which will be part of the student’s portfolio. Students are expected to discuss their placement choices with their minor adviser. For further information about field-based experiences, consult the Child and Family Studies website: www.brynmawr.edu/tricochildfamily/minor.html.

To foster the inter-disciplinary nature of child and family studies, students enrolled in the minor must also complete the following requirements:

1. Attendance at a minimum of two CFS-related formal events per year, for which reflections/comments will be recorded in a journal, which will be part of the student's portfolio.

2. Attendance four times per semester for two semesters at a "brown bag" 1-hour seminar, comprised of individual workshop/discussion sessions facilitated by a range of individuals, including the students themselves, affiliated faculty and staff, and guest speakers.

3. Participation during senior year in an annual CFS Poster Session during which students will share highlights of their CFS campus and field-based experiences.

Courses that can be counted toward the Child and Family Studies Minor (Note: it is important to check the Trico course guide for updated course information. In some cases, courses relevant to the CFS minor will have changed, or been added. Students should explore freely and consult with their adviser on curricular choices).

CLASSICAL AND NEAR EASTERN ARCHAEOLOGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology.

Faculty

Mehmet-Ali Ataç, Associate Professor
A. A. Donohue, Professor and Chair
Astrid Lindenlauf, Assistant Professor
Peter Magee, Associate Professor
James Wright, Professor (on leave semesters I and II)

The curriculum of the department focuses on the cultures of the Mediterranean regions and the Near East in antiquity. Courses treat aspects of society and material culture of these civilizations as well as issues of theory, method and interpretation.

Major Requirements

The major requires a minimum of 10 and 1/2 courses. Core requirements are two 100-level courses distributed between the ancient Near East and Egypt and ancient Greece and Rome (of which two half-credit courses, e.g., ARCH 105, 106, 130, may count as one), the half-credit course ARCH 135 (Archaeological Fieldwork and Methods), and two semesters of the senior conference. At least two upper-level courses should be distributed between classical and Near Eastern subjects and one other should concern method and theory in archaeology (ARCH 330 or ANTH 220). Additional requirements are determined in consultation with the major adviser. Additional coursework in allied subjects may be presented for major credit but must be approved in writing by the major adviser; such courses are offered in the Departments of Anthropology, Geology, Greek, Latin and Classical Studies, Growth and Structure of Cities, and History of Art. In consultation with the major adviser, one course taken in study abroad may be accepted for credit in the major.

Minor Requirements

The minor requires six courses. Core requirements are two 100-level courses distributed between the ancient Near East and Egypt and ancient Greece and Rome (of which two half-credit courses, e.g., ARCH 105, 106 or 130, may count as one) in addition to four other courses selected in consultation with the major adviser.

Concentration in Geoarchaeology

The geoarchaeology concentration allows students majoring in anthropology, archaeology or geology to explore the connections among these fields with respect to how our human ancestors interacted with past environments, and how traces of human behavior are preserved in the physical environment. In geology, the geoarchaeology concentration consists of 13 courses: GEOL 101 or 102 or 103; 202, 203, 204, 205, 270, and 399; two semesters of chemistry; two semesters of math, statistics or computational methods; ARCH 101, ANTH 101, or ARCH 135 (a half-credit laboratory course in archaeological fieldwork methods); and one 200- or 300-level elective from among current offerings in Anthropology or Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. For course planning advice, consult with Don Barber (Geology), Rick Davis (Anthropology) or Peter Magee (Archaeology).

Honors

Honors are granted on the basis of academic performance as demonstrated by a cumulative average of 3.5 or better in the major.

Independent Research

Majors who wish to undertake independent research, especially for researching and writing a lengthy paper, must arrange with a professor who is willing to advise them, and consult with the major adviser. Such research normally would be conducted by seniors as a unit of supervised work (403), which must be approved by the advising professor before registration. Students planning to do such research should consult with professors in the department in the spring semester of their junior year or no later than the beginning of the fall semester of the senior year.

Languages

Majors who contemplate graduate study in classical fields should incorporate Greek and Latin into their programs. Those who plan graduate work in Near Eastern or Egyptian may take appropriate ancient languages at the University of Pennsylvania, such as Middle Egyptian, Akkadian and Sumerian. Any student considering graduate study in classical and Near Eastern archaeology should study French and German.

Study Abroad

A semester of study abroad is encouraged if the program is approved by the department. Students are encouraged to consult with faculty, since some programs the department may approve may not yet be listed at the Office of International Programs. Students who seek major credit for courses taken abroad must consult with the major adviser before enrolling in a program. Major credit is given on a case-by-case basis after review of the syllabus, work submitted for a grade, and a transcript. Credit will not be given for more than one course and not for courses that are ordinarily offered by the department.

Fieldwork

The department strongly encourages students to gain fieldwork experience and assists them in getting positions on field projects in North America and overseas. The department is undertaking several field projects in which undergraduates may be invited to participate.

Professor Peter Magee conducts a for-credit field school at Muweilah, al-Hamriya and Tell Abraq in the United Arab Emirates. Undergraduate and graduate students in archaeology participate in this project, which usually takes place during the winter break. He sends an announcement about how to apply for a position in the fall of each year. Students who participate for credit sign up for a 403 independent study with Professor Magee.

Professor James Wright directs the Nemea Valley Archaeological Project in Greece, which has finished fieldwork and is currently under publication.

The department is collaborating with Professor Asli Özyar (Ph.D., Bryn Mawr College, 1991) of Bogazici University in Istanbul, in the Tarsus Regional Project, Turkey, sponsored by Bogazici University. This is a long-term investigation of the mound at Gözlükule at Tarsus, in Cilicia, which was first excavated by Hetty Goldman, A.B. 1903. Both undergraduate and graduate students in archaeology participate in this project and an announcement inviting applications is sent to all majors in the fall of each year.

Museum Internships

The department is awarded annually two internships by the Nicholas P. Goulandris Foundation for students to work for a month in the Museum of Cycladic Art in Athens, Greece, with an additional two weeks at an archaeological field project. This is an all-expense paid internship for which students may submit an application. An announcement inviting applications is sent by the undergraduate adviser in the late fall or beginning of the second semester.

Opportunities to work with the College's archaeology collections are available throughout the academic year and during the summer. Students wishing to work with the collections should consult Marianne Weldon, Collections Manager for Art and Artifacts.

Funding for Internships and Special Projects

The department has two funds that support students for internships and special projects of their own design. One, the Elisabeth Packard Fund for internships in Art History and Archaeology is shared with the Department of the History of Art, while the other is the Anna Lerah Keys Memorial Prize. Any declared major may apply for these funds. An announcement calling for applications is sent to majors in the spring, and the awards are made at the annual college awards ceremony in April.

COURSES

ARCH B101 Introduction to Egyptian and Near Eastern Archaeology: Egypt and Mesopotamia

A historical survey of the archaeology and art of the ancient Near East and Egypt.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç, M.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B102 Introduction to Classical Archaeology

A historical survey of the archaeology and art of Greece, Etruria, and Rome.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donohue, A.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B104 Archaeology of Agricultural and Urban Revolutions

This course examines the archaeology of the two most fundamental changes that have occurred in human society in the last 12,000 years, agriculture and urbanism, and we explore these in Egypt and the Near East as far as India. We also explore those societies that did not experience these changes.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
ARCH B105 Introduction to Greek Art and Archaeology

This course examines the visual arts and material culture of the ancient Greek world, and reviews past and present approaches to archaeological and art historical research in the area. We will focus on the time span of roughly 1,000 years from the so-called Dark Age through the Archaic, Classical, and Hellenistic periods, circa 1100 to 31 B.C.E. Proceeding more or less in chronological order, we will explore major excavated sites, such as Athens, Delphi, Olympia, and Pergamon, and discuss key examples of architecture, sculpture, painting, mosaics, and portable arts as documents of social, religious, and cultural history. This is a half-semester, half-credit course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B106 Introduction to Roman Art and Archaeology

From its emergence in central Italy in the 8th century B.C.E., Rome developed into an empire extending from western Europe through the Near East. This course surveys Roman material culture through the 4th century C.E. Emphasis is on the interpretation of monuments and artifacts in historical and social context. This is a half-semester, half-credit course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B110 The World Through Classical Eyes

A survey of the ways in which the ancient Greeks and Romans perceived and constructed their physical and social world. The evidence of ancient texts and monuments will form the basis for exploring such subjects as cosmology, geography, travel and commerce, ancient ethnography and anthropology, the idea of natural and artificial wonders, and the self-definition of the classical cultures in the context of the oikoumene, the "inhabited world."

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B110; CSTS-B110
Units: 1.0

ARCH B115 Classical Art

An introduction to the visual arts of ancient Greece and Rome from the Bronze Age through Late Imperial times (circa 3000 B.C.E. to 300 C.E.). Major categories of artistic production are examined in historical and social context, including interactions with neighboring areas and cultures; methodological and interpretive issues are highlighted.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B115; CSTS-B115; HART-B115
Units: 1.0

ARCH B125 Classical Myths in Art and in the Sky

This course explores Greek and Roman mythology using an archaeological and art historical approach, focusing on the ways in which the traditional tales of the gods and heroes were depicted, developed and transmitted in the visual arts such as vase painting and architectural sculpture, as well as projected into the natural environment.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B125; HART-B125
Units: 1.0

ARCH B130 The Bronze Age

This short course is about the notion of the Bronze Age and its archaeological manifestation in the Aegean, Eastern Mediterranean and the Near East. It explores the notion that the discovery of metals and the development of metallurgy spurred the formation of "metal economies," which led to the expansion of civilizations in the 3rd and 2nd millennia B.C.E. This is a half-semester, half-credit course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B135 Focus: Archaeological Fieldwork and Methods

The fundamentals of the practice of archaeology through readings and case studies and participatory demonstrations. Case studies will be drawn from the archives of the Nemea Valley Archaeological Project and material in the College's collections. Each week there will be a 2-hour laboratory that will introduce students to a variety of fieldwork methods and forms of analysis. This is a half semester Focus course.

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Geoarchaeology
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Magee, P.
(Fall 2012)
ARCH B136 Focus: Archaeological Science
This is a half-semester Focus course offered as an introduction to the role of science in the contemporary practice of archaeology. Although it will often be sequential to another Focus course, ARCH 135: Archaeological Fieldwork and Methods, it is a stand alone offering that will be of interest to a broad range of students. Topics covered in the course will include: radiometric dating (especially 14c), palaeo-environmental reconstruction, sedimentary analysis and geochemical provenience methodologies.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Geoarchaeology
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Magee, P.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B140 The Visual Culture of the Ancient Near East
The visual culture of ancient Mesopotamia, a region with its heartland in modern Iraq, from the first city to the fall of Babylon in 539 BCE, includes images designed to gain favor of the gods, promote royal achievements and adorn the deceased on the journey to the afterlife. Particular emphasis placed on the visual analysis of royal and elite artistic production of architecture, sculpture and cylinder seals.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HART-B140
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B203 Ancient Greek Cities and Sanctuaries
A study of the development of the Greek city-states and sanctuaries. Archaeological evidence is surveyed in its historic context. The political formation of the city-state and the role of religion is presented, and the political, economic, and religious institutions of the city-states are explored in their urban settings. The city-state is considered as a particular political economy of the Mediterranean and in comparison to the utility of the concept of city-state in other cultures.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B203
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B205 Greek Sculpture
One of the best preserved categories of evidence for ancient Greek culture is sculpture. The Greeks devoted immense resources to producing sculpture that encompassed many materials and forms and served a variety of important social functions. This course examines sculptural production in Greece and neighboring lands from the Bronze Age through the fourth century B.C.E. with special attention to style, iconography and historical and social context.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HART-B204
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B206 Hellenistic and Roman Sculpture
This course surveys the sculpture produced from the fourth century B.C.E. to the fourth century C.E., the period beginning with the death of Alexander the Great that saw the transformation of the classical world through the rise of Rome and the establishment and expansion of the Roman Empire. Style, iconography, and production will be studied in the contexts of the culture of the Hellenistic kingdoms, the Roman appropriation of Greek culture, the role of art in Roman society, and the significance of Hellenistic and Roman sculpture in the post-antique classical tradition.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HART-B206
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donohue, A.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B209 Aegean Archaeology
The prehistoric cultures of the Aegean area beginning with the origins of agriculture (circa 6500 B.C.E.) and ending with the end of the Late Bronze Age (circa 1100 B.C.E.) with a focus on the palaces of Crete (Knossos, Phaistos, Mallia), Troy, the Aegean Islands (Akrotiri on Thera), and Mycenaean Greece (Mycenae, Tiryns, Thebes, Athens, Pylos).
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B216 Hittite Archaeology
A survey of the art and archaeology of Hittite Anatolia from the Assyrian Trade Colony period through the Iron Age Syro-Hittite or Late Hittite cultures. The Early Bronze Age background and the interconnections with the Syro-Mesopotamian world are also addressed.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç, M.
(Spring 2013)
ARCH B220 Araby the Blest: The Archaeology of the Arabian Peninsula from 3000 to 300 B.C.E.
A survey of the archaeology and history of the Arabian peninsula focusing on urban forms, transport, and cultures in the Arabian peninsula and Gulf and their interactions with the world from the rise of states in Mesopotamia down to the time of Alexander the Great.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Magee,P.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B226 Archaeology of Anatolia
One of the cradles of civilization, Anatolia witnessed the rise and fall of many cultures and states throughout its ancient history. This course approaches the ancient material remains of pre-classical Anatolia from the perspective of Near Eastern archaeology, examining the art, artifacts, architecture, cities, and settlements of this land from the Neolithic through the Lydian periods. Some emphasis will be on the Late Bronze Age and the Iron Age, especially phases of Hittite and Assyrian imperialism, Late Hittite states, Phrygia, and the Urartu.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B230 Archaeology and History of Ancient Egypt
A survey of the art and archaeology of ancient Egypt from the Pre-Dynastic through the Graeco-Roman periods, with special emphasis on Egypt's Empire and its outside connections, especially the Aegean and Near Eastern worlds.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B231 Medicine, Magic and Miracles in the Middle Ages
An exploration of the history of health and disease, healing and medical practice in the medieval period, emphasizing Dar as-Islam and the Latin Christian West. Using methods from intellectual cultural and social history, themes include: theories of health and disease; varieties of medical practice; rationales of various practices; views of the body and disease; medical practitioners. No previous course work in medieval history is required.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B231; CSTS-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Truitt,E.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B234 Picturing Women in Classical Antiquity
We investigate representations of women in different media in ancient Greece and Rome, examining the cultural stereotypes of women and the gender roles that they reinforce. We also study the daily life of women in the ancient world, the objects that they were associated with in life and death and their occupations.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B234; HART-B234
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Lindenlauf,A.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B236 The Archaeology of Syria
Recent excavations in Syria have contributed important data to the major issues in ancient Near Eastern archaeology, including the onset of agriculture, the emergence of social stratification, and the rise of urbanism and empire. From the Palaeolithic period to the end of the Iron Age (circa 16,000-300 B.C.E.), this course will present the material culture of Syria and its parallels in neighboring regions.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B240 Archaeology and History of Ancient Mesopotamia
A survey of the material culture of ancient Mesopotamia, modern Iraq, from the earliest phases of state formation (circa 3500 B.C.E.) through the Achaemenid Persian occupation of the Near East (circa 331 B.C.E.). Emphasis will be on art, artifacts, monuments, religion, kingship, and the cuneiform tradition. The survival of the cultural legacy of Mesopotamia into later ancient and Islamic traditions will also be addressed.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç,M.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
A survey of the history, material culture, political and religious ideologies of, and interactions among, the five great empires of the ancient Near East of the second and first millennia B.C.E.: New Kingdom Egypt, the Hittite Empire in Anatolia, the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires in Mesopotamia, and the Persian Empire in Iran.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B244; HIST-B244; POLS-B244
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B268 Greek and Roman Architecture
A survey of Greek and Roman architecture taking into account building materials, construction techniques, various forms of architecture in their urban and religious settings from an historical and social perspective.
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B268; HART-B268
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B270 Geoarchaeology
Societies in the past depended on our human ancestors’ ability to interact with their environment. Geoarchaeology analyzes these interactions by combining archaeological and geological techniques to document human behavior while also reconstructing the past environment. Course meets twice weekly for lecture, discussion of readings and hands on exercises. Prerequisite: one course in anthropology, archaeology or geology.
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Geoarchaeology
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B270; GEOL-B270
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber,D., Magee,P.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B291 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
This course examines the distribution of water throughout the Middle East and Mediterranean and the archaeology of water exploitation and management over the last 12,000 years. Recent anthropological models that challenge the concept of “hydraulic civilization” are emphasized as are contemporary attempts to revive traditional and ancient technologies to preserve and better manage modern water resources.
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Geoarchaeology
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B303 Classical Bodies
An examination of the conceptions of the human body evidenced in Greek and Roman art and literature, with emphasis on issues that have persisted in the Western tradition. Topics include the fashioning of concepts of male and female standards of beauty and their implications; conventions of visual representation; the nude; clothing and its symbolism; the athletic ideal; physiognomy; medical theory and practice; the visible expression of character and emotions; and the formulation of the “classical ideal” in antiquity and later times.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): COML-B313; HART-B305
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B305 Topics in Ancient Athens
This course is an introduction to the Acropolis of Athens, perhaps the best-known acropolis in the world. We will explore its history, understand and interpret specific monuments and their sculptural decoration and engage in more recent discussions, for instance, on the role the Acropolis played in shaping the Hellenic identity.
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B305
ARCH B308 Ceramic Analysis
Pottery is a fundamental means of establishing the relative chronology of archaeological sites and of understanding past human behavior. Included are theories, methods and techniques of pottery description, analysis and interpretation. Topics include typology, seriation, ceramic characterization, production, function, exchange and the use of computers in pottery analysis. Laboratory work on pottery in the department collections. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Counts toward: Geoarchaeology
Units: 1.0

ARCH B312 The Eastern Mediterranean in the Late Bronze Age
This course will cover economic and cultural interactions among the Levant, Cyprus, Anatolia, Egypt, and the Aegean. We will study the politics and powers in the Eastern Mediterranean circa 1500 to 1100 B.C.E.—the Egyptian and Hittite empires, the Mitanni, Ugarit and Syro-Palestinian polities, Cyprus and the Mycenaean. Topics include: metallurgy, mercantile systems, seafaring, the Sea Peoples, systems collapse, and interpretive issues when working with archaeological and historical sources.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B316 Trade and Transport in the Ancient World
Issues of trade, commerce and production of export goods are addressed with regard to the Bronze Age and Iron Age cultures of Mesopotamia, Arabia, Iran and south Asia. Crucial to these systems is the development of means of transport via maritime routes and on land. Archaeological evidence for traded goods and shipwrecks is used to map the emergence of sea-faring across the Indian Ocean and Gulf while bio-archaeological data is employed to examine the transformative role that Bactrian and Dromedary camels played in ancient trade and transport.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B316
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Magee,P.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B323 On the trail of Alexander the Great
This course explores the world of Alexander the Great and the Hellenistic world on the basis of a variety of sources. Particular focus is put on the material culture of Macedonia and Alexander’s campaigns that changed forever the nature and boundaries of the Greek world.
Prerequisite: a course in classical archaeology or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B324 Roman Architecture
The course gives special attention to the architecture and topography of ancient Rome from the origins of the city to the later Roman Empire. At the same time, general issues in architecture and planning with particular reference to Italy and the provinces from republic to empire are also addressed. These include public and domestic spaces, structures, settings and uses, urban infrastructure, the relationship of towns and territories, “suburban” and working villas, and frontier settlements. Prerequisite: ARCH 102.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B324; HART-B324
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Scott,R.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced course in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; BIOL-B328; GEOL-B328
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B330 Archaeological Theory and Method
A history of archaeology from the Renaissance to the present with attention to the formation of theory and method; special units on gender and feminist theory and post-modern approaches.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B330
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B352 Ancient Egyptian Architecture: The New Kingdom
A proseminar that concentrates on the principles of ancient Egyptian monumental architecture with an emphasis on the New Kingdom. The primary focus of the course is temple design, but palaces, representative settlements, and examples of Graeco-Roman temples of the Nile Valley will also be dealt with.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç,M.
(Spring 2013)
ARCH B355 Archaeology of the Achaemenid Empire in Cross Cultural Context

The Achaemenid Empire (538-332 B.C.E.) ruled the largest landmass of any of the ancient Near Eastern Empires. Attempts by archaeologists to understand the manner in which authority was asserted over this area have suffered from a reliance on biased historical sources, largely from the Classical World. This course uses archaeological data to re-examine the Achaemenid Empire in a global context. This data is examined through a methodological framework that emphasizes comparative studies of ancient and more recent Empires in Africa, the Americas, South Asia, and the Mediterranean. Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B398 Senior Seminar

A weekly seminar on topics to be determined with assigned readings and oral and written reports. Suggested topic: Landscapes in the Mediterranean. Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Lindenlauf,A.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B399 Senior Seminar

A weekly seminar on common topics with assigned readings and oral and written reports. Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donohue,A.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B403 Supervised Work

Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ARCH B501 Greek Vase Painting

This course is an introduction to the world of painted pottery of the Greek world, from the 10th to the 4th centuries B.C.E. We will interpret these images from an art-historical and socio-economic viewpoint. We will also explore how these images relate to other forms of representation. Prerequisite: one course in classical archaeology or permission of instructor. Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Lindenlauf,A.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B505 Topics in Ancient Athens

This is a topics course. Topics vary. Previous topics include: Monuments and Art, Acropolis. Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Lindenlauf,A.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B508 Ceramic Analysis

Pottery is fundamental for establishing the relative chronology of archaeological sites and past human behavior. Included are theories, methods and techniques of pottery description, analysis, and interpretation. Topics are typology, seriation, ceramic characterization, production, function, exchange and the use of computers in pottery analysis. Laboratory in the collections. Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B516 Trade and Transport in the Ancient World

Issues of trade, commerce and production of export goods are addressed with regard to the Bronze Age and Iron Age cultures of Mesopotamia, Arabia, Iran and south Asia. Crucial to these systems is the development of means of transport via maritime routes and on land. Archaeological evidence for traded goods and shipwrecks is used to map the emergence of sea-faring across the Indian Ocean and Gulf while bio-archaeological data is employed to examine the transformative role that Bactrian and Dromedary camels played in ancient trade and transport. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Magee,P.
(Fall 2012)

ARCH B530 Archaeological Theory and Method

A history of archaeology from the Renaissance to the present with attention to the formation of theory and method; special units on gender and feminist theory and post-modern approaches. Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B552 Egyptian Architecture: New Kingdom

A proseminar that concentrates on the principles of ancient Egyptian monumental architecture with an emphasis on the New Kingdom. The primary focus of the course is temple design, but palaces, representative settlements, and examples of Graeco-Roman temples of the Nile Valley will also be dealt with. Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ataç,M.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B570 Geoarchaeology

Societies in the past depended on our human ancestors’ ability to interact with their environment. Geoarchaeology analyzes these interactions by combining archaeological and geological techniques to document human behavior while also reconstructing the past environment. Course meets twice weekly for lecture, discussion of readings and hands on exercises. Prerequisite: one course in anthropology, archaeology or geology.

ARCH B605 The Concept of Style
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B622 Classical Conception of the Human Figure
The representation of the human figure is so central to the art of the West that it is easy to accept it as a natural and inevitable concern and to overlook the problems it raises. This seminar will focus on some of the fundamental artistic, cultural, and ideological issues surrounding the conceptions of the human form in classically based representations. The material to be considered will range from the art and literature of classical antiquity through contemporary critical approaches. Post-antique, non-classical, and non-Western traditions perspectives are welcome. Proposed topics include: knowledge of the human body (including medical texts); individual and type; physiognomic analysis, proportions and canons; the ideal; representations of mental states; representation of movement (including drama and dance); anthropomorphism and the divine; masks; costumes, and alterations.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B623 On the trail of Alexander the Great
This course explores the world of Alexander the Great and the Hellenistic world based on a variety of sources. Particular focus is put on the material culture of Macedonia and Alexander’s campaigns that changed forever the nature and boundaries of the Greek world. Prerequisite: a course in Classical Archaeology or permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B625 Historiography of Ancient Art
Our understanding of the material culture of classical antiquity and related civilizations, including the post-antique West, rests on information and interpretive frameworks derived from ancient texts. This pro-seminar explores how the history of ancient art has been and continues to be written, with emphasis on the ancient texts, their historical and intellectual contexts, and the uses to which they have been put in a variety of historical formulations from antiquity through modern times.

Travis Zadeh, Assistant Professor of Religion

The study of Comparative Literature situates literature in an international perspective; examines transnational cultural connections through literary history, literary criticism, critical theory, and poetics; and works toward a nuanced understanding of the socio-cultural functions of literature. The structure of the program allows students to engage in such diverse areas of critical inquiry as East-West cultural relations, global censorship and human rights, diaspora studies, film history and theory, and aesthetics of modernity. Therefore, interpretive methods from other disciplines also play a role in the comparative study of literature; among these are anthropology, ethnology, philosophy, history, history of... art, religion, classical studies, area studies (Africana studies, Middle Eastern studies, Latin American studies, among others), gender studies, and other arts.

Comparative Literature students are required to have a reading knowledge of at least one foreign language adequate to the advanced study of literature in that language. Some Comparative Literature courses may require reading knowledge of a foreign language as a prerequisite for admission. Students considering graduate work in Comparative Literature should also study a second foreign language.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the Comparative Literature major are COML 200: Introduction to Comparative Literature (normally taken in the sophomore year); six literature courses at the 200 level or above, balanced between two literature departments (of which English may be one)*—at least two of these (one in each national literature) must be at the 300 level or above, or its equivalent as approved in advance by the adviser; one course in critical theory; two electives; COML 398: Theories and Methods in Comparative Literature and 399: Senior Seminar in Comparative Literature.

*In the case of languages for which literature courses in the original language are not readily accessible, students may on occasion be allowed to count a course taught in English translation for which they do at least part of the reading in the original language.

Honors

Students who, in the judgment of the advisory committee, have done distinguished work in their courses and in the senior seminar will be considered for departmental honors.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor are COML 200 and 398, plus four additional courses—two each in the literature of two languages. At least one of these four courses must be at the 300 level. Students who minor in comparative literature are encouraged to choose their national literature courses from those with a comparative component.

Both majors and minors are encouraged to work closely with the chairs and members of the advisory committee in shaping their programs.

NOTE: Please note that not all topics courses (B223, 299, 321, 325, 326, 340) count toward COML elective requirements. See adviser.

COURSES

COML B200 Introduction to Comparative Literature

This course explores a variety of approaches to the comparative or transnational study of literature through readings of several kinds: texts from different cultural traditions that raise questions about the nature and function of storytelling and literature; texts that comment on, respond to, and rewrite other texts from different historical periods and nations; translations; and readings in critical theory.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Quintero, M.
(Spring 2013)

COML B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism

Designated theory course. An introduction to various methods of reading the literary text from the perspective of critical methods informed by philosophical ideas. In their quest for self-understanding and knowledge, literature and philosophy share similar forms of inquiry and imaginative modeling. Selected literary texts and critical essays focus on questions of language, translation, understanding, and identity in their relation to history, epistemology, ethics, and aesthetics. One of the main objectives of the course is to provide students with the critical tools necessary for an informed reading of texts.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B209; PHIL-B209
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B211 Primo Levi, the Holocaust and Its Aftermath

A consideration, through analysis and appreciation of his major works, of how the horrific experience of the Holocaust awakened in Primo Levi a growing awareness of his Jewish heritage and led him to become one of the dominant voices of that tragic historical event, as well as one of the most original new literary figures of post-World War II Italy. Always in relation to Levi and his works, attention will also be given to other Italian women writers whose works are also connected with the Holocaust.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): ITAL-B211; HEBR-B211
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B212 Borges y sus lectores

Primary emphasis on Borges and his poetics of reading; other writers are considered to illustrate the semiotics of texts, society, and traditions.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): SPAN-B211
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B213 Theory in Practice: Critical Discourses in the Humanities
An examination in English of leading theories of interpretation from Classical Tradition to Modern and Post-Modern Time.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ITAL-B213; ENGL-B213; FREN-B213; GERM-B213; HART-B213; PHIL-B253; RUSS-B253
Units: 1.0

COML B220 Writing the Self in the Middle Ages
What leads people to write about their lives? Do men and women present themselves differently? Do they think different issues are important? How do they claim authority for their thoughts and experiences? We shall address these questions, reading a wide range of autobiography from the Medieval period in the West, with a particular emphasis on women’s writing and on feminist critiques of autobiographical practice.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B220
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Conybeare,C.
(Fall 2012)

COML B222 Aesthetics: The Nature and Experience of Art
Here are some questions we will discuss in this course: What sort of thing is a work of art? Can criticism in the arts be objective? Do such cultural entities answer to more than one admissible interpretation? What is the role of a creator’s intentions in fixing upon admissible interpretations? What is the nature of aesthetic experience? What is creativity in the arts? Readings will be drawn from contemporary sources from the analytic and continental traditions, including John Dewey’s Art as Experience, and works in Gary Iseminger, ed., Intention and Interpretation. Prerequisite: One introductory course in philosophy.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B222
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B223 Topics In German Cultural Studies
This is a topic course. Course content varies.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Schlipphacke,H.
(Fall 2012)

COML B225 Censorship: Historical Contexts, Local Practices and Global Resonance
This course examines the ban on books and art in the US, Latin America, the Middle East, and Eastern Europe through a study of the historical, political, and sociocultural conditions of censorship practices and the rhetorical strategies writers and artists use to translate repression and trauma into idioms of resistance.
Prerequisite: EMLY B001 or a 100-level intensive writing course.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0

COML B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B231; ANTH-B231

Instructor(s): Seyhan,A.
(Spring 2013)

COML B234 Postcolonial Literature in English
This course will survey a broad range of novels and poems written while countries were breaking free of British colonial rule. Readings will also include cultural theorists interested in defining literary issues that arise from the postcolonial situation.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B234
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
COML B237 The Dictator Novel in the Americas
This course examines representations of dictatorship in Latin American and Latina/o novels. We will explore the relationship between narrative form and absolute power by analyzing the literary techniques writers use to contest authoritarianism. We will compare dictator novels from the United States, the Caribbean, Central America, and the Southern Cone. Prerequisite: only for students wishing to take the course for major/minor credit in SPAN is SPAN B200/B202.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B237; SPAN-B237
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B251 Romantic Prose Fiction
This seminar studies representative works of Romantic poetry’s "poor relation”—prose fiction. Readings include novels from England, France, Germany and Russia, such as Frankenstein, A Hero of Our Time, The Red and the Black, The Sorrows of Young Werther and Wuthering Heights, as well as short stories. Discussions include such topics as national varieties of Romanticism, the Romantic ideals of nature, love and the self, and the impact of the revolutionary era on art. Illustrative examples of Romantic painting and music are also considered. All readings and discussions in English.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B257 The Realist Novel Revisited
This seminar undertakes the study of a deceptively simple cultural and literary historical concept—realism—by closely reading well-known 19th-century novels by George Eliot, Gustave Flaubert, Theodor Fontane, Henry James, Stendhal, Leo Tolstoy and Ivan Turgenev, all of which have traditionally been placed within realism’s parameters. Critical essays exploring the nature of realism, either in general or in a particular author’s works, are also discussed. The ethical implications of the realist enterprise and, more broadly, the possible relations between art and life receive special scrutiny.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B245 Interdisciplinary Approaches to German Literature and Culture

COML B248 The Reception of Classics in the Hispanic World
A survey of the reception of Classical literature in the Spanish-speaking world. We read select literary works in translation, ranging from Renaissance Spain to contemporary Latin America, side-by-side with their classical models, to examine what is culturally unique about their choice of authors, themes, and adaptation of the material.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B248; SPAN-B248
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
plays and films that make use of classical material without being explicitly classical in plot or setting, we will discuss how Greek mythology is rewritten, re-assessed and appropriated for modern audiences and how the classical past continues to be culturally significant. In addition to literary-historical interpretation, particular attention will be paid to feminist theory, film and gender studies, and psychoanalysis.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

COML B266 Travel and Transgression
Examines ancient and medieval travel literature, exploring movement and cultural exchange, from otherworldly odysseys and religious pilgrimages to trade expeditions and explorations across the Atlantic.
Mercantile documents, maps, pilgrim’s logbooks, and theoretical and anthropological discussions of place, colonization, and identity-formation will supplement our literary analysis. Emphasizes how those of the Middle Ages understood encounters with “alien” cultures, symbolic representations of space, and the development of national identities, exploring their influence on contemporary debates surrounding racial, cultural, religious, and national boundaries.

COML B271 Literatura y delincuencia: explorando la novela picaresca
A study of the origins, development and transformation of the picaresque genre from its origins in 16th- and 17th-century Spain through the 21st century. Using texts, literature, painting, and film from Spain and Latin America, we will explore topics such as the construction of the (fictional) self, the poetics and politics of criminality, transgression in gender and class.

COML B274 From Myth to Modern Cinema: From Dionysus to the Silver Screen
Explores how contemporary film, which is, like Greek drama, a creative medium appealing to the entire demographic spectrum, looks back to the ancient origins. In addition to literary-historical interpretation, the course will involve various methodological approaches such as film and gender theory, psychoanalysis, and feminist theory. Current topic description: This course explores how contemporary film, a creative medium appealing to the entire demographic spectrum like Greek drama, looks back to the ancient origins.
Examining both films that are directly based on Greek critical theories. Readings in literature, philosophy, popular culture, and film will illustrate how theory enhances our understanding of the complexities of history, memory, identity, and the trials of modernity. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)

COML B310 Genres of Italian Popular Fiction in a Comparative Context
This course explores the Italian “giallo” (detective fiction), today one of the most successful literary genres among Italian readers and authors alike. Through a comparative perspective, the course will analyze not only the inter-relationship between this popular genre and “high literature,” but also the role of detective fiction as a mirror of social anxieties. In Spring 2011, ITAL B310 will be offered in English. Italian majors taking this course for Italian credit will be required to meet for an additional hour with the instructor and to do the readings and writing in Italian. Prerequisites: one literature course at the 200 level.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ITAL-B310
Units: 1.0

COML B312 Crimen y detectives en la narrativa hispánica contemporánea
An analysis of the rise of the hardboiled genre in contemporary Hispanic narrative and its contrast to classic detective fiction, as a context for understanding contemporary Spanish and Latin American culture. Discussion of pertinent theoretical implications and the social and political factors that contributed to the genre’s evolution and popularity.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): SPAN-B311
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B313 Classical Bodies
An examination of the conceptions of the human body evidenced in Greek and Roman art and literature, with emphasis on issues that have persisted in the Western tradition. Topics include the fashioning of concepts of male and female standards of beauty and their implications; conventions of visual representation; the nude; clothing and its symbolism; the athletic ideal; physiognomy; medical theory and practice; the visible expression of character and emotions; and the formulation of the “classical ideal” in antiquity and later times.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies

(Not Offered 2012-13)

COML B323 Culture and Interpretation

This course will pursue such questions as the following. For all objects of interpretation—including works of art, music, literature, persons or cultures—must there be a single right interpretation? If not, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? Does interpretation affect the nature or the number of an object of interpretation? Does the singularity or multiplicity of interpretations mandate such ontologies as realism or constructivism? Discussions will be based on contemporary readings.

COML B351 Medieval Encounters in Contemporary Fiction

Muslim, Christian and Jewish relations, particularly in the medieval period, have occupied a number of recent works of fiction in English and other languages. Why that subject has so captured the literary imagination and how individual authors treat it are the central issues the course aims to address. Selected works of fiction will serve as entry points into questions of how different religious communities interacted with and perceived one another before modern times. Another goal of the course is to make students think about how works of historical fiction serve to shape as well as to challenge current religious sensibilities.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0

COML B365 Erotica: Love and Art in Plato and Shakespeare

The course explores the relationship between love and art, "eros" and "poesis," through in-depth study of Plato's Phaedrus and Symposium, Shakespeare's As You Like It and Antony and Cleopatra, and essays by modern commentators (including David Halperin, Anne Carson, Martha Nussbaum, Marjorie Garber, and Stanley Cavell). We will also read Shakespeare's Sonnets and Romeo and Juliet.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B365; PHIL-B365; POLS-B365
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hedley,J., Salkever,S.

COML B375 Interpreting Mythology

The myths of the Greeks have provoked outrage and fascination, interpretation and retelling, censorship and elaboration, beginning with the Greeks themselves. We will see how some of these stories have been read and understood, recounted and revised, in various cultures and eras, from ancient tellings to modern movies. We will also explore some of the interpretive theories by which these tales have been understood, from ancient allegory to modern structural and semiotic theories.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B375
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
Students may complete a major or minor in Computer Science or a minor in computational methods.

Computer Science is the science of algorithms—their theory, analysis, design and implementation. As such it is an interdisciplinary field with roots in mathematics and engineering and applications in many other academic disciplines. The department at Bryn Mawr is founded on the belief that computer science should transcend from being a subfield of mathematics and engineering and play a broader role in all forms of human inquiry.

The Computer Science Department is supported jointly by faculty at both Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges. The department welcomes students who wish to pursue a major in computer science. Additionally, the department also offers a minor in computer science, a concentration in computer science (at Haverford College) and a minor in computational methods (at Bryn Mawr College). The department also strives to facilitate evolving interdisciplinary majors. For example, students can propose a major in cognitive science by combining coursework from computer science and disciplines such as psychology and philosophy. Students can further specialize their majors by selecting elective courses that focus on specific disciplinary tracks or pathways within the discipline.

All majors, minors and concentrations offered by the department emphasize foundations and basic principles of information science with the goal of providing students with skills that transcend short-term trends in computer hardware and software.

Major in Computer Science

Students are encouraged to prepare a major course plan in consultation with their academic adviser in Computer Science. The requirements for a major in computer science are three introductory courses (CMSC 110 or 205, 206 and 231), three core courses (CMSC 240, 245 and one of 330, 340 or 345), six electives of a student’s choosing and a senior thesis. Students can specialize in specific disciplinary tracks or pathways by carefully choosing their elective courses. Such pathways can enable specialization in areas such as: computational theory, computer systems, software development, computer graphics, artificial intelligence, robotics, computational media, computational linguistics, cognitive science, etc. Students should ensure that they have completed at least three courses in computer science by the end of their sophomore year (we highly recommend CMSC 110, 206 and 231).

Minor in Computer Science

Students in any major are encouraged to complete a minor in computer science. Completing a minor in computer science enables students to pursue graduate studies in computer science, in addition to their own major. The requirements for a minor in computer science at Bryn Mawr are CMSC 110 or 205, 206, 231, any two of CMSC 240, 245, 246, 330, 340 or 345, and two electives chosen from any course in computer science, approved by the student’s adviser in computer science. As mentioned above, these requirements can be combined with any major, depending on the student’s interest and preparation.

Minor in Computational Methods

This minor is designed to enable students majoring in any discipline to learn computational methods and applications in their major area of study. The requirements for a minor in computational methods are CMSC 110 or 205, 206, 231; one of CMSC 212, 225, 245, 246, 330, 340 or 361; any two computational courses depending on a student’s major and interests (there are over 35 such courses to choose from in various departments).

Students can declare a minor at the end of their sophomore year or soon after. Students should prepare a course plan and have it approved by at least two faculty advisers. Students minoring in computational methods are encouraged to propose senior projects/theses that involve the application of computational modeling in their major field of study.

COURSES

CMSC B110 Introduction to Computing

An introduction to the nature, subject matter, and branches of computer science as an academic discipline, and the nature, development, coding, testing, documenting, and analysis of the efficiency and limitations of algorithms. Also includes the social context of computing (risks, liabilities, intellectual property, and infringement).

Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Kumar,D., Eaton,E., Russo,M. (Spring 2013)
CMSC B201 Physical Computing
Physical Computing is the study of the integration of computing (software and hardware) into traditionally non-digital worlds. This often includes the use of an embedded, low-cost microcomputer with sensors and actuators (such as motors) to build an interface between the physical, analog world with the digital world. This course explores all levels of computing, from the low-level software and electronics, to the higher-level to application development and use of computing in society. Of special interest is that DIY technology that empowers individuals via creative physical computing devices and uses. Prerequisite or Corequisite: CS110 Introduction to Computing (or equivalent); or approval from instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Blank,D.
(Fall 2012)

CMSC B202 Mobile Computing
Mobile Computing is the study of the human-computer interaction between non-expert computer users and low-cost, richly-connected mobile devices controlled by software “apps.” Because the user is considered to be non-expert, mobile computing has driven the development of intuitive interfaces (such as touch-based screens). Because the device is small, relatively inexpensive, and richly connected (with computer servers and other mobile users), mobile computing has driven the development of novel apps, especially those involving non-centralized, distributed use (such as geotagging, microblogging, and interactive games). This course will explore these apps (including user interface design), networks (including security), and devices (including smart phones, PDAs, tablet computers, wearable computers, and “carputers”). We will also explore the interaction of software development, networking, and the mobile device especially in those areas of “disruptive technologies.” Prerequisite or Corequisite: CS110 Introduction to Computing (or equivalent); or approval from instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Blank,D.
(Fall 2012)

CMSC B206 Introduction to Data Structures
Introduction to the fundamental algorithms and data structures of computer science: sorting, searching, recursion, backtrack search, lists, stacks, queues, trees, graphs, dictionaries. Introduction to the analysis of algorithms. Prerequisite: CMSC 205 or 110, or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science

Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Blank,D., Eaton,E.
(Spring 2013)

CMSC B231 Discrete Mathematics
An introduction to discrete mathematics with strong applications to computer science. Topics include set theory, functions and relations, propositional logic, proof techniques, recursion, counting techniques, difference equations, graphs, and trees.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Crosslisting(s): MATH-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Xu,D.
(Fall 2012)

CMSC B240 Principles of Computer Organization
A lecture/laboratory course studying the hierarchical design of modern digital computers. Combinatorial and sequential logic elements; construction of microprocessors; instruction sets; assembly language programming. Lectures cover the theoretical aspects of machine architecture. In the laboratory, designs discussed in lecture are constructed in software. Prerequisite: CMSC 206 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

CMSC B245 Principles of Programming Languages
An introduction to a wide range of topics relating to programming languages with an emphasis on abstraction and design. Design issues relevant to the implementation of programming languages are discussed, including a review and in-depth treatment of mechanisms for sequence control, the run-time structure of programming languages, and programming in the large. The course has a strong lab component where students explore a variety of programming languages and concepts.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Blank,D.
(Fall 2012)

CMSC B246 Programming Paradigms
Topics course; course content varies. Prerequisite: CMSC 110 or 205.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Eaton,E.
(Spring 2013)
CMSC B250 Computational Methods in the Sciences
A study of how and why modern computation methods are used in scientific inquiry. Students will learn basic principles of simulation-based programming through hands-on exercises. Content will focus on the development of population models, beginning with simple exponential growth and ending with spatially-explicit individual-based simulations. Students will design and implement a final project from their own disciplines. Six hours of combined lecture/lab per week. Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B250; GEOL-B250
Units: 1.0

CMSC B257 Gender and Technology
Explores the historical role technology has played in the production of gender; the historical role gender has played in the evolution of various technologies; how the co-construction of gender and technology has been represented in a range of on-line, filmic, fictional, and critical media; and what all of the above suggest for the technological engagement of everyone in today’s world. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B257
Units: 1.0

CMSC B312 Computer Graphics
An introduction to the fundamental principles of computer graphics: including 3D modeling, rendering, and animation. Topics cover: 2D and 3D transformations; rendering techniques; geometric algorithms; 3D object models (surface and volume); visible surface algorithms; shading and mapping; ray tracing; and select others. Prerequisites: CMSC B110, CMSC B206, CMSC/MATH B231, and CMSC B246 or permission of instructor.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Xu,D.
(Fall 2012)

CMSC B319 Philosophy of Mind
This seminar focuses on contemporary analytic philosophy of mind. The exact topics will vary from year to year. Possible topics include: consciousness and the unity of consciousness, personal identity, emotions, psychological explanation, mental illness, neurophilosophy, externalism and the extended mind hypothesis, embodied cognition, artificial minds, philosophy and cognitive science, philosophy of psychology, and philosophy and psychoanalysis. Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B319
Units: 1.0

CMSC B325 Computational Linguistics
Introduction to computational models of understanding and processing human languages. How elements of linguistics, computer science, and artificial intelligence can be combined to help computers process human language and to help linguists understand language through computer models. Topics covered: syntax, semantics, pragmatics, generation and knowledge representation techniques. Prerequisite: some background in linguistics or computer science. Crosslisting(s): LING-B325; PHIL-B324
Units: 1.0

CMSC B330 Algorithms: Design and Practice
This course examines the applications of algorithms to the accomplishments of various programming tasks. The focus will be on understanding of problem-solving methods, along with the construction of algorithms, rather than emphasizing formal proving methodologies. Topics include divide and conquer, approximations for NP-Complete problems, data mining and parallel algorithms. Prerequisites: CMSC 206 and 231. Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Units: 1.0

CMSC B355 Operating Systems
A practical introduction to modern operating systems, using case studies from UNIX, VMS, MSDOS and the Macintosh. Lab sessions will explore the implementation of abstract concepts, such as resource allocation and deadlock. Topics include file systems, memory allocation schemes, semaphores and critical sections, device drivers, multiprocessing and resource sharing. Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CMSC B361 Emergence
A multidisciplinary exploration of the interactions underlying both real and simulated systems, such as ant colonies, economies, brains, earthquakes, biological evolution, artificial evolution, computers, and life. These emergent systems are often characterized by simple, local interactions that collectively produce global phenomena not apparent in the local interactions. Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B361
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CMSC B371 Cognitive Science
Cognitive science is the interdisciplinary study of intelligence in mechanical and organic systems. In this introductory course, we examine many topics from computer science, linguistics, neuroscience, mathematics, philosophy, and psychology. Can a computer intelligent? How do neurons give rise to thinking? What is consciousness? These are some of the questions we will examine. No prior knowledge or experience with any of the subfields is assumed or necessary. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Blank,D. (Spring 2013)

CMSC B372 Artificial Intelligence
Survey of Artificial Intelligence (AI), the study of how to program computers to behave in ways normally attributed to “intelligence” when observed in humans. Topics include heuristic versus algorithmic programming; cognitive simulation versus machine intelligence; problem-solving; inference; natural language understanding; scene analysis; learning; decision-making. Topics are illustrated by programs from literature, programming projects in appropriate languages and building small robots. Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B372
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CMSC B380 Recent Advances in Computer Science
A topical course facilitating an in-depth study on a current topic in computer science. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Eaton,E., Kumar,D. (Spring 2013)

CMSC B399 Senior Conference
An independent project in computer science culminating in a written report/thesis and oral presentation. Class discussions of work in progress and oral and written presentations of research results will be emphasized. Required for all computer science majors in the spring semester of their senior year. Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Kumar,D. (Spring 2013)

CMSC B403 Supervised Work/Independent Study
Units: 1.0 (Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

CMSC B425 Praxis III: Independent Study
Counts toward: Praxis Program Units: 1.0 (Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

EAST ASIAN STUDIES
Students may complete a major in East Asian Studies, a minor in Chinese language or Japanese language, or a (non-language) minor in East Asian Studies.

Faculty
Virginia Bower, Instructor
Tz’u Chiang, Senior Lecturer
Robert Dostal, Professor and Acting Chair
Yonglin Jiang, Associate Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Shiamin Kwa, Visiting Assistant Professor
Changchun Zhang, Instructor

The Bi-College Department of East Asian Studies links rigorous language training to the study of East Asian culture and society. In addition to our intensive programs in Chinese and Japanese languages, the departmental faculty offers courses in East Asian philosophy, linguistics, literature, religion, social and intellectual history. The East Asian Studies program also incorporates courses by affiliated Bi-College faculty on East Asian anthropology, cities, economics, philosophy, and sociology, as well as additional courses on East Asian culture and society by faculty at Swarthmore.

The intellectual orientation of the East Asian Studies Department is primarily historical and text-based; that is, we focus on East Asia’s rich cultural traditions as a way to understand its present, through the study of primary sources (in translation and in the vernacular) and scholarly books and articles. All students wishing to specialize in this humanistic approach to the study of China, Japan, and (with special approval) Korea are encouraged to consider the East Asian Studies major.

But we also work closely with affiliated faculty in the Bi-Co and Tri-Co community who approach East Asia from the perspective of such social science disciplines as Anthropology, Economics, Political Science, Sociology, and the Growth and Structure of Cities, as well as with faculty in History, Music, Religion, and Philosophy. EAS majors are encouraged to take advantage of these programs to supplement their EAS coursework. Please consult the course guide, online or in print, for details on this year’s offerings.

Major Requirements
- Completion of at least the third-year level of (Mandarin) Chinese or Japanese (i.e. 101-102). Students who entered college with native fluency in one East Asian language (including Korean) must complete this requirement with another East Asian language.

- EAST 200B (Major Seminar: Methods and Approaches to East Asian Studies), which highlights the emergence of East Asia as a coherent cultural region and introduces students to basic bibliographic skills and research approaches.

- Five additional courses in East Asian cultures, as follows: one 100-level Introduction (from among EAST 120, 129, 131, or 132); two 200-level courses; and two 300-level seminars.

- A senior seminar (EAST 398, 399, culminating in the completion of a senior thesis early in the spring semester.)

Minor Requirements

The Department of East Asian Studies offers minors in both Chinese and Japanese. The requirement is six courses in either language. The department also offers a minor in East Asian Studies, requiring any six courses in EAS exclusive of languages but including cross-listed courses taught in other departments. Of the six courses taken in fulfillment of the EAS non-language minor, at least two must be at the 200 level and at least one must be at the 300 level.

Language Placement Tests

Placement tests for first-time students at all levels are conducted in the week before classes start in the fall semester. To qualify for third-year language courses students need to finish Second-year courses with a score of 3.0 or above in all four areas of training: Listening, speaking, reading, and writing. In the event that students do not meet the minimum grade at the conclusion of Second-year language study, they must consult with the director of the respective language program and work out a summer study plan that may include taking summer courses or studying on their own under supervision. They must take a placement test before starting Third-year language study in the fall. (Similarly, students who finish Third-year with a score of less than 3.0 in any of the four areas must also take a placement exam before entering Fourth-year.)

Requirements for Honors

Honors in East Asian studies will be awarded by the departmental faculty on the basis of superior performance in two areas: coursework in major-related courses (including language classes), and the senior thesis. A 3.7 average in major-related coursework is considered the minimum necessary for consideration for honors.

Study Abroad

The East Asian Studies Department strongly recommends study abroad to maximize language proficiency and cultural familiarity. Formal approval is required by the study abroad adviser prior to the student’s travel. Without this approval, credit for courses taken abroad will not be accepted by the East Asian studies department. Also, since procedures for study abroad are different for Bryn Mawr and Haverford, students should contact the relevant deans at their own colleges. Students majoring in EAS are discouraged from studying abroad during the spring of their junior year, since the Methods and Approaches Seminar EAST200, meets then and it is best to take it as a junior. Minors and other students may go abroad fall or spring semester or for the whole year.

If studying abroad is not practical, students may consider attending certain intensive summer schools approved by the East Asian studies department. These plans must be worked out in concert with the program’s study abroad adviser and the student’s dean.

COURSES

EAST B131 Chinese Civilization

A broad chronological survey of Chinese culture and society from the Bronze Age to the present, with special reference to such topics as belief, family, language, the arts and sociopolitical organization. Readings include primary sources in English translation and secondary studies.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B131
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kwa,S.
(Fall 2012)

EAST B200 Major Seminar: Methods and Approaches in East Asian Studies

This course introduces current and prospective majors to the scope and methods of East Asian Studies. It employs readings on East Asian history and culture as a platform for exercises in critical analysis, bibliography, cartography and the formulation of research topics and approaches. It culminates in a substantial research essay. Required of East Asian Studies majors, but open to others by permission, the course should be taken before the senior year. Prerequisite: One year of Chinese or Japanese.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
EAST B210 Topics in Chinese Cultural History
This is a topics course. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HART-B209
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Bower,V.
(Fall 2012)

EAST B212 Introduction to Chinese Literature
This is a topics course. This course explores literature about everyday life beginning from the earliest times with the Book of Songs to the great 18th century novel, the Dream of the Red Chamber. Topics may vary.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B218
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kwa,S.
(Fall 2012)

EAST B218 Topics in World Cities
An introduction to contemporary issues related to the urban environment. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B218
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EAST B225 Topics in Modern Chinese Literature
This a topics course. This course explores modern China from the early 20th century to the present through its literature, art and films, reading them as commentaries of their own time. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): HART-B225; HIST-B220
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kwa,S.
(Spring 2013)

EAST B229 Topics in Comparative Urbanism
This is a topics course. Topics vary. Current topic description: This course will examine different building forms and processes in greater China, including Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan, from the imperial to the contemporary eras. It starts with the concrete buildings (residential houses) to the more abstract building (ethnicity, nation-state, historical narratives). With a comparative perspective and an historical approach, this course seeks to familiarize students with the perception of seeing cities as built environments as well as processes.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B229; ANTH-B229; HART-B229; SOCL-B230
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Zhang,J.
(Spring 2013)

EAST B250 Growth and Spatial Organization of the City
An introduction to growth and spatial organization of cities. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B250
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EAST B260 The History and Rhetoric of Buddhist Meditation
While Buddhist meditation is often seen as a neutral technology, free of ties to any one spiritual path or worldview, we will examine the practice through the cosmological and soteriological contexts that gave rise to it. This course examines a great variety of discourses surrounding meditation in traditional Buddhist texts.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EAST B263 The Chinese Revolution
Places the causes and consequences of the 20th century revolutions in historical perspective, by examining its late-imperial antecedents and tracing how the revolution has (and has not) transformed China, including the lives of such key revolutionary supporters as the peasantry, women, and intellectuals.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B262
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EAST B264 Human Rights in China
This course will examine China's human rights issues from a historical perspective. The topics include diverse perspectives on human rights, historical background, civil rights, religious practice, justice system, education, as well as the problems concerning some social groups such as migrant laborers, women, ethnic minorities and peasants.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
EAST B362 Environment in Contemporary East Asia: China and Japan
This seminar explores environmental issues in contemporary East Asia from a historical perspective. It will explore the common and different environmental problems in Japan and China, and explain and interpret their causal factors and solving measures in cultural traditions, social movements, economic growth, political and legal institutions and practices, international cooperation and changing perceptions. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or above.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EAST B267 The Development of the Modern Japanese Nation
An introduction to the main social dimensions central to an understanding of contemporary Japanese society and nationhood in comparison to other societies. The course also aims to provide students with training in comparative analysis in sociology.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B267; ANTH-B267
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Takenaka,A.
(Spring 2013)

EAST B325 Topics in Chinese History and Culture
This is a topics course. Course content varies.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B326
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kwa,S.
(Fall 2012)

EAST B335 East Asian Development
Identifies the core economic and political elements of an East Asian newly industrializing economies (NIEs) development model. Assesses the performance of this development model in Northeast (Korea and Taiwan) and Southeast Asia (Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand) in a comparative perspective. Considers the debate over the impact of interventionist and selective development policies associated with this model on the development successes and failures of the East Asian NIEs.
Prerequisites: ECON 200 or 202; ECON 253 or 304; or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B335; CITY-B336
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rock,M.
(Spring 2013)

EAST B352 China’s Environment
This seminar explores China’s environmental issues from a historical perspective. It begins by considering a range of analytical approaches, and then explores three general periods in China’s environmental changes, imperial times, Mao’s socialist experiments during the first thirty years of the People’s Republic, and the post-Mao reforms. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B352
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
by studying abroad in their junior year. We also offer a eyear-long course for those who have facility in speaking Chinese, but have had no or limited training in reading and writing (CNSE007-008).

The faculty in our program are seasoned and hard-working professionals dedicated to providing rigorous training in all four areas of Chinese language studies-- speaking, listening, reading, and writing, in a caring and individually tailored environment. (Both First-Year and Second-Year Chinese have mandatory weekly one-on-one sessions between students and their teachers.)
We take pride in our students, as our students take pride in their achievements. One indication of their level of proficiency is that we have trained true beginners (students with no prior training or knowledge of Chinese when they enter our program) who, in their senior year, can serve as peer tutors to our lower level students in various aspects of Chinese learning.

The Bi-Co Chinese program is nested within the Bi-Co East Asian Studies Department. We serve EAS majors, Chinese minors, and any student who wishes to study the Chinese language. The Chinese minor is currently very robust with many students coming from other departments, such as Economics, History, Linguistics, Anthropology, Growth and Structure of Cities, Psychology, Sociology, and other majors. We have students from the Natural Science departments in our classes and we would like to welcome more such students into our Minor.

Chinese Minor

Students who major in East Asian Studies or any other discipline may consider minoring in Chinese. A Chinese minor must do the following:
1. Take six semesters of Chinese language courses in our program.
2. Receive a minimum grade of 3.0 for each course.
3. Attain the minimum proficiency level of Third-Year
Chinese.

Language credits from the approved Study-Abroad programs such as CET are acceptable if prior approval by the director of the Chinese program is obtained.
Students who have prior knowledge of the language and are placed into Second-Year or higher level Chinese courses when they enter college still have enough courses to take to complete the minor since our Advanced Chinese (200-level topic courses) can be repeated for credits as topics vary from semester to semester.

Study Abroad

Our approved Study Abroad program is CET, which has a language programs in four cities in China: Beijing, which also has a Chinese Studies program, Harbin, Shanghai, and Kunming. CET is well-known for its language pledge and its rigorous implementation of this requirement. Our students have a strong reputation at CET for honoring their language pledge and therefore benefiting enormously from this practice.

Other highly regarded and rigorous study abroad programs in other Chinese speaking regions might be considered but prior approval by the director of the program is required.

COURSES

CNSE B001 Intensive First-Year Chinese
An intensive introductory course in modern spoken and written Chinese. The development of oral-aural skills is integrated through grammar explanations and drill sessions designed to reinforce new material through active practice. Six hours a week of lecture and oral practice plus one-on-one sessions with the instructor.
This is a year-long course; both semesters are required
for credit.
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.5
Instructor(s): Zhang,C., Zhao,J.
(Fall 2012)

CNSE B002 First-year Chinese
An intensive introductory course in modern spoken and written Chinese. The development of oral-aural skills is integrated through grammar explanations and drill
sessions designed to reinforce new material through active practice. Six hours a week of lecture and oral practice plus one-on-one sessions with the instructor.
This is a year-long course; both semesters are required
for credit.
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0, 1.5
Instructor(s): Zhang,C., Zhao,J.
(Spring 2013)

CNSE B003 Second-year Chinese
Second-year Chinese aims for further development of language skills in speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Five hours of class plus individual conference.
This is a year-long course; both semesters (CNSE 003 and 004) are required for credit. Prerequisite: First-year
Chinese or consent of instructor.
Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chiang,T., Zhao,J.
(Fall 2012)

CNSE B004 Second-Year Chinese
Second-year Chinese aims for further development
of language skills in speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Five hours of class plus individual conference.
This is a year-long course; both semesters (CNSE 003 and 004) are required for credit. Prerequisite: First-year Chinese or consent of instructor. Limited to 18 students.
Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chiang,T., Zhao,J.
(Spring 2013)

CNSE B007 First-Year Chinese (non-intensive)
This course is designed for students who have some facility in listening, speaking, reading and writing Chinese but have not yet achieved sufficient proficiency to take Second Year Chinese. It is a year-long course that covers the same lessons as the intensive First Year Chinese, but the class meets only three hours a week.
Prerequisite: Chinese Language Placement exam.
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chiang,T.
(Fall 2012)

CNSE B008 First Year Chinese II (Non-intensive)
This course is designed for students who have some facility in listening, speaking, reading and writing Chinese but have not yet achieved sufficient proficiency to take Second Year Chinese. Prerequisite: CNSE B007
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chiang,T.
(Spring 2013)

CNSE B101 Third-Year Chinese: Readings in the Modern Chinese Short Story and Theater
A focus on overall language skills through reading and discussion of modern short stories, as well as on students facility in written and oral expression through readings in modern drama and screenplays. Readings include representative works from the May Fourth Period (1919-27) to the present. Audio- and videotapes of drama and films are used as study aids. Prerequisite: Second-Year Chinese or consent of instructor.
Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0

CNSE B102 Third-Year Chinese: Readings in the Modern Chinese Short Story and Theater
A focus on overall language skills through reading and discussion of modern short stories, as well as on students facility in written and oral expression through readings in modern drama and screenplays. Readings include representative works from the May Fourth Period (1919-27) to the present. Audio- and videotapes of drama and films are used as study aids. Prerequisite: Second-Year Chinese or consent of instructor.
Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CNSE B201 Advanced Chinese
Development of language ability by readings in modern Chinese literature, history and/or philosophy. Speaking and reading skills are equally emphasized through a consideration of the intellectual, historical and social significance of representative works. May be repeated as topics vary. Prerequisite: Third-year Chinese or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CNSE B403 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

JAPANESE LANGUAGE
The East Asian Studies Program welcomes students who wish to combine their interests in East Asian languages with the study of an East Asian culture. These students are urged to consult the Co-Chair of East Asian studies on either campus, who will advise them on creating individual plans of study in appropriate departments.

The Japanese Language Program offers a full undergraduate curriculum of courses in Modern Japanese. Students who will combine language study with focused work on East Asian society and culture may wish to consider the major in East Asian Studies. Information about specific study abroad opportunities can be obtained from the director.

College Foreign Language Requirement
The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing JNSE 003 and 004 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in JNSE 004.

Haverford College currently offers the following courses in Japanese:

- JNSE H001 First-Year Japanese
- JNSE H002 First-Year Japanese
- JNSE H003 Second-Year Japanese
- JNSE H004 Second-Year Japanese
- JNSE H101 Third-Year Japanese
- JNSE H102 Third-Year Japanese
- JNSE H201 Fourth-Year Japanese
- JNSE H202 Fourth-Year Japanese
Majors are advised to complete ECON 200, 202, and 253 during sophomore year. They must be completed by the end of junior year or before any study away. These three courses should be taken at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. The department does not grant credit for Swarthmore’s intermediate microeconomics course, ECON SW011, because it is not calculus-based.

Students who earn a grade below 2.7 in ECON 105 are advised not to major in Economics.

Minor Requirements

The minor in economics consists of ECON 105; either ECON 200 or 202; either ECON 253 or 304 and three electives, one of which must have ECON 200 or 202 as a prerequisite.

A minor plan must be approved before the start of the senior year.

MORE IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR MAJORS AND MINORS

Students with questions about the Economics major or minor are encouraged to meet with an Economics faculty member.

- ECON 202 requires sophomore standing to enroll, and ECON 200 and 253 have a 200-level economics elective as a prerequisite. As such, majors are encouraged to enroll in a 200-level economics elective in the semester after they complete ECON 105.
- Most courses offered by the Haverford economics department count toward the Bryn Mawr economics major and minor. Most courses offered by the Swarthmore economics department may also be counted toward the Bryn Mawr economics major and minor; two important exceptions are SW011 (Intermediate Microeconomics) and SW033 (Financial Accounting).
- Students may substitute ECON H203 or H204 for ECON 253 as a major requirement if they also take ECON 304 as an elective.
- Most of our 300-level electives assume that you have been exposed to the regression model, which is covered at some length in ECON 253 (Introduction to Econometrics), but not ECON 203 or 204 (Statistical Methods) at Haverford. Therefore, you should take ECON 253 unless you are confident you will be able to complete ECON 304 before taking one of those other 300-level courses.
- If a student has taken ECON 105 or H106, she cannot take another introductory course elsewhere for credit.
• No more than two of the following courses can be counted toward an economics major or minor at Bryn Mawr: ECON 105, B136, B140, H205, H224 and any other course that does not have ECON 105 as a prerequisite.

• At least one semester of calculus (MATH 101) is a prerequisite for ECON B200, B202, and B304. Two semesters of calculus (MATH 102) are a prerequisite for ECON H300 and H302.

Honors

An economics major with a minimum GPA of 3.70 in economics, including economics courses taken in the second semester of the senior year, will graduate with honors in economics.

Advanced Placement

The department will waive the ECON 105 prerequisite for students who score a 5 on both the Microeconomics and Macroeconomics AP exams or a 6 or 7 on the Economics Higher Learning Exam of the International Baccalaureate. The waiver does not count as course credit toward the major or minor; majors and minors receiving advanced placement must still take a total of ten and six courses in economics, respectively. Students qualifying for advanced placement should see the department chair to obtain approval for the waiver and for advice on planning their course work in economics.

Study Away

Planning ahead is the key to successfully balancing a semester or year away with the economics major. Students planning a semester or year away must complete the statistical methods and intermediate theory courses (200, 202 and 253) before going away and must consult with the department chair well before the application deadline for study away. If a student wants a particular course to count toward the economics major or minor, she must obtain approval from the department chair before confirming registration at the host institution.

COURSES

ECON B105 Introduction to Economics

An introduction to micro- and macroeconomics: opportunity cost, supply and demand; consumer choice, the firm and output decisions; market structures; efficiency and market failure; the determination of national income, including government spending, money and interest rates; unemployment, inflation and public policy.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Ceglowski, J., Stahnke, R., Weinberg, M.

ECON B136 Working with Economic Data

Applies selected principles of economics to the quantitative analysis of economic data; uses spreadsheets and other tools to collect and judge the reliability of economic data. Topics may include measures of income inequality and poverty; unemployment, national income and other measures of economic well-being; cost-benefit of public and private investments; construction of price indices and other government statistics; evaluating economic forecasts; and the economics of personal finance.

Requirement(s): Division I or Quantitative

Crosslisting(s): CITY-B136

Units: 1.0

ECON B200 Intermediate Microeconomics

Systematic development of the analytical framework economists use to explain the behavior of consumers and firms. Determination of price; partial and general equilibria; welfare economics. Application to current economic problems. Students must be prepared to select from one of the three lab sections: Wednesdays; 1:05-1:55 or 2:05-2:55 or 3:00-3:55. Prerequisites: ECON 105, MATH 101 (or equivalent), one 200-level applied microeconomics elective.

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Ross, D.

ECON B202 Intermediate Macroeconomics

The goal of this course is to provide a thorough understanding of the behavior of the aggregate economy and the likely effects of government stabilization policies. Models of output, inflation, unemployment and interest rates are developed, along with theories of consumption, investment, economic growth, exchange rates and the trade balance. These models are used to analyze the likely macroeconomic effects of fiscal and monetary policies and to explore current macroeconomic issues and problems.

Prerequisites: ECON 105, MATH 101 (or equivalent), and sophomore standing or permission of the instructor.

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Ceglowski, J.

(Fall 2012)

ECON B207 Money and Banking

Analysis of the development and present organization of the financial system of the United States, focusing on the monetary and payment systems, financial markets, and financial intermediaries. May not be taken by ECON B215 Urban Economics

Micro- and macroeconomic theory applied to urban economic behavior. Topics include housing and land use; transportation; urban labor markets; urbanization; and demand for and financing of urban services. Prerequisite: ECON 105

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B215
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ECON B225 Economic Development

Examination of the issues related to and the policies designed to promote economic development in the developing economies of Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. Focus is on why some developing economies grow faster than others and why some growth paths are more equitable, poverty reducing, and environmentally sustainable than others. Includes consideration of the impact of international trade and investment policy, macroeconomic policies (exchange rate, monetary and fiscal policy) and sector policies (industry, agriculture, education, population, and environment) on development outcomes in a wide range of political and institutional contexts. Prerequisite: ECON 105.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B225
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Stahnke,R.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B234 Environmental Economics

Introduction to the use of economic analysis explain the underlying behavioral causes of environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate policy responses to them. Topics may include air and water pollution; the economic theory of externalities, public goods and the depletion of resources; cost-benefit analysis; valuing non-market benefits and costs; economic justice; and sustainable development. Writing Intensive. Course counts as Writing Intensive Course. Prerequisites: ECON 105

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B234
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rock,M.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B214 Public Finance

Analysis of government's role in resource allocation, emphasizing effects of tax and expenditure programs on income distribution and economic efficiency. Topics include sources of inefficiency in markets and possible government responses; federal budget composition; social insurance and antipoverty programs; U.S. tax structure and incidence. Prerequisites: ECON 105

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B214
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weinberg,M.
(Spring 2013)
of trade policy, the behavior and effects of exchange rates, and the macroeconomic implications of trade and capital flows. Topics may include the economics of free trade areas, world financial crises, outsourcing, immigration, and foreign investment. Prerequisites: ECON 105. The course is not open to students who have taken ECON 316 or 348.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B238
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ceglowski,J.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B242 Economics of Local Environmental Programs

Considers the determinants of human impact on the environment at the neighborhood or community level and policy responses available to local government. How can economics help solve and learn from the problems facing rural and suburban communities? The instructor was a local township supervisor who will share the day-to-day challenges of coping with land use planning, waste disposal, dispute resolution, and the provision of basic services. Prerequisite: ECON 105
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B204
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,D.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B243 Economic Inequality and Government Policy Choices

This course will examine the U.S. economy and the effects of government policy choices. The class will focus on the potential trade-offs between economic efficiency and greater economic equality. Some of the issues that will be explored include tax, education, and health care policies. Different perspectives on issues will be examined. Prerequisite: ECON 105.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Vartanian,T.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B253 Introduction to Econometrics

An introduction to econometric terminology and reasoning. Topics include descriptive statistics, probability, and statistical inference. Particular emphasis is placed on regression analysis and on the use of data to address economic issues. The required computational techniques are developed as part of the course. Prerequisites: ECON B105, or H101 and H102, and a 200-level elective.
Requirement(s): Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B206
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Stahnke,R.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B304 Econometrics

The econometric theory presented in ECON 203 is further developed and its most important empirical applications are considered. Each student does an empirical research project using multiple regression and other statistical techniques. Prerequisites: ECON 203 or 204 or 253; ECON 200 or 202; and MATH 201 or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weinberg,M.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B313 Industrial Organization and Public Policy

The study of the interaction of buyers, sellers and government in imperfectly competitive markets.
Prerequisites: ECON 200 and ECON 203 or 204 or 253.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,D.

ECON B314 The Economics of Social Policy

Introduces students to the economic rationale behind government programs and the evaluation of government programs. Topics include health insurance, social security, unemployment and disability insurance, and education. Additionally, the instructor and students will jointly select topics of special interest to the class. Emphasis will be placed on the use of statistics to evaluate social policy. Prerequisites: ECON 200; ECON 203 or 304.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B314
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weinberg,M.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B315 Economics of Information and Uncertainty

A study of economic behavior under conditions of incomplete information and uncertainty. Topics include problems of moral hazard and adverse selection in agency theory and signaling model, sequential games of incomplete information, bilateral bargaining and reputation. Applications include optimal insurance contracts, financial bubbles, credit rationing, and the value of information. Prerequisite: ECON B200.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
ECON B316 International Macroeconomics
Examines the theory of, and current issues in, international macroeconomics and international finance. Considers the role of international factors in macroeconomic performance; policy-making in an open economy; exchange rate systems and exchange rate behavior; international financial integration; and international financial crises. Prerequisites: ECON B202; ECON 253 or 304.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0

ECON B324 The Economics of Discrimination and Inequality
Explores the causes and consequences of discrimination and inequality in economic markets. Topics include economic theories of discrimination and inequality, evidence of contemporary race- and gender-based inequality, detecting discrimination, and identifying sources of racial and gender inequality. Additionally, the instructor and students will jointly select supplementary topics of specific interest to the class. Possible topics include: discrimination in historical markets, disparity in legal treatments, issues of family structure, and education gaps. Prerequisites: At least one 200-level applied microeconomics elective; ECON 253 or 304; ECON 200 or 202.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B334
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ECON B335 East Asian Development
Identifies the core economic and political elements of an East Asian newly industrializing economies (NIEs) development model. Assesses the performance of this development model in Northeast (Korea and Taiwan) and Southeast Asia (Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand) in a comparative perspective. Considers the debate over the impact of interventionist and selective development policies associated with this model on the development successes and failures of the East Asian NIEs. Prerequisites: ECON 200 or 202; ECON 253 or 304; or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B336; EAST-B335
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rock,M.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B348 International Trade
Study of the major theories offered to explain international trade. Includes analyses of the effects of trade barriers (tariffs, quotas, non-tariff barriers), trade liberalization, and foreign investment by multinational corporations on growth, poverty, inequality, and the environment. Prerequisite: ECON B200.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Minor
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Stahnke,R.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B385 Democracy and Development
From 1974 to the late 1990's the number of democracies grew from 39 to 117. This “third wave,” the collapse of communism and developmental successes in East Asia have led some to argue the triumph of democracy and markets. Since the late 1990's, democracy’s third wave has stalled, and some fear a reverse wave and democratic breakdowns. We will question this phenomenon through the disciplines of economics, history, political science and sociology drawing from theoretical, case study and classical literature. Prerequisites: ECON 200; ECON 253 or 304; and one course in Political Science OR Junior or Senior Standing in Political Science OR Permission of the Instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B385
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,M., Rock,M.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B393 Research Seminar in Industrial and Environmental Regulation
Thesis seminar. Each student does a semester-long research project on a relevant topic of interest. Research topics include the interaction of buyers, sellers, and government in imperfectly competitive markets. Prerequisite: ECON B200; B253 or B304; B234 or B313.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,D.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B395 Research Seminar in Economic Development
Thesis seminar. Each student is expected to engage in a semester long research project on a relevant topic in economic development. The major work product for the seminar is a senior research paper of refereed journal article length. Students are expected to participate in all group meetings and all one-on-one meetings with the professor. This is a course for majors writing a senior thesis in economic development. Prerequisites: ECON 225; ECON B200 or B202; ECON 253 OR 304.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rock,M.
(Fall 2012)
Students may complete a minor in education, in which there are two tracks: the minor in educational studies and the minor in education leading to secondary teacher certification. Alumnae may also complete the requirements for secondary teacher certification after they graduate through the Postbaccalaureate Teacher Education Program.

Alice Lesnick, Term Professor and Director

The field of education is about teaching people how to teach and more. The Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program is built around four mutually-informing pursuits: teacher preparation; the interdisciplinary study of learning as a central human and cultural activity; the investigation of the politics of schooling; and students’ growth as reflective teachers, learners, researchers and change agents.

Courses in the Education Program address students interested in:

- The theory, process and reform of education
- Social justice, activism and working within and against systems
- Future work as educators in schools, public or mental health, community, or other settings
- Examining and reclaiming their own learning and educational goals
- Integrating field-based and academic learning

Each education course includes a field component through which instructors seek continuously to integrate theory and practice, asking students to bridge academic and experiential knowledge in the classroom and beyond it. Field placements in schools and other educational settings range from two hours per week in the introductory course to full-time student teaching in the certification program.

The Bi-College Education Program offers several options. Students may:

- Explore one or more aspects of education in areas of particular interest—such as urban schooling—by enrolling in single courses

ECON B396 Research Seminar: International Economics

Thesis seminar. Each student does a semester-long research project on a relevant topic of interest. Research topics in international trade or trade policy, international finance, international macroeconomics, and international economic integration are appropriate. Prerequisites: ECON 316 or 348, or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ceglowski, J.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B403 Supervised Work

An economics major may elect to do individual research. A semester-long research paper is required; it satisfies the 300-level research paper requirement. Students who register for 403 must submit an application form before the beginning of the semester (the form is available from the department chair). The permission of both the supervising faculty member and department chair is required.

Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
Requirements for Secondary Certification

The Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program is accredited by the state of Pennsylvania to prepare undergraduates and alumnae for certification in the following subject areas: English; languages, including French, Latin, and Spanish; mathematics; the sciences, including biology, chemistry, and physics; and social studies. Pursuit of certification in Chinese, German, and Russian is also possible but subject to availability of student teaching placements. Students certified in a language have K-12 certification.

To qualify for a teaching certificate, students must complete an academic major in the subject area in which they seek certification (or, in the case of social studies, students must major in history, political science, economics, anthropology, sociology, or Growth and Structure of Cities and take courses outside their major in the other areas). Within their major, students must select courses that help them meet the state standards for teachers in that subject area. Students must also complete the secondary teacher certification track of the minor in education, taking these courses:

- EDUC 200 Critical Issues in Education
- PSYC 203 Educational Psychology
- EDUC 210 Perspectives on Special Education
- EDUC 275 English Learners in U.S. Schools
- EDUC 301 Curriculum and Pedagogy Seminar (fall semester, prior to student teaching)
- EDUC 302 Practice Teaching Seminar and EDUC 303 Practice Teaching. These courses are taken concurrently for three credits.

Students preparing for certification must also take two courses in English and two courses in math, maintain a grade point average of 3.0 or higher, and pass a series of exams for beginning teachers (state requirements). To be admitted to the culminating student teaching phase of the program, students must earn a grade of 2.7 or higher in both EDUC 200 (Critical Issues in Education) and EDUC 301 (Curriculum and Pedagogy) and be recommended by their major department and the director of the Education Program. To be recommended for certification, students must earn a grade of 2.7 or higher in EDUC 302 (Practice Teaching Seminar) and a grade of Satisfactory in EDUC 303 (Practice Teaching).

Note: Students practice-teach full time for 12 weeks in a local school during the spring semester of their senior year. Given this demanding schedule, students are not able to take courses other than the Practice Teaching Seminar and senior seminar for their major.

Requirements for the Minor in Educational Studies

The bi-college minor in educational studies is an interdisciplinary exploration of the cultural, political, and interactional dimensions of teaching and learning and is designed for students with a broad range of education-related interests, such as graduate study in education, pursuit of elementary or secondary certification after graduation, or careers that require educational expertise. Many professions and pursuits—management and training positions, research, administration and policy work, and careers in social work, health and law—involve using an educator’s skills and knowledge. Civic engagement, community development, and work towards social justice also require knowledge of how people learn and change. Because students interested in these or other education-related pursuits major in different subject areas and have different aspirations, they are encouraged to design a minor appropriate to their major area of study and their anticipated futures.

Requirements for the minor in educational studies include:

- EDUC 200 Critical Issues in Education
- Four education courses, at least two of which must be offered by Education Program faculty
- EDUC 311 Field Work Seminar

Students in the tri-college community may also apply to sub-matriculate as juniors or seniors into the University of Pennsylvania, Graduate School of Education’s elementary or secondary education Master’s program.

The requirements for the minor in education and teacher certification are described below. Students interested in these options, or the other options named above, should meet with the Education Program Adviser as early as possible for advice on scheduling, preferably by the sophomore year.
Graduates may complete the requirements for secondary teacher certification at Bryn Mawr in a post-baccalaureate program.

Title II Reporting

Title II of the Higher Education Act (HEA) requires that a full teacher preparation report, including the institution’s pass rate as well as the state’s pass rate, be available to the public on request. Copies of the report may be requested from Ann Brown, Program Coordinator and Adviser, by e-mail at abrown@brynmawr.edu or phone at (610) 526-5376.

COURSES

EDUC B200 Critical Issues in Education

Designed to be the first course for students interested in pursuing one of the options offered through the Education Program, this course is also open to students who are not yet certain about their career aspirations but are interested in educational issues. The course examines major issues in education in the United States within the conceptual framework of educational reform. Fieldwork in an area school required (eight visits, 1.5-2 hours per visit). Writing intensive.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Child and Family Studies; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Lesnick, A.
(Spring 2013)

EDUC B205 Brain, Education and Inquiry

A lecture/discussion course exploring intersections between the neural and cognitive sciences and the theory and practice of education, with the aim of generating useful new insights and productive lines of inquiry in both realms. Prerequisite: Some college-level course work in Biology, Psychology or Education; permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B205
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EDUC B219 Writing in Theory/Writing in Practice

This course is designed for students interested in tutoring college or high-school writers or teaching writing at the secondary-school level. Readings in current composition studies will pair texts that reflect writing theory with those that address practical strategies for working with academic writers. To put pedagogic theory into practice, the course will offer a praxis dimension. Students will spend a few hours a week working in local public school classrooms or writing centers. In-class collaborative work on writing assignments will allow students to develop writing skills and share their insights into the writing process with others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B220
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EDUC B220 Changing Pedagogies in Mathematics and Science

This course examines perspectives related to teaching and learning math and science, including questioning why (if at all) it is important for people to learn these subjects, what is viewed as successful teaching and learning in these disciplines, and how people learn math and science. This is a half semester course.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Praxis Program
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EDUC B225 Empowering Learners: Theory and Practice of Extra-Classroom Teaching

This Praxis course is for students in extra-classroom tutoring and mentoring roles on and off campus. In addition to school settings, sites of play and livelihood are examined as sites of teaching and learning for people of various ages and phases of life. Focus is on learning to facilitate and assess learners’ growth within a context, challenging prescribed roles, and identifying structural barriers and opportunities. This is a half-credit course.

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Praxis Program
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

EDUC B240 Researching Education on Campus

This course will teach students use and interpret observation, survey, interview, focus group, and other qualitative methods of educational research, as well as to read and write about such research. Course projects could include assessment of the staff/student work through the Teaching and Learning Initiative as well as of other projects faculty, students, and staff wish to study within the bi-college context. In addition to class meetings, research teams will meet regularly.

EDUC B260 Multicultural Education

An investigation of the continually evolving theory and practice of multicultural education in the United States. This course explores and problematizes the history, politics, definitions, focuses, purposes, outcomes and limitations of multicultural education as enacted in a range of school subjects and settings. Central topics may include: curriculum development, teacher training, language diversity and public policy concerns. Students will also engage in researching and reinventing what is possible in education for, with and about a diverse world. Fieldwork of two to three hours per week. Enrollment is limited to 25 students with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies.

EDUC B266 Schools in American Cities

This course examines issues, challenges, and possibilities of urban education in contemporary America. We use as critical lenses issues of race, class, and culture; urban learners, teachers, and school systems; and restructuring and reform. While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal "case" that students investigate through documents and school placements. This is a Praxis II course (weekly fieldwork in a school required)

ENGLISH

Students may complete a major or a minor in English. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in Creative Writing or Gender and Sexuality Studies.

Faculty

Kristina Baumli, Instructor
Linda-Susan Beard, Associate Professor
Peter Briggs, Professor and Chair
Jennifer Callaghan, Lecturer
Anne Dalke, Term Professor (on leave semester II)
Jennifer Harford Vargas, Assistant Professor Jane Hedley, Professor
Gail Hemmeter, Senior Lecturer
Betty Litsinger, Instructor
Hoang Nguyen, Assistant Professor
Raymond Ricketts, Lecturer
Katherine Rowe, Professor
Matthew Ruben, Lecturer
Bethany Schneider, Associate Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Jamie Taylor, Assistant Professor
Kate Thomas, Associate Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
J.C. Todd, Lecturer
Michael Tratner, Professor (on leave semester I)

A rich variety of courses allows students to engage with all periods and genres of literature in English, as well as modern forms such as film and contemporary digital media. The department stresses critical thinking, incisive writing and speaking, and a sense of initiative and responsibility for the enterprise of interpretation. With their advisers, English majors design a program of study that deepens their understanding of diverse genres, textual traditions, and periods. We encourage students to explore the history of cultural production and reception and also to question the presuppositions of literary study. The major culminates in an independently written essay of 30-40 pages, developed during a senior research seminar in the fall semester and individually mentored by a faculty member in the spring. Students are expected to take at least two English courses at Bryn Mawr before signing up for the major or minor.

As students construct their English major, they should seek to include courses that provide:

- Historical depth—a sense of the construction of traditions.
- Formal breadth—experience with more than one genre and more than one medium: poetry, prose fiction, drama, letters, film, epic, non-fiction, essays, documentary, etc.
- Cultural range—experience with the Englishes of more than one geographical location and more than one cultural tradition, and of the exchanges and transactions between them; a course from another language or literary tradition can be valuable here.
- Different critical and theoretical frameworks—the opportunity to experiment with several models of interpretation and the debates that animate them.

Summary of the Major

- Eight courses, including at least three at the 300 level (exclusive of 398 and 399)
- ENGL B250 Methods of Literary Study (prerequisite: 2 200 level English courses)
- ENGL B398 Senior Seminar (offered Mondays in the fall, 2:30-4pm)
- ENGL B399 Senior Essay

Summary of the Minor

- ENGL B250 Methods of Literary Study (prerequisite: 2 200-level English courses)
- Five English electives (at least one at the 300 level).

Minor in Film Studies

There is no limit to the number of courses in film studies that may count toward the English major, except for a student majoring in English who is also seeking to declare a minor in film studies. In that case two (and only two) of the courses that comprise the six-course film studies minor may also count toward the 11-course English major. The minimum number of courses required to complete an English major and a minor in film studies will thus be 15 courses.

Concentration in Creative Writing

Students may elect a concentration in creative writing. This option requires that, among the eight course selections besides ENGL 250, 398 and 399, three units will be in creative writing; one of the creative writing units may be at the 300 level and may count as one of the three required 300-level courses for the major. Students enrolling in this concentration must seek the approval of their major adviser in English and of the director of the Creative Writing Program; they must enroll in the concentration before the end of their sophomore year.

Other Concentrations

The Department of English contributes courses toward minors in Africana Studies, in Environmental Studies, and in the Program in Gender and Sexuality.

Students Going Abroad

Students should complete both English 250 and one 300-level course before leaving for a semester or year abroad.

English Majors and the Education Certification Program

English majors planning to complete an education certification in their senior year should file a work plan with the chairs of the Education and English Departments no later than December 1 of their junior year. English majors on this path will follow an accelerated writing schedule in their senior year.

Extended Research

Some students seek a longer horizon and a chance to dig deeper into their research interests. Rising juniors and seniors in English frequently apply for fellowship support from the Hanna Holborn Gray program, to pursue original research over the summer or through the year. The projects may be stand-alone or may lead to a senior essay. In either case, students work closely with faculty advisers to define the goals, methods, and potential outcomes of their research.

COURSES

ENGL B125 Writing Workshop

This course offers students who have already taken an Emily Balch Seminar an opportunity to develop their skills as college writers. Through frequent practice, class discussion, and in-class collaborative activity, students will become familiar with all aspects of the writing process and will develop their ability to write for an academic audience. The class will address a number of writing issues: formulating questions; analyzing purpose; generating ideas; structuring and supporting arguments; marshalling evidence; using sources effectively; and developing a clear, flexible academic voice. Students will meet regularly with the course instructor, individually and in small groups, to discuss their work.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ruben, M., Callaghan, J.
(Spring 2013)

ENGL B126 Writing Workshop for Non-Native Speakers of English

This course offers non-native speakers of English a chance to develop their skills as college writers. Through frequent practice, class discussion, and in-class collaborative activity, students will become familiar with the writing process and will learn to write for an academic audience. Student writers in the class will be guided through the steps of composing and revising college essays: formulating questions; analyzing purpose; generating ideas; structuring and supporting arguments; marshalling evidence; using sources effectively; and developing a clear, flexible academic voice. Writers will receive frequent feedback from peers and the instructor.

Units: 0.5
(Spring 2013)

ENGL B193 Critical Feminist Studies

Combines the study of specific literary texts with larger questions about feminist forms of theorizing: three fictional texts will be supplemented by a wide range of essays. Students will review current scholarship, identify their own stake in the conversation, and define a critical question they want to pursue at length.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B202 Understanding Poetry

This course is for students who wish to develop their skills in reading and writing critically about poetry. The course will provide grounding in the traditional skills of prosody (i.e., reading accentual, syllabic, and accentual-syllabic verse) as well as tactics for reading and understanding the breath-based or image-based prosody of free verse. Lyric, narrative, and dramatic poetry will be discussed and differentiated. We will be using close reading and oral performance to highlight the unique fusion of language, rhythm (sound), and image that makes poetry different from prose.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B204 Literatures of American Expansion

This course will explore the relationship between U.S. narratives that understand national expansion as "manifest destiny" and narratives that understand the same phenomenon as imperial conquest. We will ask why the ingredients of such fictions—dangerous savages, empty landscapes, easy money, and lawless violence—often combine to make the master narrative of “America,” and we will explore how and where that master narrative breaks down. Critical readings will engage discourses of nation, empire, violence, race, and sexuality. Texts will include novels, travel narratives, autobiographies, legal documents, and cultural ephemera.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B205 Introduction to Film
This course is intended to provide students with the tools of critical film analysis. Through readings of images and sounds, sections of films and entire narratives, students will cultivate the habits of critical viewing and establish a foundation for focused work in film studies. The course introduces formal and technical units of cinematic meaning and categories of genre and history that add up to the experiences and meanings we call cinema. Although much of the course material will focus on the Hollywood style of film, examples will be drawn from the history of cinema. Attendance at weekly screenings is mandatory.

ENGL B209 Literary Kinds
Beginning with a biological evolutionary model, we examine a range of explanations for how and why new genres evolve. Readings will consist of critical accounts of genre; three hybrid novel forms will serve as imaginative test cases for these concepts. Students will identify, compare, and write an exemplar of a genre that interests them.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B210 Renaissance Literature: Performances of Gender
Readings chosen to highlight the construction and performance of gender identity during the period from 1550 to 1650 and the ways in which the gender anxieties of 16th- and 17th-century men and women differ from, yet speak to, our own. Texts will include plays, poems, prose fiction, diaries, and polemical writing of the period.

ENGL B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas.

ENGL B219 Facing the Facts/Essaying the Subjective
Nonfictional prose genres, which may well constitute the majority of all that has been written, are very seldom the focus of literature courses. This class will address that gap, by exploring the use-value of the category of non-fictional prose in organizing our experience of, and our thinking about, literature. Might our attending to such texts alter our sense of what literature is?

ENGL B230 Topics in American Drama
Considers American plays of the 20th century, reading major playwrights of the canon alongside other dramatists who were less often read and produced. Will also study later 20th century dramatists whose plays both develop and resist the complex foundation established by canonical American playwrights and how American drama reflects and responds to cultural and political shifts. Considers how modern American identity has been constructed through dramatic performance, considering both written and performed versions of these plays.

ENGL B248 Narratives of Migration / Narratives of Border Crossing
The borderlands between the United States and Mexico produced a culture reflecting the best and the worst of both. One sees contradictions at a glance: architectural beauty conflicting with shantytowns; local literature, film and music juxtaposed with drug dealers; a tradition of hospitality contrasted with anti-immigration activism. This course examines narratives of the borderlands, discussing the heritage of area African American, Native American and Mexican/Chicano and Anglo.

ENGL B250 Methods of Literary Study
We will explore the power of language in a variety of linguistic, historical, disciplinary, social, and cultural contexts, focusing on the power of the written word to provide a foundational basis for the critical and creative analysis of literary studies. This course will help to broaden our ideas of what texts and language accomplish socially, historically, and aesthetically. Students will thus refine their faculties of reading closely, writing incisively and passionately, asking productive questions, producing their own compelling interpretations, and listening to the insights offered by others. Limited to sophomores and juniors.

ENGL B254 American Literature 1750-1900
This course explores the subject, subjection, and subjectivity of women and female sexualities in U.S. literatures between the signing of the Constitution and the ratification of the 19th Amendment. While the representation of women in fiction grew and the number of female authors soared, the culture found itself at pains to define the appropriate moments for female speech and silence, action and passivity. We will engage a variety of pre-suffrage literatures that place women at the nexus of national narratives of slavery and freedom, foreignness and domesticity, wealth and power, masculinity and citizenship, and sex and race “purity.”

ENGL B256 Milton and Dissent
John Milton’s epic poem, “Paradise Lost,” was written during a period of cultural turmoil and innovation. This renaissance poem has helped shape the way later writers understand their profession, especially their obligation to foster dissent as a readerly practice. Exploring this legacy, readings interleave “Paradise Lost” and Milton’s political writings with responses by later revolutionary writers, from Blake to Philip Pullman.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B257 Gender and Technology
Explores the historical role technology has played in the production of gender; the historical role gender has played in the evolution of various technologies; how the co-construction of gender and technology has been represented in a range of on-line, filmic, fictional, and critical media; and what all of the above suggest for the technological engagement of everyone in today’s world.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
ENGL B258 Finding Knowledge Between the Leaves: 19th-Century Literature of Education

This class will examine innovative extra-institutional methods and spaces of learning. We will explore a genealogy of unconventional and progressive models of instruction found in imaginative literature, in personal letters, and in material culture. Our readings will range from novels by Catharine Maria Sedgwick and Louisa May Alcott to poetry and letters by Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson to personal narratives by Henry David Thoreau and Booker T. Washington.

ENGL B264 Focus: Black Bards: Poetry in the Diaspora

An interrogation of poetic utterance in works of the African diaspora, primarily in English, this course addresses a multiplicity of genres, including epic, lyric, sonnet, rap, and mimetic jazz. The development of poetic theories at key moments such as the Harlem Renaissance and the Black Arts Movement will be explored. Prerequisite: Any course in poetry or African/American literature.

ENGL B266 Travel and Transgression

Examines ancient and medieval travel literature, exploring movement and cultural exchange, from otherworld odysseys and religious pilgrimages to trade expeditions and explorations across the Atlantic. Mercantile documents, maps, pilgrim’s logbooks, and theoretical and anthropological discussions of place, colonization, and identity-formation will supplement our literary analysis. Emphasizes how those of the Middle Ages understood encounters with “alien” cultures, symbolic representations of space, and the development of national identities, exploring their influence on contemporary debates surrounding racial, cultural, religious, and national boundaries. ENGL B268 Native Soil and American Literature: 1492-1900
This course will consider the literature of contact and conflict between English-speaking whites and Native Americans between the years 1492 and 1920. We will focus on how these cultures understood the meaning and uses of land, and the effects of these literatures of encounter upon American land and ecology and vice-versa. Texts will include works by Native, European- and African-American writers, and may include texts by Christopher Columbus, John Smith, William Bradford, Handsome Lake, Samson Occom, Lydia Maria Child, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Sarah Winnemucca Hopkins, John Rollin Ridge, Mark Twain, Mourning Dove, Ella Deloria and Willa Cather. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B269 Vile Bodies in Medieval Literature
The Middle Ages imagined the physical body as the site of moral triumph and failure and as the canvas to expose social ills. The course examines medical tracts, saint’s lives, poetry, theological texts, and representations of the Passion. Discussion topics range from plague and mercantilism to the legal and religious depiction of torture. Texts by Boccaccio, Chaucer, Dante, and Kempe will be supplemented with contemporary readings on trauma theory and embodiment. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B270 American Girl: Childhood in U.S. Literatures, 1690-1935
This course will focus on the “American Girl” as a particularly contested model for the nascent American. Through examination of religious tracts, slave and captivity narratives, literatures for children and adult literatures about childhood, we will analyze U. S. investments in girlhood as a site for national self-fashioning.

ENGL B271 House of Wits
An extended visit with one of America’s most interesting and influential families: the unruly, expansive children of Henry James, Sr. The course will focus on the remarkable writings of the diarist Alice, who became a feminist icon; the great novelist Henry; and the groundbreaking psychologist and philosopher William. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B275 Food Revolutions: History, Politics, Culture
This course traces an arc from the industrial revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries through to the present day food crisis. We will explore the cultural, political, philosophical, ethical and ecological histories of what and how we eat, and look towards sustainable, biodiverse and local agriculture. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B276 Transnational American Literature
This course asks students to re-imagine “American” literature through a transnational framework. We will explore what paradigms are useful for conceptualizing U.S. literature given shared political histories, aesthetic modes, racial discourses, and patterns of migration in the hemisphere. Reading canonical Anglo American writers alongside ethnic minority writers, we will examine how their aesthetic engagements and cultural entanglements with Latin America transform our understanding of what constitutes a national literary tradition. ENGL B288 The Novel

This course will explore the multi-vocal origins of the novel in English and the ways in which its rapid development parallels changes in reading, vision, thought, and self-perception. The course will trace the novel's evolution from its 17th-century beginnings in romance, spiritual autobiography, and travel literature; through its emergence as a middle-class mode of expression in the 18th century; to its period of cultural dominance in the Victorian era; and to modernist and postmodern experimentation. In studying the novel's historical, cultural, and formal dimensions, the course will discuss the significance of realism, parody, characters, authorship, and the reader.

ENGL B290 Modernisms

Between the two world wars—1918—1939—a revolution occurred in literature that is called "Modernism." While the phenomenon was worldwide, this course will focus on the major British writers of the period, novelists Virginia Woolf, James Joyce, E.M.Forster, and poets W.H.Auden, T.S.Eliot, and William Butler Yeats. Their work is experimental, demanding, and idiosyncratic. We will strive to define what they have in common, what historical, social, and scientific developments they are responding to, and why they wrote what they did. Kipling and Smith will help us contextualize their work as a response to what came before and a major influence on much more recent work.

ENGL B292 The Play of Interpretation

Designated theory course. A study of the methodologies and regimes of interpretation in the arts, humanistic sciences, and media and cultural studies, this course focuses on common problems of text, authorship, reader/spectator, and translation in their historical and formal contexts. Literary, oral, and visual texts from different cultural traditions and histories will be studied through interpretive approaches informed by modern critical theories. Readings in literature, philosophy, popular culture, and film will illustrate how theory enhances our understanding of the complexities of history, memory, identity, and the trials of modernity.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
ENGL B306 Film Theory
This course covers a selection of key texts in film theory. Our primary method of inquiry will be close analysis of primary theoretical texts. Topics of discussion may include: the ontology of the photographic image, the ethics of cinema, cinematic space and temporality, and film theory's relationship to other forms of visual media. Film screenings will serve to illustrate and complicate theoretical concepts. Fulfills the theory requirement for Film Studies minors.

ENGL B309 Native American Literature
This course focuses on late-20th-century Native literatures that attempt to remember and redress earlier histories of dispersal and genocide. We will ask how various writers with different tribal affiliations engage in discourses of humor, memory, repetition, and cultural performance to refuse, rework, or lampoon inherited constructions of the "Indian" and "Indian" history and culture. We will read fiction, film, and contemporary critical approaches to Native literatures alongside much earlier texts, including oral histories, political speeches, law, and autobiography. Readings may include works by Sherman Alexie, Diane Glancy, Thomas King, N. Scott Momaday, Leslie Marmon Silko, and Gerald Vizenor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B311 Renaissance Lyric
For roughly half the semester we will focus on the sonnet, a form that was domesticated in England during the sixteenth century. The other half of the course will focus on the "metaphysical" poetry of John Donne, George Herbert, and Andrew Marvell. There will be a strong component of critical and theoretical reading to contextualize the poetry, model ways of reading it, and raise questions about its social, political and religious purposes.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B313 Ecological Imaginings
Re-thinking the evolving nature of representation, with a focus on language as a link between natural and cultural ecosystems. We will observe the world; read classical and cutting edge ecologistic, ecocultural, ecofeminist, and ecocritical theory, along with a wide range of exploratory, speculative, and imaginative essays and
ENGL B314 Troilus and Criseyde

Examines Chaucer’s magisterial Troilus and Criseyde, his epic romance of love, loss, and betrayal. We will supplement sustained analysis of the poem with primary readings on free will and courtly love as well as theoretical readings on gender and sexuality and translation. We will also read Boccaccio’s Il Filostrato, Robert Henryson’s Testament of Cresseid and Shakespeare’s Troilus and Cressida.

ENGL B322 Love and Money

This course focuses on literary works that explore the relationship between love and money. We will seek to understand the separate and intertwined histories of these two arenas of human behavior and will read, along with literary texts, essays by influential figures in the history of economics and sexuality. The course will begin with The Merchant of Venice, proceed through Pride and Prejudice to The Great Gatsby, and end with Hollywood movies.

ENGL B323 Movies, Fascism, and Communism

Movies and mass politics emerged together, altering entertainment and government in strangely similar ways. Fascism and communism claimed an inherent relation to the masses and hence to movies; Hollywood rejected such claims. We will examine films alluding to fascism or communism, to understand them as commenting on political debates and on the mass experience of movie going.

ENGL B344 After Beloved: Black Women Writers in the 21st Century
This course focuses on fiction, poetry and drama by Black women (African and Caribbean American) published since 2000. Attendant to the diversity of aesthetic and thematic approaches in this body of literature, we will explore exploding notions of racial identity and allegiance, as well as challenges to the boundaries of genre. Prerequisites: one African or African-American literature course at the 200-level or permission of the instructor.

ENGL B345 Topics in Narrative Theory
Narrative theory through the lens of a specific genre, period or style of writing. Recent topics include Victorian Novels and Ethnic Novels. Current topic description: This course traces the development of the U.S. ethnic novel. We will examine novels by Native Americans, Chicana/os, and African Americans, focusing on key formal innovations in their respective traditions. In addition, we will become versed in key concepts developed by narrative theorists to understand the genre of the novel.

ENGL B354 Virginia Woolf
Virginia Woolf has been interpreted as a feminist, a modernist, a crazy person, a resident of Bloomsbury, a victim of child abuse, a snob, a socialist, and a creation of literary and popular history. We will try out all these approaches and examine the features of our contemporary world that influence the way Woolf, her work, and her era are perceived. We will also attempt to theorize about why we favor certain interpretations over others.

ENGL B367 Asian American Film Video and New Media
The course explores the role of pleasure in the production, reception, and performance of Asian American identities in film, video, and the internet, taking as its focus the sexual representation of Asian Americans in works produced by Asian American artists from 1915 to present. In several units of the course, we will study graphic sexual representations, including pornographic images and sex acts some may find objectionable. Students should be prepared to engage analytically with all class material. To maintain an atmosphere of mutual respect and solidarity among the participants in the class, no auditors will be allowed.

ENGL B372 Composing a Self: American Women’s Life Writing
Beginning with Rowlandson’s 1682 captivity narrative and concluding with Kingston’s The Woman Warrior, we examine how American women have constructed themselves in print. Gender, ethnicity, spirituality, sexuality inform public narratives; while letters and diaries serve as a counterweight, revealing private selves and prompting exploration of authority, authorship, history, citizenship and identity. Course includes personal life-writing and archival research in the College’s Special Collections.

(Fall 2012)

ENGL B377 James Joyce
Joyce’s works lend themselves particularly well to critical disagreements: he has been called the most pessimist nihilist and the greatest optimist; a misogynist and a radical feminist; a true Catholic and a great Jewish writer; the worst of elitists and a celebrator of the common man; a fascist and a socialist; the most boring writer and the writer providing the most intense, orgasmic pleasures. We will read one novel but that journey will be broken up with forays into Joyce’s earlier works.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B385 Problems in Satire
An exploration of the methodological and theoretical underpinnings of great satire in works by Blake, Dryden, Pope, Rabelais, Smiley, Swift, Wilde, and others.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B388 Contemporary African Fiction
Noting that the official colonial independence of most African countries dates back only half a century, this course focuses on the fictive experiments of the most recent decade. A few highly controversial works from the 90’s serve as an introduction to very recent work. Most works are in English. To experience depth as well as breadth, there is a small cluster of works from South Africa. With novels and tales from elsewhere on the huge African continent, we will get a glimpse of “living in the present” in history and letters.

ENGL B390 Medieval Race
Examines how late medieval writers understood racial, cultural, and ethnic differences, exploring how “race” can be understood as multiple systems of power that link together cultural and religious identities, the body, and performance. Focuses on medieval vocabularies and depictions of racial and cultural difference, community-formation, and “foreignness.”

ENGL B398 Senior Seminar
Required preparation for ENGL 399 (Senior Essay).
Through weekly seminar meetings and regular writing and research assignments, students will design a senior essay topic or topics of their choice, frame exciting and practical questions about it, and develop a writing plan for its execution. Students will leave the course with a departmentally approved senior essay prospectus, an annotated bibliography on their chosen area of inquiry, and 10 pages of writing towards their senior essay. Students must pass the course to enroll in ENGL 399.

The Tri-Co Environmental Studies Minor

Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges offer an interdisciplinary Tri-College Environmental Studies Minor, involving departments and faculty from the natural sciences, engineering, math, social sciences, humanities, and the arts on all three campuses. The Tri-College Environmental Studies Minor aims to bring students and faculty together to explore interactions among earth systems, human societies, and local and global environments.

The Tri-Co ES Minor aims to cultivate in students the capacity to identify and confront key environmental issues through a blend of multiple disciplines, encompassing historical, cultural, economic, political, scientific, and ethical modes of inquiry. Acknowledging the reciprocal dimensions of materiality and culture in the historical formations of environments, this program is broadly framed by a series of interlocking dialogues: between the “natural” and the “built”; between the local and the global; and between the human and the nonhuman.

The minor consists of six courses, including an introductory course and a capstone course, and the courses may be completed at any of the three campuses (or any combination thereof). To declare the minor, students should contact the Environmental Studies director at their home campus.

Minor Requirements

The Environmental Studies Interdisciplinary Minor consists of six courses, as follows:

1. A required introductory course to be taken prior to the senior year. This may be ENVS 101 at Bryn Mawr or Haverford or the parallel course at Swarthmore College (ENVS 001). Any one of these courses will satisfy the requirement, and students may take no more than one such course for credit toward the minor.

2. Four elective course credits from approved lists of core and cognate courses, including two credits in each of the following two categories (A and B). No more than one cognate course credit may be used for each category (see course list below for more information about core and cognate courses). Students are encouraged to count no more than one elective from their major field toward the minor, and to pay close attention to rules for double-counting on their home campuses and in their major departments.

A) Environmental Science, Engineering & Math: courses that build understanding and knowledge of scientific methods and theories, and that explore how these can be applied in identifying and addressing environmental challenges. At least one of the courses in this category should have a laboratory component.

B) Environmental Social Sciences, Humanities & Arts: courses that build understanding and knowledge of social and political structures as well as ethical considerations, and how these inform our individual and collective responses to environments.

3. A senior seminar with culminating work that reflects tangible research design and inquiry. Bryn Mawr College and Haverford College’s ENVS 397 (Environmental Studies Senior Seminar, co-taught by faculty members from Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges) and Swarthmore College’s ENVS 091 (Environmental Studies Capstone Seminar) satisfy the requirement.

Core Courses for the Environmental Studies Minor

- Every student should take an introductory course (101 or 001) before the senior year
- Every student should take a capstone course (397 or 091) during the senior year

Bryn Mawr
ENVS B101 Introduction to Environmental Studies
ENVS B397 Environmental Studies Senior Seminar

Haverford
ENVS H101 Case Studies in Environmental Issues
ENVS H397 Environmental Studies Senior Seminar

Swarthmore
ENVS S001 Introduction to Environmental Studies
ENVS S091 Environmental Studies Capstone Seminar

Approved Electives for the Environmental Studies Minor

- Two courses are required from each category (A and B).
- At least one course in Category A should have a lab.
- Only one course in each category may be a “cognate” course. Cognate courses, marked with an asterisk, are valuable for the minor but are not as centrally focused on environmental studies methodologies and materials as other courses on the list.
- Pay close attention to “double-counting” rules for your major. You are encouraged to choose electives outside of your major.

COURSES

ANTH B203 Human Ecology
The relationship of humans with their environment; culture as an adaptive mechanism and a dynamic component in ecological systems. Human ecological perspectives are compared with other theoretical orientations in anthropology. Prerequisites: ANTH 101, 102, or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B237 Environmental Health
This course introduces principles and methods in environmental anthropology and public health used to analyze global environmental health problems globally and develop health and disease control programs. Topics covered include risk; health and environment; food production and consumption; human health and agriculture; meat and poultry production; and culture, urbanization, and disease. Prerequisite: ANTH 102; permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s):Pashigian,M.
(Fall 2012)
Instructor(s):Hein,C.
(Spring 2013)

ARCH B245 The Archaeology of Water
This course examines the distribution of water throughout the Middle East and Mediterranean and the archaeology of water exploitation and management over the last 12,000 years. Recent anthropological models that challenge the concept of "hydraulic civilization" are emphasized as are contemporary attempts to revive traditional and ancient technologies to preserve and better manage modern water resources.
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Geoarchaeology
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; BIOL-B328; GEOL-B328
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B210 Biology and Public Policy
A lecture/discussion course on major issues and advances in biology and their implications for public policy decisions. Topics discussed include reproductive technologies, genetic screening and gene therapy, environmental health hazards, and euthanasia and organ transplantation. Readings include scientific articles, public policy and ethical considerations, and lay publications. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: two quarters of BIOL 110-113, or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s):Greif,K.
(Spring 2013)

BIOL B220 Ecology
A study of the interactions between organisms and their environments. The scientific underpinnings of current environmental issues, with regard to human impacts, are also discussed. Students will also become familiar with ecological principles and with the methods ecologists use to address ecological issues. Students will apply these principles through the design and implementation of experiments both in the laboratory and the field. Lecture three hours a week, laboratory/field investigation three hours a week. There will be optional field trips throughout the semester. Prerequisite: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s):Mozdzer,T.
(Fall 2012)

BIOL B225 Biology of Plants
In-depth examination of the structures and processes underlying survival, growth, reproduction, competition and diversity in plants. Three hours of lecture a week. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
BIOL B250 Computational Methods in the Sciences
A study of how and why modern computation methods are used in scientific inquiry. Students will learn basic principles of simulation-based programming through hands-on exercises. Content will focus on the development of population models, beginning with simple exponential growth and ending with spatially-explicit individual-based simulations. Students will design and implement a final project from their own disciplines. Six hours of combined lecture/lab per week. Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B250; GEOL-B250 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B309 Biological Oceanography
A comprehensive examination of the principal ecosystems of the world’s oceans, emphasizing the biotic and abiotic factors that contribute to the distribution of marine organisms. A variety of marine ecosystems are examined, including rocky intertidal, and hydrocarbon seeps, with an emphasis on the distinctive characteristics of each system and the assemblage of organisms associated with each system. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. One required three-day field trip, for which an extra fee is collected, and other occasional field trips as allowed for by scheduling. Prerequisites: two quarters of BIOL 110-113 and one 200-level science course, or permission of instructor. Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Gardiner,S. (Spring 2013)

BIOL B320 Evolutionary Ecology
This course will examine how phenotypic variation in organisms is optimized and constrained by ecological and evolutionary factors. We will cover concepts and case studies in life history evolution, behavioral ecology, and population ecology with an emphasis on both mathematical and experimental approaches. Recommended Prerequisites: BIOL B111-B114 or BIOL B220 Requirement(s): Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

BIOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning. Counts toward: Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; ARCH-B328; GEOL-B328 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CHEM B206 The Science of Renewable Energy
In this course the chemistry and physics of renewable energy, including solar, wind, geothermal and others, will be explored. Methodologies for energy storage will also be discussed. Quantitative tools will be developed to enable students to make effective and accurate comparisons between various types of energy generation processes. Prerequisites: completion of CHEM 103 and CHEM 104 with merit grades in both, or permission of instructor. Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Goldsmith,J. (Fall 2012)

CITY B103 Earth System Science and the Environment
This integrated approach to studying the Earth focuses on interactions among geology, oceanography, and biology. Also discussed are the consequences of population growth, industrial development, and human land use. Two lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork per week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): GEOL-B103 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s):Elkins,L., Barber,D. (Spring 2013)

CITY B175 Environment and Society: History, Place, and Problems
Introduces the ideas, themes, and methodologies of the interdisciplinary field of environmental studies beginning with definitions: what is nature? What is environment? And how do people and their settlements fit into each? The course then moves to distinct disciplinary approaches in which scholarship can and does (and does not) inform our perceptions of the environment. Assignments introduce methodologies of environmental studies, requiring reading landscapes, working with census data and government reports, critically interpreting scientific data, and analyzing work of experts. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B175 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)
CITY B201 Introduction to GIS for Social and Environmental Analysis
This course is designed to introduce the foundations of GIS with emphasis on applications for social and environmental analysis. It deals with basic principles of GIS and its use in spatial analysis and information management. Ultimately, students will design and carry out research projects on topics of their own choosing.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Hager, C. (Spring 2013)

CITY B204 Economics of Local Environmental Programs
Considers the determinants of human impact on the environment at the neighborhood or community level and policy responses available to local government. How can economics help solve and learn from the problems facing rural and suburban communities? The instructor was a local township supervisor who will share the day-to-day challenges of coping with land use planning, waste disposal, dispute resolution, and the provision of basin services. Prerequisite: ECON 105
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B242
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Ross, D. (Spring 2013)

CITY B210 Natural Hazards
A quantitative approach to understanding the earth processes that impact human societies. We consider the past, current, and future hazards presented by geologic processes, including earthquakes, volcanoes, landslides, floods, and hurricanes. The course includes discussion of the social, economic, and policy contexts within which natural geologic processes become hazards. Case studies are drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Lecture three hours a week, with one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: one semester of college science or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): GEOL-B209
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues
An exploration of the ways in which different cultural, economic, and political settings have shaped issue emergence and policy making. We examine the politics of particular environmental issues in selected countries and regions. We also assess the prospects for international cooperation in solving global environmental problems such as climate change.

CITY B237 Urbanization in Africa
The course examines the cultural, environmental, economic, political, and social factors that contributed to the expansion and transformation of preindustrial cities, colonial cities, and cities today. We will examine various themes, such as the relationship between cities and societies; migration and social change; urban space, health problems, city life, and women.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B237
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B241 Building Green: Sustainable Design Past and Present
At a time when more than half of the human population lives in cities, the design of the urban environment is a key aspect of environmental studies. This course is designed for students to investigate issues of sustainable architecture and urban design in past and present.
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B250 Topics in Growth and Spatial Organization of the City
This is a topics course. Topics vary. In Fall 2012 it will focus on the recent history of U.S. cities as both physical spaces and social entities. How have the definitions, political roles, and social perceptions of U.S. cities changed since 1900? And how have those shifts, along with changes in transportation, communication, construction, and other technologies affected both the people and places that comprise U.S. cities?
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Instructor(s): Stroud, E. (Fall 2012)

CITY B278 American Environmental History
This course explores major themes of American environmental history, examining changes in the American landscape, development of ideas about nature and the history of environmental activism. Students will study definitions of nature, environment, and environmental history while investigating interactions between Americans and their physical worlds.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Crosslisting(s): HiST-B278

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Stroud, E.

(Spring 2013)

CITY B279 Cities and the Human Dimensions of Global Environmental Change

In this course, we focus on the human dimensions of global environmental change, especially as it relates to urban sustainability. While sustainability has often narrowly been viewed in environmental terms, we will analyze social and environmental justice as integral components of urban sustainability.

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B321 Technology and Politics

An analysis of the complex role of technology in political and social life. We focus on the relationship between technological development and democratic governance. Discussion of theoretical approaches is supplemented by case studies of particular issues, such as electoral politics, warfare and terrorism, social networking and citizen mobilization, climate change, agriculture and food safety.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Crosslisting(s): POLS-B321

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS

Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B328; BIOL-B328; GEOL-B328

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B329 Advanced Topics in Urban Environments

This is a topics course. Topics vary.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Stroud, E.

(Spring 2013)
EAST B362 Environment in Contemporary East Asia: China and Japan
This seminar explores environmental issues in contemporary East Asia from a historical perspective. It will explore the common and different environmental problems in Japan and China, and explain and interpret their causal factors and solving measures in cultural traditions, social movements, economic growth, political and legal institutions and practices, international cooperation and changing perceptions. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or above.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ECON B225 Economic Development
Examination of the issues related to and the policies designed to promote economic development in the developing economies of Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. Focus is on why some developing economies grow faster than others and why some growth paths are more equitable, poverty reducing, and environmentally sustainable than others. Includes consideration of the impact of international trade and investment policy, macroeconomic policies (exchange rate, monetary and fiscal policy) and sector policies (industry, agriculture, education, population, and environment) on development outcomes in a wide range of political and institutional contexts. Prerequisite: ECON 105.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B225
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Stahnke, R.
(Spring 2013)

ECON B234 Environmental Economics
Introduction to the use of economic analysis explain the underlying behavioral causes of environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate policy responses to them. Topics may include air and water pollution; the economic theory of externalities, public goods and the depletion of resources; cost-benefit analysis; valuing non-market benefits and costs; economic justice; and sustainable development. Writing Intensive. Course counts as Writing Intensive Course. Prerequisites: ECON 105
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B234
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rock, M.
(Fall 2012)

ECON B242 Economics of Local Environmental Programs
Considers the determinants of human impact on the environment at the neighborhood or community level and policy responses available to local government. How can economics help solve and learn from the problems facing rural and suburban communities? The instructor was a local township supervisor who will share the day-to-day challenges of coping with land use planning, waste disposal, dispute resolution, and the provision of basis services. Prerequisite: ECON 105
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B204
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross, D.
(Spring 2013)

EDUC B268 Educating for Ecological Literacy
This course examines how education can help people deeply understand and constructively respond to real, complex challenges such as managing shared resources. We consider policies and practices that can empower educators, students, and communities to become "ecologically literate" agents of change for a more sustainable and socially equitable world. Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B204 Literatures of American Expansion
This course will explore the relationship between U.S. narratives that understand national expansion as "manifest destiny" and narratives that understand the same phenomenon as imperial conquest. We will ask why the ingredients of such fictions—dangerous savages, empty landscapes, easy money, and lawless violence—often combine to make the master narrative of "America," and we will explore how and where that master narrative breaks down. Critical readings will engage discourses of nation, empire, violence, race, and sexuality. Texts will include novels, travel narratives, autobiographies, legal documents, and cultural ephemera.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B251 Food for Thought: Gastronomic Literatures and Philosophies
Through the lens of “food and text,” this course will trace the philosophy of food and the history of food writing. We will study how food has been written about and how food writing has responded to and played a role in cultural change.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B268 Native Soil and American Literature: 1492-1900
This course will consider the literature of contact and conflict between English-speaking whites and Native Americans between the years 1492 and 1920. We will focus on how these cultures understood the meaning and uses of land, and the effects of these literatures of encounter upon American land and ecology and vice-versa. Texts will include works by Native, European- and African-American writers, and may include texts by Christopher Columbus, John Smith, William Bradford, Handsome Lake, Samson Occom, Lydia Maria Child, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Sarah Winnemucca Hopkins, John Rollin Ridge, Mark Twain, Mourning Dove, Ella Deloria and Willa Cather.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B275 Food Revolutions: History, Politics, Culture
This course traces an arc from the industrial revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries through to the present day food crisis. We will explore the cultural, political, philosophical, ethical and ecological histories of what and how we eat, and look towards sustainable, biodiverse and local agriculture.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B313 Ecological Imaginings
Re-thinking the evolving nature of representation, with a focus on language as a link between natural and cultural ecosystems. We will observe the world; read classical and cutting edge ecocritical, ecoliterary, ecofeminist, and ecocritical theory, along with a wide range of exploratory, speculative, and imaginative essays and stories; and seek a variety of ways of expressing our own ecological interests.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Dalke, A.
(Fall 2012)

ENVS B101 Introduction to Environmental Studies
This interdisciplinary introduction to Environmental Studies Minor examines the ideas, themes and methodologies of humanists, social scientists, and natural scientists in order to understand what they have to offer each other in the study of the environment, and how their inquiries can be strengthened when working in concert.
Counts towards: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber, D., Stroud, E.
(Fall 2012)

ENVS B403 Independent Study
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

ENVS B415 Teaching Assistant
An exploration of course planning, pedagogy and creative thinking as students work to help others understand pathways they have already explored in introductory and writing classes. This opportunity is available only to advanced students of highest standing by professorial invitation.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Stroud, E.
(Fall 2012)

GEOL B101 How the Earth Works
An introduction to the study of planet Earth—the materials of which it is made, the forces that shape its surface and interior, the relationship of geological processes to people, and the application of geological knowledge to the search for useful materials. Laboratory and fieldwork focus on learning the tools for geological investigations and applying them to the local area and selected areas around the world. Three lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork a week. One required one-day field trip on a weekend.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Elkins, L., Weil, A.

(Fall 2012)

GEOL B103 Earth Systems and the Environment
This integrated approach to studying the Earth focuses on interactions among geology, oceanography, and biology. Also discussed are the consequences of population growth, industrial development, and human land use. Two lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork per week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April.
within which natural geologic processes become hazards. Case studies are drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Lecture three hours a week, with one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: one semester of college science or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CIST-B210
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B250 Computational Methods in the Sciences
A study of how and why modern computation methods are used in scientific inquiry. Students will learn basic principles of simulation-based programming through hands-on exercises. Content will focus on the development of population models, beginning with simple exponential growth and ending with spatially-explicit individual-based simulations. Students will design and implement a final project from their own disciplines. Six hours of combined lecture/lab per week.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B250; CMSC-B250
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B302 Low-Temperature Geochemistry
The geochemistry of Earth surface processes. Emphasis is on the chemistry of surface waters, atmosphere-water environmental chemistry, chemical evolution of natural waters, and pollution issues. Fundamental principles are applied to natural systems with particular focus on environmental chemistry. One required field trip on a weekend. Prerequisites: CHEM 103, 104 and GEOL 202 or two 200-level chemistry courses, or permission of instructor. (Cull).
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B314 Marine Geology
An introduction to the structure of ocean basins, and the marine sedimentary record. Includes an overview of physical, biological, and chemical oceanography, and modern coastal processes such as shoreline erosion. Meets twice weekly for a combination of lecture, discussion and hands-on exercises, including one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: GEOL 101, 102 or 103, and 205, or permission of instructor.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
GEOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; ARCH-B328; BIOL-B328
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B212 Pirates, Travelers, and Natural Historians: 1492-1750
In the early modern period, conquistadors, missionaries, travelers, pirates, and natural historians wrote interesting texts in which they tried to integrate the New World into their existing frameworks of knowledge. This intellectual endeavor was an adjunct to the physical conquest of American space, and provides a framework through which we will explore the processes of imperial competition, state formation, and indigenous and African resistance to colonialism.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B237 Themes in Modern African History
The course examines the cultural, environmental, economic, political, and social factors that contributed to the expansion and transformation of preindustrial cities, colonial cities, and cities today. We will examine various themes, such as the relationship between cities and societies; migration and social change; urban space, health problems, city life, and women. Counts toward Africana Studies and Environmental Studies.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Environmental Studies

HIST B352 China’s Environment
This seminar explores China’s environmental issues from a historical perspective. It begins by considering a range of analytical approaches, and then explores three general periods in China’s environmental changes, imperial times, Mao’s socialist experiments during the first thirty years of the People’s Republic, and the post-Mao reforms. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): EAST-B352
Units: 1.0
(In Offered 2012-13)

MATH B210 Differential Equations with Applications
Ordinary differential equations, including general first-order equations, linear equations of higher order and systems of equations, via numerical, geometrical, and analytic methods. Applications to physics, biology, and economics. Corequisite: MATH 201 or 203.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)

MATH B295 Select Topics in Mathematics
This year’s topic is mathematical modeling of real world problems. We will examine a variety of different types of models with a focus on discrete time systems. Prerequisites: MATH 102 and MATH 203 or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V.
(Spring 2013)

PHIL B240 Environmental Ethics
This course surveys rights- and justice-based justifications for ethical positions on the environment. It examines approaches such as stewardship, intrinsic value, land ethic, deep ecology, ecofeminism, Asian and aboriginal. It explores issues such as obligations to future generations, to nonhumans and to the biosphere.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B240
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues: Policy Making in Comparative Perspective
An exploration of the ways in which different cultural, economic, and political settings have shaped issue emergence and policy making. We examine the politics of particular environmental issues in selected countries and regions. We also assess the prospects for international cooperation in solving global environmental problems such as climate change.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B222
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hager, C.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B240 Environmental Ethics
This course surveys rights- and justice-based justifications for ethical positions on the environment. It examines approaches such as stewardship, intrinsic value, land ethic, deep ecology, ecofeminism, Asian and aboriginal. It explores issues such as obligations to future generations, to nonhumans and to the biosphere.

POLS B278 Oil, Politics, Society, and Economy
Examines the role oil has played in transforming societies, in shaping national politics, and in the distribution of wealth within and between nations. Rentier states and authoritarianism, the historical relationships between oil companies and states, monopolies, boycotts, sanctions and demands for succession, and issues of social justice mark the political economy of oil.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B310 Comparative Public Policy
A comparison of policy processes and outcomes across space and time. Focusing on particular issues such as health care, domestic security, water and land use, we identify institutional, historical, and cultural factors that shape policies. We also examine the growing importance of international-level policy making and the interplay between international and domestic pressures on policy makers. Prerequisite is one course in Political Science or public policy.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hager, C.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B321 Technology and Politics
An analysis of the complex role of technology in political and social life. We focus on the relationship between technological development and democratic governance. Discussion of theoretical approaches is supplemented by case studies of particular issues, such as electoral politics, warfare and terrorism, social networking and citizen mobilization, climate change, agriculture and food safety.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B321
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B354 Comparative Social Movements
A consideration of the conceptualizations of power and “legitimate” and “illegitimate” participation, the political opportunity structure facing potential activists, the mobilizing resources available to them, and the cultural framing within which these processes occur. Specific attention is paid to recent movements within and across countries, such as feminist, environmental, and anti-globalization movements, and to emerging forms of citizen mobilization, including transnational and global networks, electronic mobilization, and collaborative policymaking institutions.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B354
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
SOCL B165 Problems in the Natural and Built Environment

This course situates the development of sociology as responding to major social problems in the natural and built environment. It demonstrates why the key theoretical developments and empirical findings of sociology are crucial in understanding how these problems develop, persist and are addressed or fail to be addressed.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SOCL B175 Environment and Society

Introduces the ideas, themes, and methodologies of the interdisciplinary field of environmental studies beginning with definitions: what is nature? What is environment? And how do people and their settlements fit into each? The course then moves to distinct disciplinary approaches in which scholarship can and does (and does not) inform our perceptions of the environment. Assignments introduce methodologies of environmental studies, requiring reading landscapes, working with census data and government reports, critically interpreting scientific data, and analyzing work of experts. (Division I; cross-listed as CITY B175)

Crosslisting(s): CITY-B175
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SOCL B247 Environmental Social Problems

This course examines environmental social problems from a constructionist perspective. We will examine how environmental problems become public problems that receive attention, money and widespread concern.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SOCL B316 Science, Culture and Society

Science is a powerful institution in American life, with extensive political and personal consequences. Through case studies and cross-disciplinary readings, this course challenges students to examine the social forces that influence how science is produced and used in public (and private) debates. Prerequisite: one course in Sociology, or the consent of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SOCL B346 Advanced Topics in Environment and Society

This is a topics course. Topics vary.

FILM STUDIES

Students may complete a minor in Film Studies.

Faculty

Erica Cho, Visiting Assistant Professor in History of Art and Film Studies

Timothy Harte, Chair and Associate Professor of Russian

Homay King, Associate Professor of History of Art

Steven Levine, Chair and Professor of History of Art on the Leslie Clark Professorship in the Humanities

Imke Meyer, Co-Chair and Professor of German and German Studies Program on the Helen Hermann Chair

Hoang Nguyen, Assistant Professor of English and Film Studies

Roberta Ricci, Chair and Associate Professor of Italian and Director of Film Studies

Azade Seyhan, Fairbank Professor in the Humanities, Professor of German and Comparative Literature, Interim Chair of German, and Director of Comparative Literature

H. Rosi Song, Chair and Associate Professor of Spanish

Michael Tratner, Mary E. Garrett Alumnae Professor of English

Sharon Ullman, Professor of History and Director of Gender and Sexuality Studies

Film Studies is an interdisciplinary program of inquiry bringing a range of analytical methods to bear upon films, film audiences, and the social and industrial contexts of film and media production, distribution and exhibition. The courses that comprise the minor in film studies reflect the diversity of approaches in the academic study of cinema. The minor is anchored by core courses in formal analysis, history and theory. Elective courses in particular film styles, directors, national cinemas, genres, areas of theory and criticism, video production, and issues in film and media culture add both breadth and depth to this program of study.

Film Studies is a Bryn Mawr College minor. Students must take a majority of courses on the Bryn Mawr campus; however, minors are encouraged to consider courses offered in the Tri-College consortium and at the University of Pennsylvania. Students should work with the director of the Film Studies Program to develop a minor work plan when declaring the minor.

Minor Requirements

In consultation with the program director, students design a program of study that includes a range of film genres, styles, national cinemas, eras and disciplinary and methodological approaches. Students are strongly encouraged to take at least one course addressing topics in global or non-western cinema. The minor consists of a total of six courses and must include the following:

- One introductory course in the formal analysis of film
- One course in film history or an area of film history
- One course in film theory or an area of film theory
- Three electives.

At least one of the six courses must be at the 300 level. Courses that fall into two or more of the above categories may fulfill the requirement of the student’s choosing, but may not fulfill more than one requirement simultaneously. Students should consult with their advisers to determine which courses, if any, may count simultaneously for multiple credentials. Final approval is at the discretion of the program director.

COURSES

ARTW B266 Screenwriting

An introduction to screenwriting. Issues basic to the art of storytelling in film will be addressed and analyzed: character, dramatic structure, theme, setting, image, sound. The course focuses on the film adaptation; readings include novels, screenplays, and short stories. Films adapted from the readings will be screened. In the course of the semester, students will be expected to outline and complete the first act of an adapted screenplay of their own.

ENGL B236 Video Practices: From Analog to Digital
This course explores the history and theory of video art from the late 1960’s to the present. The units include: aesthetics; activism; access; performance;
Movies and mass politics emerged together, altering entertainment and government in strangely similar ways. Fascism and communism claimed an inherent relation to the masses and hence to movies; Hollywood rejected such claims. We will examine films alluding to fascism or communism, to understand them as commenting on political debates and on the mass experience of movie going.

ENGL B324 Topics in Shakespeare: Shakespeare on Film
Films and play texts vary from year to year. The course assumes significant prior experience of Shakespearean drama and/or Renaissance drama.

ENGL B299 History of Narrative Cinema, 1945 to the Present
This course surveys the history of narrative film from 1945 through the contemporary moment. We will analyze a series of styles and national cinemas in chronological order, including Italian Neorealism, the French New Wave, and other post-war movements and genres. Viewings of canonical films will be supplemented by more recent examples of global cinema. While historical in approach, this course emphasizes the theory and criticism of the sound film, and we will consider various methodological approaches to the aesthetic, socio-political, and psychological dimensions of cinema.

ENGL B306 Film Theory
This course covers a selection of key texts in film theory. Our primary method of inquiry will be close analysis of primary theoretical texts. Topics of discussion may include: the ontology of the photographic image, the ethics of cinema, cinematic space and temporality, and film theory’s relationship to other forms of visual media. Film screenings will serve to illustrate and complicate theoretical concepts. Fulfills the theory requirement for Film Studies minors.

ENGL B323 Movies, Fascism, and Communism
Movies and mass politics emerged together, altering entertainment and government in strangely similar ways. Fascism and communism claimed an inherent relation to the masses and hence to movies; Hollywood rejected such claims. We will examine films alluding to fascism or communism, to understand them as commenting on political debates and on the mass experience of movie going.

ENGL B367 Asian American Film Video and New Media
The course explores the role of pleasure in the production, reception, and performance of Asian American identities in film, video, and the internet, taking as its focus the sexual representation of Asian Americans in works produced by Asian American artists from 1915 to present. In several units of the course, we will study graphic sexual representations, including pornographic images and sex acts some may find objectionable. Students should be prepared to engage analytically with all class material. To maintain an atmosphere of mutual respect and solidarity among the participants in the class, no auditors will be allowed.

HART B205 Introduction to Film
This course is intended to provide students with the tools of critical film analysis. Through readings of images and sounds, sections of films and entire narratives, students will cultivate the habits of critical viewing and establish a foundation for focused work in film studies. The course introduces formal and technical units of cinematic meaning and categories of genre and history that add up to the experiences and meanings we call cinema. Although much of the course material will focus on the Hollywood style of film, examples will be drawn from the history of cinema. Attendance at weekly screenings is mandatory.

Students may complete a major in Fine Arts at Haverford College.

Faculty

Markus Baenziger, Associate Professor
John Goodrich, Instructor
Hee Sook Kim, Associate Professor
Vita Litvak, Visiting Assistant Professor
Elizabeth Whalley, Visiting Assistant Professor
William E. Williams, Professor and Curator of Photography
Ying Li, Professor

The fine arts courses offered by the department are structured to accomplish the following: (1) For students not majoring in fine arts: to develop a visual perception of form and to present knowledge and understanding of it in works of art. (2) For students intending to major in fine arts: beyond the foregoing, to promote thinking in visual terms and to foster the skills needed to give expression to these in a coherent body of art works.

Major Requirements

Fine arts majors are required to concentrate in either painting, drawing, sculpture, photography or printmaking: four 100 level foundation courses in each discipline; two different 200 level courses outside the area of concentration; two 200 level courses and one 300-level course within that area; three art history courses to be taken at Bryn Mawr College or equivalent; and Senior Departmental Studies 499. For majors intending to do graduate work, it is strongly recommended that they take an additional 300 level studio course within their area of concentration and an additional art history course at Bryn Mawr College.

COURSES

ARTS H101 Arts Foundation-Drawing (2-D)

A seven-week introductory course for students with little or no experience in drawing. Students will first learn how to see with a painter’s eye. Composition, perspective, proportion, light, form, picture plane and other fundamentals will be studied. We will work from live models, still life, landscape, imagination and masterwork. Prerequisite: Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class.

Y.Li
ARTS H102 Arts Foundation-Drawing
This is a seven week course designed to provide an overview of basic drawing techniques addressing line, form, space, and composition. Various drawing methods will be introduced in class, and students will gain experience in drawing by working from still life, models, and the landscape. Students will explore a range of materials, wet, dry, collage, and some projects are designed to expand on the idea of drawing with three-dimensional concepts. Prerequisite: Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class.
M.Baenziger

ARTS H103 Arts Foundation-Photography
Prerequisite: Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class.
W.Williams

ARTS H104 Arts Foundation-Sculpture
This is a seven week, half semester course designed to provide an introduction to three dimensional concepts and techniques. Skills associated with organizing and constructing three-dimensional form will be addressed through a series of projects within a contemporary context. The first projects will focus on basic three-dimensional concepts, while later projects will allow for greater individual self-expression and exploration. Various fabrication skills including construction, modeling, basic mold making, and casting will be demonstrated in class. All fabrication techniques will be covered in detail in class, and no prior experience is required to successfully complete this course. Important: ARTSH106(Foundation Drawing 3D) is the first half of each semester and ARTSH104 (Foundation Sculpture) is the second half of each semester. Students interested in taking Foundation Sculpture must attend the first day of ARTSH106 Foundation Drawing to enter lotto for Foundation Sculpture. If unable to attend first class of the semester email the professor. Prerequisite: Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class.
M.Baenziger

ARTS H106 Arts Foundation-Drawing (3-D)
This is a seven week, half semester course designed to provide an overview of basic drawing techniques addressing line, form, space, and composition. Various drawing methods will be introduced in class, and students will gain experience in drawing by working from still life, models, and the landscape. Students will explore a range of materials, wet, dry, collage, and some projects are designed to expand on the idea of drawing with three-dimensional concepts. ARTSH106 is only offered the first half of each semester with ARTSH104(Foundation Sculpture) offered the second half of each semester. If unable to attend first day of class email professor. Prerequisite: None. Over-enrollment will be determined by lottery. Preference to declared majors who need Foundations, and to students who have entered the lottery for the same Foundations course at least once without success. Enrollment limited to 15 students.
M.Baenziger

ARTS H107 Arts Foundation-Painting
A seven-week introductory course for students with little or no experience in painting. Students will be first introduced to the handling of basic tools, materials and techniques. We will study the color theory such as interaction of color, value & color, warms & cools, complementary colors, optical mixture, texture, surface quality. We will work from live model, still life, landscape, imagination and masterwork. Prerequisite: Preference to declared majors who need Foundations, and to students who have entered the lottery for the same Foundations course at least once without success. Preference will also be given to students with Foundations-Drawing experience. Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class.
Y.Li

ARTS H108 Arts Foundation-Photography
Prerequisite: Overenrollment will be determined by lottery conducted by Prof. on the first day of class. Course is a repeat of 103D/108H.
W.Williams

ARTS H109 Arts Foundation-Sculpture
This is a seven week course designed to provide an introduction to three dimensional concepts and techniques. Skills associated with organizing and constructing three-dimensional form will be addressed through a series of projects within a contemporary context. The first projects will focus on basic three-dimensional concepts, while later projects will allow for greater individual self-expression and exploration. M.Baenziger

ARTS H120 Foundation Printmaking: Silkscreen
A seven-week course covering various techniques and approaches to silkscreen, including painterly monoprint, stencils, direct drawing and photo-silkscreen. Emphasizing the expressive potential of the medium
ARTS H216 History of Photography from 1839 to the Present
An introductory survey course about the history of photography from its beginnings in 1839 to the present. The goal is to understand how photography has altered perceptions about the past, created a new art form, and become a hallmark of modern society. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing
W.Williams

ARTS H217 The History of African-American Art from 1619 to the Present
A survey course documenting and interpreting the development and history of African-American Art from 1619 to present day. Representative works from the art and rare book collections will supplement course readings. Prerequisite: Any HART Course, 200 level ARTS Studio Course, Anthropology of Art, AFST course.
W.Williams

ARTS H218 Chinese Calligraphy As An Art Form
This course combines studio practice and creating art projects with slide lectures, readings, and museum visits. Students will study the art of Chinese Calligraphy, and its connection with Western art. No Chinese language required.
Y.Li

ARTS H223 Printmaking: Materials and Techniques: Etching
Concepts and techniques of B/W & Color Intaglio. Line etching, aquatint, soft and hard ground, chin-colle techniques will be explored as well as visual concepts. Developing personal statements will be encouraged. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor by review of portfolio
H.Kim

ARTS H224 Computer and Printmaking
Computer-generated images and printmaking techniques. Students will create photographic, computer processed, and directly drawn images on lithographic polyester plates and zinc etching plates. Classwork will be divided between the computer lab and the printmaking studio to create images using both image processing software and traditional printmaking methods, including lithography, etching, and silk-screen. Broad experimental approaches to printmaking and computer techniques will be encouraged. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: An intro printmaking course or permission by portfolio review.
H.Kim
ARTS H225 Lithography: Material and Techniques
An intermediate course covering B/W and Color Lithography in plates and stones. Combined methods with other printmaking techniques such as Paper lithography and Monotype are explored during the course along with photographic approaches. An edition of images is required along with experimental ones. Development of technical skills in traditional Lithography and personal visual study are necessary with successful creative solutions. A strong body of work following a specific theme is required. Individual discussions and group critiques are held periodically. Additional research on the history of printmaking is requested. Prerequisite: Permission of Instructor by review of portfolio.
H.Kim

ARTS H231 Drawing (2-D): All Media
Students are encouraged to experiment with various drawing media and to explore the relationships between media, techniques and expression. Each student will strive to develop a personal approach to drawing while addressing fundamental issues of pictorial space, structure, scale, and rhythm. Students will work from observation, conceptual ideas and imagination. Course includes drawing projects, individual and group crits, slide lectures, museum and gallery visits. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent.
Y.Li

ARTS H233 Painting: Materials and Techniques
Students are encouraged to experiment with various painting techniques and materials in order to develop a personal approach to self-expression. We will emphasize form, color, texture, and the relationship among them; influences of various techniques upon the expression of a work; the characteristics and limitations of different media. Students will work from observation, conceptual ideas and imagination. Course includes drawing projects, individual and group crits, slide lectures, museum and gallery visits. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent.
Y.Li

ARTS H243 Sculpture: Materials and Techniques
This course is designed to give students an in depth introduction to a comprehensive range of three-dimensional concepts and fabrication techniques. Emphasis will be on wood and metal working, and additional processes such as casting procedures for a range of synthetic materials will be introduced in class. Students will be encouraged to develop their own visual vocabulary and to understand their ideas in the context of contemporary sculpture. Projects are designed to provide students with a framework to explore all sculptural techniques introduced in class while developing their own personal form of visual expression.
Course may be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent.
M.Baenziger

ARTS H251 Photography: Materials and Techniques
Students are encouraged to develop an individual approach to photography. Emphasis is placed on the creation of black and white photographic prints which express plastic form, emotions and ideas about the physical world. Work is critiqued weekly to give critical insights into editing of individual student work and the use of the appropriate black and white photographic materials necessary to give coherence to that work. Study of the photography collection, gallery and museum exhibitions, lectures, and a critical analysis of photographic sequences in books and a research project supplement the weekly critiques. In addition students produce a handmade archival box to house their work which is organized into a loose sequence and mounted to archival standards. Prerequisite: Fine Arts 103 or equivalent.
W.Williams

ARTS H253 The Theory and Practice of Conceptual Art
In this course, the specific mid-20th C movement called Conceptual Art will be explored, as will its progenitors and its progeny. Students will study the founding manifestos, the canonical works and their critical appraisals, as well as develop tightly structured studio practica to embody the former research. The course invites artists, writers, activists, & cultural thinkers, those who want to know what it is to make things, spaces, situations, communities, allies, & trouble -- without necessarily knowing how to draw, paint, sculpt, photograph, videotape, or film.
J.Muse

ARTS H260 Photography: Materials and Techniques
Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent.
W.Williams

ARTS H321 Experimental Studio: Etching
An advanced course covers Color Etching using multiple plates. Viscosity printing, line etching, aquatint, soft-ground, surface roll, Chin-collé, plate preparation, registration, and editioning are covered. Students study techniques and concepts in Intaglio method as well as visual expressions through hands-on experiences. Development of technical skills of Intaglio and personal visual study are necessary and creative and experimental approaches beyond two-dimensional outcomes encouraged. A strong body of work following a specific theme is required. Individual discussions and group critiques are held periodically. Additional research on the history of printmaking is requested. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor by review of portfolio.
H.Kim
ARTS H322 Experimental Studio: Printmaking: Lithography
An advanced course explores traditional and experimental lithographic printmaking techniques in multiple plates and stones. Two- and three- dimensional design and drawing exploration in color also are addressed. During the semester, students use multiple-plate and stone lithography in colors. Registration, color separation, and edition are taught at an advanced level. Combining other mediums can be explored individually. Development of technical skills of the Lithographic process with personal visual study is necessary and creative and experimental approaches are highly encouraged. A strong body of work following a specific theme is required. Individual discussions and group critiques are held periodically. Additional research on the history of printmaking is requested. Prerequisite: One course in printmaking or consent.
H.Kim

ARTS H327 Experimental Studio: Lithography and Intaglio
Concepts and techniques of black and white and color lithography. The development of a personal direction is encouraged. Prerequisite: A foundation drawing course and Foundation Printmaking, or permission of instructor H.Kim

ARTS H331 Experimental Studio: Drawing (2-D)
Students will build on the work done in 200 level courses, to develop further their individual approach to drawing. Students are expected to create projects that demonstrate the unique character of drawing in making their own art. Completed projects will be exhibited at the end of semester. Class will include weekly crits, museum visits, visiting artists’ lecture and crits. Each student will present a 15- minute slide talk and discussion of either their own work or the work of artists who influenced them. Prerequisite: Fine Arts 231A or B, or consent.
Y.Li

ARTS H333 Experimental Studio: Painting
Students will build on the work done in 200 level courses to develop further their individual approach to painting. Students are expected to create projects that demonstrate the unique character of their chosen media in making their own art. Completed projects will be exhibited at the end of semester. Class will include weekly crits, museum visits, visiting artists’ lecture and crits. Each student will present a 15- minute slide talk and discussion of either their own work or the work of artists who influenced them. Prerequisite: Fine Arts 223A or B, or consent.
Y.Li

ARTS H343 Experimental Studio: Sculpture
In this studio course the student is encouraged to experiment with ideas and techniques with the purpose of developing his or her individual form of expression. It is expected that the student will already have a sound knowledge of the craft and aesthetics of sculpture. Advanced three-dimensional concepts and fabrication techniques including bronze casting will be introduced in class. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts 243A or B, or consent of instructor M.Baenziger

ARTS H351 Experimental Studio: Photography
Students produce an extended sequence of their work in either book (ARTSH351A) or exhibition (ARTSH351B) format using black and white or color photographic materials. The sequence and scale of the photographic prints are determined by the nature of the student’s work. Weekly classroom critiques, supplemented by an extensive investigation of classic photographic picture books and related critical texts guide students to the completion of their course work. This two semester course consists of the book project first semester (351A) and the exhibition project second semester (351B). At the end of each semester the student may exhibit his/her project. Prerequisite: Fine Arts 251A and 260B W.Williams

ARTS H460 Teaching Assistant
H.Kim

ARTS H480 Independent Study
This course gives the advanced student the opportunity to experiment with concepts and ideas and to explore in depth his or her talent. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. H.Kim

ARTS H499 Senior Departmental Studies
The student reviews the depth and extent of experience gained, and in so doing creates a coherent body of work expressive of the student’s insights and skills. At the end of the senior year the student is expected to produce a show of his or her work. Prerequisite: Senior Majors Staff
FRENCH AND FRANCOPHONE STUDIES

Students may complete a major or minor in French and Francophone Studies. Within the major, students may complete the requirements for secondary education certification. Students may, with departmental approval, complete an M.A. in the combined A.B./M.A. program (through 2014-15 academic year).

The Departments of French at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges offer a variety of courses and two options for the major. The purpose of the major in French is to lay the foundation for an understanding and appreciation of French and Francophone culture through its literature and language, the history of its arts, its thought and its institutions. Course offerings are intended to serve both those students with particular interest in French and Francophone literature, literary theory and criticism (Literary option), as well as those whose interests in French and French-speaking countries invites a transdisciplinary perspective (Transdisciplinary Studies in French). A thorough knowledge of written and spoken French is a common goal for both literary and transdisciplinary options.

In the 100-level courses, students are introduced to the study of French and Francophone literatures and cultures, and special attention is given to the speaking and writing of French. Courses at the 200-level treat French literature and civilization across the historical spectrum. Two 200-level courses are devoted to advanced language training and one to the study of theory. Advanced (300-level) courses offer detailed study either of individual authors, genres and movements or of particular periods, themes and problems in French and Francophone culture. In both major options, students are admitted to advanced courses after satisfactory completion of two semesters of 200-level courses in French.

All students who wish to pursue their study of French, regardless of level, must take a departmental placement examination prior to arriving at Bryn Mawr; unless they have IB or Advanced Placement credit, they must also present the SAT II French score or undergo further placement assessment upon their arrival. Those students who begin French have two options: intensive study of the language in the intensive sequence (001-002 Intensive Elementary; 005 Intensive Intermediate and 102 (“Introduction à l’analyse littéraire et culturelle, or 005 and 105 (“Directions de la France contemporaine”); or non-intensive study of the language in the non-intensive sequence (001-002 Elementary; 003-004 Intermediate; 101-102 or 101-105). Although it is possible to major in French using either of the two sequences, students who are considering doing so and have been placed at the 001 level are strongly encouraged to take the intensive sequence.

The Department of French and Francophone Studies also cooperates with the Departments of Italian and Spanish in the Romance Languages major.

Major Requirements

Requirements in the major subject are:

- French and Francophone Literature: FREN 005-102 or 005-105 or 101-102 or 101-105; the 200-level language course; FREN 213 “Qu’est-ce que la théorie;” three 200-level literature courses, two 300-level literature courses, and the year-long Senior Experience, which consists of Senior Conference (FREN 398) in the fall semester and either a Senior Thesis or a third 300-level course culminating in the Senior Essay during the spring semester. In either case, the work of the spring semester is capped by an oral defense

- Transdisciplinary French and Francophone Studies: FREN 005-102 or 005-105 or 101-102 or 101-105; the 200-level language course; two 200-level courses within the department: e.g., FREN 291 or 299; two 200-level courses to be chosen by the student outside the French departments (at BMC/HC or JYA) which contribute coherently to her independent program of study; FREN 326 Etudes avancées de civilization, Senior Conference (FREN 398), plus two 300-level courses outside the departments; thesis of one semester in French or English. Students interested are encouraged to present the rationale and the projected content of their transdisciplinary program for departmental approval during their sophomore year; they should have excellent records in French and the other subjects involved in their proposed program.

- Both concentrations: all French majors are expected to have acquired fluency in the French language, both written and oral. Unless specifically exempted by the department, they are required to take the 200-level language course. Students may wish to continue from this course to hone their skills further in courses on stylistics and translation offered at Bryn Mawr College or abroad.
Students placed at the 200-level by departmental examinations are exempted from the 100-level requirements. Occasionally, students may be admitted to seminars in the graduate school.

Honors and the Senior Experience

For the French and Francophone Literature option: After taking Senior Conference in semester I of the senior year, students have the choice in semester II of writing a thesis in French (30-40 pp.) under the direction of a faculty member or taking a 300-level course in which they write a Senior Essay in French (15-20 pp.) The first choice offers self-selected students who already have developed a clearly defined subject in semester I the opportunity to pursue independent research and writing of the thesis with a faculty mentor. The second choice allows students, often double majors with another thesis or pre-medical students, the opportunity to produce a substantial, but shorter, piece of work within the structure of their 300-level course in semester II.
Departmental honors are awarded for excellence in the Senior Experience after the oral defense of either the Senior Thesis or the Senior Essay.

For the Interdisciplinary Studies in French option:
Students take French 325 or 326 in their senior year and, if they have not already done so, complete the two 300-level courses required outside the department.
In semester II they write a thesis in French or English
under the direction of a member of the French faculty and a mentor outside the department. Departmental honors are awarded for excellence in the Senior
Experience after the oral defense of the Senior Thesis.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for a French minor are FREN 005-102 or 005-105, or 101-102 or 101-105; the 200-level language course; and four 200-level or 300-level courses. At least one course must be 300-level.

Teacher Certification

The Department of French and Francophone Studies offers a certification program in secondary teacher education. For more information, see the description of the Education Program.

A.B./M.A. Program

Particularly well-qualified students may undertake work toward the joint A.B./M.A. degree in French. Such a program may be completed in four or five years and is undertaken with the approval of the department, the Special Cases Committee and the Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences (through 2014-15 academic year).

Study Abroad

Students majoring in French may, by a joint recommendation of the deans of the Colleges and the Departments of French, be allowed to spend their junior year or a semester thereof in France and/or a Francophone country under one of the junior-year plans approved by Bryn Mawr.

Students wishing to enroll in a summer program may apply for admission to the Institut d'Etudes Françaises da Avignon, held under the auspices of Bryn Mawr. The Institut is designed for selected undergraduates with a serious interest in French and Francophone literatures and cultures; it will be particularly attractive for those who anticipate professional careers requiring knowledge of the language and civilization of France and French speaking countries. The curriculum includes general and advanced courses in French language, literature, social sciences, history, art, and economics. The program is open to students of high academic achievement who have completed a course in French at the third-year level or the equivalent.

COURSES

FREN B001 Elementary French

The speaking and understanding of French are emphasized particularly during the first semester, and written competence is stressed as well in semester II.
The work includes regular use of the Language Learning Center and is supplemented by intensive oral practice sessions. The course meets in intensive (nine hours a week) and non-intensive (five hours a week) sections.
This is a year-long course.
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0, 1.5
Instructor(s): Cherel,B.
(Fall 2012)

FREN B001IN Intensive Elementary French

French 001 Intensive Elementary is the first half of two 300-level courses required outside the department.
In semester II they write a thesis in French or English
under the direction of a member of the French faculty and a mentor outside the department. Departmental honors are awarded for excellence in the Senior
Experience after the oral defense of the Senior Thesis.

Requirements for a French minor are FREN 005-102 or 005-105, or 101-102 or 101-105; the 200-level language course; and four 200-level or 300-level courses. At least one course must be 300-level.

increasingly longer papers are written in French. In addition to three class meetings a week, students develop their skills in group sessions with the professors and in oral practice hours with assistants. Students use the Language Learning Center regularly. This course prepares students to take 102 or 105 in semester II. Open only to graduates of Intensive Elementary French or to students placed by the department. Students who are not graduates of Intensive Elementary French must take either 102 or 105 to receive credit. Prerequisite 002 intensive. Two additional hours of instruction TBA. Requirement(s): Language Level 2 Units: 1.5 Instructor(s): Armstrong,G., Peysson-Zeiss,A. (Spring 2013)

FREN B101 Introduction à l’analyse littéraire et culturelle I
Presentation of essential problems in literary and cultural analysis by close reading of works selected from various periods and genres and by analysis of voice and image in French writing and film. Participation in discussion and practice in written and oral expression continue to be emphasized, as are grammar review and laboratory exercises. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Armstrong,G. (Fall 2012)

FREN B102 Introduction à l’analyse littéraire et culturelle II
Continued development of students’ expertise in literary and cultural analysis by emphasizing close reading as well as oral and written analyses of increasingly complex works chosen from various genres and periods of French and Francophone works in their written and visual modes. Readings include comic theater of the 17th or 18th centuries and build to increasingly complex nouvelles, poetry and novels of the 19th and 20th centuries. Participation in guided discussion and practice in oral/written expression continue to be emphasized, as is grammar review. Prerequisite: FREN 005 or 101. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Peysson-Zeiss,A. (Spring 2013)

FREN B105 Directions de la France contemporaine
An examination of contemporary society in France and Francophone cultures as portrayed in recent documents and film. Emphasizing the tension in contemporary French-speaking societies between tradition and change, the course focuses on subjects such as family structures and the changing role of women, cultural and linguistic identity, an increasingly multiracial society, the individual and institutions (religious, political, educational), and les loisirs. In addition to the basic text and review of grammar, readings are chosen from newspapers, contemporary literary texts and magazines, complemented by video materials. Prerequisite: FREN 005 or 101. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Cherel,B. (Spring 2013)

FREN B201 Le Chevalier, la dame et le prêtre: littérature et publics du Moyen Age

Using literary texts, historical documents and letters as a mirror of the social classes that they address, this interdisciplinary course studies the principal preoccupations of secular and religious women and men in France from the Carolingian period through 1500. Selected works from epic, lai, roman courtois, fabliau, theater, letters, and contemporary biography are read in modern French translation. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B204 Le Siècle des lumières

Representative texts of the Enlightenment with emphasis on the development of liberal thought as illustrated in the Encyclopédie and the works of Montesquieu, Voltaire, Diderot, and Rousseau. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B205 Le Temps des prophètes: de Chateaubriand à Baudelaire

From Chateaubriand and Romanticism to Baudelaire, a study of selected poems, novels and plays. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B206 Le Temps des virtuoses: Symbolisme, Naturalisme et leur progéniture

A study of selected works by Claudel, Gide, Proust, Rimbaud, Valéry, Verlaine, and Zola. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Mahuzier,B. (Fall 2012)

FREN B207 Introduction to 20th and 21st c. French Literature

A study of selected works illustrating the principal literary movements from 1900 to the present. Depending on who is teaching the course, this class will focus on various authors and literary movements of the 20th century such as Surrealism, Modernism, the Nouveau Roman, Oulipo, as well as works from the broader Francophone world. Prerequisites: French 102 or 105. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Higginson,P. (Spring 2013)

FREN B213 Theory in Practice: Critical Discourses in the Humanities

An examination in English of leading theories of interpretation from Classical Tradition to Modern and Post-Modern Time. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Crosslisting(s): ITAL-B213; COML-B213; ENGL-B213; GERM-B213; PHIL-B253; RUSS-B253 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B306 Libertinage et subversion

The libertine movement of the 18th century has long been condemned for moral reasons or considered of minor importance when compared to the Enlightenment. Yet, the right to happiness (‘droit au bonheur’) celebrated by the so-called ‘Philosophes’ implies a duty to experience pleasure (‘devoir de jouir’). This is what the libertine writers promoted. The libertine movement thus does not confine itself to literature, but also involves a dimension of social subversion. This course will allow you to understand Charles Baudelaire’s enigmatic comment: “the Revolution was made by voluptuaries.”

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B325 Etudes avancées

An in-depth study of a particular topic, event or historical figure in French civilisation. FREN B350 Voix médiévales et échos modernes

A study of selected 19th- and 20th-century works inspired by medieval subjects, such as the Grail and Arthurian legends and the Tristan and Yseut stories, and by medieval genres, such as the roman, saints’ lives, or the miracle play. Included are works by Bonnefoy, Cocteau, Flaubert, Genevoix, Giono, Gracq, Hugo, and Yourcenar.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): COML-B350
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

FREN B398 Senior Conference

A weekly seminar examining two major French and Francophone literary texts and the interpretive problems they raise. A third theoretical text will encourage students to think beyond traditional literary categories to interrogate issues such as cultural memory, political engagement, gendered space, etc. This course prepares students for the second semester of their Senior Experience, during which students not writing a thesis are expected to choose a 300-level course and write a long research paper, the Senior Essay, that they will defend during an oral examination. Seniors writing a thesis in semester II will defend it during their final oral examination.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Higginson,P.

core course, “Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Sex and Gender.” Other courses in the program allow them to explore a range of approaches to gender and sexual difference: critical feminist theory; women’s studies; transnational and third-world feminisms; the experiences of women of color; gender and science; the construction of masculinity; gay, lesbian, queer, transgender, and transsexual studies; the history and representation of gender and sexuality in Western and non-Western cultures.

Minor and Concentration Requirements

Six courses distributed as follows are required for the concentration:

1. An introductory course (including equivalent offerings at Swarthmore College or the University of Pennsylvania).
2. The junior seminar: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Sex and Gender (alternating fall semesters between Bryn Mawr and Haverford).
3. Four additional approved courses from at least two different departments, two of which are normally at the 300 level. Units of Independent Study (480) may be used to fulfill this requirement.
4. Of the six courses, no fewer than two and no more than three will also form part of the student’s major.

Requirements for the minor are identical to those for the concentration, with the stipulation that no courses in gender and sexuality will overlap with courses taken to fulfill requirements in the student’s major.

Neither a senior seminar nor a senior thesis is required for the concentration or minor; however, with the permission of the major department, a student may choose to count toward the concentration a senior thesis with significant content in gender and sexuality. Students wishing to construct an independent major in gender and sexuality should make a proposal to the Committee on Independent Majors.

COURSES

ANTH B101 Introduction to Anthropology: Prehistoric Archaeology and Biological Anthropology

An introduction to the place of humans in nature, primates, the fossil record for human evolution, human variation and the issue of race, and the archaeological investigation of culture change from the Old Stone Age to the rise of early civilizations in the Americas, Eurasia and Africa. There are four lab sections for ANTH 101. In addition to the lecture/discussion classes, students must select and sign up for one lab section. Limited enrollment: 18 students per lab section.
ANTH B102 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

An introduction to the methods and theories of cultural anthropology in order to understand and explain cultural similarities and differences among contemporary societies.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kilbride, P.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B214 Third World Feminisms

The course focuses on the figure of the “exploited Filipina body” as a locus for analyzing the politics of gendered transnational labor within contemporary capitalist globalization. We will examine gendered migrant labor, the international sex trade, the “traffic in women” discourse, feminist and women’s movements, and transnational feminin theory. Counts toward the Gender and Sexuality Studies Concentration.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B247 Gender, Nation, Diaspora

This course examines the relationship of gender to both the nation and the diaspora, within a context of globalization. We will study the co-constitutive relationship of gender, sexuality, race/ethnicity, and class in national and transnational contexts. Although focused primarily on Filipino American/Philippine cultural production, we examine multiple geopolitical sites. Counts toward the Gender and Sexuality Studies Concentration.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B312 Anthropology of Reproduction

An examination of social and cultural constructions of reproduction, and how power in everyday life shapes reproductive behavior and its meaning in Western and non-Western cultures. The influence of competing interests within households, communities, states, and institutions on reproduction is considered. Prerequisite: at least one 200-level ethnographic area course or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B316 Gender in South Asia

Examines gender as a culturally and historically constructed category in the modern South Asian context, focusing on the ways in which everyday experiences of and practices relating to gender are informed by media, performance, and political events. Prerequisite: One 200-level course including material on a non-Western society and permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B322 Anthropology of the Body

This course examines a diversity of meanings and interpretations of the body in anthropology. It explores anthropological theories and methods of studying the body and social difference via a series of topics including the construction of the body in medicine, identity, race, gender, sexuality and as explored through cross-cultural comparison. Prerequisite: ANTH B102 and preferably a 200 level cultural anthropology course.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies

ENGL B254 American Literature 1750-1900

This course explores the subject, subjection, and subjectivity of women and female sexualities in U.S. literatures between the signing of the Constitution and the ratification of the 19th Amendment. While the representation of women in fiction grew and the number of female authors soared, the culture found itself at pains to define the appropriate moments for female speech and silence, action and passivity. We will engage a variety of pre-suffrage literatures that place women at the nexus of national narratives of slavery and freedom, foreignness and domesticity, wealth and power, masculinity and citizenship, and sex and race “purity.”

GREK B201 Plato and Thucydides
This course is designed to introduce the student to two of the greatest prose authors of ancient Greece, the philosopher, Plato, and the historian, Thucydides. These two writers set the terms in the disciplines of philosophy and history for millennia, and philosophers and historians today continue to grapple with their ideas and influence. The brilliant and controversial statesman Alcibiades provides a link between the two texts in this course, and we examine the ways in which both authors handle the figure of Alcibiades as a point of entry into the comparison of the varying styles and modes of thought of these two great writers.

HIST B325 Topics in Social History
This a topics course that explores various themes in American social history. Course content varies. Current topic description: This course will examine the history of women’s education in the 19th and 20th centuries, focusing on the context of the history of women’s higher education in the US and globally. The course will explore the cultural, social, and political conditions that influenced the founding of Bryn Mawr and will compare and contrast this to other colleges, such as the Seven Sisters and the British universities that so influenced M. Carey Thomas in her ideal of an exemplary women’s college. The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the history of women’s higher education, the political struggles encountered by the pioneers in women’s educational reform, and to reflect on the differences between women’s colleges in their establishment and their subsequent histories. We will discuss the arguments surrounding single-sex vs. co-educational institutions and reflect on the place of women’s colleges in society. Our task in this course will be to gain a deep historical understanding of the issues that will challenge students to think about the history of their institution and the legacy created through the campaign for women’s higher education over the last two centuries. Students will have the opportunity, if they wish, to create digital versions of their work to appear on The Albert M. Greenfield Digital Center for the History of Women’s Education site, to contribute to a forthcoming exhibit and conference on this topic in Spring 2013, and to use original source materials from the Bryn Mawr College collections to create innovative work on to contribute to our knowledge of the legacy of women’s education. SOCL B350 Movements for Social Justice
Throughout human history, powerless groups of people have organized social movements to improve their lives and their societies. Powerful groups and institutions have resisted these efforts in order to maintain their own privilege. Some periods of history have been more likely than others to spawn protest movements. What factors seem most likely to lead to social movements? What determines their success/failure? We will examine 20th-century social movements in the United States to answer these questions. Includes a film series.
Prerequisite: At least one prior social science course or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Karen, D.
(Spring 2013)

SOCL B237 The Dictator Novel in the Americas
This course examines representations of dictatorship in Latin American and Latina/o novels. We will explore the relationship between narrative form and absolute power by analyzing the literary techniques writers use to contest authoritarianism. We will compare dictator novels from the United States, the Caribbean, Central America, and the Southern Cone. Prerequisite: only for students wishing to take the course for major/minor credit in SPAN is SPAN B200/B202.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin
Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B237; COML-B237
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B265 Escritoras españolas: entre tradición, renovación y migración

Fiction by women writers from Spain in the 20th and 21st century. Breaking the traditional female stereotypes during and after Franco’s dictatorship, the authors explore through their creative writing changing sociopolitical and cultural issues including regional identities and immigration. Topics of discussion include gender marginality, feminist studies and the portrayal of women in contemporary society.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin
Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B309 La mujer en la literatura española del Siglo de Oro

A study of the depiction of women in the fiction, drama, and poetry of 16th- and 17th-century Spain. Topics include the construction of gender; the idealization and codification of women’s bodies; the politics of feminine enclosure (convent, home, brothel, palace); and the performance of honor. The first half of the course will deal with representations of women by male authors (Calderón, Cervantes, Lope, Quevedo) and the second will be dedicated to women writers such as Teresa de Ávila, Ana Caro, Juana Inés de la Cruz, and María de Zayas.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin
Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B322 Queens, Nuns, and Other Deviants in the Early Modern Iberian World

The course examines literary, historical, and legal texts from the early modern Iberian world (Spain, Mexico, Peru) through the lens of gender studies. The course is divided around three topics: royal bodies (women in power), cloistered bodies (women in the convent), and delinquent bodies (figures who defy legal and gender normativity). Course is taught in English and is open to all juniors or seniors who have taken at least one 200-level course in a literature department. Students seeking Spanish credit must have taken BMC Spanish 202 and at least one other Spanish course beyond 202, or received permission from instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin
Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): COML-B322
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
GENERAL STUDIES

General studies courses focus on areas that are not usually covered in the Bryn Mawr curriculum and provide a supplement to the areas more regularly covered. These courses cut across disciplines and emphasize relationships among them.

Many general studies courses are open, without prerequisite, to all students. With the permission of the major department, they may be taken for major credit.

COURSES

GNST B103 Introduction to Swahili Language and Culture I
The primary goal of this course is to develop an elementary level ability to speak, read, and write Swahili. The emphasis is on communicative competence in Swahili based on the National Standards for Foreign Language Learning. In the process of acquiring the language, students will also be introduced to East Africa and its cultures. No prior knowledge of Swahili or East Africa is required.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Mshomba, E.
(Fall 2012)

GNST B105 Introduction to Swahili Language and Culture II
The primary goal of this course is to continue working on an elementary level ability to speak, read, and write Swahili. The emphasis is on communicative competence in Swahili based on the National Standards for Foreign Language Learning. Students will also continue learning about East Africa and its cultures. Introduction to Swahili Language and Culture I or permission of the instructor is required.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Africana Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B145 Introduction to Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures
A broad, interdisciplinary survey of themes uniting and dividing societies from the Iberian Peninsula through the contemporary New World. The class introduces the methods and interests of all departments in the concentration, posing problems of cultural continuity and change, globalization and struggles within dynamic histories, political economies, and creative expressions.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and International Studies Major
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B155 Introduction to Islamic Civilization
This course offers a basic introduction to the Islamic world, from Spain to India, in its political, social, religious, and cultural dimensions. We cover the period from the rise of Islam to early modern times (roughly 600 to 1500). Texts in English translation.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Crosslisting(s): COML-B155
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B156 Themes in Middle Eastern Society
The basis for the Middle East Studies Concentration, this course features changing themes. For Fall 2010, the theme is the space of religion: in daily life; in politics and culture; space and metaphor. Included are sacred kingship, the rise of Islamic states, roles of Middle Eastern Christians and Jews and challenges from secular ideologies that transform the space of religion.
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B223 Acting in Prison: Vision as Resource for Change
This course uses the theme of “vision” to explore the context and consequences of mass incarceration, daily experiences inside correctional institutions and social movements formed and inspired by incarcerated individuals. Students will explore and apply course materials in campus-based classes and in classes with incarcerated women inside a correctional facility.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Toews, B.
(Fall 2012)

GNST B255 Video Production
This course will explore aesthetic strategies utilized by low-budget film and video makers as each student works throughout the semester to complete a 7-15 minute film or video project. Course requirements include weekly screenings, reading assignments, and class screenings of rushes and roughcuts of student projects. Prerequisites: Some prior film course experience necessary, instructor discretion.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Film Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cho, E.
(Fall 2012)
GEOLOGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Geology. Within the major, students may complete concentrations in geoarchaeology or geochemistry.

Faculty

Don Barber, Associate Professor
Selby Cull, Assistant Professor
Lynne Elkins, Lecturer
Katherine Marenco, Lecturer
Pedro Marenco, Assistant Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Arlo Weil, Associate Professor and Chair

The department seeks to give students a well-rounded earth science education that balances fundamental knowledge of geology with broadly applicable problem-solving and communication skills.

The integrated science of geology combines biology, chemistry and physics as they apply to the workings of Earth and other planets. Well-trained geoscientists are increasingly in demand to address the environmental challenges and natural resource limitations of the modern world. A central tenet for understanding and predicting Earth processes and environmental change is the ability to decipher past Earth history from geologic records. Thus the major in Geology includes study of the physics and chemistry of Earth materials and processes; the history of the Earth and its organisms; and the range of techniques used to investigate the past and present workings of the Earth system. Field and lab work are an essential part of geology training at Bryn Mawr, and are part of all introductory courses, most other classes, and most independent research projects.

Major Requirements

Thirteen courses are required for the major: GEOL 101 and 102 or 103; 202, 203, 204, and 205; MATH 101 and 102, or alternates approved by the adviser; a two semester sequence of CHEM (103-104) or PHYS (101-102 or 121-122); GEOL 399; and either two advanced geology courses or one advanced geology course and an additional upper-level course in biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, or computer science.

Additional courses in the allied sciences are strongly recommended and are required by most graduate schools. A student who wishes to follow a career in geology should plan to attend a summer field course, usually following the completion of the 200-level courses.

GNST B260 Silent Spaces: a History of Contemplation in the West

This course will trace contemplative traditions developed and preserved in the Western monastic tradition from the desert through the present. Topics include elected silence and the ways in which it has shaped communities in the Western contemplative tradition, and the difference between enclosed contemplatives and contemplatives loose in the world.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B290 Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Gender and Sexuality

This course offers a rigorous grounding for students interested in questions of gender and sexuality. Bringing together intellectual resources from multiple disciplines, it also explores what it means to think across and between disciplinary boundaries. Team-taught by Bryn Mawr and Haverford professors from different disciplines, this course is offered yearly on alternate campuses.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B302 Topics in Video Production

This course is an immersive experience in the art of narrative film, combined with technical instruction in cinematography, sound, and editing. Coursework includes critiques, creative writing exercises, formal analysis of film clips, presentations, group projects, attending local film festival, and the production of a digital short film using narrative techniques. Pre-requisite: GNST B255, ENGL/HART B205-001 or an equivalent Video Production course, such as Documentary Production or an equivalent critical course in Film or Media Studies. Please contact instructor for pre-requisite questions.
Counts toward: Film Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cho,E.
(Spring 2013)

GNST B400 Study Abroad Enrollment

Units: 4
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GNST B403 Supervised Work

Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GNST B425 Praxis III - Independent Study

Counts toward: Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
All geology majors undertake a research project (GEOL 399) and write a thesis in the spring semester of their senior year.

Honors

Honors are awarded to students who have outstanding academic records in geology and allied fields, and whose research is judged by the faculty of the department to be of the highest quality.

Minor Requirements

A minor in geology consists of two of the 100-level geology courses, and any four of the 200- or 300-level courses offered by the department.

Concentration in Geoarchaeology

The geoarchaeology concentration allows students majoring in anthropology, archaeology, or geology to explore the connections among these fields with respect to how our human ancestors interacted with past environments, and how traces of human behavior are preserved in the physical environment. In geology, the geoarchaeology concentration consists of 13 courses: GEOL 101 or 102 or 103; 202, 203, 204, 205, 270, and 399; two semesters of chemistry; two semesters of math, statistics or computational methods; either ARCH 101 or ANTH 101; and one 200- or 300-level elective from among current offerings in Anthropology or Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. For course-planning advice, consult with Don Barber (Geology), Rick Davis (Anthropology), or Peter Magee (Archaeology).

Concentration in Geochemistry

The geochemistry concentration encourages students majoring in either geology or in chemistry to design a course of study that emphasizes Earth chemistry. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. For a Geology Major with a concentration in Geochemistry, the following are required in addition to Geology Major requirements: CHEM 103 (General Chemistry I) and CHEM 104 (General Chemistry II), CHEM 211 (Organic Chemistry) or CHEM 231 (Inorganic Chemistry), GEOL 302 (Low Temperature Geochemistry) or GEOL 305 (Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology) or GEOL 350 (requires major adviser approval), one additional 300-level geochemistry-themed GEOL course or one additional advanced CHEM course. For a Chemistry Major with a concentration in Geochemistry, the following are required in additional to Chemistry Major requirements (see Chemistry major adviser): GEOL 101 (How the Earth Works), GEOL 202 (Minerology/Crystal Chemistry), two additional 300-level geochemistry-themed GEOL courses including GEOL 302 (Low Temperature Geochemistry) or GEOL 305 (Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology) or GEOL 350 (requires Geology major adviser approval). For course planning advice, contact Pedro Marenco, Lynne Elkins (Geology), or Sharon Burgmayer (Chemistry).

COURSES

GEOL B101 How the Earth Works

An introduction to the study of planet Earth—the materials of which it is made, the forces that shape its surface and interior, the relationship of geological processes to people, and the application of geological knowledge to the search for useful materials. Laboratory and fieldwork focus on learning the tools for geological investigations and applying them to the local area and selected areas around the world. Three lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork a week. One required one-day field trip on a weekend. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Elkins,L., Weil,A. (Fall 2012)

GEOL B102 Earth: Life of a Planet

The history of the Earth from its beginning and the evolution of the living forms that have populated it. Three lectures, one afternoon of laboratory a week. A required two-day (Sat.-Sun.) field trip is taken in April. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Elkins,L., Marenco,K. (Spring 2013)

GEOL B103 Earth Systems and the Environment

This integrated approach to studying the Earth focuses on interactions among geology, oceanography, and biology. Also discussed are the consequences of population growth, industrial development, and human land use. Two lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork per week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April. Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI) Counts toward: Environmental Studies Crosslisting(s): CITY-B103 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Elkins,L., Barber,D. (Spring 2013)

GEOL B115 Focus: Living with Volcanoes

This course explores how people have long lived alongside, in the shadow of, and at times directly on top of active volcanoes. Volcanic centers are hosts to sporadic and difficult-to-predict destructive and explosive activity, persistent and damaging passive degassing, valuable nutrient-rich soils, vibrant ecosystems, and important geothermal energy systems. The goals of this class are to examine the scientific basis for understanding volcanoes and predicting their behavior; to study the role of volcanoes in history and lore across human societies; and to examine our complicated relationship with them in the modern world. Three hours per week.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Elkins,L.
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B120 Focus: Origin and Early Evolution of Life
Where and how did life originate on Earth? What are the minimum conditions for life to arise, and persist, on any planet? In this course, we will explore the fundamental requirements for life; critically examine many of the hypotheses that have been proposed to explain the origin of life on Earth; survey the fossil, geochemical, and molecular evidence for early life and propose means of identifying life and its effects elsewhere in the universe. Three hours per week.
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Marenco,K.
(Spring 2013)

GEOL B125 Focus: Geology in Film
Geologic processes make for great film storylines, but filmmakers take great liberty with how they depict scientific “facts” and scientists. We will explore how and why filmmakers choose to deviate from science reality. We will study and view one film per week and discuss its issues from a geologist’s perspective. This is a half semester Focus course. Prerequisite: Freshman standing.
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B130 Focus: Life in the Hothouse - Earth’s Future Climate
An overview of Earth’s climate in the 22nd century (year 2100 and beyond) based on the current scientific consensus. In addition to describing the forecast conditions, we discuss the scientific basis for these predictions and their associated uncertainties, and how climate forecasts have been communicated to the public to date. This is a half semester Focus course. Prerequisite: Freshman standing.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B202 Mineralogy and Crystal Chemistry
The crystal chemistry of representative minerals, as well as the relationship between the physical properties of minerals and their structures and chemical compositions. Emphasis is placed on mineral identification and interpretation. The occurrence and petrography of typical mineral associations and rocks is also covered. Lecture three hours, laboratory at least three hours a week. One required field trip on a weekend. Prerequisite: introductory course in geology or chemistry (both recommended).
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cull,S.
(Fall 2012)

GEOL B203 Invertebrate Paleobiology
Biology, evolution, ecology, and morphology of the major marine invertebrate fossil groups. Lecture three hours and laboratory three hours a week. A semester-long research project culminating in a scientific manuscript will be based on material collected on a two-day trip to the Tertiary deposits of the Chesapeake Bay.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Marenco,K.
(Fall 2012)

GEOL B204 Structural Geology
An introduction to the study of rock deformation in the Earth’s lithosphere viewed from all scales - from the microscopic (atomic scale) to the macroscopic (continental scale). This class focuses on building a foundation of knowledge and understanding that will allow students to broaden their appreciation and understanding of the complexity of the Earth system and the links between geologic structures at all scales and plate tectonics. Three lectures and three hours of laboratory a week, plus weekend field trips. Prerequisites: GEOL 101 and MATH 101.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weil,A.
(Spring 2013)

GEOL B205 Sedimentary Materials and Environments
An introduction to sediment transport, depositional processes, and stratigraphic analysis, with emphasis on interpretation of sedimentary sequences and the reconstruction of past environments. Three lectures and one lab a week, plus a weekend field trip. Prerequisite: GEOL 101, 102, 103 or instructor permission.
Recommended: GEOL 202 and 203.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber,D.
(Spring 2013)

GEOL B206 Energy Resources and the Environment

An examination of issues concerning the supply of energy and raw materials required by humanity. This includes an investigation of the geological framework that determines resource availability, and of the social, economic, and political considerations related to energy production and resource development. Two 90-minute lectures a week. Prerequisite: one year of college science

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B209 Natural Hazards

A quantitative approach to understanding the earth processes that impact human societies. We consider the past, current, and future hazards presented by geologic processes, including earthquakes, volcanoes, landslides, floods, and hurricanes. The course includes discussion of the social, economic, and policy contexts within which natural geologic processes become hazards. Case studies are drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: one semester of college science or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B210
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B236 Evolution

A lecture/discussion course on the development of evolutionary thought, generally regarded as the most profound scientific event of the 19th century; its foundations in biology and geology; and the extent of its implications to many disciplines. Emphasis is placed on the nature of evolution in terms of process, product, patterns, historical development of the theory, and its applications to interpretations of organic history. Lecture three hours a week.

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B236; ANTH-B236
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gardiner,S., Marenko,K.
(Fall 2012)

GEOL B250 Computational Methods in the Sciences

A study of how and why modern computation methods are used in scientific inquiry. Students will learn basic principles of simulation-based programming through hands-on exercises. Content will focus on the development of population models, beginning with simple exponential growth and ending with spatially-explicit individual-based simulations. Students will design and implement a final project from their own disciplines. Six hours of combined lecture/lab per week.

Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B250; CMSC-B250
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B270 Geoarchaeology

Societies in the past depended on our human ancestors' ability to interact with their environment. Geoarchaeology analyzes these interactions by combining archaeological and geological techniques to document human behavior while also reconstructing the past environment. Course meets twice weekly for lecture, discussion of readings and hands on exercises. Prerequisite: one course in anthropology, archaeology or geology.

Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B270; ANTH-B270
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber,D., Magee,P.
(Spring 2013)

GEOL B302 Low-Temperature Geochemistry

The geochemistry of Earth surface processes. Emphasis is on the chemistry of surface waters, atmosphere-water environmental chemistry, chemical evolution of natural waters, and pollution issues. Fundamental principles are applied to natural systems with particular focus on environmental chemistry. One required field trip on a weekend. Prerequisites: CHEM 103, 104 and GEOL 202 or permission of instructor.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Barber,D.
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B304 Tectonics

Plate tectonics and continental orogeny are reviewed in light of the geologic record in selected mountain ranges and certain geophysical data. Three hours of lecture and a problem session a week. Prerequisite: GEOL 204 or permission of instructor.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weil,A.
(Fall 2012)
GEOL B305 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology
The origin, mode of occurrence, and distribution of igneous and metamorphic rocks. The focus is on the experimental and field evidence for interpreting rock associations and the interplay between igneous and metamorphic rock genesis and tectonics. Three lecture hours weekly. Occasional weekend field trips. Prerequisites: GEOL 202.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cull, S.
(Spring 2013)

GEOL B310 Introduction to Geophysics
An overview covering how geophysical observations of the Earth's magnetic field, gravity field, heat flow, radioactivity, and seismic waves provide a means to study plate tectonics. Also covered are geophysical techniques used in mineral and energy resources exploration, and in the monitoring of groundwater, earthquakes, and volcanoes. Three class hours a week. Prerequisites: GEOL 101 and PHYS 101, 102.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B314 Marine Geology
An introduction to the structure of ocean basins and the marine sedimentary record. Includes an overview of physical, biological, and chemical oceanography, and modern coastal processes such as shoreline erosion. Meets twice weekly for a combination of lecture, discussion, and hands-on exercises, including one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: GEOL 101, 102 or 103, and 205, or permission of instructor. Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
Advanced seminar in the analysis of geospatial data, theory, and the practice of geospatial reasoning. Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B328; ARCH-B328; BIOL-B328
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced topics
A seminar course on current issues in evolution. Discussion based on readings from the primary literature. Topics are determined by the students. One three-hour discussion a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 236 or permission of instructor.
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B336; ANTH-B336
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Mareno, P.
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GEOL B350 Advanced Topics in Geology
This is a topics course. Recent topics include Carbonate Petrology, Appalachian Geology, Advanced Evolution, The Snowball Controversy, and Climate Change.
Current topic description (Fall 2012): Students will join with a citizen watch group to research environmental remediation of Acid Mine Drainage systems in the Schuylkill headwaters region. The field area is the source of most of the drinking water for the greater Philadelphia area, and suffers from significant contamination due to local coal mines. This hands-on class will involve significant amounts of field and laboratory work. Prerequisites: Mineralogy, or permission of the instructor. Current topic description (Spring 2013): This course will investigate the protracted formation of the Appalachians by examining primary literature across the disciplines of geology. Topics include tectonics, geophysics, sedimentology, geochemistry, paleontology, and geomorphology, and span the geologic record from the Precambrian to the present. The course will be in a seminar style, based on lively discussions and structured oral presentations. A mandatory field trip will give student firsthand access to our regional geology.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weil, A., Cull, S.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GEOL B399 Senior Thesis
An independent project in the field, laboratory, or library culminating in a written report and oral presentation. Required for all geology majors in the spring semester of the senior year. Includes a seminar for senior students that meets for two hours per week to explore issues related to geoscience research.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cull, S.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GEOL B403 Supervised Research
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
GERMAN AND GERMAN STUDIES

Students may complete a major or minor in German and German Studies.

Faculty

Bryn Mawr College

David Kenosian, Lecturer

Imke Meyer, Professor and Chair (on leave semester I)

Heidi Schlipphacke, Visiting Associate Professor

Azade Seyhan, Fairbank Professor in the Humanities and Professor of German and Comparative Literature, and Interim Chair (semester I)

Haverford College

Imke Brust, Assistant Professor

Ulrich Schönherr, Associate Professor and Co-Chair (on leave semesters I and II)

Henning Wrage, Visiting Assistant Professor

The Bryn Mawr-Haverford Bi-College Department of German draws upon the expertise of the German faculty at both Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges to offer a broadly conceived German Studies program, incorporating a variety of courses and major options. The purpose of the major in German and German Studies is to lay the foundation for a critical understanding of German culture in its contemporary global context and its larger political, social, and intellectual history. To this end we encourage a thorough and comparative study of the German language and culture through its linguistic and literary history, systems of thought, institutions, political configurations, and arts and sciences.

The German program aims, by means of various methodological approaches to the study of another language, to foster critical thinking, expository writing skills, understanding of the diversity of culture(s), and the ability to respond creatively to the challenges posed by cultural difference in an increasingly global world. Course offerings are intended to serve both students with particular interests in German literature and literary theory and criticism, and those interested in studying German and German-speaking cultures from the perspective of communication arts, film, history, history of ideas, history of art and architecture, history of religion, institutions, linguistics, mass media, philosophy, politics, and urban anthropology and folklore.

A thorough knowledge of German is a goal for both major concentrations. The objective of our language instruction is to teach students communicative skills that enable them to function effectively in authentic conditions of language use and to speak and write in idiomatic German. A major component of all German courses is the examination of issues that underline the cosmopolitanism as well as the specificity and complexity of contemporary German culture. German majors can and are encouraged to take courses in interdisciplinary areas, such as comparative literature, film, gender and sexuality studies, growth and structure of cities, history, history of art, music, philosophy, and political science, where they read works of criticism in these areas in the original German. Courses relating to any aspect of German culture, history, and politics given in other departments can count toward requirements for the major or minor.

College Foreign Language Requirement

The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing GERM 101 and 102 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in GERM 102.

Major Requirements

The German and German studies major consists of 10 units. All courses at the 200 or 300 level count toward the major requirements, either in a literature concentration or in a German studies concentration. A literature concentration normally follows the sequence 201 and/or 202; 209 or 212, or 214, 215; plus additional courses to complete the 10 units, two of them at the 300 level; and finally one semester of Senior Conference. A German studies major normally includes 223 and/or 224 or 245; one 200- and one 300-level course in German literature; three courses (at least one at the 300 level) in subjects central to aspects of German culture, history, or politics; and one semester of GERM 321 (Advanced Topics in German Cultural Studies). Within each concentration, courses need to be selected so as to achieve a reasonable breadth, but also a degree of disciplinary coherence. Within departmental offerings, GERM 201 and 202 (Advanced Training) strongly emphasize the development of conversational, writing, and interpretive skills. German majors are encouraged, when possible, to take work in at least one foreign language other than German.

Honors

Any student who has completed a senior thesis and whose grade point average in the major at the end of the senior year is 3.8 or higher qualifies for departmental honors. Students who have completed a thesis and whose major grade point average at the end of the senior year is 3.6 or higher, but not 3.8, are eligible to be discussed as candidates for departmental honors. A student in this range of eligibility must be sponsored by at least one faculty member with whom she has done coursework, and at least one other faculty member must read some of the student’s advanced work and agree on the excellence of the work in order for departmental honors to be awarded. If there is a sharp difference of opinion, additional readers will serve as needed.

Minor Requirements

A minor in German and German studies consists of seven units of work. To earn a minor, students are normally required to take GERM 201 or 202, and four additional units covering a reasonable range of study topics, of which at least one unit is at the 300 level. Additional upper-level courses in the broader area of German studies may be counted toward the seven units with the approval of the department.

Study Abroad

Students majoring in German are encouraged to spend some time in German-speaking countries in the course of their undergraduate studies. Various possibilities are available: summer work programs, DAAD (German Academic Exchange) scholarships for summer courses at German universities, and selected junior year abroad Programs.

COURSES

GERM B001 Elementary German

Meets five hours a week with the individual class instructor, two hours with student drill instructors. Strong emphasis on communicative competence both in spoken and written German in a larger cultural context. Requirement(s): Language Level 1

Units: 1.0

(Spring 2013)

GERM B101 Intermediate German

Thorough review of grammar, exercises in composition and conversation. Enforcement of correct grammatical patterns and idiomatic use of language. Study of selected literary and cultural texts and films from German-speaking countries. Two semesters. Requirement(s): Language Level 2

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Kenosian,D.
(Fall 2012)

GERM B102 Intermediate German

Thorough review of grammar, exercises in composition and conversation. Enforcement of correct grammatical patterns and idiomatic use of language. Study of selected literary and cultural texts and films from German-speaking countries. Two semesters. Requirement(s): Language Level 2

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Schlipphacke,H.
(Spring 2013)

GERM B202 Introduction to German Studies

Interdisciplinary and historical approaches to the study of German language and culture. Selected texts for study are drawn from autobiography, Märchen, satire, philosophical essays and fables, art and film criticism, discourses of gender, travel writing, cultural productions of minority groups, and scientific and journalistic writings. Emphasis is on a critical understanding of issues such as linguistic imperialism and exclusion, language and power, gender and language, and ideology and language. Requirement(s): Division I or Division III

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Schlipphacke,H.
(Spring 2013)

GERM B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism

Designated theory course. An introduction to various methods of reading the literary text from the perspective of critical methods informed by philosophical ideas. In their quest for self-understanding and knowledge, literature and philosophy share similar forms of inquiry and imaginative modeling. Selected literary texts and critical essays focus on questions of language, translation, understanding, and identity in their relation to history, epistemology, ethics, and aesthetics. One of the main objectives of the course is to provide students with the critical tools necessary for an informed reading of texts. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)

Crosslisting(s): COML-B209; PHIL-B209

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
GERM B212 Readings in German Intellectual History: Marx, Nietzsche, Freud, and the Rhetoric of Modernity

Study of selected texts of German intellectual history, introducing representative works of Theodor W. Adorno, Hannah Arendt, Walter Benjamin, Sigmund Freud, Jürgen Habermas, Georg W. F. Hegel, Martin Heidegger, Werner Heisenberg, Immanuel Kant, G. E. Lessing, Karl Marx, Friedrich Nietzsche, Friedrich Schiller, and Ludwig Wittgenstein. The course aims to introduce students to an advanced cultural reading range and the languages and terminology of humanistic disciplines in German-speaking countries, and seeks to develop their critical and interpretive skills.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

GERM B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile

This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)

GERM B329 Wittgenstein
Wittgenstein is notable for developing two philosophical systems. In the first, he attempted to show that there is a single common structure underlying all language, thought and being. In the second, he denied the idea of such a structure and claimed that the job of philosophy was to free philosophers from bewichments due to misuderstandings of ordinary concepts in language. The course begins by sketching the first system. We then turn to his rejection of the earlier ideas as outlined in Philosophical Investigations and On Certainty. We also examine contemporary interpretations of Wittgenstein's later work.

Students may complete a major or minor in Greek, Latin, Classical Languages, or Classical Culture and Society. Within the Latin major, students may complete the requirements for secondary education certification. Latin majors may, with departmental approval, complete an M.A. in the combined A.B./M.A. program (through 2014-15 academic year).

Faculty

Annette Baertschi, Assistant Professor
Catherine Conybeare, Professor
Radcliffe Edmonds, Associate Professor and Chair
Russell Scott, Professor
Asya Sigelman, Assistant Professor

In collaboration with the Department of Classics at Haverford College, the department offers four major programs of study: Greek, Latin, Classical Languages, and Classical Culture and Society. In addition to the sequence of courses specified for each major, all majors must participate in the Senior Seminar, a full-year course. In the first term, students refine their ability to read, discuss, and critique classical texts through engagement with scholarship from various fields of Classical Studies while in the second term, they conduct independent research, culminating in a substantial thesis paper and a presentation to the department. Senior essays of exceptionally high quality may be awarded departmental honors at commencement.

Additional courses in Greek (GREK), Latin (LATN), and Classical Studies (CSTS) may be found in the listings for the Department of Classics at Haverford. Students, according to their concentrations, are encouraged to consider a term of study during junior year in programs such as the College Year in Athens or the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome.

GREEK

The sequence of courses in the ancient Greek language is designed to acquaint the students with the various aspects of Greek culture through a mastery of the language and a comprehension of Greek history, mythology, religion and the other basic forms of expression through which the culture developed. The works of poets, philosophers, and historians are studied both in their historical context and in relation to subsequent Western thought.

College Foreign Language Requirement

The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing GREK 101 and 104 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in GREK 104.

Major Requirements

Requirements in the major are two courses at the introductory level, two courses at the 100 level, two courses at the 200 level, one course at the 300 level (or above) and the Senior Seminar.

Also required are three courses to be distributed as follows: one in Greek history, one in Greek archaeology, and one in Greek philosophy.

By the end of the senior year, majors will be required to have completed a sight translation examination from Greek to English.

Prospective majors in Greek are advised to take Greek in their first year. For students entering with Greek there is the possibility of completing the requirements for both A.B. and M.A. degrees in four years. Those interested in pursuing advanced degrees are advised to have a firm grounding in Latin.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for a minor in Greek are two courses at the introductory level, two courses at the 100 level, two courses at the 200 level.

Courses for which a knowledge of Greek is not required are listed under Classical Culture and Society.

COURSES

GREK B010 Traditional and New Testament Greek

The first part of this year-long course will focus on introducing standard (Classical) Greek. Once the grammar has been fully introduced, early in the spring semester, the class will begin to develop facility by reading part of the New Testament, selections from Xenophon and, finally, a dialogue of Plato.

Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Baertschi,A.
(Fall 2012)

GREK B011 Traditional and New Testament Greek

The first part of this year-long course will focus on introducing standard (Classical) Greek. Once the grammar has been fully introduced, early in the spring semester, the class will begin to develop facility by reading part of the New Testament, selections from Xenophon and, finally, a dialogue of Plato.
Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Sigelman,A.
(Spring 2013)

GREK B101 Herodotus
Greek 101 introduces the student to one of the greatest prose authors of ancient Greece, the historian, Herodotus. The “Father of History,” as Herodotus is sometimes called, wrote one of the earliest lengthy prose texts extant in Greek literature, in the Ionian dialect of Greek. The “Father of Lies,” as he is also sometimes known, wove into his history a number of fabulous and entertaining anecdotes and tales. His historie or inquiry into the events surrounding the invasions by the Persian empire against the Greek city-states set the precedent for all subsequent historical writings.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Edmonds,R.
(Fall 2012)

GREK B104 Homer
This course introduces the student to the Iliad and Odyssey -- two epic works which stand at the fountainhead of the Western literary tradition. We will read selections from both poems as we explore Homeric language, metrics, imagery, and themes.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GREK B201 Plato and Thucydides
This course is designed to introduce the student to two of the greatest prose authors of ancient Greece, the philosopher, Plato, and the historian, Thucydides. These two writers set the terms in the disciplines of philosophy and history for millennia, and philosophers and historians today continue to grapple with their ideas and influence. The brilliant and controversial statesman Alcibiades provides a link between the two texts in this course, and we examine the ways in which both authors handle the figure of Alcibiades as a point of entry into the comparison of the varying styles and modes of thought of these two great writers.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Edmonds,R.
(Fall 2012)

GREK B202 The Form of Tragedy
This course will introduce the student to two of the three great Athenian tragedians—Sophocles and Euripides. Their dramas, composed two-and-a-half millenia ago, continue to be performed regularly on modern stages around the world and exert a profound influence on current day theatre. We will read Sophocles’ Oedipus Tyrannos and Euripides’ Bacchae in full, focusing on language, poetics, meter, and performance studies.

GREK B399 Senior Seminar
Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B399, LATN-B399
Units: 1.0
(Offered Spring 2013 as GREK H399)

GREK B403 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

GREK B601 Homer: Iliad
We will focus on a careful reading of significant portions of the Homeric epics and on the history of Homeric scholarship. Students will develop an appreciation both for the beauty of Homer’s poetics and for the scholarly arguments surrounding interpretation of these texts.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GREK B609 Pindar and Greek Lyric
We will begin with a careful reading of Pindar’s shorter odes, then proceed to his most famous long odes (Olympian 1, Pythian 3, Pythian 1) and then consider interpretative strategies (past, present, and future) as we survey the rest of the odes. One additional hour of reading TBA.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GREK B610 Greek Comedy
There was a time when scholars could point out, in their studies of Assemblywomen (c. 392 BC) and Wealth (388 BC), the only late plays of Aristophanes to have survived, that these comedies had undeservedly been neglected in the scholarship—a neglect due in part to the fact that many insisted in seeing in them a decline in the comic genre from the fifth to the fourth century BC. This is no longer the case: starting in the 1960s, when scholars began, slowly but surely, to take a more serious interest in the comedies, both plays have been well served with studies that not only have done much to help us understand their complexity but, more significantly, have brought out some of the most intractable problems in writing about Aristophanes.
Indeed, it can be quite humorous to observe how scholars reach radically different conclusions based on the same material—a testimony of how difficult it is to come to terms with the political, social, and economic critiques of his comedies, but also of the fascination that this same difficulty holds for many. This contested aspect of Assemblywomen and Wealth raises interesting questions regarding not only the purpose of the genre but also its evolution; for this reason, they are worthy of being studied in detail. In this seminar, we will read the Greek text and the secondary literature associated with these two plays in order to consider the various political, economic, ritual, performance, and gender-related issues they raise, in addition to the interpretative problems mentioned above. In this respect, this course also serves as an introduction to some of the major areas of study in recent Aristophanic scholarship.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GREK B643 Readings in Greek History
We will consider the primary issues for the authors and also the issues that may rather be our own. These include the technical issues of historiography—what history is and how it achieves its goals; historical causation and relevance; exactness or reliability, bias and viewpoint. We will also attend to social justice, which for us means race, class and gender: what was it for the Greeks?
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

GREK B644 Plato
In this seminar, we will explore the central ideas of a Platonic dialogue as they are unfolded by the varying voices of the interlocutors. In addition to a close reading of the text itself, we will sample from the scholarly debates over the understanding and interpretation of the dialogue that have gone on over the past two and a half millennia of reading Plato's dialogues.

LATIN

The major in Latin is designed to acquaint the student with Roman literature, history and culture in all its aspects. Works in Latin language, ranging from its beginnings to the Renaissance, are examined both in their historical context and as influences on post-classical cultures and societies up to the present day. A number of courses in Latin at the 200 level are offered in rotation at Bryn Mawr and Haverford. They are based on authors and topics in Roman imperial literature ranging from the Augustan Age to Late Antiquity and the Middle Ages and are designed to illustrate the richness of this literary patrimony.
College Foreign Language Requirement

The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing LATN 110-112 or 101-102 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in the second semester.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the major are two courses at the 100 level, two literature courses at the 200 level, two literature courses at the 300 level, HIST 207 or 208, Senior Seminar, and two courses to be selected from the following: Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology at the 100 level or above; Greek at the 100 level or above; French, Italian or Spanish at the 200 level or above. Courses taken at the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome are accepted as part of the major. By the end of the senior year, majors will be required to have completed successfully a sight translation examination from Latin to English.

Students who place into 200-level courses in their first year may be eligible to participate in the A.B./M.A. program. Those interested should consult the department as soon as possible.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor are normally six courses, including one at the 300 level. For non-majors, two literature courses at the 200 level must be taken as a prerequisite for admission to a 300-level course. Courses for which knowledge of Latin is not required are listed under Classical Culture and Society.

COURSES

LATN B001 Elementary Latin

Latin 001 is the first part of a year-long course that introduces the student to the language and literature of ancient Rome. The first semester focuses upon the grammar of Latin, developing the student’s knowledge of the forms of the language and the basic constructions used. Exercises in translation and composition aid in the student’s learning of the language, while readings in prose and poetry from the ancient authors provide the student with a deeper appreciation of the culture which used this language. Requirement(s): Language Level 1 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Conybeare,C. (Fall 2012)

LATN B002 Elementary Latin

Latin 002 is the second part of a year-long course that introduces the student to the language and literature of ancient Rome. The second semester completes the course of study of the grammar of Latin, improving the student’s knowledge of the forms of the language and forms of expression. Exercises in translation and composition aid in the student’s learning of the language, while readings in prose and poetry from the ancient authors provide the student with a deeper appreciation of the culture which used this language. Requirement(s): Language Level 1 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Baertschi,A. (Spring 2013)

LATN B110 Intermediate Latin

Intensive review of grammar, reading in classical prose and poetry. For students who have had the equivalent of two years of high school Latin or are not adequately prepared to take LATN H101. This course meets three times a week with a required fourth hour to be arranged. Requirement(s): Language Level 2 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Scott,R. (Fall 2012)

LATN B112 Latin Literature

In the second semester of the intermediate Latin sequence, readings in prose and poetry are frequently drawn from a period, such as the age of Augustus, that illustrate in different ways the leading political and cultural concerns of the time. The Latin readings and discussion are supplemented by readings in the secondary literature. There are three required meetings a week. Prerequisite: LATN 101, LATN 110, or placement by the department. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Scott,R. (Spring 2013)

LATN B202 Advanced Latin Literature

In this course typically a variety of Latin prose and poetry of the high and later Roman empire (first to fourth centuries CE) is read. Single or multiple authors may be featured in a given semester. Current topic description: Petronius, the great Neronian “novelist.” Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Baertschi,A. (Spring 2013)

LATN B203 Medieval Latin Literature

Selected works of Latin prose and poetry from the late Roman Empire through the 12th century. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)
LATN B205 Latin Style
A study of Latin prose style based on readings and exercises in composition. Offered to students wishing to fulfill the requirements for teacher certification in Latin or to fulfill one of the requirements in the major.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

LATN B303 Lucretius
Lucretius’ poem “De Rerum Natura”, On the Nature of Things, is one of the most remarkable works of classical antiquity: in six books of didactic epic it gives a detailed exposition of Epicurean philosophy while exploiting all the riches of poetic imagery, smearing the “honey of the Muses” round the lip of the cup containing the “wormwood” of its message. Atomic theory, sexual relations, fear of death: these are just some of the topics addressed. We shall read and interpret almost the entire poem, giving equal weight to its philosophy and its poetry. Prerequisites: at least two Latin courses at 200 level.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Conybeare,C.
(Spring 2013)

LATN B350 Topics in Latin Literature
Open only to advanced undergraduates, this course includes a weekly seminar and a translation session. Three-fourths of the reading will be from primary sources. One additional hour TBA Prerequisite: a 200-level Latin course.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

LATN B672 Ancient Drama and Performance Criticism
Course description: This course is designed as a survey of current trends in performance analysis of ancient drama, offering a selection of material evidence, ancient testimonies, and contemporary studies that addresses diverse theatrical issues such as stage directions, spatial definition, and masks. We examine various methodological approaches to interpreting ancient performance, and test the usefulness of these approaches on a number of plays from the Greek and Roman theater. Works of the Greek playwrights will be read in translation; a play each by Plautus, Terence and Seneca will be read in Latin.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
CLASSICAL LANGUAGES

The major in classical languages is designed for the student who wishes to divide her time between the two languages and literatures.

Major Requirements

In addition to the Senior Seminar, the requirements for the major are eight courses in Greek and Latin, including at least two at the 200 level in one language and two at the 300 level in the other, and two courses in ancient history and/or classical archaeology. There are two final examinations: a sight translation from Greek to English, and another from Latin to English.

CLASSICAL CULTURE AND SOCIETY

The major provides a broad yet individually structured background for students whose interest in the ancient classical world is general and who wish to pursue more specialized work in one or more particular areas.

Major Requirements

The requirements for the major, in addition to the Senior Seminar, are nine courses distributed as follows:

- Two courses in either Latin or Greek beyond the elementary level
- One course in Greek and/or Roman history
- Three courses, at least two of which are at the 200 level or higher, in one of the following concentrations: archaeology and art history, philosophy and religion, literature and the classical tradition, or history and society
- Three electives, at least one of which is at the 200 level or higher, and one of which must be among the courses counted toward the history/society concentration (except in the case of students in that concentration)

Minor Requirements

For the minor, six courses drawn from the range of courses counted toward the major are required. Of these, two must be in Greek or Latin beyond the elementary level and at least one must be in classical culture and society at the 200 level.

COURSES

CSTS B110 The World Through Classical Eyes
A survey of the ways in which the ancient Greeks and Romans perceived and constructed their physical and social world. The evidence of ancient texts and monuments will form the basis for exploring such subjects as cosmology, geography, travel and commerce, ancient ethnography and anthropology, the idea of natural and artificial wonders, and the self-definition of the classical cultures in the context of the oikoumene, the “inhabited world.”
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B110; CITY-B110
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B115 Classical Art
An introduction to the visual arts of ancient Greece and Rome from the Bronze Age through Late Imperial times (circa 3000 B.C.E. to 300 C.E.). Major categories of artistic production are examined in historical and social context, including interactions with neighboring areas and cultures; methodological and interpretive issues are highlighted.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B115; CITY-B115; HART-B115
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B125 Classical Myths in Art and in the Sky
This course explores Greek and Roman mythology using an archaeological and art historical approach, focusing on the ways in which the traditional tales of the gods and heroes were depicted, developed and transmitted in the visual arts such as vase painting and architectural sculpture, as well as projected into the natural environment.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B125; HART-B125
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B156 Roman Law in Action
An introduction to Roman public and private law from the early republic to the high empire. The development of legal institutions, including the public courts, the role of the jurists and the importance of case law, is stressed.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B175 Feminism in Classics
This course will illustrate the ways in which feminism has had an impact on classics, as well as the ways in which feminists think with classical texts. It will have four thematic divisions: feminism and the classical canon; feminism, women, and rethinking classical history; feminist readings of classical texts; and feminists and the classics - e.g. Cixous’ Medusa and Butler’s Antigone.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
CSTS B193 The Routes of Comedy
A broad survey, ranging from the pre-history of comedy in such phenomena as monkey laughs and ritual abuse to the ancient comedies of Greece and Rome and their modern descendants, from the Marx Brothers and Monty Python to Seinfeld and South Park.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B205 Greek History
A study of Greece down to the end of the Peloponnesian War (404 B.C.E.), with a focus on constitutional changes from monarchy through aristocracy and tyranny to democracy in various parts of the Greek world. Emphasis on learning to interpret ancient sources, including historians (especially Herodotus and Thucydides), inscriptions, and archaeological and numismatic materials. Particular attention is paid to Greek contacts with the Near East; constitutional developments in various Greek-speaking states; Athenian and Spartan foreign policies; and the "unwritten history" of non-elites.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B205
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Edmonds,R.
(Fall 2012)

CSTS B207 Early Rome and the Roman Republic
This course surveys the history of Rome from its origins to the end of the Republic, with special emphasis on the rise of Rome in Italy and the evolution of the Roman state. The course also examines the Hellenistic world in which the rise of Rome takes place. The methods of historical investigation using the ancient sources, both literary and archaeological, are emphasized.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B207
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Scott,R.
(Spring 2013)

CSTS B208 The Roman Empire
Imperial history from the principate of Augustus to the House of Constantine with focus on the evolution of Roman culture and society as presented in the surviving ancient evidence, both literary and archaeological.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)

CSTS B209 Eros in Ancient Greek Culture
This course explores the ancient Greek's ideas of love, from the interpersonal loves between people of the same or different genders to the cosmogonic Eros that creates and holds together the entire world. The course examines how the idea of eros is expressed in poetry, philosophy, history, and the romances.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CSTS B212 Magic in the Greco-Roman World
Bindings and curses, love charms and healing potions, amulets and talismans—from the simple spells designed to meet the needs of the poor and desperate to the complex theurgies of the philosophers—the people of the Greco-Roman world made use of magic to try to influence the world around them. This course will examine the magicians of the ancient world and the techniques and devices they used. We shall consider ancient tablets and spell books as well as literary descriptions of magic in the light of theories relating to the religious, political, and social contexts in which magic was used.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0

CSTS B255 Show and Spectacle in Ancient Greece and Rome

A survey of public entertainment in the ancient world, including theater and dramatic festivals, athletic competitions, games and gladiatorial combats, and processions and sacrifices. Drawing on literary sources and paying attention to art, archaeology and topography, this course explores the social, political and religious contexts of ancient spectacle. Special consideration will be given to modern equivalents of staged entertainment and the representation of ancient spectacle in contemporary film.
CSTS B274 From Myth to Modern Cinema

This course explores how contemporary film, a creative medium appealing to the entire demographic spectrum like Greek drama, looks back to the ancient origins. Examining both films that are directly based on Greek plays and films that make use of classical material in a less tangible way, we will discuss how Greek mythology is reconstructed and appropriated for modern audiences and how the classical past continues to be culturally significant. In addition to literary-historical interpretation, particular attention will be paid to feminist theory, film and gender studies, and psychoanalysis.

CSTS B375 Interpreting Mythology

The myths of the Greeks have provoked outrage and fascination, interpretation and retelling, censorship and elaboration, beginning with the Greeks themselves. We will see how some of these stories have been read and understood, recounted and revised, in various cultures and eras, from ancient tellings to modern movies. We will also explore some of the interpretive theories by which these tales have been understood, from ancient allegory to modern structural and semiotic theories. Preference to upperclassmen, previous coursework in myth required.

CSTS B645 Ancient Magic

Magic – the word evokes the mysterious and the marvelous, the forbidden and the hidden, the ancient and the arcane. But what did magic mean to the people who coined the term, the people of ancient Greece and Rome? Drawing on the expanding body of evidence for ancient magical practices, as well as recent theoretical approaches to the history of religions, this seminar explores the varieties of phenomena labeled magic in the ancient Greco-Roman world. Bindings and curses, love charms and healing potions, amulets and talismans - from the simple spells designed to meet the needs of the poor and desperate to the complex theurgies of the philosophers, the people of the Greco-Roman world did not only imagine what magic could do, they also made use of magic to try to influence the world around them. The seminar examines the primary texts in Greek, the tablets and spell books, as well as literary descriptions of magic, in the light of theories relating to the religious, political, and social contexts in which magic was used.

CSTS B673 Translation In Classics
This seminar will be concerned with theories of translation, with the history of translations of Greek and Latin literature, and with the practice of translation. We will read widely in translation theory from antiquity to the present; we will also look at comparative translations of a variety of authors and genres in both Greek and Latin (accompanied by close reading of the originals) and at the translation history of selected texts. Topics of discussion will include: the definitions, varieties, and limits of translation; the aims and uses of translation; translation and the reader or audience; the politics of translation; sites of controversy; rhetoric, diction and linguistic register in original and translation; the untranslatable. We will be attentive to special issues raised by the translation of classical texts and with the historical evolution of such translation. Course assignments will include readings in Greek and Latin texts and translations and in theory; several short papers, class presentations, and translations, and a long final paper which may take the form of a translation project. The seminar is open both to graduate students and to advanced undergraduates able to work at the 300 (fourth-year) level in either Greek or Latin.
(Readings will be divided between the two languages; individual assignments will tailored to the linguistic competence of the student.)

CSTS B675 Interpreting Mythology
The myths of the Greeks have provoked outrage and fascination, interpretation and retelling, censorship and elaboration, beginning with the Greeks themselves. We will see how some of these stories have been read and understood, recounted and revised, in various cultures and eras, from ancient tellings to modern movies. We will also explore some of the interpretive theories by which these tales have been understood, from ancient allegory to modern structural and semiotic theories. In addition, we will examine the ways in which myth may be taught in the college classroom. The student should gain a more profound understanding of the meaning of these myths to the Greeks themselves, of the cultural context in which they were formulated. At the same time, this course should provide the student with some familiarity with the range of interpretations and strategies of understanding that people of various cultures and times have applied to the Greek myths during the more than two millennia in which they have been preserved.

GROWTH AND STRUCTURE OF CITIES

Students may complete a major or minor in Growth and Structure of Cities. Students may enter the 3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning, offered in cooperation with the University of Pennsylvania.

Faculty

Juan Arbona, Associate Professor and Chair
Jeffrey Cohen, Term Professor
David Consiglio, Instructor
Megan Heckert, Visiting Assistant Professor, Swarthmore
Carola Hein, Professor
Gary McDonogh, Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Sam Olshin, Visiting Studio Critic
Ellen Stroud, Associate Professor
Daniela Voith, Senior Lecturer
Jun Zhang, Visiting Assistant Professor

The interdisciplinary Growth and Structure of Cities major challenges students to understand the dynamic relationships connecting urban spatial organization and the built environment with politics, economics, cultures and societies worldwide. Core introductory classes present analytic approaches that explore changing forms of the city over time and analyze the variety of ways through which women and men have re-created global urban life across history and across cultures. With these foundations, students pursue their interests through classes in architecture, urban social and economic relations, urban history, studies of planning and the environmental conditions of urban life. Opportunities for internships, volunteering, and study abroad also enrich the major. Advanced seminars further ground the course of study by focusing on specific cities and topics.

Major Requirements

A minimum of 15 courses (11 courses in Cities and four allied courses in other related fields) is required to complete the major. Two introductory courses (185, 190) balance sociocultural and formal approaches to urban form and the built environment, and introduce cross-cultural and historical comparison of urban development. The introductory sequence should be completed with a broad architectural survey course (253, 254, 255) and a second social science course that entails extended analysis (217 or 229). These courses should be completed as early as possible in the first and second years; at least two of them must be taken by the end of the first semester of the sophomore year. Students are encouraged to use other writing-intensive classes within the major to develop a range of skills in methods, theory, and presentation. In addition to these introductory courses, each student selects six elective courses within the Cities Department, including cross-listed courses. At least two must be at the 300 level. In the senior year, a third advanced course is required. Most students join together in a research seminar, CITY 398, in the Fall of that year. Occasionally, however, after consultation with the major advisers, the student may elect another 300-level course or a program for independent research. This is often the case with double majors who write a thesis in another field.

Each student must also identify four courses outside Cities that represent additional expertise to complement her work in the major. These may include courses such as physics and calculus for architects, additional courses in economics, political science, sociology, or anthropology for students more focused on the social sciences and planning, or courses that build on language, design, or regional interests. Any minor, concentration, or second major also fulfills this requirement. Cities courses that are cross-listed with other departments or originate in them can be counted only once in the course selection, although they may be either allied or elective courses.

Both the Cities Department electives and the four or more allied courses must be chosen in close consultation with the major advisers in order to create a strongly coherent sequence and focus. This is especially true for students interested in architectural design, who will need to arrange studio courses (226, 228) as well as accompanying courses in math, science and architectural history; they should contact the department chair or Daniela Voith in their first year. Likewise, students interested in pursuing a minor in Environmental Studies should consult with Ellen Stroud early in their career, and those interested in pursuing a concentration in Iberian, Latin American, and Latino/a themes should consult with Gary McDonogh.

Finally, students should also note that many courses in the department are given on an alternate-year basis. Many carry prerequisites in art history, economics, history, sociology, or the natural sciences.

Programs for study abroad or off campus are encouraged, within the limits of the Bryn Mawr and Haverford rules and practices. In general, a one-semester program is strongly preferred. The Cities Department regularly works with off-campus and study-abroad programs that are strong in architectural history, planning, and design, as well as those that allow students to pursue social and cultural interests.
Students who would like to spend part or all of their junior year away must consult with the major advisers and appropriate deans early in their sophomore year.

Cities majors have created major plans that have allowed them to coordinate their interests in cities with architecture, planning, ethnography, history, law, environmental studies, mass media, social justice, medicine, public health, the fine arts, and other fields. No matter the focus, though, each Cities major must develop a solid foundation in both the history of architecture and urban form and the analysis of urban culture, experience, and policy. Careful methodological choices, clear analytical writing, and critical visual analysis constitute primary emphases of the major. Strong interaction with faculty and other students are an important and productive part of the Cities Department, which helps us all take advantage of the major’s flexibility in an organized and rigorous way.

Minor Requirements

Students who wish to minor in the Cities Department must take at least two out of the four required courses and four cities electives, including two at the 300 level. Senior Seminar is not mandatory for fulfilling the cities minor.

3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning

Over the past two decades, many Cities majors have entered the 3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning, offered in conjunction with the University of Pennsylvania. Students interested in this program should meet with Carola Hein early in their sophomore year.

COURSES

CITY B103 Earth System Science and the Environment

This integrated approach to studying the Earth focuses on interactions among geology, oceanography, and biology. Also discussed are the consequences of population growth, industrial development, and human land use. Two lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork per week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April.

CITY B136 Working with Economic Data

Applies selected principles of economics to the quantitative analysis of economic data; uses spreadsheets and other tools to collect and judge the reliability of economic data. Topics may include measures of income inequality and poverty; unemployment, national income and other measures of economic well-being; cost-benefit of public and private investments; construction of price indices and other government statistics; evaluating economic forecasts; and the economics of personal finance.

Requirement(s): Division I or Quantitative

Crosslisting(s): ECON-B136

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)
CITY B175 Environment and Society: History, Place, and Problems

Introduces the ideas, themes, and methodologies of the interdisciplinary field of environmental studies beginning with definitions: what is nature? What is environment? And how do people and their settlements fit into each? The course then moves to distinct disciplinary approaches in which scholarship can and does (and does not) inform our perceptions of the environment. Assignments introduce methodologies of environmental studies, requiring reading landscapes, working with census data and government reports, critically interpreting scientific data, and analyzing work of experts.

CITY B200 Urban Sociology

This course consists of an overview, as well as an analysis of the physical and social structure of the city.

The first part of the course will deal with understanding exactly what a city consists of. The second part will focus on the social structure within cities. Finally, in the third part of the course, we will examine patterns of inequality and segregation in the city. Prerequisite: one social science course or permission of instructor.

Introduction to the major sociological theories of gender, racial-ethnic, and class inequality with emphasis on the relationships among these forms of stratification in the contemporary United States, including the role of the upper class(es), inequality between and within families, in the work place, and in the educational system.
(Cross-listed with CITY 205).
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B205
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B206 Introduction to Econometrics
An introduction to econometric terminology and reasoning. Topics include descriptive statistics, probability, and statistical inference. Particular emphasis is placed on regression analysis and on the use of data to address economic issues. The required computational techniques are developed as part of the course. Prerequisites: ECON B105, or H101 and H102, and a 200-level elective (may be waived by the instructor).
Requirement(s): Quantitative
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B253
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B207 Topics in Urban Studies
A mid-level course that explores how we understand and write about architecture and architectural history, based on the analysis of visual materials, close reading of texts, and visits to actual sites. Current topic description: An exploration of the architecture and evolution of the Philadelphia area over three centuries. A local focus will allow both first-hand experience of buildings and reference to period archival evidence as a basis for constructing a nuanced understanding of the subject.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cohen, J.
(Spring 2013)

CITY B210 Natural Hazards
A quantitative approach to understanding the earth processes that impact human societies. We consider the past, current, and future hazards presented by geologic processes, including earthquakes, volcanoes, landslides, floods, and hurricanes. The course includes discussion of the social, economic, and policy contexts within which natural geologic processes become hazards. Case studies are drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Lecture three hours a week, with one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: one semester of college science or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): GEOL-B209
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B212 Medieval Architecture
Not just Gothic cathedrals, medieval architecture includes mosques, synagogues, fortifications, palaces, monasteries and other residential structures produced in Europe, North Africa and the Middle East between about 300 and 1350 CE. This course offers a selective overview and an introduction to research in this broad and diverse field of study.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): HART-B212
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B213 Taming the Modern Corporation
Introduction to the economics of industrial organization and regulation, focusing on policy options for ensuring that corporations enhance economic welfare and the quality of life. Topics include firm behavior in imperfectly competitive markets; theoretical bases of antitrust laws; regulation of product and occupational safety; environmental pollution; and truth in advertising.
Prerequisite: ECON H101 or B105.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B213
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross, D.
(Fall 2012)

CITY B214 Public Finance
Introduction to the economics of industrial organization and regulation, focusing on policy options for ensuring that corporations enhance economic welfare and the quality of life. Topics include firm behavior in imperfectly competitive markets; theoretical bases of antitrust laws; regulation of product and occupational safety; environmental pollution; and truth in advertising.
Prerequisite: ECON H101 or B105.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B214
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Weinberg, M.
(Spring 2013)

CITY B215 Urban Economics
Micro- and macroeconomic theory applied to urban economic behavior. Topics include housing and land use; transportation; urban labor markets; urbanization; and demand for and financing of urban services.
Prerequisite: ECON 105, or 101 and 102.
CITY B217 Research Methods and Theories
This course will provide the student with the basic skills to design and implement a research project. The emphasis will be on the process (and choices) of constructing a research project and on "learning by doing." The course will encompass both quantitative and qualitative techniques and will examine the strengths and weaknesses of each strategy. By the end of the semester students will have learned the basics for planning and executing research on a topic of their choice.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Arbona,J.
(Spring 2013)

CITY B218 Topics in World Cities
An introduction to contemporary issues related to the urban environment. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Crosslisting(s): EAST-B218
Units: 1.0

CITY B220 Comparative Social Movements in Latin America
An examination of resistance movements to the power of the state and globalization in three Latin American societies: Mexico, Columbia, and Peru. The course explores the political, legal, and socio-economic factors underlying contemporary struggles for human and social rights, and the role of race, ethnicity, and coloniality play in these struggles.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B259; POLS-B259
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Marquez,E.
(Fall 2012)

CITY B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues
An exploration of the ways in which different cultural, economic, and political settings have shaped issue emergence and policy making. We examine the politics of particular environmental issues in selected countries and regions. We also assess the prospects for international cooperation in solving global environmental problems such as climate change.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B222
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hager,C.
(Spring 2013)

CITY B225 Economic Development
Examination of the issues related to and the policies designed to promote economic development in the developing economies of Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. Focus is on why some developing economies grow faster than others and why some growth paths are more equitable, poverty reducing, and environmentally sustainable than others. Includes consideration of the impact of international trade and investment policy, macroeconomic policies (exchange rate, monetary and fiscal policy) and sector policies (industry, agriculture, education, population, and environment) on development outcomes in a wide range of political and institutional contexts. Prerequisite: ECON B105, or H101 and H102.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B225

CITY B250 Growth and Spatial Organization of the City
An introduction to growth and spatial organization of cities. Topics vary. Current topic description: This course explores factors that have shaped the form and evolution of Cities. In Fall 2012 it will focus on the recent history of U.S. cities as both physical spaces and social entities. How have the definitions, political roles, and social perceptions of U.S. cities changed since 1900?
And how have those shifts, along with changes in transportation, communication, construction, and other technologies affected both the people and places that comprise U.S. cities?

CITY B253 Before Modernism: Architecture and
Urbanism of the 18th and 19th Centuries
The course frames the topic of architecture before the impact of 20th century Modernism, with a special focus on the two prior centuries - especially the 19th - in ways that treat them on their own terms rather than as precursors of more modern technologies and forms of expression. The course will integrate urbanistic and vernacular perspectives alongside more familiar landmark exemplars. Key goals and components of the course will include attaining a facility within pertinent bibliographical and digital landscapes, formal analysis and research skills exercised in writing projects, class field-trips, and a nuanced mastery of the narratives embodied in the architecture of these centuries.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): HART-B253
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hein,C.

CITY B260 Show and Spectacle in Ancient Greece and Rome
A survey of public entertainment in the ancient world, including theater and dramatic festivals, athletic competitions, games and gladiatorial combats, and processions and sacrifices. Drawing on literary sources, with attention to art and the archaeology and topography, we will explore the social, political and religious contexts of ancient spectacle. Special consideration will be given to modern equivalents of staged entertainment and representation of ancient spectacle in contemporary film and interpretive approaches such as gaze studies and carnivalesque. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Crosslisting(s): CSTS-B255; ARCH-B255; HIST-B285 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B266 Schools in American Cities
This course examines issues, challenges, and possibilities of urban education in contemporary America. We use as critical lenses issues of race, class, and culture; urban learners, teachers, and school systems; and restructuring and reform. While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal "case" that students investigate through documents and school placements. Enrollment is limited to 25 with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies and to majors in Sociology and Growth and Structure of Cities. This is a Praxis I course (weekly fieldwork in a school required).
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Africana Studies; Praxis Program Crosslisting(s): EDUC-B266; SOCL-B266 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Cohen,J. (Spring 2013)

CITY B267 Philadelphia, 1682 to Present
This course will focus on the intersection of the sense of Philadelphia as it is popularly understood and the Philadelphia that we can reconstruct individually and together using scholarly books and articles, documentary and popular films and novels, visual evidence, and visits to the chief repositories of the city's history. We will analyze the relationship between the official representations of Philadelphia and their sources and we will create our own history of the city. Preference given to junior and senior Growth and Structure of Cities and History majors, and those students who were previously lotteried out of the course.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III Crosslisting(s): HIST-B267 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B268 Greek and Roman Architecture
The course will introduce the structure of Greek and Roman cities and sanctuaries, the variety of building types and monuments found within them, and how local populations used and lived in the architectural environment of the classical world.
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B268; HART-B268 Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B269 Black America in Sociological Perspective
This course provides sociological perspectives on various issues affecting black America: the legacy of slavery; the formation of urban ghettos; the struggle for civil rights; the continuing significance of discrimination; the problems of crime and criminal justice; educational under-performance; entrepreneurial and business activities; the social roles of black intellectuals, athletes, entertainers, and creative artists.

HEBREW AND JUDAIC STUDIES

Faculty

Amiram Amitai, Lecturer
Grace Armstrong, Professor and Director of Middle Eastern Languages

Modern Hebrew language instruction is available at Bryn Mawr through the intermediate level; at Swarthmore College biblical Hebrew is offered in a two-semester sequence through the first-year level, and additional reading in Classical Jewish texts is available in directed reading, one-half-credit courses. At Haverford, Judaic Studies courses are offered by the Department of Religion. Bryn Mawr also offers several courses which complement Haverford’s offerings in Judaic Studies. All of these courses are listed in the Tri-Co Course Guide under the heading “Hebrew and Judaic Studies.”

College Foreign Language Requirement

The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing Hebrew 001 and 002 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in Hebrew 002.

COURSES

HEBR B001 Elementary Hebrew

This is a year-long course. This course prepares students for reading classical religious texts as well as modern literary work. It covers grammar, composition, and conversation with primary emphasis on fluency in reading as well as the development of basic conversational skills.

Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HEBR B002 Elementary Hebrew

This is a year-long course. This course prepares students for reading classical religious texts as well as modern literary work. It covers grammar, composition, and conversation with primary emphasis on fluency in reading as well as the development of basic conversational skills.

Requirement(s): Language Level 1

HEBR B211 Primo Levi, the Holocaust and Its Aftermath

A consideration, through analysis and appreciation of his major works, of how the horrific experience of the Holocaust awakened in Primo Levi a growing awareness of his Jewish heritage and led him to become one of the dominant voices of that tragic historical event, as well as one of the most original new literary figures of post-World War II Italy. Always in relation to Levi and his works, attention will also be given to other Italian women writers whose works are
HEBR B261 Palestine and Israeli Society
Consider the legacy of Palestine and the centrality of the IsraeliPalestinian conflict as key in the formation of Israeli society, shaped by ongoing political conflict. New ethnographic writings disclose themes like Zionism, Holocaust, immigration, religion, Palestinian citizenship, Middle Eastern Jews and military occupation and resulting emerging debates among different social sectors and populations. Also considers constitution of ethnographic fields and the shaping of anthropological investigations by arenas of conflict. Prerequisites: sophomore standing and POLS B111 or ANTH B101 or B102 or permission of the instructor.

HEBR B271 Topics in Judaic Studies
What happened in Jewish history between antiquity and the modern era, between composing the Talmud and receiving citizenship in European nations? As we try to understand how Jews got from there to here, this seminar will explore the diverse and sometimes astonishing forms of Jewish life in the medieval and early modern periods (approximately 1000-1800), with special focus on the evolution of Jewish relations with the majority culture. Topics will include the golden age of Jewry in Muslim Spain, the development of European anti-Jewish policies and persecutions, Jewish self-government, and cosmopolitanism, as well as many of the philosophers, mystics and would-be messiahs who sparked religious movements and change in the course of these tumultuous centuries.

HISTORY

Students may complete a major or minor in History.

Faculty

Ignacio Gallup-Diaz, Associate Professor and Interim Chair (semester I)
Madhavi Kale, Professor
Jane McAuliffe, President of the College and Professor of History
Kalala Ngalamulume, Associate Professor and Chair
(on leave semester I)
Amit Prakash, Visiting Assistant Professor
Jennifer Redmond, Postdoctoral Fellow
Elliott Shore, Professor
Elly Truitt, Assistant Professor
Sharon Ullman, Professor

A primary aim of the Department of History is to deepen students’ sense of time as a factor in cultural diversity and change. Our program of study offers students the opportunity to experience the past through attention to long-range questions and comparative history.

The department’s 100-level courses, centered upon specific topics within the instructor’s field of expertise, introduce students to a wide array of subjects and themes, while at the same time exploring how historians devise narratives and provide analysis through the study of primary sources. In the 200-level courses, the department offers students the opportunity to pursue interests in specific cultures, regions, policies, or societies, and enables them to experience a broad array of approaches to history.

The department’s 300-level courses build on students’ knowledge gained in 200-level classes, and provide opportunities to explore topics at greater depth in a seminar setting.

Major Requirements

Eleven courses are required for the History major, and three—one 100-level course, Exploring History (HIST 395), and the Senior Thesis (HIST 398)—must be taken at Bryn Mawr. In Senior Thesis (HIST 398), the student selects a topic of her choice, researches it, and writes a thesis.

The remaining eight history courses may range across fields or concentrate within them, depending on how a major’s interests develop. Of these, at least two must be seminars at the 300 level offered by the Departments of History at Bryn Mawr, Haverford or Swarthmore Colleges or the University of Pennsylvania. (It is strongly recommended that at least one of these advanced courses be taken with Bryn Mawr history faculty, as it is with one of them that majors will work on their senior thesis.)

Only two 100-level courses may be counted toward the major. Credit toward the major is not given for either the Advanced Placement examination or the International Baccalaureate.

Honors

Majors with cumulative GPAs of at least 3.0 (general) and 3.5 (history) at the end of their senior year, and who achieve a grade of at least 3.7 on their senior thesis, qualify for departmental honors.

Minor Requirements

The requirement for the minor is six courses, at least four of which must be taken in the Bryn Mawr Department of History, and include one 100-level course, at least one 300-level course within the department, and two additional history courses within the department.

COURSES

HIST B101 The Historical Imagination

Explores some of the ways people have thought about, represented, and used the past across time and space. Introduces students to modern historical practices and debates through examination and discussion of texts and archives that range from scholarly monographs and documents to monuments, oral traditions, and other media.

HIST B127 Indigenous Leaders 1492-1750

Studies the experiences of indigenous men and women who exercised local authority in the systems established by European colonizers. In return for places in the colonial administrations, these leaders performed a range of tasks. At the same time they served as imperial officials, they exercised “traditional” forms of authority within their communities, often free of European presence. These figures provide a lens through which early modern colonialism is studied.

HIST B241 American Politics and Society: 1890-1945

This course examines the first half of the twentieth century in depth. While the twentieth century has often been called the American Century (usually by Americans), this century can truthfully be looked to as the moment when American influence and power, for good and ill, came to be felt on a national and global scale. While much of this “bigfoot” quality is associated with the post WWII period (see you in the spring), one cannot understand the America of today - in the early 21st century - without looking at the earlier period. This course looks closely at the political, social, and cultural developments that helped shape America in these pivotal years.

(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B242 American Politics and Society: 1945 to the Present

How did we get here? This course looks at the amazing transformation of America in the years 1945 to today. From a country devastated by economic crisis and wedded to isolationism prior to WW II, America became an unchallenged international powerhouse. Massive grass roots resistance forced the United States to abandon racial apartheid, open opportunities to women, and reinvent its very definition as it incorporated immigrants from around the globe. And in the same period, American music and film broke free from their staid moorings and permanently altered global culture. We will explore the political, social, and cultural factors that created recent American history.

HIST B243 Atlantic Cultures

This is a topics course. Course content varies. Current topic description: The course explores the process of self-emancipation by slaves in the early modern Atlantic World. What was the nature of the communities that free blacks forged? What were their relationships to the empires from which they had freed themselves? How was race constructed in the early modern period? Did conceptions of race change over time?

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
HIST B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East

A survey of the history, material culture, political and religious ideologies of, and interactions among, the five great empires of the ancient Near East of the second and first millennia B.C.E.: New Kingdom Egypt, the Hittite Empire in Anatolia, the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires in Mesopotamia, and the Persian Empire in Iran.

HIST B257 British Empire I: Capitalism and Slavery

Focusing on the Atlantic slave trade and the slave plantation mode of production, this course explores English colonization, and the emergence and the decline of British Empire in the Americas and Caribbean from the 17th through the late 20th centuries. It tracks some of the intersecting and overlapping routes—and roots—connecting histories and politics within and between these “new” world locations. It also tracks the further and proliferating links between developments in these regions and the histories and politics of regions in the “old” world, from the north Atlantic to the South China sea.

HIST B258 British Empire: Imagining Indias

This course considers ideas about and experiences of “modern” India, i.e., India during the colonial and post-Independence periods (roughly 1757-present). While “India” and “Indian history” along with “British empire” and “British history” will be the ostensible objects of our consideration and discussions, the course proposes that their imagination and meanings are continually mediated by a wide variety of institutions, agents, and analytical categories (nation, religion, class, race, gender, to name a few examples). The course uses primary sources, scholarly analyses, and cultural productions to explore the political economies of knowledge, representation, and power in the production of modernity.

HIST B264 Passages from India: 1800-Present
This course explores the histories and effects of migration from the Indian subcontinent to far-flung destinations across the globe. It starts with the circular migrations of traders, merchants, and pilgrims in the medieval period from the Indian subcontinent to points east (in southeast Asia) and west (eastern Africa). However, the focus of the course is on modern migrations from the subcontinent, from the indentured labor migrations of the British colonial period (to Africa, the Caribbean, and the South Pacific) to the post-Independence emigrations from the new nations of the subcontinent to Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and the United States. Requirement(s): Division I or Division III Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B267 History of Philadelphia: 1682 to Present
This course will focus on the intersection of the sense of Philadelphia as it is popularly understood and the Philadelphia that we can reconstruct individually and together using scholarly books and articles, documentary and popular films and novels, visual evidence, and visits to the chief repositories of the city's history. We will analyze the relationship between the official representations of Philadelphia and their sources and we will create our own history of the city. Preference given to junior and senior Growth and Structure of Cities and History majors, and those students who were previously lotteried out of the course. HIST B287 Immigration in the U.S.
How we understand the history of immigration to the territory now known as the United States has been transformed by recent explorations of the notion of “whiteness.” This course will be framed by the ways in which this powerful lens for interpretation has helped to recast the meaning of ethnicity as we focus on individual immigrant groups and the context which they both entered and created from the 17th century to the present. The first half of the semester will concentrate largely on the “century of immigration,” from the early 19th through the early 20th century. Together, we will shape the second half of the course, deciding on the topics we will investigate and upon which 20th century groups we will focus.

This is a topics course. Course content varies. Recent topics have included medicine, advertising, and history of sexuality. Current topic description: In the twenty years following World War II, Americans were faced with unexpected fears and anxieties. Despite the emergence of American as a superpower, Americans became deeply paranoid and insecure. Most famous as the era of McCarthy persecutions, Cold War political culture also produced the Civil Rights Movement, debates over the role of the individual and the state, critiques of conformity, and challenges to social status quo through personal politics and cultural revolutions in multiple arenas. This course will focus on the ways in which Cold War political culture offered a fundamentally new – and profoundly influential – paradigm for modern American life.

topic description: This course will examine the history of women’s education in the 19th and 20th centuries, focusing on the context of the history of women’s higher education in the US and globally. The course will explore the cultural, social, and political conditions that influenced the founding of Bryn Mawr and will compare and contrast this to other colleges, such as the Seven Sisters and the British universities that so influenced M. Carey Thomas in her ideal of an exemplary women’s college. The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the history of women’s higher education, the political struggles encountered by the pioneers in women’s educational reform, and to reflect on the differences between women’s colleges in their establishment and their subsequent histories. We will discuss the arguments surrounding single-sex vs. co-educational institutions and reflect on the place of women’s colleges in society. Our task in this course will be to gain a deep historical understanding of the issues that will challenge students to think about the history of their institution and the legacy created through the campaign for women’s higher education over the last two centuries. Students will have the opportunity, if they wish, to create digital versions of their work to appear on The Albert M. Greenfield Digital Center for the History of Women’s Education site, to contribute to a forthcoming exhibit and conference on this topic in Spring 2013, and to use original source materials from the Bryn Mawr College collections to create innovative work on to contribute to our knowledge of the legacy of women’s education. HISTORY OF ART

Students may complete a major or minor in History of Art.

Faculty

David Cast, Professor (on leave semester II)
Erica Cho, Visiting Assistant Professor
Rebecca DeRoo, Visiting Assistant Professor
Christiane Hertel, Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Homay King, Associate Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Steven Levine, Professor and Chair
Gridley McKim-Smith, Professor
Lisa Saltzman, Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Alicia Walker, Assistant Professor

Major Requirements

The major requires ten units, approved by the major adviser. A usual sequence of courses would include at least one 100-level “critical approaches” seminar, four 200-level lecture courses, three 300-level seminars, and senior conference I and II in the fall and spring semesters of senior year. In the course of their departmental studies, students are strongly encouraged to take courses across media and areas, and in at least three of the following fields of study: Ancient and Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque, Modern and Contemporary, Film, and Non-Western.

With the approval of the major adviser, courses in fine arts or with significant curricular investment in visual studies may be counted toward the fulfillment of the distribution requirements, such as courses in ancient art offered by the Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology department or in architecture by the Growth and Structure of Cities department. Similarly, courses in art history taken abroad or at another institution in the United States may be counted. Generally, no more than two such courses may be counted toward the major requirements.
A senior paper, based on independent research and using scholarly methods of historical and/or critical interpretation must be submitted at the end of the spring semester. Generally 25-40 pages in length, the senior paper represents the culmination of the departmental experience.

Honors
Seniors whose work is outstanding will be invited to submit an honors thesis instead of the senior paper. Two or three faculty members discuss the completed thesis with the honors candidate in a one-half-hour oral examination.

Minor Requirements
A minor in history of art requires six units: one or two 100-level courses and four or five others selected in consultation with the major adviser.

COURSES
HART B100 The Stuff of Art
An introduction to chemistry through fine arts, this course emphasizes the close relationship of the fine arts, especially painting, to the development of chemistry and its practice. The historical role of the material in the arts, in alchemy and in the developing science of chemistry, will be discussed, as well as the synergy between these areas. Relevant principles of chemistry will be illustrated through the handling, synthesis and/or transformations of the material. This course does not count towards chemistry major requirements, and is not suitable for premedical programs. Lecture 90 minutes, laboratory three hours a week. Enrollment limited to 20.

HART B212 Medieval Architecture
This course takes a broad geographic and chronological scope, allowing for full exposure to the rich variety of objects and monuments that fall under the rubric of "medieval" art and architecture. We focus on the Latin and Byzantine Christian traditions, but also consider works of art and architecture from the Islamic and Jewish spheres. Topics to be discussed include: the role of religion in artistic development and expression; secular traditions of medieval art and culture; facture and materiality in the art of the middle ages; the use of objects and monuments to convey political power and social prestige; gender dynamics in medieval visual culture; and the contribution of medieval art and architecture to later artistic traditions.

HART B238 The History of Cinema 1895 to 1945
Silent Film: From United States to Soviet Russia and Beyond

This course will explore cinema from its earliest, most primitive beginnings up to the end of the silent era. While the course will focus on a variety of historical and theoretical aspects of cinema, the primary aim is to look at films analytically. Emphasis will be on the various artistic methods that went into the direction and production of a variety of celebrated silent films from around the world. These films will be considered in many contexts: artistic, historical, social, and even philosophical, so that students can develop a deeper understanding of silent cinema’s rapid evolution.

HART B253 Before Modernism: Architecture and Urbanism of the 18th and 19th Centuries

The course frames the topic of architecture before the impact of 20th century Modernism, with a special focus on the two prior centuries - especially the 19th - in ways that treat them on their own terms rather than as precursors of more modern technologies and forms of expression. The course will integrate urbanistic and vernacular perspectives alongside more familiar landmark exemplars. Key goals and components of the course will include attaining a facility within pertinent bibliographical and digital landscapes, formal analysis and research skills exercised in writing projects, class field-trips, and a nuanced mastery of the narratives embodied in the architecture of these centuries.

HART B299 History of Narrative Cinema, 1945 to Present

This course surveys the history of narrative film from 1945 through the contemporary moment. We will analyze a series of styles and national cinemas in chronological order, including Italian Neorealism, the French New Wave, and other post-war movements and genres. Viewings of canonical films will be supplemented by more recent examples of global cinema. While historical in approach, this course emphasizes the theory and criticism of the sound film, and we will consider various methodological approaches to the aesthetic, socio-political, and psychological dimensions of cinema. Fulfills the history requirement or the introductory course requirement for the Film Studies minor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

HART B630 Topics in Renaissance Art
This seminar is concerned with the history and the historiography of Mannerism. The first subjects are those works of art, described as Mannerist, produced in Italy and then in the rest of Europe in the XVIth and XVIIth centuries. But we are also concerned with the critical reception of these works and the attention they have gathered within the history of criticism, from the XVIth century onwards to the writings of historians of art, especially in Germany, at the beginning of the last century. We will also examine how far, and how usefully, such a term can be used today in criticism, as it is still so often.

International Studies is the study of relationships among people and states affected by increasingly permeable borders and facing global issues. International Studies aims to prepare students to be responsible citizens by introducing them to issues of importance in an increasingly interdependent world of global dynamics in politics, economics, ideas, language, and culture.

At Bryn Mawr, International Studies combines applied and theoretical approaches by drawing from disciplines in both the Social Sciences and Humanities. This broad conception of International Studies distinguishes our program from many others. It builds from a core of courses from politics, economics, and ethics, a branch of philosophy, and then incorporates electives from specified tracks that reflect areas of strength in faculty research and teaching. It allows students to explore the descriptive and normative aspects of living in a world characterized by the deep interconnections of a globalized world. It thus draws on Bryn Mawr’s longstanding interest in promoting justice with its already established coursework at the undergraduate level and at the Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research and on its well established programs in languages and cultures.

...
International Studies

The curricular content is relevant in preparing graduates to participate critically and effectively in the many integrated transnational and global institutional networks of production, services, creative expression, research and governance. Thus students with specialties in the Humanities, Social Sciences, or Sciences can benefit from a visible and structured flow of courses in International Studies. The inter and multi-disciplinary approaches reflected in the structure for the major as well as for the minor reflect the kind of integrative thinking that is necessary for effective agency in the globalized world economy and society. Students in International Studies will be made aware of both the distinct modes of inquiry that may transcend disciplines and the cumulative effects of convergent examinations of phenomena from these different disciplinary perspectives.

International Studies engages students in the necessarily inter- and multi-disciplinary course work that will prepare them for productive roles in transnational or intergovernmental institutions and in the areas of public policy, law, governance, public health, medicine, business, diplomacy, journalism, and development. Courses cover both theoretical perspectives and empirical issues in different areas of the world. International Studies at Bryn Mawr provides a foundation for students interested in pursuing career opportunities in these areas or in entering graduate programs such as International Politics/Relations, International Political Economy/Development Studies, International Law and Institutions, and Organizational Theory and Leadership.

A Bryn Mawr graduate in International Studies will be • Able to contribute their knowledge and leadership skills within governmental and nongovernmental organizations at transnational, regional, or global levels or in cross-cultural settings.

Although language study is not required per se for the major or the minor, students can take advantage of Bryn Mawr’s traditional strength in the study of language and culture to enhance their study of non-Anglophone areas of the world. Those intending to study abroad in a non-Anglophone area must meet the level of proficiency required by the Junior Year Abroad program involved; and those intending to undertake graduate work in international studies should plan to acquire the advanced level of proficiency in one foreign language (at the time of admission or graduation) required by the most selective programs here and abroad. Since it began in 2005, the minor in International Studies has attracted a significant number of language majors who use their study of a particular language to select a coherent set of electives under a relevant track in the minor in order to pursue career and study opportunities in the international arena.

Major Requirements

Students majoring in International Studies must complete a total of ten courses, which include a core of four courses, an elective track of four courses, and a senior capstone experience of either two courses (398 and 399) OR 398 and an additional 300 level course.

Please note that some of the courses listed in the core have prerequisites, which may increase the total number of courses for the major in International Studies to eleven. Also note that no more than two courses in an International Studies major work plan can be used to satisfy another major, minor, or concentration requirement.

Core Courses

The Core is a mix of 100-300 level courses in International fields. Students must choose one course from among four eligible courses in EACH of Politics, Economics, and Philosophy (at least one of which is at the 300 level). They must also choose one course from among ten in Culture and Interpretation, a requirement in the core that is unique to Bryn Mawr. The rationale for the two parts of the Core (Politics, Economics, and Philosophy and Culture and Interpretation) are given below along with corresponding lists of eligible courses under each. The disciplines of Politics, Economics, and Philosophy have become central to International Studies programs since markets, conflicts, diplomacy and rules are nested in values and norms as much as in state territories and institutional framings. The program at Bryn Mawr is distinctive in having the requirement that students take an ethics course in which they study topics in areas such as global ethical issues, development ethics, global justice, and human rights.

The eligible courses for the Politics, Economics, and Philosophy component of the core are:

POLITICAL SCIENCE
- Introduction to International Politics (POLS B250), or International Politics (POLS H151)
- Politics of International Law and Institutions (POLS B241)
- International Political Economy (POLS B391)
- Topics in International Politics (POLS H350)

ECONOMICS
- Economic Development (ECON B225), or Economic Development and Transformation: China vs. India (ECON H240)
- The Economics of Globalization (ECON B236)
- Democracy and Development (ECON B385), or Economics of Transition and Euro Adoption in Central and Eastern Europe (ECON H241).

PHILOSOPHY
- Global Ethical Issues (PHIL B225), or Human Rights and Global Politics (POLS H262)
- Applied Ethics of Peace, Justice and Human Rights (PEAC H201)
- Development Ethics (PHIL B344)
- Global Justice (POLS H362)

If none of the eligible core courses from a particular discipline in the Politics, Economics, and Philosophy core are available in any given year, substitutions will be allowed with another allied course offered at Bryn Mawr, Haverford, Swarthmore or Penn, with the approval of an Adviser from the Center for International Studies.

CULTURE AND INTERPRETATION
Also in the core, and unique to Bryn Mawr, Culture and Interpretation teaches how language, aesthetics, beliefs, values, and customs can shape possibilities for cross-cultural understanding and dialogue in globalizing politics, economies and societies. Courses satisfying this requirement cover a broad perspective that teaches students about differing cultures and what it means to interpret or make cross-cultural comparisons and engage in cross-cultural dialogue in the global context. The list of eligible courses is, therefore, drawn from courses taught by Advisers from a range of key disciplines in International Studies: Anthropology, Cities, Comparative Literature, History, Philosophy, Sociology, and Languages and Area Studies. The course is meant to be a broad analysis of culture and interpretation that does not focus on a country or region in isolation from this broad analysis. Each of the courses selected from the range of disciplines capture this breadth and depth. Students interested in studying a specific region of the world separate from its global implications can pursue this study in one of the tracks.

The eligible courses for the Culture and Interpretation component of the core are:
- Introduction to Cultural Anthropology (ANTH B102)
- Culture and Interpretation (COML/PHIL B202 or COML/PHIL B323)
- The Play of Interpretation (COML/ENGL/GERM/PHIL B292)
- Chinese Perspectives on the Individual and Society (at Haverford) (EAST H120)
- La Mosaique France (FREN/CITY B251)
- Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile (GERM/COML/ANTH B231)
- Introduction to Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures (GNST B145)
- The Atlantic World 1492-1800 (HIST/ANTH B200)
- British Empire: Imagining Indias (HIST B258)
- Society, Culture and the Individual (SOCL B102)

With the approval of an Adviser from the Center for International Studies, substitutions may be allowed in the case of the ten eligible courses for the Culture and Interpretation component of the core when none is available in any given year.

Electives
Elective Tracks allow students to focus on one theme or area in greater depth across four courses, one of which must be at the 300 level.

The electives continue to anchor the major in inter- and multidisciplinary work while also adding flexibility so that students may be creative and purposeful in structuring their own work.
faculty research, resources, and reputations in the individual tracks at the same time as it offers flexibility under clear advising for each of the individualized pathways of learning. Students should choose the four electives from the approved lists under one of the tracks identified below.

Please refer to the International Studies Web site for detailed information regarding approved electives: www.brynmawr.edu/internationalstudies. Students should also check the International Studies Web site or the Tri-College Course Guide for information about courses that are offered in the current year.

Students may choose one of the following tracks:

GENDER

Bryn Mawr’s “proud history of global leadership for women” makes gender an obvious choice as one of the tracks enabling students to complete the Major in International Studies. To make good on Bryn Mawr’s mission to prepare “students to be purposefully engaged citizens of an increasingly complex and interconnected world,” the student in International Studies who selects the Gender track will study gender and its intersections with factors such as race, class, ethnicity, sexual orientation, age, religion, and disability in order to analyze gender with respect to the workings of the global economy and globalization more generally. Although not always the case, many organizations at the local, national, and global levels now understand gender to be a central factor in policies for alleviating poverty or promoting economic growth. The changes wrought by measures such as improving health care for women and children and increasing access to education, property, and work outside the home shows the importance of understanding gender and its intersections with other forms of discrimination in a globalized and interconnected world. The FOUR elective courses are to be selected from (but are not limited to) an approved list at: www.brynmawr.edu/internationalstudies/core.shtml. The courses listed on the website are a starting point for collaboration between the student and the major adviser.

DEVELOPMENT

Development is most often understood in terms of processes of economic growth, industrialization, and modernization that result in a society’s achieving a high (per capita) gross domestic product. These descriptions of economic processes tend to embed assumptions about progress, transformation, and liberation as exemplified in concepts such as “underdeveloped” or “developing” countries. The student in International Studies who selects this track will study the concept of development in a broad sense by using a multidisciplinary approach that combines courses from disciplines such as Anthropology, Economics, Cities, History, Philosophy, Political Science, and Sociology to effectively understand development processes from multiple perspectives. One result is an exploration of development that broadens the study from describing economic deprivation in terms of levels of income, for example, to understanding the ways in which equality, justice, well-being, and human flourishing are affected by growth and modernization processes. The student selecting the Development track will become versed in the critical issues, problems, and achievements common not only to developing regions of the world but also to developed countries and the world as a whole. The FOUR elective courses are to be selected from (but are not limited to) an approved list at: www.brynmawr.edu/internationalstudies/core.shtml. The courses listed on the website are a starting point for collaboration between the student and the major adviser.

GLOBAL SOCIAL JUSTICE

Efforts to realize social justice are increasingly necessary in global systems as much as they had always been in national and local ones. The Global Social Justice track will allow students to make connections at all these levels. They will be able to draw on the long tradition of focus on Social Justice at Bryn Mawr and Haverford and on collaboration with the Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research and its thrust on Social Welfare. Bryn Mawr’s mission statement identifies the characteristics of a Bryn Mawr education as “critical thinking, interdisciplinary perspective, engagement in a diverse community, and purposeful vision of social justice.” The Global Social Justice track allows students to explore issues of social and political change in the context of economic and political transition in the globalized world. Students gain insight into how global issues affect relationships among people and cultures within and across national boundaries and how global issues are in turn affected by these relationships. They will study the ways in which dramatic economic disparities wrought by globalization and the global economy affect social welfare and guard against efforts to achieve social justice locally, nationally, and globally. The FOUR elective courses are to be selected from (but are not limited to) an approved list at: www.brynmawr.edu/internationalstudies/core.shtml. The courses listed on the website are a starting point for collaboration between the student and the major adviser.

Independent Design

Students who are so inclined may develop an independent design in consultation with an Adviser from the Center for International Studies. An Independent Design could include area studies that draw on Bryn Mawr’s strengths in the study of languages and cultures and on our programs in Africana Studies, East Asian
Core Courses

The Core is a mix of 100-300 level courses in International fields. Students must choose one course from among four eligible courses in EACH of Politics, Economics, and Philosophy (at least one of which is at the 300 level). They must also choose one course from among ten in Culture and Interpretation, a requirement in the core that is unique to Bryn Mawr. The rationale for the two parts of the core (Politics, Economics, and Philosophy and Culture and Interpretation) are given below along with corresponding lists of eligible courses under each. The disciplines of Politics, Economics, and Philosophy have become central to International Studies programs since markets, conflicts, diplomacy and rules are nested in values and norms as much as in state territories and institutional framings. The program at Bryn Mawr is distinctive in having the requirement that students take an ethics course in which they study topics in global ethical issues, development ethics, global justice, or human rights.

The eligible courses for the Politics, Economics, and Philosophy component of the core are:

POLITICAL SCIENCE
- Introduction to International Politics (POLS B250), or International Politics (at Haverford)(POLS H151)
- Politics of International Law and Institutions (POLS B241)
- International Political Economy (POLS B391)
- Topics in International Politics (at Haverford) (POLS H350)

ECONOMICS
- Economic Development (ECON B225), or Economic Development and Transformation: China vs. India (at Haverford) (ECON H240)
- The Economics of Globalization (ECON B236)
- Democracy and Development (ECON B385), or Economics of Transition and Euro Adoption in Central and Eastern Europe (at Haverford) (ECON H241). NOTE: Introduction to Economics (ECON B105) is a prerequisite for all other Economics courses.

PHILOSOPHY
- Global Ethical Issues (PHIL B225), or Human Rights and Global Politics (POLS H262)
- Applied Ethics of Peace, Justice and Human Rights (PEAC H201)
- Development Ethics (PHIL B344)
- Global Justice (POLS H362)

Senior Capstone Experience

The capstone experience consists of two 300 level courses, 398 and 399, OR 398 and an additional 300 level course in International Studies. The 398 seminar will have students do research, presentations, and final essays that delve deeper into topics from relevant courses in previously taken tracks and may incorporate experiences in Praxis courses, Summer internships, or Study Abroad. Should a student select to take 399 instead of an additional 300 level course, the 398 seminar could also be the basis for students to identify and begin preliminary work on research projects for 399, including the exploration of theoretical perspectives and research methods that will provide a framework for their research and the matching of students with faculty serving as individual supervisors.

While most individualized supervision for those taking 399 will be of students writing a senior thesis, designated advisers in International Studies will work with those students who select to produce an extended document using platforms such as DVD documentary, a website, or a PowerPoint talk with pictures and video clips instead of writing a senior thesis.

Minor Requirements

The Minor in International Studies has been in place since 2005. Students who have declared a Minor and have not yet graduated should consult with one of the Co-Directors of the Center for International Studies to determine whether to continue under the old requirements for the Minor, switch to doing a Major in International Studies, or make slight adjustments to the requirements for the Minor in light of revisions that now have the core requirements for the Minor in line with those for the Major.

The Minor has always attracted and will continue to attract students who major in a language, arts, an area study, Political Science, or Economics. It will be possible, however, for select students to pursue one of the tracks in the major under consultation with an Adviser from International Studies.

Students minoring in International Studies must complete a total of seven courses, which include a required core of four courses and an elective track of three courses. Please note that some of the courses listed in the core have prerequisites, which may increase the total number of courses for the minor in International Studies to eight.
If none of the eligible core courses from a particular discipline in the Politics, Economics, and Philosophy core is available in any given year, substitutions will be allowed with another allied course offered at Bryn Mawr, Haverford, Swarthmore or Penn, with the approval of an Adviser from the Center for International Studies.

CULTURE AND INTERPRETATION

Also in the core, and unique to Bryn Mawr, Culture and Interpretation teaches how language, aesthetics, beliefs, values, and customs can shape possibilities for cross-cultural understanding and dialogue in globalizing polities, economies and societies.

Courses satisfying this requirement cover a broad perspective that teaches students about differing cultures and what it means to interpret or make cross-cultural comparisons and engage in cross-cultural dialogue in the global context. The list of eligible courses is, therefore, drawn from courses taught by Advisers from a range of key disciplines in International Studies: Anthropology, Cities, Comparative Literature, History, Philosophy, Sociology, and Languages and Area Studies. The course is meant to be a broad analysis of culture and interpretation that does not focus on a country or region in isolation from this broad analysis. Each of the courses selected from the range of disciplines captures this breadth and depth. Students interested in studying a specific region of the world separate from its global implications can pursue this study in one of the tracks.

The eligible courses for the Culture and Interpretation component of the core are:

- Introduction to Cultural Anthropology (ANTH B102)
- Culture and Interpretation (COML/PHIL B202 or COML/PHIL B323)
- The Play of Interpretation (COML/ENGL/GERM/PHIL B292)
- Chinese Perspectives on the Individual and Society (at Haverford) (EAST H120)
- La Mosaique France (FREN/CITY B251)
- Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile (GERM/COML/ANTH B231)
- Introduction to Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures (GNST B145)
- The Atlantic World 1492-1800 (HIST/ANTH B200)
- British Empire: Imagining Indias (HIST B258)
- Society, Culture and the Individual (SOCL B102)

With the approval of an Adviser from the Center for International Studies, substitutions may be allowed in the case of the ten eligible courses for the Culture and Interpretation component of the core when none is available in any given year.

Electives

In addition to the four core courses listed, three electives are required. Each of the four tracks identifies a major topic or theme in International Studies that builds on or develops the core. The tracks under the minor will allow students who major in a discipline such as Political Science or Economics or in one of the Languages or Area Studies to have a minor that focuses their disciplinary work on International Studies.

Students should choose the three electives from the approved lists under one of the tracks identified below. Electives should demonstrate coherence and be approved by an adviser. Please refer to the International Studies Web site for detailed information regarding approved electives: www.brynmawr.edu/internationalstudies. Students should also check the International Studies Web site or the Tri-College Course Guide for information about courses that are offered in the current year.

INTERNATIONAL POLITICS

This track allows students to focus on the dynamics and structures of intergovernmental and transnational relationships from the perspective of the discipline of Political Science. Through engagement with the most salient theoretical and policy debates, students may focus upon such themes as globalization and resistance to it, development and sustainability, nationalism and sovereignty, human rights, conflict and peace, public international law and institutions, and nongovernmental or civil society organizations and movements at regional, trans-regional and global levels.

The three elective courses are to be selected in consultation with an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS

This track allows students to focus on various theoretical, empirical, and policy issues in international economics. Each of the courses in the track—trade, open-economy macroeconomics, development, and environmental economics—focuses on different economic aspects of the international or global economy. International trade looks at the major theories offered to explain trade and examines the effects of trade barriers and trade liberalization on welfare. International macroeconomics and international finance examines policy-making in open economies, exchange rate systems, exchange rate behavior, and financial integration and financial crises. Development economics is concerned, among other things, with understanding how developing countries can structure their participation in the global economy so as to benefit their development. Environmental economics uses economic analysis to examine the behavioral causes of local, regional, and global environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate policy responses to them.

The three elective courses are to be selected in consultation with an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

AREA STUDIES

This track allows students to situate and apply the economic, political, and social theory provided in the core to the study of a particular geopolitical area. It provides students with a global frame of reference from which to examine issues such as history, migration, colonization, modernization, social change, and development through an area study.

The three elective courses are to be selected in consultation with an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

LANGUAGE AND ARTS

This track allows students to explore human interaction at the global level through language, literature, music, and the arts. Students in this track focus their studies on the forms of language and the arts that are generated through global processes and in turn affect the generation and exchange of ideas in and between different societies and cultures.

The three elective courses are to be selected in consultation with an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

COURSES

ANTH B102 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

An introduction to the methods and theories of cultural anthropology in order to understand and explain cultural similarities and differences among contemporary societies.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)

Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Minor

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Kilbride, P.

(Spring 2013)

ANTH B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800

The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies

Crosslisting(s): HIST-B200

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.

(Spring 2013)

ANTH B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile

This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major

Crosslisting(s): GERM-B231; COML-B231

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.

(Spring 2013)

CITY B225 Economic Development

Examination of the issues related to and the policies designed to promote economic development in the developing economies of Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. Focus is on why some developing economies grow faster than others and why some growth paths are more equitable, poverty reducing, and environmentally sustainable than others. Includes consideration of the impact of international trade and investment policy, macroeconomic policies (exchange rate, monetary and fiscal policy) and sector policies (industry, agriculture, education, population, and environment) on development outcomes in a wide range of political and institutional contexts. Prerequisite: ECON B105, or H101 and H102.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

Counts toward: International Studies Major

Crosslisting(s): ECON-B225

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Stahnke, R.

(Spring 2013)
CITY B238 The Economics of Globalization

An introduction to international economics through theory, policy issues, and problems. The course surveys international trade and finance, as well as topics in international economics. It investigates why and what a nation trades, the consequences of such trade, the role of trade policy, the behavior and effects of exchange rates, and the macroeconomic implications of trade and capital flows. Topics may include the economics of free trade areas, world financial crises, outsourcing, immigration, and foreign investment. Prerequisites: ECON 105. The course is not open to students who have taken ECON 316 or 348.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B236
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ceglowski, J.
(Fall 2012)

COML B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile

This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B231; ANTH-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.
(Spring 2013)

COML B293 The Play of Interpretation

Designated theory course. A study of the methodologies and regimes of interpretation in the arts, humanistic sciences, and media and cultural studies, this course focuses on common problems of text, authorship, reader/spectator, and translation in their historical and formal contexts. Literary, oral, and visual texts from different cultural traditions and histories will be studied through interpretive approaches informed by modern critical theories. Readings in literature, philosophy, popular culture, and film will illustrate how theory enhances our understanding of the complexities of history, memory, identity, and the trials of modernity.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B292; PHIL-B293
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.
(Fall 2012)

COML B323 Culture and Interpretation

This course will pursue such questions as the following. For all objects of interpretation—including works of art, music, literature, persons or cultures—must there be a single right interpretation? If not, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? Does interpretation affect the nature or the number of an object of interpretation? Does the singularity or multiplicity of interpretations mandate such ontologies as realism or constructivism? Discussions will be based on contemporary readings.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: International Studies Major

An introduction to international economics through theory, policy issues, and problems. The course surveys international trade and finance, as well as topics in international economics. It investigates why and what a nation trades, the consequences of such trade, the role of trade policy, the behavior and effects of exchange rates, and the macroeconomic implications of trade and capital flows. Topics may include the economics of free trade areas, world financial crises, outsourcing, immigration, and foreign investment. Prerequisites:
the contemporary New World. The class introduces the methods and interests of all departments in the concentration, posing problems of cultural continuity and change, globalizaton and struggles within dynamic histories, political economies, and creative expressions.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)

ECON B385 Democracy and Development
From 1974 to the late 1990’s the number of democracies grew from 39 to 117. This “third wave,” the collapse of communism and developmental successes in East Asia have led some to argue the triumph of democracy and markets. Since the late 1990’s, democracy’s third wave has stalled, and some fear a reverse wave and democratic breakdowns. We will question this phenomenon through the disciplines of economics, history, political science and sociology drawing from theoretical, case study and classical literature. Prerequisites: ECON 200; ECON 253 or 304;
and one course in Political Science OR Junior or Senior Standing in Political Science OR Permission of the Instructor.

HIST B258 British Empire: Imagining Indias
This course considers ideas about and experiences of “modern” India, i.e., India during the colonial and post-Independence periods (roughly 1757-present). While “India” and “Indian history” along with “British empire” and “British history” will be the ostensible objects of our consideration and discussions, the course proposes that their imagination and meanings are continually mediated by a wide variety of institutions, agents, and analytical categories (nation, religion, class, race, gender, to name a few examples). The course uses primary sources, scholarly analyses, and cultural productions to explore the political economies of knowledge, representation, and power in the production of modernity.

INST B398 Senior Seminar
This non-thesis capstone course is a seminar in which students do research, presentations and a final ey. These delve into topics from relevant courses in previously-taken tracks and may incorporate experiences from Praxis, Summer, or Study Abroad.
PHIL B323 Culture and Interpretation
This course will pursue such questions as the following. For all objects of interpretation—including works of art, music, literature, persons or cultures—must there be a single right interpretation? If not, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? Does interpretation affect the nature or the number of an object of interpretation? PHIL B344 Development Ethics
This course explores the meaning of and moral issues raised by development. In what direction and by what means should a society “develop”? What role, if any, does the globalization of markets and capitalism play in processes of development and in systems of discrimination on the basis of factors such as race and gender? Answers to these sorts of questions will be explored through an examination of some of the most prominent theorists and recent literature. Prerequisites: a philosophy, political theory or economics course or permission of the instructor. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

POLS B225 Global Ethical Issues
The need for a critical analysis of what justice is and requires has become urgent in a context of increasing globalization, the emergence of new forms of conflict and war, high rates of poverty within and across borders and the prospect of environmental devastation. This course examines prevailing theories and issues of justice as well as approaches and challenges by non-western, post-colonial, feminist, race, class, and disability theorists. POLS B241 The Politics of International Law and Institutions

An introduction to international law, which assumes a working knowledge of modern world history and politics since World War II. The origins of modern international legal norms in philosophy and political necessity are explored, showing the schools of thought to which the understandings of these origins give rise. Significant cases are used to illustrate various principles and problems. Prerequisite: POLS 141.

POLS B391 International Political Economy

This seminar examines the growing importance of economic issues in world politics and traces the development of the modern world economy from its origins in colonialism and the industrial revolution, through to the globalization of recent decades. Major paradigms in political economy are critically examined. Aspects of and issues in international economic relations such as development, finance, trade, migration, and foreign investment are examined in the light of selected approaches. One course in International Politics or Economics is required. Preference is given to seniors although juniors are accepted.

ITALIAN

Students may complete a major or minor in Italian.

Faculty

Francesco Caruso, Instructor
Dennis McAuliffe, Visiting Associate Professor
Giuliana Perco, Lecturer
Roberta Ricci, Associate Professor and Chair
Gabriella Troncelliti, Instructional Assistant

Based on an interdisciplinary approach that views culture as a global phenomenon, the aims of the major in Italian are to acquire a knowledge of Italian language and literature and an understanding of Italian culture, including cinema, art, journalism, pop culture, and music. The Department of Italian also cooperates with the Departments of French and Spanish in the Romance Languages major and with the other foreign languages in the TRICO for a major in Comparative Literature. The Italian Department cooperates also with the Center for International Studies (CIS).

College Foreign Language Requirement

Before the start of the senior year, each student must complete, with a grade of 2.0 or higher, two units of foreign language. Students may fulfill the requirement by completing two sequential semester-long courses in one language, either at the elementary level or, depending on the result of their language placement test, at the intermediate level. A student who is prepared for advanced work may complete the requirement instead with two advanced free-standing semester-long courses in the foreign language(s) in which she is proficient. Non-native speakers of English may choose to satisfy all or part of this requirement by coursework in English literature.

Major Requirements

Major requirements in Italian are 10 courses: ITAL 101, 102 and eight additional units, at least three of which are to be chosen from the offerings on the 300 level, and no more than one from an allied field. All students must take a course on Dante (301), one on the Italian Renaissance (303 or 304) and 307, and two on modern Italian literature. Where courses in translation are offered, students may, with the approval of the department, obtain major credit provided they read the texts in Italian, submit written work in Italian and, when the instructor finds it necessary, meet with the instructor for additional discussion in Italian. Courses allied to the Italian major include, with departmental approval, all courses for major credit in ancient and modern languages and related courses in archaeology, art history, history, music, philosophy, and political science. Each student’s program is planned in consultation with the department.

Students who begin their work in Italian at the 200 level will be exempted from ITAL 101 and 102.

Major with Honors

Students may apply to complete the major with honors. The honors component requires the completion of a year-long thesis advised by a faculty member in the department. Students enroll in the senior year in ITAL 398 and ITAL 399. Application to it requires a GPA in the major of 3.7 or higher, as well as a written statement, to be submitted by 1 April of the junior year, outlining the proposed project (see further below) and indicating the faculty member who has agreed to serve as adviser. The full departmental faculty vets the proposals.

Thesis

Students will write and research a 40-50 page thesis that aims to be an original contribution to Italian scholarship. As such, it must use primary evidence and also engage with the relevant secondary literature. By the end of the fall semester, students must have completed twenty pages in draft. In April they will give an oral presentation of their work of approximately forty minutes to faculty and interested students. The final draft is due on or around 20 April of the senior year and will be graded by two faculty members (one of whom is the adviser). The grade assigned is the major component of the spring semester grade. Proposals for the thesis should describe the questions being asked in the research, and how answers to them will contribute to scholarship. They must include a discussion of the primary sources on which the research will rest, as well as a preliminary bibliography of relevant secondary studies. They also must include a rough timetable indicating in what stages the work will be completed. It is expected that before submitting their proposals students will have conferred with a faculty member who has agreed to serve as adviser.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in Italian are ITAL 101, 102 and four additional units including two at the 200 level and two at the 300 level. With departmental approval, students who begin their work in Italian at the 200 level will be exempted from ITAL 101 and 102. For courses in translation, the same conditions for majors in Italian apply.
Study Abroad

Italian majors are encouraged to study in Italy during the junior year in a program approved by the College or in approved summer programs in Italy or in the United States.

COURSES

ITAL B001 Elementary Italian

The course is for students with no previous knowledge of Italian. It aims at giving the students a complete foundation in the Italian language, with particular attention to oral and written communication. The course will be conducted in Italian and will involve the study of all the basic structures of the language—phonological, grammatical, syntactical—with practice in conversation, reading, composition. Readings are chosen from a wide range of texts, while use of the language is encouraged through role-play, debates, songs, and creative composition.

Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Troncelliti,G., Perco,G. (Fall 2012)

ITAL B002 Elementary Italian II

This course is the continuation of ITAL B001 and is intended for students who have started studying Italian the semester before. It aims at giving the students a complete foundation in the Italian language, with particular attention to oral and written communication. The course will be conducted in Italian and will involve the study of all the basic structures of the language—phonological, grammatical, syntactical—with practice in conversation, reading, composition. Readings are chosen from a wide range of texts, while use of the language is encouraged through role-play, debates, songs, and creative composition. Prerequisite: ITAL B001 or placement.

Requirement(s): Language Level 1
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Perco,G. (Spring 2013)

ITAL B101 Intermediate Italian

This course provides students with a broader basis for learning to communicate effectively and accurately in Italian. While the principal aspect of the course is to further develop language abilities, the course also imparts a foundation for the understanding of modern and contemporary Italy. Students will gain an appreciation for Italian culture and be able to communicate orally and in writing in a wide variety of topics. We will read a novel, as well as newspaper and magazine articles to analyze aspects on modern and contemporary Italy. We will also view and discuss Italian films and discuss internet materials.

Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ricci,R. (Fall 2012)

ITAL B102 Intermediate Italian

This course provides students with a broader basis for learning to communicate effectively and accurately in Italian. While the principal aspect of the course is to further develop language abilities, the course also imparts a foundation for the understanding of modern and contemporary Italy. Students will gain an appreciation for Italian culture and be able to communicate orally and in writing in a wide variety of topics. We will read a novel, as well as newspaper and magazine articles to analyze aspects on modern and contemporary Italy. We will also view and discuss Italian films and discuss internet materials.

Requirement(s): Language Level 2
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Perco,G. (Spring 2013)

ITAL B200 Pathways to Proficiency

This course is intended for students who have already completed the elementary-intermediate sequence and who are interested in pursuing the study of Italian. The aim of the course is to improve students' proficiency in the Italian language, so that they will be able to take more advanced courses in Italian literature and cultural studies. The focus of this course is to expose students to crucial issues that have influenced Italian culture and society, concurring to develop distinctive ways of thinking, cultural artifacts (literary works, music, works of art, and so on), and that are at the core of contemporary Italian society. Prerequisite: ITAL102 or placement.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

ITAL B201 Italian Culture and Society

Language and Cultural Studies course with a strong cultural component. It focuses on the wide variety of problems that a post-industrial and mostly urban society like Italy must face today. Language structure and patterns will be reinforced through the study of music, short films, current issues, and even stereotypes. Prerequisite: ITAL 102 or equivalent.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Perco,G. (Fall 2012)

ITAL B203 Italian Theater (in Italian)

The course consists of a close reading in Italian of representative theatrical texts from the contemporary awareness of his Jewish heritage and led him to become one of the dominant voices of that tragic historical event, as well as one of the most original new literary figures of post-World War II Italy. Always in relation to Levi and his works, attention will also be given to other Italian women writers whose works are also connected with the Holocaust.

ITAL B207 Dante in Translation

A reading of the Vita Nuova (Poems of Youth) and The Divine Comedy: Hell, Purgatory and Paradise in order to discover the subtle nuances of meaning in the text and to introduce students to Dante’s tripartite vision of the afterlife. Dante’s masterpiece lends itself to study from various perspectives: theological, philosophical, political, allegorical, historical, cultural, and literary. Personal journey, civic responsibilities, love, genre, governmental accountability, church-state relations, the tenuous balance between freedom of expression and censorship—these are some of the themes that will frame the discussions. Course taught in English; One additional hour for students who want Italian credit.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): McAuliffe, D.

(Spring 2013)

ITAL B208 Petrarca and Boccaccio in Translation

The course will focus on a close analysis of Petrarch’s Canzoniere and Boccaccio’s Decameron, with attention given also to their minor works and the historical/literary context connected with these texts. Attention will also be given to Florentine literature, art, thought, and history from the death of Dante to the age of Lorenzo de’ Medici. Texts and topics available for study include the Trecento vernacular works of Petrarch and Boccaccio; and Florentine humanism from Salutati to Alberti. Course taught in English; one additional hour of target language instruction for students who want Italian credit.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ITAL B303 Petrarcha and Boccaccio

The focus of the course is on The Decameron, one of the most entertaining, beloved and imitated prose works ever written. Like Dante's Divine Comedy, this human comedy was written not only to delight, but also to instruct by exploring both our spiritual and our natural environment. The Decameron will be read in its entirety in Italian. Attention will also be paid to Petrarcha's Canzoniere, of which a small selection will be read in Italian. Topics will include how each author represented women in the context of 14th-century Italy. Prerequisite: two years of Italian and at least a 200-level course. Taught in Italian.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ITAL B304 Il Rinascimento in Italia e oltre

Students will become familiar with the growing importance of women during the Renaissance, as women expanded their sphere of activity in literature (as authors of epics, lyrics, treatises, and letters), in court (especially in Ferrara), and in society, where for the first time women formed groups and their own discourse. What happens when women become the subject of study? What is learned about women and the nation? What is learned about gender and how disciplinary knowledge itself is changed through the centuries? Prerequisite: At least one 200-level course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
ITAL B307 Best of Italian Literature

This course focuses on the key role played by Italian culture in the development of the European civilization and Western literature. Many texts found their way to France, Spain, England where they were read, translated, disseminated. This process of assimilation influenced life, language, politics, and literature. The unique role played by Italian Renaissance on European civilization shines through contemporary best-sellers, The Da Vinci Code. Prerequisite: a 200-level course in Italian

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

ITAL B310 Italian Popular Fiction

This course explores the Italian “giallo” (detective fiction), today one of the most successful literary genres among Italian readers and authors alike. Through a comparative perspective, the course will analyze not only the inter-relationship between this popular genre and “high literature,” but also the role of detective fiction as a mirror of social anxieties. Italian majors taking this course for Italian credit will be required to meet for an additional hour with the instructor and to do the readings and writing in Italian. Prerequisites: one literature course at the 200 level.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures

Students may complete a concentration in Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures.

Advisory Committee

Juan Arbona, Chair and Associate Professor of Growth and Structure of Cities
Ignacio Gallup-Díaz, Interim Chair and Associate Professor of History and Director of LALIPC
Jennifer Harford Vargas, Assistant Professor of English
James Krippner, Professor of History, Haverford College
Erika Marquez, Postdoctoral Fellow in Sociology
Gary McDonogh, Professor of Growth and Structure of Cities
Gridley McKim-Smith, Professor of History of Art on the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation Professorship in the Humanities
Maria Christina Quintero, Professor of Spanish and Director of Comparative Literature
Roya Rastegar, Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow in the Humanities
Enrique Sacerio-Garí, Dorothy Nepper Marshall Professor of Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies
H. Rosi Song, Chair and Associate Professor of Spanish
Ayumi Takenaka, Associate Professor of Sociology

Latin American, Latino and Iberian peoples, histories, and cultures have represented both central agents and crucibles of transformations across the entire world for millennia. Global histories and local experiences of colonization, migration, exchange, and revolution allow students and faculty to construct a critical framework of analysis and to explore these dynamic worlds, their peoples and cultures, across many disciplines.

As a concentration, such study must be based in a major in another department, generally Spanish, Cities, History, History of Art, Political Science, or Sociology (exceptions can be made in consultation with the major and concentration adviser). To fulfill requirements, the student must complete the introductory course, GNST 245 Introduction to Latin American, Latino and Iberian Peoples or Culture or the equivalent course at Haverford (SPAN 240). They should then plan advanced courses in language, affiliated fields and the major that lead to a final project in the major that relates closely to themes of the concentration. One semester of study abroad is strongly encouraged in the concentration and students may complete some requirements with appropriately selected courses in many Junior Year Abroad (JYA) programs. The student also must show competence in one of the languages of the peoples of Iberia or Latin America. Students are admitted into the concentration at the end of their sophomore year after submission of a plan of study worked out in consultation with the major department and the LALIPC coordinator. Students should keep in touch with the coordinator as they develop major projects in these areas.

Concentration Requirements

Competence in a language spoken by significant collectives of Iberian or Latin American peoples to be achieved no later than junior year. This competence may be attested by a score of at least 690 on the Spanish Achievement test of the College Entrance Examination Board or by completion of a 200-level course with a merit grade. Faculty will work with students to assess languages not regularly taught in the Tri-Co, including Portuguese, Catalan, and other languages.

GNST B245/ HC SPAN 240 as a gateway course in the first or second year. The student should also take at least five other courses selected in consultation with the program coordinator, at least one of which must be at the 300 level. One of these classes may be cross-listed with the major; up to two may be completed in JYA.

A long paper or an independent project dealing with Iberian, Latin American, or Latina/o issues, to be completed during the junior year in a course in the major or concentration and to be read by the LALIPC coordinator.

A senior essay/long paper dealing with some issue relevant to the concentration should be completed in the major and read by one faculty member participating in the concentration. All senior concentrators will present their research within the context of some LALIPC student-faculty forum as well.

Study Abroad

JYA provides both classes and experience in language, society, and culture that are central to the concentration. Students interested in JYA programs in the Iberian Peninsula, Latin America, and the Caribbean should consult with both their major adviser and the concentration coordinator in order to make informed choices. We will also work with students to identify programs that may allow them to work with languages not regularly taught in the Tri-Co, especially Portuguese.
COURSES

ANTH B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800
The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history. Requirement(s): Division I or Division III Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B200 Units: 1.0

ANTH B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major Crosslisting(s): GERM-B231; COML-B231 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Seyhan, A. (Spring 2013)

ANTH B258 Immigrant Experiences
The course will examine the causes and consequences of immigration by looking at various immigrant groups in the United States in comparison with Western Europe, Japan, and other parts of the world. How is immigration induced and perpetuated? How are the types of migration changing (labor migration, refugee flows, return migration, transnationalism)? How do immigrants adapt differently across societies? We will explore scholarly texts, films, and novels to examine what it means to be an immigrant, what generational and cultural conflicts immigrants experience, and how they identify with the new country and the old country. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures

COML B225 Censorship: Historical Contexts, Local Practices and Global Resonance
This course examines the ban on books and art in the US, Latin America, the Middle East, and Eastern Europe through a study of the historical, political, and sociocultural conditions of censorship practices and the rhetorical strategies writers and artists use to translate repression and trauma into idioms of resistance. Prerequisite: EMLY B001 or a 100-level intensive writing course. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; Middle East Studies Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas.

We will compare dictator novels from the United States, the Caribbean, Central America, and the Southern Cone. Prerequisite: only for students wishing to take the course for major/minor credit in SPAN is SPAN B200/B202.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): COML-B237; SPAN-B237
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ENGL B276 Transnational American Literature
This course asks students to re-imagine “American” literature through a transnational framework. We will explore what paradigms are useful for conceptualizing U.S. literature given shared political histories, aesthetic modes, racial discourses, and patterns of migration in the hemisphere. Reading canonical Anglo American writers alongside ethnic minority writers, we will examine how their aesthetic engagements and cultural entanglements with Latin America transform our understanding of what constitutes a national literary tradition.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J.
(Spring 2013)

ENGL B345 Topics in Narrative Theory
Narrative theory through the lens of a specific genre, period or style of writing. Recent topics include Victorian Novels and Ethnic Novels. Current topic description: This course traces the development of the U.S. ethnic novel. We will examine novels by Native Americans, Chicana/os, and African Americans, focusing on key formal innovations in their respective traditions. In addition, we will become versed in key concepts developed by narrative theorists to understand the genre of the novel.
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): COML-B345
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J.
(Spring 2013)

GERM B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural, and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multi-lingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie, and others.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B231; COML-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Seyhan, A.
(Spring 2013)

GNST B245 Introduction to Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures
A broad, interdisciplinary survey of themes uniting and dividing societies from the Iberian Peninsula through the contemporary New World. The class introduces the methods and interests of all departments in the concentration, posing problems of cultural continuity and change, globalization and struggles within dynamic histories, political economies, and creative expressions.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J.
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HART B241 New Visual Worlds in the Spanish Empire 1492 - 1820
The events of 1492 changed the world. Visual works made at the time of the Conquest of the Caribbean, Mexico and South America by Spain and Portugal reveal multiple and often conflicting political, racial and ethnic agendas.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): McKim-Smith, G.
(Spring 2013)

HART B242 Material Identities in Latin America 1820–2010
Revolutions in Latin America begin around 1810. By the 20th and 21st centuries, there is an international viewership for the works of Latin American artists, and in the 21st century the production of Latina and Latino artists living in the United States becomes particularly important.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B127 Indigenous Leaders 1492-1750
Studies the experiences of indigenous men and women who exercised local authority in the systems established by European colonizers. In return for places in the colonial administrations, these leaders performed a range of tasks. At the same time they served as imperial officials, they exercised “traditional” forms of authority within their communities, often free of European presence. These figures provide a lens through which early modern colonialism is studied.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gallup-Diaz, I.
(Fall 2012)

HIST B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800
The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B200
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B287 Immigration in the U.S.
How we understand the history of immigration to the territory now known as the United States has been transformed by recent explorations of the notion of “whiteness.” This course will be framed by the ways in which this powerful lens for interpretation has helped to recast the meaning of ethnicity as we focus on individual immigrant groups and the context which they both entered and created from the 17th century to the present. The first half of the semester will concentrate largely on the “century of immigration,” from the early 19th through the early 20th century. Together, we will shape the second half of the course, deciding on the topics we will investigate and upon which 20th century groups we will focus.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B371 Topics in Atlantic History: The Early Modern Pirate in Fact and Fiction
This course will explore piracy in the Americas in the period 1550-1750. We will investigate the historical reality of pirates and what they did, and the manner in which pirates have entered the popular imagination through fiction and films. Pirates have been depicted as lovable rogues, anti-establishment rebels, and enlightened multiculturalists who were skilled in dealing with the indigenous and African peoples of the Americas. The course will examine the facts and the fictions surrounding these important historical actors.
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

HIST B387 Immigration in the United States
Incorporates the current immigration debate in examining the historical causes and consequences of migration. Addresses the perceived benefit and cost of immigration at the national and local levels. Explores the economic, social, cultural and political impact immigrants have on the United States over time. Close attention given to examining the ways immigrants negotiated the pressures of their new surroundings while shaping and redefining American conceptions of national identity and citizenship.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
SOCL B246 Immigrant Experiences: Introduction to International Migration

The course will examine the causes and consequences of immigration by looking at various immigrant groups in the United States in comparison with Western Europe, Japan, and other parts of the world. How is immigration induced and perpetuated? How are the types of migration changing (labor migration, refugee flows, return migration, transnationalism)? How do immigrants adapt differently across societies? We will explore scholarly texts, films, and novels to examine what it means to be an immigrant, what generational and cultural conflicts immigrants experience, and how they identify with the new country and the old country.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B258
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SOCL B259 Comparative Social Movements in Latin America

An examination of resistance movements to the power of the state and globalization in three Latin American societies: Mexico, Columbia, and Peru. The course explores the political, legal, and socio-economic factors underlying contemporary struggles for human and social rights, and the role of race, ethnicity, and coloniality play in these struggles.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B220; POLS-B259
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Marquez, E.
(Fall 2012)

SOCL B314 Immigrant Experiences

This course is an introduction to the causes and consequences of international migration. It explores the major theories of migration (how migration is induced and perpetuated); the different types of migration (labor migration, refugee flows, return migration) and forms of transnationalism; immigration and emigration policies; and patterns of migrants’ integration around the globe. It also addresses the implications of growing population movements and transnationalism for social relations and nation-states. Prerequisite: At least one prior social science course or permission of the instructor.

Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Takenaka, A.
(Fall 2012)

SPAN B200 Estudios culturales de España e Hispanoamérica

An introduction to the history and cultures of the Spanish-speaking world in a global context: art, folklore, geography, literature, sociopolitical issues, and multicultural perspectives. This course does not count toward the major, but may be counted for the minor.
Prerequisite: SPAN 102 or placement.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Puig-Herz, A., Song, H.
(Spring 2013)

SPAN B203 Tópicos en la literatura hispana

This is a topic course. Topics vary. Current topic description: Full title is: La naturaleza como identidad política. A transatlantic look into how the citizen of newly created nations in Latin America and the diverse regions in Spain have negotiated their surrounding landscape. This course looks into how writing about nature has always been an important part of establishing the identity of groups of people.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Song, H.
(Spring 2013)

SPAN B208 Drama y sociedad en España

A study of the rich dramatic tradition of Spain from the Golden Age (16th and 17th centuries) to the 20th century within specific cultural and social contexts. The course considers a variety of plays as manifestations of specific sociopolitical issues and problems. Topics include theater as a site for fashioning a national identity; the dramatization of gender conflicts; and plays as vehicles of protest in repressive circumstances.
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Quintero, M.
(Fall 2012)
the relationship between narrative form and absolute power by analyzing the literary techniques writers use to contest authoritarianism. We will compare dictator novels from the United States, the Caribbean, Central America, and the Southern Cone. Prerequisite: only for students wishing to take the course for major/minor credit in SPAN is SPAN B200/B202.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B237; COML-B237
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B217
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J.
(Fall 2012)

SPAN B223 Género y modernidad en la narrativa del siglo XIX
A reading of 19th-century Spanish narrative by both men and women writers, to assess how they come together in configuring new ideas of female identity and its social domains, as the country is facing new challenges in its quest for modernity.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B231 El cuento y novela corta en España
Traces the development of the novella and short story in Spain, from its origins in the Middle Ages to our time. The writers will include Pardo Bazán, Cervantes, Clarín, Don Juan Manuel, Matute, María de Zayas, and a number of contemporary writers such as Julián Marías and Soledad Puértolas. Our approach will include formal and thematic considerations, and attention will be given to social and historical contexts.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B237 The Dictator Novel in the Americas
This course examines representations of dictatorship in Latin American and Latina/o novels. We will explore
SPAN B307 Cervantes
A study of themes, structure, and style of Cervantes' masterpiece Don Quijote and its impact on world literature. In addition to a close reading of the text and a consideration of narrative theory, the course examines the impact of Don Quijote on the visual arts, music, film, and popular culture. Counts toward the Latin American, Latino and Iberian Peoples and Cultures Concentration. Prerequisite: Spanish 202 and another 200-level course. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Quintero, M.
(Spring 2013)

SPAN B309 La mujer en la literatura española del Siglo de Oro
A study of the depiction of women in the fiction, drama, and poetry of 16th- and 17th-century Spain. Topics include the construction of gender; the idealization and codification of women's bodies; the politics of feminine enclosure (convent, home, brothel, palace); and the performance of honor. The first half of the course will deal with representations of women by male authors (Calderón, Cervantes, Lope, Quevedo) and the second will be dedicated to women writers such as Teresa de Ávila, Ana Caro, Juana Inés de la Cruz, and María de Zayas.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B318 Adaptaciones literarias en el cine español
Film adaptations of literary works have been popular since the early years of cinema in Spain. This course examines the relationship between films and literature, focusing on the theory and practice of film adaptation. Attention will be paid to the political and cultural context in which these texts are being published and made into films. Prerequisite: A 200-level course in Spanish, SPAN 208.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Film Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B321 Del surrealismo al realismo mágico
Examines artistic texts that trace the development and relationships of surrealism, lo real maravilloso americano, and magic realism. Manifestos, literary and cinematic works by Spanish and Latin American authors will be emphasized. Prerequisite: a 200-level Spanish course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Sacerio-Gari, E.
(Spring 2013)

SPAN B322 Queens, Nuns, and Other Deviants in the Early Modern Iberian World
The course examines literary, historical, and legal texts from the early modern Iberian world (Spain, Mexico, Peru) through the lens of gender studies. The course is divided around three topics: royal bodies (women in power), cloistered bodies (women in the convent), and delinquent bodies (figures who defy legal and gender normativity). Course is taught in English and is open to all juniors or seniors who have taken at least one 200-level course in a literature department. Students seeking Spanish credit must have taken BMC Spanish 202 and at least one other Spanish course beyond 202, or received permission from instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): COML-B322
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B323 Memoria y Guerra Civil
A look into the Spanish Civil War and its wide-ranging international significance as both the military and ideological testing ground for World War II. This course examines the endurance of myths related to this conflict and the cultural memory it has produced along with the current negotiations of the past that is taking place in democratic Spain. Prerequisites: SPAN 200/202 and another 200-level course in Spanish.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B323
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Song, H.
(Fall 2012)

TRI-CO PROGRAM IN LINGUISTICS

Bi-Co students may major or minor in the Tri-Co Linguistics Department (Bryn Mawr, Haverford, Swarthmore).

Faculty

Bryn Mawr College
Deepak Kumar, Professor of Computer Science
Amanda Weidman, Associate Professor of Anthropology

Haverford College
Marilyn Boltz, Professor of Psychology
Brook Lillehaugen, Assistant Professor of Linguistics
Ana López-Sánchez, Assistant Professor of Spanish
Danielle Macbeth, T. Wistar Brown Professor of Philosophy

Swarthmore College
Shelley DePaul, Instructor of Linguistics
Aaron Dinkin, Visiting Assistant Professor of Linguistics
Theodore Fernald, Professor of Linguistics
K. David Harrison, Associate Professor of Linguistics
Donna Jo Napoli, Professor of Linguistics
Nathan Sanders, Visiting Assistant Professor of Linguistics

Linguistics is the scientific study of language, the medium which allows us to communicate and share our ideas with others. As a discipline, linguistics examines the structural components of sound, form and meaning, and the precise interplay between them. Modern linguistic inquiry stresses analytical and argumentation skills, which will prepare students for future pursuits in any field where such skills are essential. Linguistics is also relevant to other disciplines, such as Psychology, Philosophy, Mathematics, Computer Science, Sociology and Anthropology. (Some of our students have double majored with one of them.)

The primary goals of the linguistics major are to introduce students to the field of linguistics proper through a series of foundation courses in linguistics theory and methodology; to provide training in the application of certain theoretical and methodological tools to the analysis of linguistic data; and to offer an array of interdisciplinary courses that allow students to explore other related fields that best suit their interests.

Major Requirements

The Tri-Co Linguistics Department offers two majors:
• Linguistics
• Linguistics and Language (Ling&Lang)

Students may learn more about the major requirements at the following websites:
www.haverford.edu/linguistics/
www.swarthmore.edu/SocSci/Linguistics/.

1. All majors must take one course or seminar from each of the following three categories:
   • Sounds: LING H115 at HC or LING045, 052 at SC
   • Forms: LING H113 at HC or LING050 at SC
   • Meanings: LING H114 at HC or LING026, 040 at SC

2. All majors are required to take the structure of a non-Indo-European Language, typically LING282 at HC, or LING061, 062, 064 at SC.

3. All majors must take two elective courses in Linguistics or related fields.

4. In addition, all majors are required to write a senior thesis in the fall of their senior year in LING100 (Research Seminar). This thesis constitutes the comprehensive requirement. The course can be taken for one or two credits.

Minor Requirements

Students may minor in linguistics through Haverford by completing six credits in the following three areas of study:

A. Mandatory Foundation Courses (three credits):
   • LING H113 or LING S050 Introduction to Syntax
   • LING H114 or LING S040 Introduction to Semantics
   • LING H115 Phonetics and Phonology

B. Synthesis Courses (choose one):
   • LING H282 Structure of Chinese
   • LING H382 Topics in Chinese Syntax and Semantics
   • LING S060 Structure of Navajo
   • LING S062 Structure of American Sign Language
   • LING S064 Structure of Tuvan

C. Elective Courses (choose two):
   • LING/PSYC H238 The Psychology of Language
   • LING B101 Introduction to Linguistics
Swarthmore College currently offers the following courses in Linguistics:

LING S001 Intro to Linguistics (W)
LING S010 Hebrew for Text Study II
LING S020 Natural Language Processing
LING S025 Language, Culture & Society
LING S034 Psychology of Language
LING S040 Semantics (W)
LING S045 Phonetics & Phonology
LING S050 Syntax (W)
LING S064 Structure of Tuvan
LING S070 Translation Workshop
LING S075 Field Methods
LING S100 Research Seminar

Departmental Honors for Bi-Co Majors

Honors will be granted, at the discretion of the faculty members, to those senior majors who have consistently distinguished themselves in major-related course work (typically with a GPA of 3.7 or higher), active and constructive participation in the intellectual life of the department, and an outstanding senior thesis. A senior major may receive high honors if deemed exceptional in all three areas.

For Bi-Co students who plan to declare either major in the Linguistics Department:

At the college level, students must fill out the major declaration form as required by the Registrar’s Office of your college.

At the departmental level, students must fill out the Sophomore Paper available at the Linguistics Department website (www.haverford.edu/linguistics/), scan it and email it to Shizhe Huang (shuang@haverford.edu) AND Dorothy Kunzig (dkunzig1@swarthmore.edu).

CONTACT INFORMATION FOR BI-CO STUDENTS:

Shizhe Huang
Co-Chair of the Linguistics Department
shuang@haverford.edu

Bryn Mawr College currently offers the courses in Linguistics:

LING B101 Introduction to Linguistics
LING B281 Language in Social Context
CMSC B325 Computational Linguistics

Haverford College currently offers the following courses in Linguistics:

LING H113 Introduction to Syntax
LING H114 Introduction to Semantics
LING H115 Phonetics and Phonology
MATHEMATICS

Students may complete a major or minor in Mathematics. Within the major, students may complete the requirements for secondary school certification. Majors may complete an M.A. in Mathematics, if accepted into the combined A.B./M.A. program, or may enter the 3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science at the California Institute of Technology.

Faculty

Leslie Cheng, Associate Professor
Victor Donnay, Professor
Helen Grundman, Professor (on leave semesters I and II)
Peter Kasius, Instructor

Paul Melvin, Professor and Chair
Djordje Milicevic, Assistant Professor
Amy Myers, Lecturer and Math Program Coordinator
Gregory Schneider, Lecturer
Lisa Traynor, Professor

The Mathematics curriculum is designed to expose students to a wide spectrum of ideas in modern mathematics, train students in the art of logical reasoning and clear expression, and provide students with an appreciation of the beauty of the subject and of its vast applicability.

Major Requirements

A minimum of 10 semester courses is required for the major, including the six core courses listed below and four electives at or above the 200 level.

Core Requirements:

- MATH B201 Multivariable Calculus (H121 or H216)
- MATH B203 Linear Algebra (H215)
- MATH B301 Real Analysis I (H317)
- MATH B303 Abstract Algebra I (H333)
- MATH B302 Real Analysis II (H318) or MATH B304 Abstract Algebra II (H334)
- MATH B398 or B399 Senior Conference

The analysis and algebra sequences, MATH 301/302 and MATH 303/304, both have a strong proof writing focus. Consequently, students often find it useful to take a course such as MATH 206 (Transition to Higher Mathematics) before they enroll in these sequences, and in any case should consult with the instructor if they are unsure about their level of preparation.

With the exception of Senior Conference, equivalent courses at Haverford or elsewhere may be substituted for Bryn Mawr courses with approval of the major adviser. A student may also, in consultation with a major adviser, petition the department to accept courses in fields outside of mathematics as electives if these courses have serious mathematical content appropriate to the student's program.

Mathematics majors are encouraged to complete their core requirements other than Senior Conference by the end of their junior year. Senior Conference must be taken during the senior year. Students considering the possibility of graduate study in mathematics or related fields are urged to go well beyond the minimum requirements of the major. In such cases, a suitable program of study should be designed with the advice of a major adviser.

Honors

A degree with honors in mathematics will be awarded by the department to students who complete the major in mathematics and also meet the following further requirements: at least two additional units of work at the 300 level or above (which may include one or two units of MATH 395/396 or MATH 403), completion of a meritorious project consisting of a written thesis and an oral presentation of the thesis, and a major grade point average of at least 3.6, calculated at the end of the senior year.

Minor Requirements

The minor requires five courses in mathematics at the 200 level or higher, of which at least two must be at the 300 level or higher.

Advanced Placement

Students entering with a 4 or 5 on the Calculus AB advanced placement test will be given credit for MATH 101 and should enroll in MATH 102 as their first mathematics course. Students entering with a 4 or 5 on the Calculus BC advanced placement test will be given credit for MATH 101 and 102, and should enroll in MATH 201 as their first mathematics course. All other students are strongly encouraged to take the Mathematics Placement Exam so they can be best advised.

A.B./M.A. Program

For students entering with advanced placement credits it is possible to earn both the A.B. and M.A. degrees in an integrated program in four (or possibly five) years.
3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science

See page 51 for the description of the 3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science, offered in cooperation with the California Institute of Technology, for earning both an A.B. at Bryn Mawr and a B.S. at Cal Tech. Visit www.brynmawr.edu/catalog/2012-13/program/opportunities/32engineering.html for more information.

COURSES

MATH B001 Fundamentals of Mathematics
Basic techniques of algebra, analytic geometry, graphing, and trigonometry for students who need to improve these skills before entering other courses that use them, both inside and outside mathematics. Placement in this course is by advice of the department and permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B005 Math Workshop
Review of arithmetic and introduction to the basics of elementary and intermediate algebra for students whose mathematical backgrounds require such support. This course prepares students to take either MATH 001 or MATH 104 immediately thereafter. Placement in this course is by advice of the department. This is a half-credit course.
Units: 0.5
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B101 Calculus I
A first course in one-variable calculus: Functions, limits, continuity, the derivative, differentiation formulas, applications of the derivative, the integral, integration by substitution, fundamental theorem of calculus. May include a computer component. Prerequisite: adequate score on calculus placement exam, or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Myers,A., Schneider,G.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B102 Calculus II
A continuation of Calculus I: Transcendental functions, techniques of integration, applications of integration, infinite sequences and series, convergence tests, power series. May include a computer component. Prerequisite: merit grade in MATH 101, adequate score on calculus placement exam, or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Myers,A., Schneider,G., Melvin,P.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B104 Basic Probability and Statistics
This course introduces students to key concepts in both descriptive and inferential statistics. Students learn how to collect, describe, display, and interpret both raw and summarized data in meaningful ways. Topics include summary statistics, graphical displays, correlation, regression, probability, the law of averages, expected value, standard error, the central limit theorem, hypothesis testing, sampling procedures, and bias. Students learn to use statistical software to summarize, present, and interpret data. This course may not be taken after any other statistics course. Prerequisite: Math readiness or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kasius,P.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B151 Introduction to Math and Sustainability
The world faces many sustainability challenges: climate change, energy, over-population, natural resource depletion. Using techniques of mathematical modeling including dynamical systems and bifurcation theory (tipping points), we will study quantitative aspects of these problems. No advanced mathematics beyond high school mathematics (pre-calculus) is required. Prerequisite: MATH 101 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B201 Multivariable Calculus
Vectors and geometry in two and three dimensions, partial derivatives, extremal problems, double and triple integrals, vector analysis (gradients, curl and divergence), line and surface integrals, the theorems of Gauss, Green and Stokes. May include a computer component. Prerequisite: MATH 102 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kasius,P., Myers,A.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B203 Linear Algebra
Systems of linear equations, matrix algebra, determinants, vector spaces and subspaces, linear independence, bases and dimension, linear
MATH B206 Transition to Higher Mathematics
An introduction to higher mathematics with a focus on proof writing. Topics include active reading of mathematics, constructing appropriate examples, problem solving, logical reasoning, and communication of mathematics through proofs. Students will develop skills while exploring key concepts from algebra, analysis, topology, and other advanced fields. Corequisite: MATH 203; not open to students who have had a 300-level math course.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Kariyassum, D.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B210 Differential Equations with Applications
Ordinary differential equations, including general first-order equations, linear equations of higher order and systems of equations, via numerical, geometrical, and analytic methods. Applications to physics, biology, and economics. Corequisite: MATH 201 or 203.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V., Schneider, G.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B221 Introduction to Topology and Geometry
An introduction to the ideas of topology and geometry through the study of knots and surfaces in three-dimensional space. The course content may vary from year to year, but will generally include some historical perspectives and some discussion of connections with the natural and life sciences. Corequisite: MATH 201 or 203.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V.
(Spring 2012)

MATH B231 Discrete Mathematics
An introduction to discrete mathematics with applications to computer science. Topics include set theory, functions and relations, propositional logic, proof techniques, recursion, counting techniques, difference equations, graphs, and trees.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitative
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Xu, D.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B261 Introduction to Harmonic Analysis and Wavelets
A first introduction to harmonic analysis and wavelets. Topics to be covered: Fourier series, Fourier transform, wavelets, and their applications, including signal processing and medical imaging. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B290 Elementary Number Theory
Properties of the integers, divisibility, primality and factorization, congruences, Chinese remainder theorem, multiplicative functions, quadratic residues and quadratic reciprocity, continued fractions, and applications to computer science and cryptography. Prerequisite: MATH 102.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Milicevic, D.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B295 Select Topics in Mathematics
This year's topic is mathematical modeling of real world problems. We will examine a variety of different types of models with a focus on discrete time systems. Prerequisites: MATH 102 and MATH 203 or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B301 Real Analysis I
A first course in real analysis, providing a rigorous development of single variable calculus, with a strong focus on proof writing. Topics covered: the real number system, elements of set theory and topology, limits, continuous functions, the intermediate and extreme value theorems, differentiable functions and the mean value theorem, uniform continuity, the Riemann integral, the fundamental theorem of calculus. Possible additional topics include analysis on metric spaces or dynamical systems. Prerequisite: MATH 201. Some students also
MATH B308 Applied Mathematics I
Course content varies.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)

MATH B302 Real Analysis II
A continuation of Real Analysis I: Infinite series, power series, sequences and series of functions, pointwise and uniform convergence, and additional topics selected from: Fourier series, calculus of variations, the Lebesgue integral, dynamical systems, and calculus in higher dimensions. Prerequisite: MATH 301.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Traynor,L.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B303 Abstract Algebra I
A first course in abstract algebra, including an introduction to groups, rings and fields, and their homomorphisms. Topics covered: cyclic and dihedral groups, the symmetric and alternating groups, direct products and finitely generated abelian groups, cosets, Lagrange's Theorem, normal subgroups and quotient groups, isomorphism theorems, integral domains, polynomial rings, ideals, quotient rings, prime and maximal ideals. Possible additional topics include group actions and the Sylow Theorems, free abelian groups, free groups, PIDs and UFDs. Prerequisite: MATH 203.
Some students also find it helpful to have taken a transitional course such as MATH 206 before enrolling in this course.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cheng,L.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B304 Abstract Algebra II
A continuation of Abstract Algebra I. Vector spaces and linear algebra, field extensions, algebraic and transcendental extensions, finite fields, fields of fractions, field automorphisms, the isomorphism extension theorem, splitting fields, separable and inseparable extensions, algebraic closures, and Galois theory. Also, if not covered in Abstract Algebra I: group actions and Sylow theorems, free abelian groups, free groups, PIDs and UFDs. Possible additional topic: finitely generated modules over a PID and canonical forms of matrices. Prerequisite: MATH 303.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cheng,L.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B310 Introduction to the Mathematics of Financial Derivatives
An introduction to the mathematics utilized in the pricing models of derivative instruments. Topics to be covered may include Arbitrage Theorem, pricing derivatives, Wiener and Poisson processes, martingales and martingale representations, Ito's Lemma, Black-Scholes partial differentiation equation, Girsanov Theorem and Feynman-Kac Formula. Prerequisite: MATH 201 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cheng,L.
(Spring 2013)

MATH B312 Topology
General topology (topological spaces, continuity, compactness, connectedness, quotient spaces), the fundamental group and covering spaces, introduction to geometric topology (classification of surfaces, manifolds). Typically offered yearly in alternation with Haverford. Co-requisite: MATH 301, MATH 303, or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Traynor,L.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B315 Geometry
An introduction to geometry with an emphasis that varies from year to year. Prerequisites: MATH 201 and 203 (or equivalent) or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cheng,L.
(Fall 2012)

MATH B322 Functions of Complex Variables
Analytic functions, Cauchy's theorem, Laurent series, calculus of residues, conformal mappings, Moebius transformations. Prerequisite: MATH 301 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
MATH B395 Research Seminar
A research seminar for students involved in individual or small group research under the supervision of the instructor. With permission, the course may be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor.
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Instructor(s): Melvin, P., Cheng, L., Donnay, V., Traynor, L. (Fall 2012)

MATH B396 Research Seminar
A research seminar for students involved in individual or small group research under the supervision of the instructor. With permission, the course may be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor.
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Melvin, P., Cheng, L., Donnay, V., Traynor, L. (Spring 2013)

MATH B398 Senior Conference
A seminar for seniors majoring in mathematics. Topics vary from year to year.
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V., Milicevic, D. (Fall 2012)

MATH B399 Senior Conference
A seminar for seniors majoring in mathematics. Topics vary from year to year.
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Donnay, V., Traynor, L. (Spring 2013)

MATH B403 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

MATH B501 Graduate Real Analysis I
In this course we will study the theory of measure and integration. Topics will include Lebesgue measure, measurable functions, the Lebesgue integral, the Riemann-Stieltjes integral, complex measures, differentiation of measures, product measures, and $L^p$ spaces.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Milicevic, D. (Fall 2012)

MATH B502 Graduate Real Analysis II
This course is a continuation of Math 501.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Milicevic, D. (Spring 2013)

MATH B503 Graduate Algebra I
This is the first course in a two course sequence providing a standard introduction to algebra at the graduate level. Topics in the first semester will include categories, groups, rings, modules, and linear algebra.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B504 Graduate Algebra II
This course is a continuation of Math 503, the two courses providing a standard introduction to algebra at the graduate level. Topics in the second semester will include linear algebra, fields, Galois theory, and advanced group theory.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B505 Graduate Topology I
This is the first course of a 2 semester sequence, covering the basic notions of algebraic topology. The focus will be on homology theory, which will be introduced axiomatically (via the Eilenberg-Steenrod axioms) and then studied from a variety of points of view (simplicial, singular and cellular homology). The course will also treat cohomology theory and duality (on manifolds), and the elements of homotopy theory.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Melvin, P. (Spring 2013)

MATH B506 Graduate Topology II
Math 505 and Math 506 offer an introduction to topology at the graduate level. These courses can be taken in either order. Math 506 focuses on differential topology. Topics covered include smooth manifolds, smooth maps, and differential forms.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

MATH B701 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

MATH B702 Research Seminar
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Melvin, P. (Spring 2013)
MIDDLE EASTERN STUDIES

Students may complete a concentration in Middle Eastern Studies.

Advisory Committee

Amiram Amitai, Lecturer in Hebrew and Judaic Studies
Grace Armstrong, Chair and Eunice M. Schenck 1907 Professor of French, Director of Middle Eastern Languages, and Co-Director of International Studies
Mehmet-Ali Atac, Associate Professor of Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
Manar Darwish, Instructor and Coordinator of Bi-Co Arabic Program
Deborah Harrold, Lecturer in Political Science and Director of Middle Eastern Studies
Peter Magee, Associate Professor of Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
Marc Ross, William Rand Kenan, Jr., Professor Emeritus in Political Science
Azade Seyhan, Fairbank Professor in the Humanities, Professor of German and Comparative Literature, Interim Chair of German, and Director of Comparative Literature
Sharon Ullman, Professor of History and Director of Gender and Sexuality Studies
Alicia Walker, Assistant Professor of History of Art on the Marie Neuberger Fund for the Study of Arts, and Director of the Center for Visual Culture

Courses on the Middle East may contribute to majors in other fields or serve as electives. In addition, students may complete a concentration in Middle East Studies.

The Middle Eastern Studies Program focuses on the study of the area from Morocco to Afghanistan from antiquity to the present day. Bryn Mawr students can investigate the history, politics and cultures of the Middle East through coursework, independent study, study abroad, and events here and at neighboring institutions. In conjunction with courses at Haverford and Swarthmore, the Advisory Committee from Bryn Mawr College co-ordinates courses and works with colleagues from Haverford and Swarthmore College on tri-college curricular planning.

The members of the Middle Eastern Studies Committee can help students who are interested in Middle Eastern topics plan coursework and independent study.

There are two tracks to Middle East Studies Concentration; one requires study or competence in a Middle Eastern language, the other does not.

Track 1

The first track consists of six courses in the Humanities or Social Sciences that focus on the ancient or modern Middle East distributed in the following manner:

a. An introductory course called “Themes in Middle Eastern Society and Culture.” This course will be offered every other year by relevant Middle Eastern Studies Institute faculty from Bryn Mawr and, where possible, the Tri-Co Community. The course will be taught by at least two faculty members who would follow a broadly defined theme. Possible themes include: Irrigation, Agriculture and Society; History and Collective Memory; Urbanism and Social Transformation; War and Peace, and Literature and Imagination.

b. Three elective Middle Eastern topic courses, including at least one at the 300 level in a specific area to be chosen in consultation with the student’s adviser. This area might be defined in terms of conceptual, historical, or geographical interests and, in many cases, will be connected to work in the student’s major.

c. Two additional Middle Eastern topic courses, at least one of which must be in either the humanities or social sciences if a student’s work in (a) and (b) does not include one or the other of these.

d. Of the six courses one must be pre-modern in content.

e. Of the six courses only three may be in the student’s major.

Track 2

The second track consists of language study and other courses. Students opting for this track must take the equivalent of two years of study of a modern Middle Eastern language or pass a proficiency exam in one of these languages, whereby they may also meet the standard set for the A.B. degree for the foreign language requirement. Four additional courses distributed as follows are required for the concentration:

a. An introductory course called “Themes in Middle Eastern Society and Culture” as defined above.

b. Three elective Middle Eastern topic courses, which meet the following conditions:

• One course must be in the social sciences;
• One course must be in the humanities;
• At least one course must be at the 300 level to be selected after consultation with the student’s adviser so as to expose the student to in-depth study of the Middle East with a geographic, conceptual, or particular historical focus;
• At least one course must be pre-modern in content.
c. Of the four courses, only two may also form a part of the student’s major.

For Arabic and Hebrew languages, please see those sections.

COURSES

ANTH B261 Palestine and Israeli Society

Considers the legacy of Palestine and the centrality of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict as key in the formation of Israeli society, shaped by ongoing political conflict. New ethnographic writings disclose themes like Zionism, Holocaust, immigration, religion, Palestinian citizenry, Middle Eastern Jews and military occupation and resulting emerging debates among different social sectors and populations. Also considers constitution of ethnographic fields and the shaping of anthropological investigations by arenas of conflict. Prerequisites: sophomore standing and POLS B111 or ANTH B101 or B102 or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I; Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Middle East Studies Crosslisting(s): HEBR-B261; HIST-B261
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B275 Cultures and Societies of the Middle East

Through a close reading of ethnographic, historical, and literary materials, this course will introduce students to some of the key conceptual issues and regional distinctions that have emerged from classic and contemporary studies of culture and society in the Middle East. The course will survey the following themes: orientalism; gender and patriarchy; democracy and state-formation; political Islam; oil and Western dominance; media and religion; violence and nationalism; identity and diaspora. Prerequisite: Introduction to Anthropology or equivalent. No knowledge of the Middle East is assumed.

Requirement(s): Division I; Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B276 Islam in Europe

This course will focus on recent immigration of Muslims in Europe. Anthropological theories will be helpful for understanding various issues such as the colonization and production of ethnicity, problems of identity concerning different generations and gender. Politics from the points of view of the nation-state will be important. Prerequisite: One course in Anthropology or instructor’s permission.

Requirement(s): Division I; Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC) Counts toward: Middle East Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B276
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B382 Religious Fundamentalism in the Global Era

Through a comparison of Jewish, Islamic, Christian and Hindu political movements, the course seeks to investigate the religious turn in national and transnational contexts. We will also seek to find commonalities and differences in religious movements, and religious regimes, while considering the aspects of globalization which usher in new kinds of transnational affiliation. Prerequisite: An introductory course in Anthropology, Political Science or History or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies Crosslisting(s): HIST-B382; POLS-B382
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B104 Archaeology of Agricultural and Urban Revolutions

This course examines the archaeology of the two most fundamental changes that have occurred in human society in the last 12,000 years, agriculture and urbanism, and we explore these in Egypt and the Near East as far as India. We also explore those societies that did not experience these changes.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Environmental Studies; Geoaarchaeology; Middle East Studies Crosslisting(s): CITY-B104
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B140 The Visual Culture of the Ancient Near East

The visual culture of ancient Mesopotamia, a region with its heartland in modern Iraq, from the first city to the fall of Babylon in 539 BCE, includes images designed to gain favor of the gods, promote royal achievements and adorn the deceased on the journey to the afterlife. Particular emphasis placed on the visual analysis of royal and elite artistic production of architecture, sculpture and cylinder seals.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Counts toward: Middle East Studies Crosslisting(s): HART-B140
Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)
ARCH B226 Archaeology of Anatolia

One of the cradles of civilization, Anatolia witnessed the rise and fall of many cultures and states throughout its ancient history. This course approaches the ancient material remains of pre-classical Anatolia from the perspective of Near Eastern archaeology, examining the art, artifacts, architecture, cities, and settlements of this land from the Neolithic through the Lydian periods. Some emphasis will be on the Late Bronze Age and the Iron Age, especially phases of Hittite and Assyrian imperialism, Late Hittite states, Phrygia, and the Urartu.

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Middle East Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B230 Archaeology and History of Ancient Egypt

A survey of the art and archaeology of ancient Egypt from the Pre-Dynastic through the Graeco-Roman periods, with special emphasis on Egypt’s Empire and its outside connections, especially the Aegean and Near Eastern worlds.

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Africana Studies; Middle East Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B240 Archaeology and History of Ancient Mesopotamia

A survey of the material culture of ancient Mesopotamia, modern Iraq, from the earliest phases of state formation (circa 3500 B.C.E.) through the Achaemenid Persian occupation of the Near East (circa 331 B.C.E.). Emphasis will be on art, artifacts, monuments, religion, kingship, and the cuneiform tradition. The survival of the cultural legacy of Mesopotamia into later ancient and Islamic traditions will also be addressed.

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Middle East Studies

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Ataç, M.

(Spring 2013)

ARCH B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East

A survey of the history, material culture, political and religious ideologies of, and interactions among, the five great empires of the ancient Near East of the second and first millennia B.C.E.: New Kingdom Egypt, the Hittite Empire in Anatolia, the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires in Mesopotamia, and the Persian Empire in Iran.

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)

Counts toward: Middle East Studies

Crosslisting(s): CITY-B244; HIST-B244; POLS-B244

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

ARCH B355 Archaeology of the Achaemenid Empire in Cross Cultural Context

The Achaemenid Empire (538-332 B.C.E.) ruled the largest landmass of any of the ancient Near Eastern Empires. Attempts by archaeologists to understand the manner in which authority was asserted over this area have suffered from a reliance on biased historical sources, largely from the Classical World. This course uses archaeological data to re-examine the Achaemenid Empire in a global context. This data is examined through a methodological framework that emphasizes comparative studies of ancient and more recent Empires in Africa, the Americas, South Asia, and the Mediterranean.

Counts toward: Middle East Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B312 Topics in Medieval Art

This is a topics course. Course content varies. Current topic description: Kings, Caliphs, and Emperor: Images of Authority in the Era of the Crusades

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Counts toward: Middle East Studies

Crosslisting(s): HART-B311; HIST-B311

Units: 1.0

Instructor(s): Walker, A.

(Spring 2013)

COML B225 Censorship: Historical Contexts, Local Practices and Global Resonance

This course examines the ban on books and art in the US, Latin America, the Middle East, and Eastern Europe through a study of the historical, political, and sociocultural conditions of censorship practices and the rhetorical strategies writers and artists use to translate repression and trauma into idioms of resistance.

Prerequisite: EMLY B001 or a 100-level intensive writing course.

Requirements(s): Division III: Humanities

Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)

Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures; Middle East Studies

Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

GNST B156 Themes in Middle Eastern Society

The basis for the Middle East Studies Concentration, this course features changing themes. For Fall 2010, the theme is the space of religion: in daily life; in politics and culture; space and metaphor. Included are sacred kingship, the rise of Islamic states, roles of Middle Eastern Christians and Jews and challenges from secular ideologies that transform the space of religion. Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies

HEBR B110 Israeli Cinema
The course traces the evolution of the Israeli cinema from ideologically charged visual medium to a universally recognized film art, as well as the emergent Palestinian cinema and the new wave of Israeli documentaries. It will focus on the historical, ideological, political, and cultural changes in Israeli and Palestinian societies and their impact on films’ form and content.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Film Studies; Middle East Studies

HEBR B271 Topics in Judaic Studies
What happened in Jewish history between antiquity and the modern era, between composing the Talmud and receiving citizenship in European nations? As we try to understand how Jews got from there to here, this seminar will explore the diverse and sometimes astonishing forms of Jewish life in the medieval and early modern periods (approximately 1000-1800), with special focus on the evolution of Jewish relations with the majority culture. Topics will include the golden age of Jewry in Muslim Spain, the development of European anti-Jewish policies and persecutions, Jewish self-government, and cosmopolitanism, as well as many of the philosophers, mystics and would-be messiahs who sparked religious movements and change in the course of these tumultuous centuries.
Counts toward: Middle East Studies

HEBR B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
This course is a multidisciplinary approach to understanding the politics of the region, using works of history, political science, political economy, film, and fiction as well as primary sources. The course will concern itself with three broad areas: the legacy of colonialism and the importance of international forces; the role of Islam in politics; and the political and social effects of particular economic conditions, policies, and practices.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B382; POLS-B382
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B287 Media and Politics: The Middle East Transformed
The events of 2011 transformed the Middle East, overthrowing or threatening regimes across the region. The course will focus on the media technologies, the political actors, and international events that produced these changes, as well as examine works on political transitions, revolutions, and social movements.
Prerequisite: A previous social science or history course is strongly recommended, or a previous course on media.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Minor; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B288 The Political Economy of the Middle East and North Africa
This comparative approach considers historical constructions, the power of economic ideas, domestic politics and resources, and international regimes. Specific areas of focus include theories that seek to explain the economic/political conditions, left, nationalist and liberal, as well as the exceptional growth of the Gulf economies. Prerequisite: at least one other course on the Middle East or a strong area expertise in another region such as Latin America or China with permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Minor; Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B288
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B282 The Exotic Other: Gender and Sexuality in the Middle East
This course is concerned with the meanings of gender and sexuality in the Middle East, with particular attention to the construction of tradition, its performance, reinscription, and transformation, and to Western interpretations and interactions. Prerequisite: one course in social science or humanities. Previous gender or Middle East course is a plus.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
This course is a multidisciplinary approach to understanding the politics of the region, using works of history, political science, political economy, film, and fiction as well as primary sources. The course will concern itself with three broad areas: the legacy of colonialism and the importance of international forces; the role of Islam in politics; and the political and social effects of particular economic conditions, policies, and practices.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HEBR-B283; HIST-B283
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Harrold, D.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B382 Religious Fundamentalism in the Global Era
Through a comparison of Jewish, Islamic, Christian and Hindu political movements, the course seeks to investigate the religious turn in national and transnational contexts. We will also seek to find commonalities and differences in religious movements, and religious regimes, while considering the aspects of globalization which usher in new kinds of transnational affiliation. Prerequisite: An introductory course in Anthropology, Political Science or History or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B382; HIST-B382
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
POLS B383 Two Hundred Years of Islamic Reform, Radicalism, and Revolution

This course will examine the transformation of Islamic politics in the past two hundred years, emphasizing historical accounts, comparative analysis of developments in different parts of the Islamic world. Topics covered include the rationalist Salafy movement; the so-called conservative movements (Sanussi of Libya, the Mahdi in the Sudan, and the Wahhabi movement in Arabia); the Caliphate movement; contemporary debates over Islamic constitutions; among others. The course is not restricted to the Middle East or Arab world. Prerequisites: a course on Islam and modern European history, or an earlier course on the Modern Middle East or 19th-century India, or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B383
Units: 1.0

THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Penn has courses on the Middle East in several departments, including Jewish Studies, NELC, AMES, Art History, Political Science, History, Comparative Literature, and Sociology, among others. Remember, Penn starts a week after Bryn Mawr in the fall; a week before Bryn Mawr in the spring semester.

www.upenn.edu/registrar/timetable/index.html

For more information about courses, look at the Web sites of the different departments.

Hebrew at Penn meets five days a week for first-, second-, and third-year levels. Advanced levels, Biblical Hebrew, and Yiddish do not meet as often.
http://upenn.edu/registrar/timetable/jwst.html

In addition to language classes that meet more than three times each week, Penn offers Arabic, Persian, and Turkish in more limited time frames.

The Department of Music is located at Haverford and offers well-qualified students a major and minor in music. For a list of requirements and courses offered, see Music at Haverford.

Faculty

Ingrid Arauco, Associate Professor
Christine Cacioppo, Visiting Instructor
Curt Cacioppo, Professor and Chair
Richard Freedman, Professor
Heidi Jacob, Associate Professor, Director of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestral Program
Thomas Lloyd, Associate Professor, Director of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Choral Program
Andrew Oster, Visiting Assistant Professor

The music curriculum is designed to deepen understanding of musical form and expression through development of skills in composition and performance joined with analysis of musical works and their place in various cultures. A major in music provides a foundation for further study leading to a career in music.

The composition/theory program stresses proficiency in aural, keyboard and vocal skills, and written harmony and counterpoint. Composition following important historical models and experimentation with contemporary styles are emphasized.

The musicology program, which emphasizes European, North American, and Asian traditions, considers music in the rich context of its social, religious, and aesthetic surroundings.

The performance program offers opportunities to participate in the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chamber Singers, Chorale, Orchestra, and ensembles formed within the context of Haverford’s chamber music program. Students can receive academic credit for participating in these ensembles (Music 102, 214, 215, 216, and 219). They can also receive credit for Private Study (Music 208, 209, 210) in voice or their chosen instrument.

Special Programs and Funds

The Music Department Guest Artists Series presents distinguished and emerging performers in public concerts, master classes, lecture-demonstrations, reading sessions, and informal encounters. Among artists recently featured have been Native American flutist Mary Youngblood, the Daedalus Quartet, pianist Charles Abramovic, violinist Arnold Steinhardt, and the Network for New Music. The William Heartt Reese Music Fund was established in 1977 to honor William Heartt Reese, professor of music and conductor of the glee club and orchestra at Haverford from 1947 to 1975. The fund supports applied music lessons for students enrolled in the department’s private study program. The John H. Davison ’51 Fund for Student Composers supports new works by student composers. This fund recognizes John’s 40 years of teaching and musical creativity at Haverford. The Orpheus Prize is awarded for exceptional achievement in the practice of tonal harmony. The Kessinger Family Fund for Asian Performing Arts (administered jointly with the John Hurford ’60 Humanities Center) sponsors musical performances and lecture-demonstrations that enrich Haverford’s cross-cultural programs. Since its inception in 1997, the fund has sponsored visits by artists representing traditions of South, Central, and East Asia, and Indonesia.

Major Requirements

1) Theory-composition: 203, 204, 303.
2) Musicology: three courses, as follows: 229, plus any two of 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, and 225 or 325.
3) Two electives in music, chosen from: 207, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 246, 250, 251, 265, 266, 304, and 325.
4) Performance: participation in a department-sponsored performance group is required for at least a year. Music 208, 209, or 210 instrumental or vocal private study for one year. Continuing ensemble participation and instrumental or vocal private study are strongly urged.
5) An additional full credit course equivalent is required of music majors in their senior year. The senior experience in music may be fulfilled through an independent study project (usually a composition, performance, or research paper pursued in the context of Music 480) or through enhancement of a regular advanced course offering to include an independent study component. The format of the senior experience will be determined prior to the beginning of the student’s senior year, after consultation with the department.
6) Majors are expected to attend the majority of department-sponsored concerts, lectures, and colloquia.

Minor Requirements

1) Theory-Composition: 203 and 204
2) Musicology: 229, plus any one of 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, and 225 or 325.
3) One elective chosen from: 207, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 246, 250, 251, 265, 266, 303, 304, and 325.

4) Music 208, 209, 210 instrumental or vocal private study or department ensemble participation for one year. Continuing ensemble participation and instrumental or vocal private study are strongly urged.

5) Minors are expected to attend the majority of department-sponsored concerts, lectures, and colloquia.

Substitutions for Haverford College courses in fulfillment of the major or minor in music must be approved in advance by the music department.

Requirements for Honors

Criteria for Departmental Honors:

a) minimum GPA in music courses of 3.7, AND
b) grade on senior project of 4.0

Criteria for Departmental High Honors:

a) outstanding, standard-setting contribution to the department in the context of courses and/or ensembles, AND
b) exceptional level of originality, depth, and synthesis in the senior project as compared to undergraduate work generally, outside Haverford (ie, a level of work that should be sufficient to gain admission to top graduate programs in the field.

COURSES

MUSC H319 Intermedial Transformations: Musico-Acoustic Imaginations in Literature and Film

Prerequisite: One 200-level course in the Humanities

U.Schoenherr

THEORY AND COMPOSITION COURSES

MUSC H110 Musicianship and Literature

Intensive introduction to the notational and theoretical materials of music, complemented by work in sight-singing and keyboard harmony. Discussion of musical forms and techniques of melody writing and harmonization; short projects in composition.

Staff

MUSC H203 Tonal Harmony I

The harmonic vocabulary and compositional techniques of Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, and others. Emphasis is on composing melodies, constructing phrases, and harmonizing in four parts. Composition of minuet and trio, set of variations, or other homophonic piece is the final project. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: Music 110 or consent.

I.Arauco

MUSC H204 Tonal Harmony II HU

Continuation of Music 203, introducing chromatic harmony and focusing on the development of sonata forms from the Classical through the Romantic period. Composition of a sonata exposition is the final project. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: Music 203

C.Cacioppo

MUSC H265 Symphonic Technique and Tradition HU

In this course, we will be familiarizing ourselves with significant orchestral repertory of the past three centuries, learning to read the orchestral score, studying the capabilities of various orchestral instruments and how they are used together, and tracing the evolution of orchestral writing and orchestral forms from the Classical period to the present. Short exercises in scoring for orchestra; final project is a presentation on a major orchestral work of your choice. Prerequisite: Music 203.

I.Arauco

MUSC H266 Composition HU

An introduction to the art of composition through weekly assignments designed to invite creative, individual responses to a variety of musical ideas. Scoring for various instruments and ensembles; experimentation with harmony, form, notation and text setting. Weekly performance of student pieces; end-of-semester recital. Prerequisite: Music 204 or consent of instructor.

I.Arauco

MUSC H303 Advanced Tonal Harmony HU

Study of late nineteenth-century harmonic practice in selected works of Liszt, Wagner, Brahms, Faure, Wolf, Debussy, and Mahler. Exploration of chromatic harmony through analysis and short exercises; final composition project consisting of either art song or piano piece such as nocturne or intermezzo. Musicianship lab covers related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: Music 204

C.Cacioppo

MUSC H304 Counterpoint HU

18th century contrapuntal techniques and forms with emphasis on the works of J. S. Bach. Canon; composition of two-part invention; fugal writing in three parts; chorale prelude; analysis. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: Music 204

I.Arauco
MUSC H325 Seminar in 20th Century Theory and Practice HU

Classic and contemporary 20th-century composers, works, and trends, with reference to theoretical and aesthetic writings and the broader cultural context. Prerequisite: Music 303a or 224 I.Arauco

PERFORMANCE COURSES

MUSC H102 Chorale

T.Lloyd
Chorale is a large mixed chorus that performs major works from the oratorio repertoire with orchestra. Attendance at weekly two-hour rehearsals and dress rehearsals during performance week is required. Entrance by audition. Students can start Chorale at the beginning of any semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of the instructor.

MUSC H107 Introductory Piano HU

C.Cacioppo
Music 107 is an introduction to music and the art of playing the piano. The course consists of a weekly hour long session on Tuesday evenings (lecture, directed listening, or playing workshop) plus an individual lesson of 20 minutes at an arranged time. It is expected that the student will practice an hour each day, 6 days a week. Students are expected to keep a listening journal, which consists of personal responses to the music, as well as a page of research on a topic related to each listening assignment. The final exam is a performance of 2 or more short works on the class recital at the end of the term. Enrollment limited to 16 students, with 5 spaces reserved for majors/minors.

MUSC H207 Topics in Piano: American Roots HU

C.Cacioppo
Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor

MUSC H208 Private Study: Instrumental HU

H.Jacob
All students enrolled in the private study program should be participating in a departmentally directed ensemble or activity (Chorale, Orchestra, etc.) as advised by their program supervisor. All students in the private study program perform for a faculty jury at the end of the semester. Students assume the cost of their private lessons, but may apply for private study subsidies at the beginning of each semester’s study through the department. Prerequisite: Departmental audition & consent of supervisor

MUSC H209 Private Study: Voice

T.Lloyd
10 hour-long voice lessons with approved teachers for 1/2 credit, graded. Jury exam at end of semester.

MUSC H210 Private Study: Keyboard

C.Cacioppo
Prerequisite: Departmental audition and consent of supervisor.

MUSC H214 Chamber Singers

T.Lloyd
Chamber Singers is a 30-voice mixed choir that performs a wide range of mostly a cappella repertoire from the Renaissance to the present day in original languages. Attendance required at three 80-minute rehearsals weekly. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor

MUSC H215 Chamber Music

H.Jacob
Intensive rehearsal of works for small instrumental groups, with supplemental research and listening assigned. Performance is required. The course is available to those who are concurrently studying privately, or who have studied privately immediately prior to the start of the semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor

MUSC H216 Orchestra

H.Jacob
For students participating in the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra, this course addresses the special musical problems of literature rehearsed and performed during the semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor

MUSC H219 Art Song

T. Lloyd
A performance course devoted to the French, German, English, and American art song literature from Schubert to the present. Weekly performance classes will be accompanied by weekly individual coachings with the instructor, culminating in a public recital at the end of the semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor

MUSICOCOLOGY COURSES

MUSC H 111 Introduction to Western Music

A survey of the European musical tradition from the middle ages to modern times. Students will hear music by Monteverdi, Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Wagner, Stravinsky, Glass, among many others, developing both listening skills and an awareness of how music relates to the culture that fosters it. In addition to listening and MUSC H220 Saints and Sinners. Musical Europe before 1400
The course will explore music and its cultural uses in Medieval Europe. We will study the main genres and forms of in secular and sacred contexts, from monasteries, convents, and cathedrals, to courts and cities. We will trace the changing character of music itself, from plainsong to polyphonic and from troubadour tunes to art song of the 14th century, in works by figures like Hildegard, Leonin, Machaut, Landini, and Vitry. We will study transformations in musical notation, theoretical underpinnings of musical time and counterpoint, and the status of music itself in the divine cosmos. We will also pause to put all of this in the context of current scholarship and historical performance practice. Prerequisite: Any full-credit course in Music (such as Music 110, 111, 229, 203), or equivalent prior experience in musical study.
R.Freedman

MUSC H221 Music, Ritual, and Representation. 1400-1600
Music of the 12th through 16th centuries, emphasizing changing approaches to composition, notation, and expression in works by composers such as Hildegard von Bingen, Guillaume de Machaut, Josquin Desprez, and Orlando di Lasso, among many others. Classroom assignments will consider basic problems raised by the study of early music: questions of style and structure, debates about performance practice, and issues of cultural history. Extensive reading and listening culminating in individual research or performance projects. Prerequisite: Music 110 or 111 or consent of instructor.
R.Freedman

MUSC H222 Composers, Players, and Listeners in the 17th and 18th centuries
This course traces sharp changes in musical style and the equally striking changes in roles for soloists, composers, and audiences in an international context of patronage and publishing. From Monteverdi, Schütz and Lully to Rameau, Bach, and Handel. Prerequisite: Music 110 or 111 or consent of instructor.
R.Freedman

MUSC H223 Between Galant and Learned: Musical Life and the Enlightenment
This course ranges from the conservatories of Naples to opera houses of Vienna and Paris. Music by Pergolesi, Gluck, Haydn, Mozart, the young Beethoven, and many others; debates on music and language; the craft of composition; private patrons and public music; music and social change. Prerequisite: Music 110 or 111 or consent of instructor.
R.Freedman

MUSC H224 Music, Myth, and Meaning in the 19th Century
An exploration of songs, operas, piano music and symphonic works of Berlioz, Liszt, Schubert, the Schumanns, Loewe, Wagner, Verdi, Dvořák, Mahler, and Brahms in the rich landscape of literary Romanticism and nationalism; philosophies of music and music history. Prerequisite: Music 110 or 111, or consent of instructor.
R.Freedman

MUSC H225 Novelty and Renewal in 20th-Century Music
An exploration of how composers, musicians, and listeners have behaved (and have misbehaved) during the last 100 years. Works by Debussy, Schoenberg, Berg, Stravinsky, Bartok, Hindemith, Weill, Prokofiev, Shostakovich, Rochberg, Glass, and many others, considered in through priorities of modernist aesthetics and the changing place of music in society. Central themes will include the search for order and control; music and the state; music, film, and electronic technologies; new roles for composers, performers, and listeners. Prerequisite: Any full-credit course in Music (such as Music 110, 111, 229, 203), or equivalent prior experience in musical study.
R. Freedman

MUSC H229 Thinking about Music: Ideas, History, and Musicology
Core concepts and perspectives for the serious study of music. Students will explore music, meaning, and musicological method in a variety of contexts through a set of six foundational themes and questions: Music and the Idea of Genius, Who Owns Music? Music and Technology, The Global Soundscape, Music and the State, Tonality, Sense, and Reason. Each unit will use a small number of musical works, performances, or documents as focal points. In each unit we will also read current musicological work in attempt to understand the methods, arguments, and perspectives through which scholars interpret music and its many meanings. Prerequisite: Musc 110, 203, or equiv prior knowledge of music.
R. Freedman

MUSC H246 Words and Music: Wagner’s Ring and the Modern World
R. Freedman
Students may complete a minor in Neuroscience as an adjunct to any major at Bryn Mawr or Haverford pending approval of the student’s coursework plan by their respective Neuroscience adviser.

The desire to understand human and animal behavior in terms of nervous system structure and function is long standing. Historically, this task has been approached from a variety of disciplines including medicine, biology, psychology, philosophy and physiology. The field of neuroscience emerged as an interdisciplinary approach, combining techniques and perspectives from these disciplines, as well as emerging fields such as computation and cognitive science, to yield new insights into the workings of the nervous system and behavior.

Students may complete a minor in Neuroscience as an adjunct to any major at Bryn Mawr or Haverford pending approval of the student’s coursework plan by their respective Neuroscience adviser. The minor in Neuroscience is designed to allow students to pursue their interests in behavior and the nervous system across disciplines. The first requirement for the minor is a course that acts as a gateway to the discipline and should be taken early in a student’s academic plan.
Minor Requirements

1.  HC Psych 217 (Biological Psychology) or BMC Psych 218 (Behavioral Neuroscience) or BMC Bio 202 (Introduction to Neuroscience [previously Neurobiology and Behavior]).

2.  Five credits from advanced courses on the following lists, with these constraints:
   a.  The five credits must sample from three different disciplines.
   b.  At least three of the five credits must be from List A (neuroscience courses); the remainder can be from List A or B (courses from allied disciplines).
   c.  At least one of the credits must be at the 300-level or higher.
   d.  One of the five credits may come from supervised senior research in neuroscience.
   e.  With permission of major and minor advisers, a student may count no more than two of the six minor credits towards the student’s major.

The Peace, Conflict, and Social Justice Studies program reflects Bryn Mawr’s interest in the study of conflicts, peacemaking, and social justice and offers students the opportunity to design a course of study, to sustain a thematic focus across disciplinary boundaries, and to enrich their major program in the process. Students are encouraged to draw courses from the programs at Haverford (www.haverford.edu/pjhr) and Swarthmore (www.swarthmore.edu/x20631.xml) as well.

Students in the concentration can pursue a wide range of theoretical and substantive interests concerning questions such as: intra-state and international causes of conflict; cooperative and competitive strategies of negotiation and bargaining; intergroup relations and the role of culturally constituted institutions and practices in conflict management; social movements; protests and revolutions; the role of religion in social conflict and its mitigation; human rights and transitional justice in post conflict societies; and social justice and identity questions arising from ethnic, religious and cultural diversity and the implications of these constructions for the distribution of material and symbolic resources in society as well as the practical capacities to engage individuals and groups across constructions of difference by linking practice and theory. A list of courses students have included in their concentrations can be found at www.brynmawr.edu/peacestudies/courseoptions.html. Below is a more general description of the concentration requirements.

Students in the concentration are encouraged to explore alternative conceptions of peace and social justice in different cultural contexts and historical moments by emphasizing the connections between the intellectual scaffolding needed to analyze the construction of social identities and the social, political and economic implications of these constructions for the distribution of material and symbolic resources within and between societies and the challenges and opportunities to engage individuals and groups to move their communities and societies towards peace and social justice.

Concentration Requirements

Students who wish to take the concentration meet with a faculty adviser by the spring of their sophomore year to develop a plan of study. All concentrators are required to take three core courses: (1) an introductory course, Introduction to Peace, Social Justice and Human Rights at Haverford or Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies at Swarthmore; (2) a 200-level course (Conflict and Conflict Management, International Law, Politics of Humanitarianism, or Forgiveness, Mourning, and Mercy in Law and Politics), and (3) a project involving community participation and reflection by participation in bi-semester meetings, attendance at lectures/workshops, and development of a portfolio in their junior and senior years. This constellation of this second option earns students a single credit that is awarded upon the successful completion of all components.

In addition, students are required to take three courses chosen in consultation with their adviser, working out a plan that focuses this second half of their concentration regionally, conceptually or around a particular substantive problem. These courses might include international conflict and resolution; social justice, diversity and identity, ethnic conflict in general or in a specific region of the world (e.g. Southern Africa, the Middle East, Northern Ireland); a theoretical approach to the field, such as nonviolence, social justice movements, bargaining or game theory; an applied approach, such as reducing violence among youth, the arts and peacemaking, community mediation or a particular policy question such as immigration or bilingual education.

The following courses are pre-approved (www.brynmawr.edu/peacestudies/courses.html). To see if other courses might be counted toward the concentration, contact the program director, Alison Cook-Sather, acooksat@brynmawr.edu.

COURSES

ANTH B111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies
A broad and interdisciplinary overview of the study of conflict management. Areas to be introduced will include interpersonal conflict and conflict management, alternative dispute resolution and the law, community conflict and mediation, organizational, intergroup, and international conflict, and conflict management. This course will also serve as a foundation course for students in or considering the peace and conflict studies concentration.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B111
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B200 The Atlantic World 1492-1800
The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods, and ideas from Africa, Europe, and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as something more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean, or Latin American history.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Counts toward: Africana Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/ Iberian Peoples and Cultures; International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B200
Units: 1.0

ANTH B206 Conflict and Conflict Management: A Cross-Cultural Approach
This course examines cross-cultural differences in the levels and forms of conflict and its management through a wide range of cases and alternative theoretical perspectives. Conflicts of interest range from the interpersonal to the international levels and an important question is the relevance of conflict and its management in small-scale societies as a way to understand political conflict and dispute settlement in the United States and modern industrial settings. Prerequisite: one course in political science, anthropology, or sociology.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B206
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B261 Palestine and Israeli Society
Considers the legacy of Palestine and the centrality of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict as key in the formation of Israeli society, shaped by ongoing political conflict. New ethnographic writings disclose themes like Zionism, Holocaust, immigration, religion, Palestinian citizenry, Middle Eastern Jews and military occupation and resulting emerging debates among different social sectors and populations. Also considers constitution of ethnographic fields and the shaping of anthropological investigations by arenas of conflict. Prerequisites: sophomore standing and POLS B111 or ANTH B101 or B102 or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): HEBR-B261; HISt-B261
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B281 Language in Social Context
Studies of language in society have moved from the idea that language reflects social position/identity to the idea that language plays an active role in shaping and negotiating social position, identity, and experience. This course will explore the implications of this shift by providing an introduction to the fields of sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology. We will be particularly concerned with the ways in which language is implicated in the social construction of gender, race, class, and cultural/national identity. The course will develop students’ skills in the ethnographic analysis of communication through several short ethnographic projects.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): LING-B281
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B337 Comparative Colonial Formations
This course aims to comparatively examine the key features of settler colonialism and its legacies in the 20th centuries. Settler colonialism will be re-examined in light of recent scholarship which defines it as a particular kind of colonial venture that has focused on eliminating indigenous populations and seizing land.
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ANTH B347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies
An in-depth examination of crucial issues and particular cases of interest to advanced students in peace and will question this phenomenon through the disciplines of economics, history, political science and sociology drawing from theoretical, case study and classical literature. Prerequisites: ECON 200; ECON 253 or 304; and one course in Political Science OR Junior or Senior Standing in Political Science OR Permission of the Instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B385
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross, M., Rock, M.
(Spring 2013)

ANTH B382 Religious Fundamentalism in the Global Era

Through a comparison of Jewish, Islamic, Christian and Hindu political movements, the course seeks to investigate the religious turn in national and transnational contexts. We will also seek to find commonalities and differences in religious movements, and religious regimes, while considering the aspects of globalization which usher in new kinds of transnational affiliation. Prerequisite: An introductory course in Anthropology, Political Science or History or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B382; POLS-B382
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

CITY B348 Culture and Ethnic Conflict

An examination of the role of culture in the origin, escalation, and settlement of ethnic conflicts. This course examines the politics of culture and how it constrains and offers opportunities for ethnic conflict and cooperation. The role of narratives, rituals, and symbols is emphasized in examining political contestation over cultural representations and expressions such as parades, holy sites, public dress, museums, monuments, and language in culturally framed ethnic conflicts from all regions of the world. Prerequisites: two courses in the social sciences.

Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B348
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

ECON B385 Democracy and Development

From 1974 to the late 1990’s the number of democracies grew from 39 to 117. This “third wave,” the collapse of communism and developmental successes in East Asia have led some to argue the triumph of democracy and markets. Since the late 1990’s, democracy’s third wave has stalled, and some fear a reverse wave and democratic breakdowns. We will question this phenomenon through the disciplines of economics, history, political science and sociology drawing from theoretical, case study and classical literature. Prerequisites: ECON 200; ECON 253 or 304; and one course in Political Science OR Junior or Senior Standing in Political Science OR Permission of the Instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

EDUC B275 English Learners in U.S. Schools: Policies and Practices

This course focuses on educational policies and practices related to language minority students in the U. S. We examine English learners’ diverse experiences, educators’ approaches to working with linguistically diverse students, programs that address their strengths and needs, links between schools and communities, and issues of policy and advocacy. This is a Praxis II course (weekly fieldwork in a school or other educational setting).

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science

HIST B127 Indigenous Leaders 1492-1750

Studies the experiences of indigenous men and women who exercised local authority in the systems established by European colonizers. In return for places in the colonial administrations, these leaders performed a range of tasks. At the same time they served as imperial officials, they exercised “traditional” forms of authority within their communities, often free of European presence. These figures provide a lens through which early modern colonialism is studied.

POLSB347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies: Utopias, Dystopias, and Peace
An in-depth examination of crucial issues and particular cases of interest to advanced students in peace and conflict studies through common readings and student projects. Various important theories of conflict and conflict management are compared and students undertake semester-long field research. The second half of the semester focuses on student research topics with continued exploration of conflict-resolution theories and research methods. Prerequisite: POLS 206, 111, or Haverford’s POLS 247.
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies

POLSB358 Political Psychology of Group Identification
This seminar will explore the common interests of psychologists and political scientists in the phenomena of group identification. The focus will be identification with ethnic and national groups, with special attention to the ways in which research on small-group dynamics can help us understand identification and conflict for these larger groups. The seminar will review major theories of group identity and examine several historical or current cases of successful and unsuccessful development of national identity. Prerequisite: PSYC 208 or two semesters of political science.

Philosophy majors are encouraged to supplement their philosophical interests by taking advantage of courses offered in related areas, such as anthropology, history, history of art, languages, literature, mathematics, political science, psychology, and sociology.

Honors

Honors will be awarded by the department based on the senior thesis and other work completed in the department. The Milton C. Nahm Prize in Philosophy is a cash award presented to the graduating senior major whose senior thesis the department judges to be of outstanding caliber. This prize need not be granted every year.

Minor Requirements

Students may minor in Philosophy by taking six courses in the discipline at any level. They must also attend the monthly noncredit department colloquia.

Cross-Registration

Students may take advantage of cross-registration arrangements with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Courses at these institutions may satisfy Bryn Mawr requirements, but students should check with the chair of the department to make sure specific courses meet requirements.

Prerequisites

No introductory-level course carries a prerequisite. However, most courses at both the intermediate and advanced levels carry prerequisites. Unless stated otherwise in the course description, any introductory course satisfies the prerequisite for an intermediate-level course, and any intermediate course satisfies the prerequisite for an advanced-level course.

COURSES

PHIL B101 Happiness and Reality in Ancient Thought

What makes us happy? The wisdom of the ancient world has importantly shaped the tradition of Western thought but in some important respects it has been rejected or forgotten. What is the nature of reality? Can we have knowledge about the world and ourselves, and, if so, how? In this course we explore answers to these sorts of metaphysical, epistemological, ethical, and political questions by examining the works of the two central Greek philosophers: Plato and Aristotle. We will consider earlier Greek religious and dramatic writings, a few Presocratic philosophers, and the person of Socrates who never wrote a word.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
PHIL B102 Science and Morality in Modernity

In this course, we explore answers to fundamental questions about the nature of the world and our place in it by examining the works of some of the central figures in modern western philosophy. Can we obtain knowledge of the world and, if so, how? Does God exist? What is the nature of the self? How do we determine morally right answers? What sorts of policies and political structures can best promote justice and equality? These questions were addressed in “modern” Europe in the context of the development of modern science and the religious wars. In a time of globalization we are all, more or less, heirs of the Enlightenment which sees its legacy to be modern science and the mastery of nature together with democracy and human rights. This course explores the above questions and considers them in their historical context. Some of the philosophers considered include Descartes, Locke, Hume, Kant, and Wollstonecraft.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PHIL B103 Introduction to Logic

Logic is the study of formal reasoning, which concerns the nature of valid arguments and inferential fallacies. In everyday life our arguments tend to be informal and sometimes imprecise. The study of logic concerns the structure and nature of arguments, and so helps to analyze them more precisely. Topics will include: valid and invalid arguments, determining the logical structure of ordinary sentences, reasoning with truth-functional connectives, and inferences involving quantifiers and predicates. This course does not presuppose any background knowledge in logic.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B204 Readings in German Intellectual History

Course content varies. Study of selected texts of German intellectual history, introducing representative works of Theodor W. Adorno, Hannah Arendt, Walter Benjamin, Sigmund Freud, Jürgen Habermas, Georg W. F. Hegel, Martin Heidegger, Werner Heisenberg, Immanuel Kant, G. E. Lessing, Karl Marx, Friedrich Nietzsche, Friedrich Schiller, and Ludwig Wittgenstein. The course aims to introduce students to an advanced cultural reading range and the languages and terminology of humanistic disciplines in German-speaking countries, and seeks to develop their critical and interpretive skills.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B212
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism

Designated theory course. An introduction to various methods of reading the literary text from the perspective of critical methods informed by philosophical ideas. In their quest for self-understanding and knowledge, literature and philosophy share similar forms of inquiry and imaginative modeling. Selected literary texts and critical essays focus on questions of language, translation, understanding, and identity in their relation to history, epistemology, ethics, and aesthetics. One of the main objectives of the course is to provide students with the critical tools necessary for an informed reading of texts.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B209; COML-B209
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B211 Theory of Knowledge

Varieties of realism and relativism address questions about what sorts of things exist and the constraints on our knowledge of them. The aim of this course is to develop a sense of how these theories interrelate, and to instill philosophical skills in the critical evaluation of them. Discussions will be based on contemporary readings.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Krausz,M.
(Spring 2013)

PHIL B212 Metaphysics

Metaphysics is inquiry into basic features of the world and ourselves. This course considers two topics of metaphysics, free will and personal identity, and their relationship. What is free will and are we free? Is freedom compatible with determinism? Does moral responsibility require free will? What makes someone the same person over time? Can a person survive without their body? Is the recognition of others required to be a person?

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Wallhagen,M.
(Fall 2012)
PHIL B221 Ethics
An introduction to ethics by way of an examination of moral theories and a discussion of important ancient, modern, and contemporary texts which established theories such as virtue ethics, deontology, utilitarianism, relativism, emotivism, care ethics. This course considers questions concerning freedom, responsibility, and obligation. How should we live our lives and interact with others? How should we think about ethics in a global context? Is ethics independent of culture? A variety of practical issues such as reproductive rights, euthanasia, animal rights and the environment will be considered.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B222 Aesthetics Nature and Experience of Art
Prerequisite: One introductory course in philosophy. Here are some questions we will discuss in this course: What sort of thing is a work of art? Can criticism in the arts be objective? Do such cultural entities answer to more than one admissible interpretation? What is the role of a creator’s intentions in fixing upon admissible interpretations? What is the nature of aesthetic experience? What is creativity in the arts? Readings will be drawn from contemporary sources.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): COML-B222
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B225 Global Ethical Issues
The need for a critical analysis of what justice is and requires has become urgent in a context of increasing globalization, the emergence of new forms of conflict and war, high rates of poverty within and across borders and the prospect of environmental devastation. This course examines prevailing theories and issues of justice as well as approaches and challenges by non-western, post-colonial, feminist, race, class, and disability theorists.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Major; International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B225
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B228 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Ancient and Early Modern
An introduction to the fundamental problems of political philosophy, especially the relationship between political life and the human good or goods. Readings from Aristotle, Hobbes, Machiavelli, Plato, and Rousseau.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B228
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever, S.
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B231 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Modern
A continuation of POLS 228, although 228 is not a prerequisite. Particular attention is given to the various ways in which the concept of freedom is used in explaining political life. Readings from Hegel, Locke, Marx, J.S. Mill, and Nietzsche.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever, S.
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B238 Science, Technology and the Good Life
This course considers questions concerning what is science, what is technology, and what is their relationship to each other and to the domains of ethics and politics. We will consider how modern science defined itself in its opposition to Aristotelian science. We will examine the Cartesian and Baconian scientific models and the self-understanding of these models with regard to ethics and politics. Developments in the philosophy of science will be considered, e.g., positivism, phenomenology, feminism, sociology of science. Biotechnology and information technology illustrate fundamental questions. The “science wars” of the 1990s provide debates concerning science, technology, and the good life.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B238
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B240 Environmental Ethics
This course surveys rights- and justice-based justifications for ethical positions on the environment. It examines approaches such as stewardship, intrinsic value, land ethic, deep ecology, ecofeminism, Asian and aboriginal. It explores issues such as obligations to future generations, to nonhumans and to the biosphere.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B240
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
PHIL B244 Philosophy and Cognitive Science
Cognitive science is a multidisciplinary approach to the study of human cognition. It goes from the abstract study of concepts of cognition at one end to well-defined empirical research into language and cognition and the specifics of cognitive modeling on computers at the other. Philosophy, linguistics, psychology, computer science, and neuroscience are the major contributors to cognitive science. Philosophy both contributes to and examines cognitive science.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B245 Philosophy of Law
Introduces students to a variety of questions in the philosophy of law. Readings will be concerned with the nature of law, the character of law as a system, the ethical character of law, and the relationship of law to politics, power, authority, and society. Readings will include abstract philosophical arguments about the concept of law, as well as theoretical arguments about the nature of law as they arise within specific contexts, and judicial cases. Most or all of the specific issues discussed will be taken from Anglo-American law, although the general issues considered are not limited to those legal systems.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B245
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B252 Feminist Theory
Beliefs that gender discrimination has been eliminated and women have achieved equality have become commonplace. We challenge these assumptions examining the concepts of patriarchy, sexism, and oppression. Exploring concepts central to feminist theory, we attend to the history of feminist theory and contemporary accounts of women’s place and status in different societies, varied experiences, and the impact of the phenomenon of globalization. We then explore the relevance of gender to philosophical questions about identity and agency with respect to moral, social and political theory. Prerequisite: one course in philosophy or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B253
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Koggel, C.
(Spring 2013)

PHIL B253 Theory in Practice: Critical Discourses in the Humanities
An examination in English of leading theories of interpretation from Classical Tradition to Modern and Post-Modern Time.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): ITAL-B213; COML-B213; ENGL-B213; FREN-B213; GERM-B213; HART-B253; RUSS-B253
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B254 Philosophy of Religion
An introduction to principle topics in the philosophy of religion: Does God exist? Is belief in God compatible with reason and science? Is God’s existence compatible with deep suffering and pain? Does the fact that there are many religions show that there is no religious truth? Includes readings eastern and western traditions and from analytic and continental philosophy. Authors will include Aquinas, Aurobindo, Dalai Lama, Dennett, James, Kierkegaard and Wittgenstein.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B259 Philosophy, Modern Physics and Ideals of Interpretation
In the modern era, interpretive ideals like objectivity, certainty and causality have been intensely scrutinized. Must there be a fact of the matter independently of all interpretive practices? Must there be a single right interpretation for all physical and cultural phenomena? Various readings will explore these and other questions. Prerequisite: One course in Philosophy or Physics or permission of an instructor. Sophomore standing.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B293 The Play of Interpretation
Designated theory course. A study of the methodologies and regimes of interpretation in the arts, humanistic sciences, and media and cultural studies, this course focuses on common problems of text, authorship, reader/spectator, and translation in their historical and formal contexts. Literary, oral, and visual texts from different cultural traditions and histories will be studied through interpretive approaches informed by modern critical theories. Readings in literature, philosophy, popular culture, and film will illustrate how theory enhances our understanding of the complexities of history, memory, identity, and the trials of modernity.
Aristotle’s theoretical basis for the paradigmatically human activities of practical reason (phronēsis) and thoughtful choice (prohairesis—see NE 6.1, 1139b). There will be some additional readings from Aristotle, from Aristotle’s Greek contemporaries and predecessors (including Plato and Thucydides), and from recent work designed to bring Aristotelian perspectives to bear on the moral and political issues of our own time. Prerequisites: At least two semesters of philosophy or political theory, including some work with Greek texts, or consent of the instructor.

PHIL B310 Philosophy of Science
An examination of positivistic science and its critics. Topics include the possibility and nature of scientific progress from relativistic perspectives.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B310
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever,S.
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B317 Philosophy of Creativity
This course will address the following questions: What are the criteria of creativity? Is explaining creativity possible? Should we understand creativity in terms of persons, processes or products? What is the relation between creativity and skill? What is genius? What is creative imagination? Is there a difference between creativity in the arts and creativity in the sciences? What is the relation between the context of discovery and the context of justification? What is the relation between tradition and creativity? Is there a significant relationship between creativity and self-transformation?
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B319 Philosophy of Mind
This seminar focuses on contemporary analytic philosophy of mind. The exact topics will vary from year to year. Possible topics include: consciousness and the unity of consciousness, personal identity, emotions, psychological explanation, mental illness, neuropsychology, externalism and the extended mind hypothesis, embodied cognition, artificial minds, philosophy and cognitive science, philosophy of psychology, and philosophy and psychoanalysis.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B319
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B321 Greek Political Philosophy Aristotle: Ethics and Politics
Topics in Greek Political Philosophy. Topic for Fall 2012: Aristotle’s Nicomachean Ethics and Politics A careful reading of the Nicomachean Ethics and the Politics, treated as a single series of lectures designed to lead its immediate Greek audience (the equivalent of Socrates’ interlocutors in Plato)—and perhaps us as well—more deeply into the questions and problems that are Aristotle’s theoretical basis for the paradigmatically human activities of practical reason (phronēsis) and thoughtful choice (prohairesis—see NE 6.1, 1139b). There will be some additional readings from Aristotle, from Aristotle’s Greek contemporaries and predecessors (including Plato and Thucydides), and from recent work designed to bring Aristotelian perspectives to bear on the moral and political issues of our own time.

PHIL B323 Culture and Interpretation
This course will pursue such questions as the following. For all objects of interpretation—including works of art, music, literature, persons or cultures—must there be a single right interpretation? If not, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? Does interpretation affect the nature or the number of an object of interpretation? Does the singularity or multiplicity of interpretations mandate such ontologies as realism or constructivism? Discussions will be based on contemporary readings.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: International Studies Major; International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): COML-B323
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Krausz,M.
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B324 Computational Linguistics
Introduction to computational models of understanding and processing human languages. How elements of linguistics, computer science, and artificial intelligence can be combined to help computers process human language and to help linguists understand language through computer models. Topics covered: syntax, semantics, pragmatics, generation and knowledge representation techniques. Prerequisite: some background in linguistics or computer science.
Crosslisting(s): CMSC-B325; LING-B325
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B326 Relativism: Cognitive and Moral
Cognitive relativists believe that truth is relative to particular cultures or conceptual schemes. In an analogous way, moral relativists believe that moral rightness is relative to particular cultures or conceptual schemes. Relativistic theories of truth and morality are widely embraced in the current intellectual climate, and they are as perplexing as they are provocative. This course will examine varieties of relativism and their absolutistic counterparts. Readings will be drawn from contemporary sources.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: International Studies Minor
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B327 Political Philosophy in the 20th Century
A study of 20th- and 21st-century extensions of three traditions in Western political philosophy: the adherents of the German and English ideas of freedom and the founders of classical naturalism. Authors read include Hannah Arendt, Michel Foucault, Jurgen Habermas, and John Rawls. Topics include the relationship of individual rationality and political authority, the “crisis of modernity,” and the debate concerning contemporary democratic citizenship. Prerequisites: POLS 228 and 231, or PHIL 101 and 201. Enrollment is limited to 18 students.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B327
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B329 Wittgenstein
Wittgenstein is notable for developing two philosophical systems. In the first, he attempted to show that there is a single common structure underlying all language, thought and being. In the second, he denied the idea of such a structure and claimed that the job of philosophy was to free philosophers from bewitchments due to misunderstandings of ordinary concepts in language. The course begins by sketching the first system. We then turn to his rejection of the earlier ideas as outlined in Philosophical Investigations and On Certainty. We also examine contemporary interpretations of Wittgenstein’s later work.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): GERM-B329
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B330 Kant
The significance of Kant’s transcendental philosophy for thought in the 19th and 20th centuries cannot be overstated. His work is profoundly important for both the analytical and the so-called “continental” schools of thought. This course will provide a close study of Kant’s breakthrough work: The Critique of Pure Reason. We will read and discuss the text with reference to its historical context and with respect to its impact on developments in epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind, philosophy of science, philosophy of religion as well as developments in German Idealism, 20th-century phenomenology, and contemporary analytic philosophy.

Prerequisite: PHIL 102 or at least one 200 level Philosophy course.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Dostal,R.
(Fall 2012)

PHIL B338 Phenomenology: Heidegger and Husserl
This upper-level seminar will consider the two main proponents of phenomenology—a movement in philosophy in the 20th century that attempted to restart philosophy in a radical way. Its concerns are philosophically comprehensive: ontology, epistemology, philosophy of science, ethics, and so on. Phenomenology provides the important background for other later developments in 20th-century philosophy and beyond: existentialism, deconstruction, post-modernism. This seminar will focus primarily on Edmund Husserl’s Crisis of the European Sciences and Martin Heidegger’s Being and Time. Other writings to be considered include some of Heidegger’s later work and Merleau-Ponty’s preface to his Phenomenology of Perception.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHIL B344 Development Ethics
This course explores the meaning of and moral issues raised by development. In what direction and by what means should a society “develop”? What role, if any, does the globalization of markets and capitalism play in processes of development and in systems of discrimination on the basis of factors such as race and gender? Answers to these sorts of questions will be explored through an examination of some of the most prominent theorists and recent literature.

Prerequisites: a philosophy, political theory or economics course or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Major; International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B344
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Koggel,C.
(Spring 2013)

PHIL B352 Feminism and Philosophy
It has been said that one of the most important feminist contributions to theory is its uncovering of the ways in which theory in the Western tradition, whether of knowledge, morality, or politics has a hidden male bias. This course will explore feminist critiques of traditional moral theory by examining early accounts of an ethic of care that challenge the ethic of justice that has dominated moral theory in the liberal tradition. We then turn to feminist revisions to and expansions of these early accounts of care ethics -- including contemporary work exploring the implications and applications of feminist ethics for issues in the contemporary global context.

Major Requirements

The physics major provides depth in the discipline through a series of required courses, as well as the flexibility to choose from a range of electives in physics and related fields. This allows students to follow various paths through the major and thus tailor their program of study to best meet their career goals and scientific interests.

Beyond the two introductory physics courses and the two introductory mathematics courses, ten additional courses are required for the major. (Haverford courses may be substituted for Bryn Mawr courses where appropriate.) Five of the ten courses must be PHYS 201, 214, 306, and MATH 201, 203. In addition, either PHYS 331 or 305 is required as well as the year-long, one-credit Senior Seminar, PHYS 398 and 399. The remaining three courses must be chosen from among the other 300-level physics courses, one of which may be substituted with any one course from among ASTR 342, 343, and 344, or any 300-level math course. Other substitutions from related disciplines such as chemistry, geology, and engineering may be possible. Please consult with the major's adviser to discuss such options.

Four-Year Plan meeting the minimum requirements for the major:

1st Year
PHYS 121, 122
MATH 101, 102

2nd Year
PHYS 201, 214
MATH 201, 203

3rd Year
PHYS 306, 331 or 305, and one other 300-level physics course

4th Year
Two 300-level physics courses, plus 398 and 399

The physics program at Bryn Mawr allows for a student to major in physics even if the introductory courses are not completed until the end of the sophomore year.

Three-Year Plan meeting the minimum requirements for the major:

1st Year
MATH 101, 102

2nd Year
PHYS 121, 122
MATH 201, 203

3rd Year
PHYS 201, 214, 306, 331 or 305

4th Year
Three 300-level physics courses, plus 398 and 399
Honors

The degree of Bachelor of Arts is awarded with honors in physics in recognition of academic excellence. The award, which is made upon the recommendation of the department, is based on the quality of a Senior Thesis and on an achievement of a GPA of at least 3.4 in 200-level courses and above in physics, astronomy, and mathematics at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges and an overall GPA of at least 3.0.

Study Abroad

Many physics majors participate in the college’s junior year study abroad program. Undergraduate physics courses are surprisingly standardized throughout the world. The Majors Adviser will work with you to design an appropriate set of courses to take wherever you go.

Minor Requirements

The requirements for the minor, beyond the introductory sequence, are PHYS 201, 214, and 306; PHYS 331 or 305; MATH 201 and 203; and one additional 300-level physics course. The astronomy and mathematics courses described under “Major Requirements” may not be substituted for the one additional 300-level physics course.

Preparation for Graduate School

The department has been very successful in preparing students for graduate school in physics, physical chemistry, materials science, engineering, and related fields. To be well prepared for graduate school, students should take, at a minimum, these upper-level courses: PHYS 302, 303, 308, and 309. Students should also take any additional courses in physics and allied fields that reflect their interests, and should engage in research with a member of the faculty by taking PHYS 403. (Note that PHYS 403 does not count towards the 14 courses required for the major.) Seniors can take graduate courses, usually PHYS 501: Quantum Mechanics or PHYS 503: Electromagnetism, to get a head start on graduate school.

Minor in Educational Studies or Secondary-School Teacher Certification

Students majoring in physics can pursue a minor in educational studies or state certification to teach at the secondary-school level. Students seeking the minor need to complete six education courses including a two-semester senior seminar, which requires five to eight hours per week of fieldwork. To earn secondary-school certification (grades 7-12) in physics, students must: complete the physics major plus two semesters of chemistry and one semester as a teaching assistant in a laboratory for introductory or intermediate physics courses; complete six education courses; and student teach full-time (for two course credits) second semester of their senior year. For additional information, see the “Education” section of the catalog.

Pre-Health Professions

A major in physics can be excellent preparation for a career in the health professions. A recent (2010) study by the American Institute of Physics finds that “…as a group, physics bachelor’s degree recipients achieve among the highest scores of any college major on the entrance exams for medical school…” In addition to one year of physics, most medical and dental schools require one year of English, one year of biology, one year of general chemistry, and one year of organic chemistry. Students wishing to pursue this path should consult the physics major’s adviser early in their studies as well as the Health Professions Advising Office to develop an appropriate major plan. For additional information, see the “Academic Opportunities” section of the catalog.

Engineering Options

Although Bryn Mawr does not offer engineering courses, several options are available to students with an interest in this field.

A PHYSICS MAJOR WITH AN ENGINEERING FOCUS

A path through the physics major can be developed that provides a solid preparation for further studies at the masters or doctoral level in engineering. This path can include coursework in engineering taken at Swarthmore College or the University of Pennsylvania.

3-2 PROGRAM IN ENGINEERING AND APPLIED SCIENCE WITH CAL TECH

See page 51 for the description of the 3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science, offered in cooperation with the California Institute of Technology, for earning both an A.B. at Bryn Mawr and a B.S. at Cal Tech. Visit www.brynmawr.edu/catalog/2012-13/program/opportunities/32engineering.html for more information.

4+1 PROGRAM IN ENGINEERING AT UPENN

The University of Pennsylvania 4+1 engineering program allows students to earn an A.B. at Bryn Mawr and an M.S. in Engineering (M.S.E) at UPenn. Students apply between the beginning of the sophomore year and end of the junior year. For additional information, see page 51, or visit www.brynmawr.edu/catalog/2012-13/program/opportunities/41penn_engineering.html.
A.B./M.A. Program

To earn an M.A. degree in physics in the College’s A.B./M.A. program, a student must complete the requirements for an undergraduate physics major and also must complete six units of graduate level work in physics. Of these six units, as many as two units may be undergraduate courses at the 300 level taken for graduate credit (these same two courses may be used to fulfill the major requirements for the A.B. degree), at least two units must be graduate seminars at the 500 level, and two units must be graduate research at the 700 level leading to the submission and oral defense of an acceptable M.A. thesis.

Courses at Haverford College

Many upper-level physics courses are taught at Haverford and Bryn Mawr in alternate years as indicated in the listings of the specific courses below. These courses (numbered 302, 303, 308, 309, and 322) may be taken at either institution to satisfy major requirements. Haverford 335 and Bryn Mawr 325 are both topics in advanced theoretical physics and they also tend to alternate. In addition, 100- and 200-level courses at Haverford can be used to replace 100- and 200-level courses at Bryn Mawr but these courses are not identical and careful planning is required.

Introductory Physics Sequences

Students on a pre-health professions track wanting to take one year of physics should take PHYS 101 and PHYS 102. Some students on a physical sciences major track could take PHYS 121 and PHYS 122 and others might take PHYS 122 and PHYS 201. See your major adviser and carefully note the math pre- and co-requisites for these courses. PHYS121/122/201/214 is a coordinated, four-semester sequence in physics. Students are encouraged to place out of MATH 101 and 102 if that is appropriate.

COURSES

PHYS B101 Introductory Physics

PHYS 101/102 is an introductory sequence intended primarily for students on the pre-health professions track. Emphasis is on developing an understanding of how we study the universe, the ideas that have arisen from that study, and on problem solving. Topics are taken from among Newtonian kinematics and dynamics, relativity, gravitation, fluid mechanics, waves and sound, electricity and magnetism, electrical circuits, light and optics, quantum mechanics, and atomic and nuclear physics. An effective and usable understanding of algebra and trigonometry is assumed. First year students who will take or place out of MATH 101 should take PHYS 121. Lecture three hours, laboratory two hours.

PHYS 101/102 Introductory Physics

PHYS 101/102 is an introductory sequence intended primarily for students on the pre-health professions track. Emphasis is on developing an understanding of how we study the universe, the ideas that have arisen from that study, and on problem solving. Topics are taken from among Newtonian kinematics and dynamics, relativity, gravitation, fluid mechanics, waves and sound, electricity and magnetism, electrical circuits, light and optics, quantum mechanics, and atomic and nuclear physics. An effective and usable understanding of algebra and trigonometry is assumed. Lecture three hours, laboratory two hours.

PHYS B121 Classical Mechanics

The lecture material covers Newtonian Mechanics of single particles, systems of particles, rigid bodies, and continuous media with applications, one-dimensional systems including forced oscillators, scattering and orbit problems. Lecture three hours, laboratory two hours. Prerequisites: PHYS 121 and MATH 101. Corequisite: MATH 102.

PHYS B122 Classical Mechanics

The lecture material covers Newtonian Mechanics of single particles, systems of particles, rigid bodies, and continuous media with applications, one-dimensional systems including forced oscillators, scattering and orbit problems. Lecture three hours, laboratory two hours. Prerequisites: PHYS 121 and MATH 101. Corequisite: MATH 102.
PHYS B142 The Search for Life in the Universe
This course will investigate the biological, chemical, and astrophysical factors believed to be necessary for extraterrestrial life to exist, and perhaps to communicate with us. It also will explore possible homes to such life in both our solar system and the greater Milky Way galaxy. Also see PHYS B172 which is PHYS B142 without the laboratory. Lecture three hours, laboratory two hours.
Requirement(s): Division II w/Lab and Quantitative Skills
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PHYS B172 The Search for Life in the Universe
This course will investigate the biological, chemical, and astrophysical factors believed to be necessary for extraterrestrial life to exist, and perhaps to communicate with us. It also will explore possible homes to such life in both our solar system and the greater Milky Way galaxy. Also see PHYS B142 for the lecture/laboratory course.
Requirement(s): Division II and Quantitive
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PHYS B201 Electromagnetism
The lecture material covers electro- and magnetostatics, electric and magnetic fields, induction, Maxwell's equations, and electromagnetic radiation. Scalar and vector fields and vector calculus are developed as needed. The laboratory involves passive and active circuits and projects in analog and digital electronics. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours.
Prerequisite: PHYS 102 or 122. Corequisite: MATH 201.
Requirement(s): Division II w/Lab and Quantitative Skills
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Quantitative Readiness Required (QR); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)

PHYS B214 An Introduction to Quantum Mechanics
An introduction to the principles governing systems at the atomic scale and below. Topics include the experimental basis of quantum mechanics, wave-particle duality, Schrödinger's equation and its solutions, and the time dependence of quantum states. Recent developments, such as paradoxes calling attention to the counter-intuitive aspects of quantum physics, will be discussed. Additional topics may be included at the discretion of the instructor. The laboratory involves quantum mechanics, solid state physics, and optics experiments. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours.
Prerequisite: PHYS 121 and 122, or permission of instructor. Corequisite: MATH 203.
Requirement(s): Division II w/Lab and Quantitative Skills
Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PHYS B302 Advanced Quantum Mechanics and Applications
This course presents nonrelativistic quantum mechanics, including Schrodinger’s equation, the eigenvalue problem, the measurement process, the hydrogen atom, the harmonic oscillator, angular momentum, spin, the periodic table, perturbation theory, and the relationship between quantum and Newtonian mechanics. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2012-13 at Haverford. Prerequisites: PHYS 214 and PHYS 306.
Units: 1.0

PHYS B303 Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics
This course presents the statistical description of the macroscopic states of classical and quantum systems, including conditions for equilibrium, the microcanonical, canonical, and grand canonical ensembles, and Bose-Einstein, Fermi-Dirac, and Maxwell Boltzmann statistics. The statistical basis of classical thermodynamics is investigated. Examples and applications are drawn from among solid state physics, low temperature physics, atomic and molecular physics, electromagnetic waves, and cosmology. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2012-13 at Bryn Mawr. Prerequisite: PHYS 214. Corequisite: PHYS 306.
Units: 1.0

PHYS B305 Advanced Electronics Lab
This laboratory course is a survey of electronic principles and circuits useful to experimental physicists and engineers. Topics include the design and analysis of circuits using transistors, operational amplifiers, feedback and analog-to-digital conversion. Also covered is the use of electronics for automated control and measurement in experiments, and the interfacing of computers and other data acquisition instruments to experiments. Laboratory eight hours a week.
Prerequisite: PHYS 201.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PHYS B306 Mathematical Methods in the Physical Sciences
This course presents topics in applied mathematics useful to students, including physicists, engineers, physical chemists, geologists, and computer scientists studying the natural sciences. Topics are taken from Fourier series, integral transforms, advanced ordinary and partial differential equations, special functions, boundary-value problems, functions of complex variables, and numerical methods. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Prerequisites: MATH 201 and 203. Units: 1.0 (Fall 2012)

PHYS B308 Advanced Classical Mechanics
This course presents kinematics and dynamics of particles and macroscopic systems using Newtonian, Lagrangian, and Hamiltonian mechanics. Topics include oscillations, normal mode analysis, inverse square laws, nonlinear dynamics, rotating rigid bodies, and motion in noninertial reference frames. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2012-13 at Haverford. Prerequisite: PHYS 201 or PHYS 214. Corequisite: PHYS 306. Units: 1.0 (Spring 2013)

PHYS B309 Advanced Electromagnetic Theory
This course presents electrostatics and magnetostatics, dielectrics, magnetic materials, electrodynamics, Maxwell's equations, electromagnetic waves, and special relativity. Some examples and applications may come from superconductivity, plasma physics, and radiation theory. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford. Prerequisites: PHYS 201 and 306. Units: 1.0 (Spring 2013)

PHYS B322 Solid State Physics
This course presents the physics of solids. Topics include crystal structure and diffraction, the reciprocal lattice and Brillouin zones, crystal binding, lattice vibrations and normal modes, phonon dispersion, Einstein and Debye models for the specific heat, the free electron model, the Fermi surface, electrons in periodic structures, the Bloch theorem and band structure. Additional topics are taken from semiclassical electron dynamics, semiconductors, superconductivity, 0-D (quantum dots), 1-D (quantum wires) and 2-D (graphene) structures and the microscopies used to investigate them. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Prerequisites: PHYS 201 and PHYS 214 and 306. Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

PHYS B324 Optics
This course covers principles of geometrical and physical optics. Topics include electromagnetic waves and their propagation in both isotropic and anisotropic media; interference, diffraction, and Fourier optics; coherence theory; ray optics and image formation; and, as time permits, an introduction to the quantum nature of light. Prerequisites: PHYS 201 and 306. Units: 1.0 (Spring 2013)

PHYS B325 Advanced Theoretical Physics
This course presents one or more of several subjects, depending on instructor availability and student interest. The possible subjects are (1) special relativity, general relativity, and gravitation, (2) the standard model of particle physics, (3) particle astrophysics and cosmology, (4) relativistic quantum mechanics, (5) grand unified theories, (6) string theory, loop quantum gravity, and causal set theory. Lecture three hours and additional recitation sessions as needed. Prerequisites: PHYS 306 and 308. Corequisite: PHYS 302. Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

PHYS B331 Advanced Experimental Physics
This laboratory course consists of set-piece experiments as well as directed experimental projects to study a variety of phenomena in atomic, molecular, optical, nuclear, and solid state physics. The experiments and projects serve as an introduction to contemporary instrumentation and the experimental techniques used in physics research laboratories in industry and in universities. Students write papers in a format appropriate for research publications and make a presentation to the class. Laboratory eight hours a week. Corequisite: PHYS 214. Units: 1.0 (Spring 2013)

PHYS B380 Physics Pedagogy
Students work with a faculty member as assistant teachers in a college course in physics, or as assistants to a faculty member developing new teaching materials. Students will be involved in some combination of the following: directed study of the literature on teaching and learning pedagogy, construction and design of parts of a course, and actual teaching in a lecture course or laboratory. Corequisite: PHYS 201 or 214. Units: 1.0 (Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PHYS B390 Independent Study
At the discretion of the department, juniors or seniors may supplement their work in physics with the study of topics not covered in regular course offerings. Units: 1.0 (Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PHYS B398 Senior Seminar I
Required for senior Physics majors. Students meet weekly with faculty to discuss recent research findings.
in physics as well as career paths open to students with a major in Physics. Students are required to attend all colloquia and student research presentations hosted by the Bryn Mawr College Physics department. Prerequisites: Senior Standing.
Units: 0.5
(Fall 2012)

PHYS B399 Senior Seminar II
Required for senior Physics majors. Students meet weekly with faculty to discuss recent research findings in physics as well as career paths open to students with a major in Physics. Students are required to attend all colloquia and student research presentations hosted by the Bryn Mawr College Physics department. Prerequisites: Senior Standing.
Units: 0.5
(Spring 2013)

PHYS B403 Supervised Research
At the discretion of the department, juniors and seniors may supplement their work in physics with research in one of the faculty research groups. Students provide a written paper and give an oral presentation at the end of the semester or year. Students are encouraged to contact individual faculty members and the departmental Web pages for further information.
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PHYS 501 Quantum Mechanics I
This course is the first semester of a year-long standard sequence on quantum mechanics. The year-long course will cover: the mathematical formulation of quantum mechanics, quantum dynamics, the theory of angular momentum, symmetry in quantum mechanics, approximation methods, identical particles, scattering theory, relativistic quantum mechanics. This course is taught in a seminar format, in which students are responsible for presenting much of the course material in class meetings.

PHYS 502 Quantum Mechanics II
This course is the second semester of a year-long standard sequence on quantum mechanics. The year-long course will cover: the mathematical formulation of quantum mechanics, quantum dynamics, the theory of angular momentum, symmetry in quantum mechanics, approximation methods, identical particles, scattering theory, relativistic quantum mechanics. This course is taught in a seminar format, in which students are responsible for presenting much of the course material in class meetings.

PHYS B503 Electromagnetic Theory I
This course is the first semester of a year-long standard sequence on electromagnetism. This semester begins with topics in electrostatics, including Coulomb's and Gauss's Laws, Green functions, the method of images, expansions in orthogonal functions, boundary-value problems, and dielectric materials. The focus then shifts to magnetic phenomena, including the magnetic fields of localized currents, boundary-value problems in magnetostatics, and the interactions of fields and magnetic materials. The last portion of the course treats Maxwell's equations, transformation properties of electromagnetic fields, electromagnetic waves and their propagation and, time permitting, the basics of waveguides. This course is taught in a seminar format, in which students are responsible for presenting much of the course material in class meetings.
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012)

PHYS B504 Electromagnetic Theory II
This course is the second semester of a two semester graduate level sequence on electromagnetic theory. Topics include electromagnetic radiation, multiple fields, scattering and diffraction theory, special relativity, Lagrangian and Hamiltonian descriptions, radiation from point particle motion, Lienard-Wiechert potentials, classical electron theory and radiation reaction. Additional topics may be included at the discretion of the instructor. This course is taught in a seminar format, in which students are responsible for presenting much of the course material in class meetings. Prerequisite: PHYS 503
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PHYS B505 Classical Mechanics I
This course will cover mechanics topics familiar from the undergraduate curriculum, but from deeper theoretical and mathematical perspectives. Topics will include Lagrange and Hamilton methods, the central force problem, rigid body motion, oscillations, and canonical transformations. Time permitting, other topics that might be explored include chaos theory, special relativity, and the application of Lagrangian and Hamiltonian methods to continuous systems. This course is taught in a seminar format, in which students are responsible for presenting much of the course material in class meetings.

Major Requirements

WHAT IS POLITICAL SCIENCE, AND WHAT WILL THE MAJOR PREPARE ME FOR?

Political Science is the study of justice and authority, peace and conflict, public policies and elections, government and law, democracy and autocracy, freedom and oppression. More than any other social science, Political Science pursues a wide variety of approaches in explaining how and why political events and institutions come about as they do, and in evaluating ways in which polities, policies, and leaders are good and bad, laudable and criticizable. Some of these approaches are like those found in Sociology (survey research) or in Anthropology (ethnography) or in economics (cost-benefit analysis) or in the interpretive branches of history, philosophy, and literary criticism. The variety of complementary approaches housed within the same department is the great strength of Political Science as an undergraduate major. The major is excellent preparation for those planning to go on to law or public policy schools, as well as to graduate work in Political Science. Majors in the department have gone on to careers both in this country and abroad in public service, journalism, law, education, and administration.
Purpose

The major in Political Science develops reading, writing, and thinking skills needed for a critical understanding of the political world. Course work includes a variety of approaches to the study of politics: historical/interpretive, quantitative/deductive, and philosophical. Using these approaches, students examine political life in a variety of contexts, from neighborhoods to global systems, asking questions about the ways humans have addressed the organization of society, the management of conflicts, or the structure of power and authority.

Course Requirements

The Political Science major consists of a minimum of 10 courses:

a. Political Science 101;

b. Two concentrations, at least one of which should be from among the four themes/categories. The second concentration will ordinarily be chosen as well from those themes/categories, but it can also be based on a more substantive focus, to be determined in consultation with the student’s adviser. Each concentration requires a total of 3 courses, at least one of which must be at the 300-level and all of which must be either at the 200- or 300-level.

c. Senior Conference and Senior Essay (to be taken in the fall and spring terms of the senior year and during which students will conceptualize, research, and write their senior thesis);

d. One additional course, which may be at any level; and

e. At least three of the courses, in addition to 101, 398 and 399, must be taken in the Bryn Mawr Political Science Department.

Major Credit for Courses Outside the Political Science Department

Up to three courses from departments other than Political Science may be offered for major credit, if in the judgment of the department these courses are an integral part of a student’s major plan. This may occur when courses taken in related departments or programs (such as History, Sociology, Philosophy, Africana Studies, East Asian Studies, and Economics) are closely linked with courses the student takes in Political Science. For example, a student with a focus in “Interdependence and Conflict” may count a relevant course in psychology, or history, or sociology, etc.; a student with a focus in international politics may count a course in international economics, and so on. Decisions as to which outside courses are countable for Political Science major credit are made by the faculty on a case by case basis: when in doubt, consult your major adviser or the department chair. Ordinarily, non-Political Science courses at the 100 level or other introductory courses taken in related departments may not be used for major credit in Political Science.

Departmental Honors

Students who have done distinguished work in their courses in the major and who write outstanding senior essays will be considered for departmental honors.

Haverford Political Science Courses

All Haverford Political Science courses will count toward the Bryn Mawr major (the same is generally true for courses at Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania); courses taken in related departments at Haverford will be considered for major credit in the same way as similar courses taken at Bryn Mawr. Everyone majoring in Political Science at Bryn Mawr must take at least three courses in Political Science at Bryn Mawr, not counting Political Science 101, 398 and 399.

Minor Requirements

WHAT IS POLITICAL SCIENCE, AND WHAT WILL THE MINOR PREPARE ME FOR?

Political Science is the study of justice and authority, peace and conflict, public policies and elections, government and law, democracy and autocracy, freedom and oppression. More than any other social science, Political Science pursues a wide variety of approaches in explaining how and why political events and institutions come about as they do, and in evaluating ways in which policies, politics, and leaders are good and bad, laudable and criticizable. Some of these approaches are like those found in Sociology (survey research) or in Anthropology (ethnography) or in the interpretive branches of history, philosophy, and literary criticism. The variety of complementary approaches housed within the same department is the great strength of Political Science as an undergraduate major or minor.

Course Requirements

A minor in political science consists of six courses distributed across at least two fields, at least four of which must be at the 200 or 300 level and at least two of which must be at the 300 level. At least three of the courses must be taken from the Bryn Mawr Department of Political Science course offerings.

The four fields are:

- Identity and Difference;
- Policy Formation and Political Action;
- Interdependence and Conflict; and
- Political Theory.

Course Designations

Almost every course offered in the Political Science Department at Bryn Mawr and Haverford will count for at least one of the four fields, and some may count for more than one. (No single course, however, may be counted as part of more than one field of concentration.) Many courses offered at Swarthmore and Penn will also count towards these. If there are courses offered at Bryn Mawr of Haverford that are not found on the list below, students should consult their adviser or the Political Science Department Chair to determine the proper designation. Designation for courses offered at Swarthmore and Penn should be discussed with a student’s adviser, or if she does not have an adviser, with the Political Science Chair.

COURSES
POLS B101 Introduction to Political Science
This course, which is required of all majors, is designed to introduce students to the study of politics in general and to the four thematic categories around which the major is structured: identity and difference, policy formation and political action, interdependence and conflict, and political theory. The course introduces different but related approaches to understanding political phenomena, and focuses in particular on some central questions and problems of democracy politics.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Allen, M., Harrod, D., Elkins, J. (Spring 2013)
POLS B111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies
A broad and interdisciplinary overview of the study of conflict management. Areas to be introduced will include interpersonal conflict and conflict management, alternative dispute resolution and the law, community conflict and mediation, organizational, intergroup, and international conflict, and conflict management. This course will also serve as a foundation course for students in or considering the peace and conflict studies concentration.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B111
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
POLS B121 Introduction to American Politics
An introduction to the major features and characteristics of the American political system. Features examined include voting and elections; the institutions of government (Congress, the Presidency, the courts and the bureaucracy); the policy-making process; and the role of groups (interest groups, women, and ethnic and racial minorities) in the political process. Enrollment is limited to 35 students.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
POLS B131 Comparative Politics
An introduction to the comparative study of political systems. A sampling of major questions addressed by comparative approaches such as why authority structures differ across countries; how major issues such as inequality, environmental degradation, and ethno-nationalism arise in different polities, and why governmental responses to those issues differ so widely. Comparisons are made across time and space. Emphasis is placed on institutional, cultural, and historical explanations. Enrollment is limited to 35 students.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
POLS B205 European Politics: Between Unification and Dissolution
An analysis of the accelerating process of European unification and the increasing political divisiveness within individual European countries. We focus on the evolution of the state-society relationship in selected countries and the emergence of new sources of conflict in recent years. These are placed in the context of a changing international scene: the eastward expansion of the European Union, European social and economic unity and the introduction of the Euro.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)
POLS B206 Conflict and Conflict Management: A Cross-Cultural Approach
This course examines cross-cultural differences in the levels and forms of conflict and its management through a wide range of cases and alternative theoretical perspectives. Conflicts of interest range from the interpersonal to the international levels and an important question is the relevance of conflict and its management in small-scale societies as a way to understand political conflict and dispute settlement in the United States and modern industrial settings. Prerequisite: one course in political science, anthropology, or sociology. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B206
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B211 Politics of Humanitarianism
This course examines the international politics and history that underlie the ideas, social movement, and system of organizations designed to regulate the conduct of war and improve the welfare of those victimizes by war. It begins with ethical, legal and organizational foundations, and then examines to post-Cold War cases and beyond. Topics include just war theory, international humanitarian law, humanitarian action and intervention, and transitional justice. Prerequisites: one class in Political Science or comparable course by permission of the instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hoffman, P.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B217 The State and the Transformation of Conflict
State institutions have a profound effect on conflicts. State sponsored conflicts may be more violent, more deadly and transform society. The state’s power may affect conflict management, enforcing agreements and providing incentives for cooperation. Weak states may not manage difference or conflict; ineffective states may be bypassed by citizens seeking protection or to plunder assets. Readings include theoretical texts as well as empirical accounts of the state’s role in structuring and enforcing conflict management. Prerequisite: One course in Political Science or social science. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B220 Constitutional Law
Through a reading of (mostly) Supreme Court cases and other materials, this course takes up some central theoretical questions concerning the role of constitutional principles and constitutional review in mediating the relationship between public and private power with respect to both difference and hierarchy. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Elkins, J.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues: Policy Making in Comparative Perspective
An exploration of the ways in which different cultural, economic, and political settings have shaped issue emergence and policy making. We examine the politics of particular environmental issues in selected countries and regions. We also assess the prospects for international cooperation in solving global environmental problems such as climate change. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B222
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hager, C.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B225 Global Ethical Issues
The need for a critical analysis of what justice is and requires has become urgent in a context of increasing globalization, conflict and war, poverty and environmental devastation. This course examines prevailing theories and issues of justice as well as approaches by non-western, post-colonial, feminist, race, class, and disability theorists. Counts toward International Studies Minor and Gender and Sexuality concentration.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Major; International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B225
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hoffman, P.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B228 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Ancient and Early Modern
An introduction to the fundamental problems of political philosophy, especially the relationship between political life and the human good or goods. Readings from Aristotle, Hobbes, Machiavelli, Plato, and Rousseau. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B228
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever, S.
(Spring 2013)
POLS B231 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Modern
A continuation of POLS 228, although 228 is not a prerequisite. Particular attention is given to the various ways in which the concept of freedom is used in explaining political life. Readings from Hegel, Locke, Marx, J.S. Mill, and Nietzsche.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B231
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever, S.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B238 Science, Technology, and the Good Life
This course considers questions concerning what is science, what is technology, and what is their relationship to each other and to the domains of ethics and politics. We will consider how modern science defined itself in its opposition to Aristotelian science. We will examine the Cartesian and Baconian scientific models and the self-understanding of these models with regard to ethics and politics. Developments in the philosophy of science will be considered, e.g., positivism, phenomenology, feminism, sociology of science. Biotechnology and information technology illustrate fundamental questions. The “science wars” of the 1990s provide debates concerning science, technology, and the good life.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B238
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B240 Environmental Ethics
This course surveys rights- and justice-based justifications for ethical positions on the environment. It examines approaches such as stewardship, intrinsic value, land ethic, deep ecology, ecofeminism, Asian and aboriginal. It explores issues such as obligations to future generations, to nonhumans and to the biosphere.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B240
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B241 The Politics of International Law and Institutions
An introduction to international law, which assumes a working knowledge of modern world history and politics since World War II. The origins of modern international legal norms in philosophy and political necessity are explored, showing the schools of thought to which the understandings of these origins give rise. Significant cases are used to illustrate various principles and problems. Prerequisite: POLS 141.

POLS B243 African and Caribbean Perspectives in World Politics
This course makes African and Caribbean voices audible as they create or adopt visions of the world that explain their positions and challenges in world politics. Students learn analytical tools useful in understanding other parts of the world. Prerequisite: POLS 141.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B243
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Allen, M.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
A survey of the history, material culture, political and religious ideologies of, and interactions among, the five great empires of the ancient Near East of the second and first millennia B.C.E.: New Kingdom Egypt, the Hittite Empire in Anatolia, the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires in Mesopotamia, and the Persian Empire in Iran.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Inquiry into the Past (IP)
Crosslisting(s): ARCH-B244; CiTY-B244; HIST-B244
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B245 Philosophy of Law
Introduces students to a variety of questions in the philosophy of law. Readings will be concerned with the nature of law, the character of law as a system, the ethical character of law, and the relationship of law to politics, power, authority, and society. Readings will include abstract philosophical arguments about the concept of law, as well as theoretical arguments about the nature of law as they arise within specific contexts, and judicial cases. Most or all of the specific issues discussed will be taken from Anglo-American law, although the general issues considered are not limited to those legal systems.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B245
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B250 International Politics
An introduction to international relations, exploring its main subdivisions and theoretical approaches. Phenomena and problems in world politics examined... include systems of power management, imperialism, globalization, war, bargaining, and peace. Problems and institutions of international economy and international law are also addressed. This course assumes a reasonable knowledge of modern world history. Enrollment is limited to 30 students.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major; International Studies Minor; Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hoffman,P.
(Fall 2012)

POLB 251 Politics and the Mass Media
A consideration of the mass media as a pervasive fact of U.S. political life and how they influence American politics. Topics include how the media have altered American political institutions and campaigns, how selective attention to particular issues and exclusion of others shape public concerns, and the conditions under which the media directly influence the content of political beliefs and the behavior of citizens. Prerequisite: one course in political science, preferably POLS 121.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Chomsky,D.
(Fall 2012)

POLB 253 Feminist Theory
Beliefs that gender discrimination has been eliminated and women have achieved equality have become commonplace. We challenge these assumptions examining the concepts of patriarchy, sexism, and oppression. Exploring concepts central to feminist theory, we attend to the history of feminist theory and contemporary accounts of women’s place and status in different societies, varied experiences, and the impact of the phenomenon of globalization. We then explore the relevance of gender to philosophical questions about identity and agency with respect to moral, social and political theory. Prerequisite: one course in philosophy or permission of instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B252
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Koggel,C.
(Spring 2013)

POLB 259 Comparative Social Movements in Latin America
An examination of resistance movements to the power of the state and globalization in three Latin American societies: Mexico, Columbia, and Peru. The course explores the political, legal, and socio-economic factors underlying contemporary struggles for human and social rights, and the role of race, ethnicity, and coloniality play in these struggles.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B259; CITY-B220
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Marquez,E.
(Fall 2012)

POLB 262 Who Believes What and Why: the Sociology of Public Opinion
This course explores public opinion: what it is, how it is measured, how it is shaped, and how it changes over time. Specific attention is given to the role of elites, the mass media, and religion in shaping public opinion. Examples include racial/ethnic civil rights, abortion, gay/lesbian/transgendered sexuality, and inequalities.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B262
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLB 264 Politics of Global Commodities
This class critically analyzes the international politics that underpin the production and distribution of global commodities. Marketization and privatization pressures that have produced economic arrangements are examined for their impact in altering governance systems, distorting markets and development, and fomenting conflicts. The course starts with concepts, theories, and history, and then investigates key case studies. Prerequisites: one class in Political Science (preferably International Politics or International Political Economy), comparable coursework, or by permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLB 273 Race and the Law in the American Context
An examination of the intersection of race and law, evaluating the legal regulations of race, the history and meanings of race, and how law, history and the Supreme Court helped shape and produce those meanings. It will draw on materials from law, history, public policy, and critical race theory.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B273
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLB 274 Education Politics and Policy
This course will examine education policy through the lens of federalism and federalism through a case study of education policy. The dual aims are to enhance our understanding of this specific policy area and our understanding of the impact that our federal system of government has on policy effectiveness.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Crosslisting(s): EDUC-B274; SOCL-B274
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Golden,M.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B278 Oil, Politics, Society, and Economy
Examines the role oil has played in transforming societies, in shaping national politics, and in the distribution of wealth within and between nations. Rentier states and authoritarianism, the historical relationships between oil companies and states, monopolies, boycotts, sanctions and demands for succession, and issues of social justice mark the political economy of oil.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B282 The Exotic Other: Gender and Sexuality in the Middle East
This course is concerned with the meanings of gender and sexuality in the Middle East, with particular attention to the construction of tradition, its performance, reinscription, and transformation, and to Western interpretations and interactions. Prerequisite: one course in social science or humanities. Previous gender or Middle East course is a plus.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC); Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
This course is a multidisciplinary approach to understanding the politics of the region, using works of history, political science, political economy, film, and fiction as well as primary sources. The course will concern itself with three broad areas: the legacy of colonialism and the importance of international forces; the role of Islam in politics; and the political and social effects of particular economic conditions, policies, and practices.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Counts toward: Middle East Studies

POLS B287 Media and Politics: The Middle East Transformed
The events of 2011 transformed the Middle East, overthrowing or threatening regimes across the region. The course will focus on the media technologies, the political actors, and international events that produced these changes, as well as examine works on political transitions, revolutions, and social movements. Prerequisite: A previous social science or history course is strongly recommended, or a previous course on media.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Minor; Middle East Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B288 The Political Economy of the Middle East and North Africa
This comparative approach considers historical constructions, the power of economic ideas, domestic politics and resources, and international regimes. Specific areas of focus include theories that seek to explain the economic/political conditions, left, nationalist and liberal, as well as the exceptional growth of the Gulf economies. Prerequisite: at least one other course on the Middle East or a strong area expertise in another region such as Latin America or China with permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Minor; Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B288
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B310 Comparative Public Policy
A comparison of policy processes and outcomes across space and time. Focusing on particular issues such as health care, domestic security, water and land use, we identify institutional, historical, and cultural factors that shape policies. We also examine the growing importance of international-level policy making and the interplay between international and domestic pressures on policy makers. Prerequisite is one course in Political Science or public policy.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hager,C.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B316 The Politics of Ethnic, Racial, and National Groups
An analysis of ethnic and racial conflict and cooperation that will compare and contrast the experiences of racial minorities in the United States and Muslim minorities in Europe. Particular attention is paid to the processes of group identification and political organization; the politicization of racial and ethnic identity; patterns of conflict and cooperation between minorities and the majority population over time; and different paths to citizenship. The course will emphasize how the politics of differentiation has similarities across setting and historical periods as well as important differences
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,M.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B320 Greek Political Philosophy: Ethics and Politics
Topics in Greek Political Philosophy. Topic for Fall 2012: Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics and Politics A careful reading of the Nicomachean Ethics and the Politics, treated as a single series of lectures designed to lead its immediate Greek audience (the equivalent of Socrates’ interlocutors in Plato)—and perhaps us as well—more deeply into the questions and problems that are Aristotle’s theoretical basis for the paradigmatically human activities of practical reason (phronēsis) and thoughtful choice (prohairesis—see NE 6.1, 1139b). There will be some additional readings from Aristotle, from Aristotle's Greek contemporaries and predecessors (including Plato and Thucydides), and from recent work designed to bring Aristotelian perspectives to bear on the moral and political issues of our own time. Prerequisites: At least two semesters of philosophy or political theory, including some work with Greek texts, or consent of the instructor.
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B321
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Salkever,S.
(Fall 2012)

POLS B321 Technology and Politics
An analysis of the complex role of technology in political and social life. We focus on the relationship between technological development and democratic governance. Discussion of theoretical approaches is supplemented by case studies of particular issues, such as electoral politics, warfare and terrorism, social networking and citizen mobilization, climate change, agriculture and food safety.
Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B321
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B327 Political Philosophy in the 20th Century
A study of 20th- and 21st-century extensions of three traditions in Western political philosophy: the adherents of the German and English ideas of freedom and the founders of classical naturalism. Authors read include Hannah Arendt, Michel Foucault, Jurgen Habermas, and John Rawls. Topics include the relationship of individual rationality and political authority, the "crisis of modernity," and the debate concerning contemporary democratic citizenship. Prerequisites: POLS 228 and 231, or PHIL 101 and 201. Enrollment is limited to 18 students.
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B327
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

The American political system has changed dramatically over the past 60 years. This seminar examines the ways in which American political institutions and processes have been transformed -- by design and by accident-- and the causes and consequences of those changes. Special attention will be paid to the effect that these changes have had on the democratic character of the American political system and on its ability to govern.
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B333
Units: 1.0
(In Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B344 Development Ethics
This course explores the meaning of and moral issues raised by development. In what direction and by what means should a society “develop”? What role, if any, does the globalization of markets and capitalism play in processes of development and in systems of discrimination on the basis of factors such as race and gender? Answers to these sorts of questions will be explored through an examination of some of the most prominent theorists and recent literature. Prerequisites: a philosophy, political theory or economics course or permission of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; International Studies Major; International Studies Minor
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B344
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Koggel,C.
(Spring 2013)
POLS B347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies: Utopias, Dystopias, and Peace

An in-depth examination of crucial issues and particular cases of interest to advanced students in peace and conflict studies through common readings and student projects. Various important theories of conflict and conflict management are compared and students undertake semester-long field research. The second half of the semester focuses on student research topics with continued exploration of conflict-resolution theories and research methods. Prerequisite: POLS 206, 111, or Haverford’s POLS 247.

Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B347
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B348 Culture and Ethnic Conflict

An examination of the role of culture in the origin, escalation, and settlement of ethnic conflicts. This course examines the politics of culture and how it constrains and offers opportunities for ethnic conflict and cooperation. The role of narratives, rituals, and symbols is emphasized in examining political contestation over cultural representations and expressions such as parades, holy sites, public dress, museums, monuments, and language in culturally framed ethnic conflicts from all regions of the world. Prerequisites: two courses in the social sciences.

Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): CITY-B348
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B352 Feminism and Philosophy

It has been said that one of the most important feminist contributions to theory is its uncovering of the ways in which theory in the Western tradition, whether of knowledge, morality, or politics has a hidden male bias. This course will explore feminist critiques of traditional moral theory by examining early accounts of an ethic of care that challenge the ethic of justice that has dominated moral theory in the liberal tradition. We then turn to feminist revisions to and expansions of these early accounts of care ethics -- including contemporary work exploring the implications and applications of feminist ethics for issues in the contemporary global context.

Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B352
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B354 Comparative Social Movements

A consideration of the conceptualizations of power and “legitimate” and “illegitimate” participation, the political opportunity structure facing potential activists, the mobilizing resources available to them, and the cultural framing within which these processes occur. Specific attention is paid to recent movements within and across countries, such as feminist, environmental, and anti-globalization movements, and to emerging forms of citizen mobilization, including transnational and global networks, electronic mobilization, and collaborative policymaking institutions.

Counts toward: Environmental Studies
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B354
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B358 Political Psychology of Group Identification

This seminar will explore the common interests of psychologists and political scientists in the phenomena of group identification. The focus will be identification with ethnic and national groups, with special attention to the ways in which research on small-group dynamics can help us understand identification and conflict for these larger groups. The seminar will review major theories of group identity and examine several historical or current cases of successful and unsuccessful development of national identity. Prerequisite: PSYC 208 or two semesters of political science.

Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): PSYC-B358
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): McCauley,C., Ross,M.
(Spring 2013)

POLS B365 Erotica: Love and Art in Plato and Shakespeare

The course explores the relationship between love and art, “eros” and “poesis,” through in-depth study of Plato’s Phaedrus and Symposium, Shakespeare’s As You Like It and Antony and Cleopatra, and essays by modern commentators (including David Halperin, Anne Carson, Martha Nussbaum, Marjorie Garber, and Stanley Cavell). We will also read Shakespeare’s Sonnets and Romeo and Juliet.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B365; COML-B365; PHIL-B365
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hedley,J., Salkever,S.

POLS B371 Topics in Legal and Political Philosophy

This is a topic course. Topics vary.
Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B371
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B375 Women, Work, and Family

As the number of women participating in the paid workforce who are also mothers exceeds 50 percent, it becomes increasingly important to study the issues... raised by these dual roles. This seminar will examine the experiences of working and nonworking mothers in the United States, the roles of fathers, the impact of working mothers on children, and the policy implications of women, work, and family. Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies
Crosslisting(s): SOCL-B375
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Golden,M. (Fall 2012)

POLS B379 The United Nations and World Order
Initially founded in 1945 to address the challenges of international armed aggression, the United Nations has since evolved, and is now charged with confronting a wide range of threats, including atrocities, poverty, hunger, disease, and climate change. This class examines the organization’s pre-eminent role in international peace and security, economic development, and human rights and humanitarian affairs. Prerequisite: a year of Political Science or Peace and Conflict Studies courses or permission of the instructor. Enrollment is limited to 18 students. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B380 Persons, Morality and Modernity
What demands does the modern world impose on those who live in it? What kinds of persons does the modern world bring into being? What kinds of ethical claims can that world make on us? What is the relationship between public and private morality, and between each of us as public citizens and private persons? This course explores such questions through an examination of a variety of texts in political theory and philosophy. Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B380
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B381 Nietzsche, Self and Morality
This course examines Nietzsche’s thought, with particular focus on questions concerning the nature of the self and morality. The texts for the course are drawn mostly from Nietzsche’s own writing, but these are complemented by some contemporary work in moral philosophy and philosophy of mind that has a Nietzschean influence. Crosslisting(s): PHIL-B381
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B382 Religious Fundamentalism in the Global Era
Through a comparison of Jewish, Islamic, Christian and Hindu political movements, the course seeks to investigate the religious turn in national and transnational contexts. We will also seek to find commonalities and differences in religious movements, and religious regimes, while considering the aspects of globalization which usher in new kinds of transnational affiliation. Prerequisite: An introductory course in Anthropology, Political Science or History or permission of the instructor. Requirement(s): Division I or Division III
Counts toward: Middle East Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ANTH-B382; HIST-B382
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B383 Two Hundred Years of Islamic Reform, Radicalism, and Revolution
This course will examine the transformation of Islamic politics in the past two hundred years, emphasizing historical accounts, comparative analysis of developments in different parts of the Islamic world. Topics covered include the rationalist Salafy movement; the so-called conservative movements (Sanussi of Libya, the Mahdi in the Sudan, and the Wahhabi movement in Arabia); the Caliphate movement; contemporary debates over Islamic constitutions; among others. The course is not restricted to the Middle East or Arab world. Prerequisites: a course on Islam and modern European history, or an earlier course on the Modern Middle East or 19th-century India, or permission of instructor. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Middle East Studies
Crosslisting(s): HIST-B383
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLS B385 Democracy and Development
From 1974 to the late 1990’s the number of democracies grew from 39 to 117. This “third wave,” the collapse of communism and developmental successes in East Asia have led some to argue the triumph of democracy and markets. Since the late 1990’s, democracy’s third wave has stalled, and some fear a reverse wave and democratic breakdowns. We will question this phenomenon through the disciplines of economics, history, political science and sociology drawing from theoretical, case study and classical literature. Prerequisite: one year of study in political science or economics. Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: International Studies Major; Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): ECON-B385
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Ross,M., Rock,M. (Spring 2013)
POLLS B387 Politics, Markets and the Presidency of Barack Obama
An in-depth examination of the changing relationship of the state and the market in the U.S. today, the course uses history, theory and empirical research to examine whether the public policies being enacted are producing a fundamental shift in the U.S. political economy. The course centers on the implication for the relationship of democracy to capitalism. Prerequisite: POLS B121.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

POLLS B391 International Political Economy
This seminar examines the growing importance of economic issues in world politics and traces the development of the modern world economy from its origins in colonialism and the industrial revolution, through to the globalization of recent decades. Major paradigms in political economy are critically examined. Aspects of and issues in international economic relations such as development, finance, trade, migration, and foreign investment are examined in the light of selected approaches. One course in International Politics or Economics is required. Preference is given to seniors although juniors are accepted.
Counts toward: International Studies Major
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Allen,M.
(Fall 2012)

POLLS B392 State in Theory and History
This class connects the fields of historical sociology and international relations to survey the roots of states as the predominant form of political authority, to assess its behavior in global affairs, and to consider its future. Concepts include: class coalitions, democracy, capitalism, socialism, authoritarianism, revolutions, international organizations, and empires. Prerequisites: two courses in Political Science, or Peace and Conflict Studies, or permission of the instructor. Enrollment is limited to 18 students.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Hoffman,P.
(Fall 2012)

POLLS B393 U.S. Welfare Politics: Theory and Practice
Major theoretical perspectives concerning the welfare state with a focus on social policy politics, including recent welfare reforms and how in an era of globalization there has been a turn to a more restrictive system of social provision. Special attention is paid to the ways class, race, and gender are involved in making of social welfare policy and the role of social welfare policy in reinforcing class, race, and gender inequities.
Prerequisite: POLS B121 or SOCL B102.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies

PSYCHOLOGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Psychology. Within the major, students may complete a minor in Neuroscience.

Faculty

Kimberly Cassidy, Provost and Professor
Louisa Egan Brad, Associate Professor
Mary Eno, Lecturer
Clark McCauley, Professor
Madelaine Nathanson, Clinical Supervisor
Paul Neuman, Senior Lecturer
Leslie Rescorla, Professor of Psychology on the Class of 1897 Professorship of Science, and Director of the Child Study Institute
Marc Schulz, Professor
Anjali Thapar, Professor and Chair
Earl Thomas, Professor
Robert Wozniak, Professor (on leave semester II)

The department offers the student a major program that allows a choice of courses from among a wide variety of fields in psychology: clinical, cognitive, developmental, physiological, and social. In addition to the considerable breadth offered, the program encourages the student to focus on more specialized areas through advanced coursework, seminars and especially through supervised research. Students have found that the major program provides a strong foundation for graduate work in clinical, cognitive, developmental, experimental, physiological, and social psychology, as well as for graduate study in law, medicine, and business.

Major Requirements

Major requirements in Psychology are PSYC 105 (or a one-semester introductory psychology course taken elsewhere); PSYC 205; and eight additional courses (not including the Junior Brown Bag). Majors must complete four courses at the 200 level, three courses at the 300 level, and one Senior Requirement. Majors may elect to fulfill their Senior Requirement with PSYC 399 (Senior Seminar in Psychology) or by completing two semesters of supervised research (PSYC 401 or PSYC 403).

Majors may substitute advanced placement credit (score of 5 on the Psychology Advanced Placement exam) for PSYC 105. In general, courses at the 200 level survey major content areas of psychological research. With the exception of PSYC 205, all 200-level courses require PSYC 105 or the permission of the instructor. Courses at the 300 level typically have a 200-level survey course as a prerequisite and offer either specialization within a content area or integration across areas. PSYC 399, 401, and 403 are senior capstone courses and are intended to provide psychology majors with an intensive and integrative experience in psychology to culminate their undergraduate careers.

The Psychology major requires one course with a laboratory. The laboratory requirement is typically fulfilled by PSYC 105. If a student takes introductory psychology elsewhere, and the course has no laboratory, or the student receives advanced placement credit for introductory psychology, then a laboratory course at the 200 or 300 level can be taken to fulfill the laboratory requirement. Students who take Haverford courses with the half credit laboratory attachments may count the laboratory portion of the course toward fulfilling the lab requirement for the Bryn Mawr major (Note: PSYC 205 can not be used to fulfill the laboratory requirement).

Majors are also required to attend a one-hour, weekly brown bag in the junior year for one semester. This requirement is designed to sharpen students’ analytical and critical thinking skills, to introduce students to faculty members’ areas of research, to provide additional opportunities for student-faculty interactions, and to build a sense of community.

Advising

The selection of courses to meet the major requirements is made in consultation with the student’s major adviser. Any continuing faculty member can serve as a major adviser. It is expected that the student will sample broadly among the diverse fields represented in the curriculum. Courses outside the department may be taken for major credit if they satisfy the above descriptions of 200-level and 300-level courses and are approved by the student’s major adviser. Students should contact their major adviser about major credit for a course outside the department before taking the course.

Honors

Departmental honors (called Honors in Research in Psychology) are awarded on the merits of a report of research (the design and execution; and the scholarship exhibited in the writing of a paper based on the research). To be considered for honors, students must have a grade point average in psychology of 3.6 or higher at the end of the fall semester of the senior year.
Haverford College Courses that count toward the Major

Certain courses currently offered at Haverford College may be substituted for the equivalent Bryn Mawr courses for purposes of the Bryn Mawr psychology major.

Introductory psychology at Haverford may be substituted for PSYC 105. PSYC 200 at Haverford may be substituted for PSYC 205.

The following courses at Haverford will count as 200-level courses for the major:
- PSYC H213 (Memory and Cognition)
- PSYC HH215 (Introduction to Personality Psychology)
- PSYC H217 (Biological Psychology)
- PSYC H224 (Social Psychology)
- PSYC H238 (Psychology of Language)
- PSYC H260 (Cognitive Neuroscience)

The following courses at Haverford will count as 300-level courses for the major:
- PSYCH H214 (Psychology of Adolescence)
- PSYCH H220 (The Psychology of Time)
- PSYCH H221 (The Primate Origins of Society)
- PSYCH H222 (Evolution and Behavior)
- PSYCHH H225 (Self and Identity)
- PSYCH H240 (Psychology of Pain and Pain Inhibition)
- PSYCH H250 (Biopsychology of Emotion and Personality)
- PSYCH H311 (Advanced Personality Psychology: Freud)
- PSYCH H325 (The Psychology of Close Relationships)
- PSYCH H340 (Human Neuropsychology)
- PSYCH H350 (Biopsychology of Stress)
- PSYCH H370 (Neuroscience of Mental Illness)

Students who take Haverford courses with the half credit laboratory attachments may count the lab portion of the course toward fulfilling the advanced lab requirement for the Bryn Mawr major.

Minor Requirements

A student may minor in Psychology by taking PSYC 105 and PSYC 205 and any other four courses that meet the requirements of the major.

Minor in Neuroscience

Students majoring in psychology can minor in Neuroscience. The minor comprises six courses:
- one gateway course (Behavioral Neuroscience BMC PSYC 218, Biological Psychology HC PSYC 217, or Introduction to Neuroscience BMC BIO 202), plus five additional courses. The five courses must sample from three different disciplines and at least one course must be at the 300-level or higher. Additional information for the minor is listed on the Psychology Department’s website.

Minor in Computational Methods

Students majoring in psychology can minor in computational methods. The minor consists of one gateway course (Introduction to Computer Science, CS 110 or CS 205), a course in data structures (CS 206) and discreet mathematics (CS 231), plus three additional courses. Additional information for the minor is listed on the Computer Science Department’s website.

Minor in Child and Family Studies

Students majoring in psychology can minor in Child and Family Studies. The minor comprises six courses: one gateway course (Developmental Psychology PSYC 206, Educational Psychology PSYC 203, Critical Issues in Education EDUC 200, or Study of Gender in Society SOCL 201), plus five additional courses, at least two of which must be outside of the major department and at least one of which must be at the 300 level. Additional information for the minor is listed on the Child and Family Studies’s website.

COURSES

PSYC B101 Experimental Psychology

Both PSYC 101 and 102 present psychology as a natural science and provide a survey of methods, facts, and principles relating to basic psychological processes. Topics covered in 101 include neural bases of behavior, learning and motivation, and psychosocial development and abnormal psychology. Topics covered in 102 include human cognition, cognitive development, individual differences, and social psychology. Lecture three hours and laboratory four hours a week (for both 101 and 102).

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B102 Experimental Psychology

Both PSYC 101 and 102 present psychology as a natural science and provide a survey of methods, facts, and principles relating to basic psychological processes. Topics covered in 101 include neural bases of behavior, learning and motivation, and psychosocial development and abnormal psychology. Topics covered in 102 include human cognition, cognitive development, individual differences, and social psychology. Lecture three hours and laboratory four hours a week (for both 101 and 102).
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B105 Introductory Psychology

How do biological predispositions, life experiences, culture, contribute to individual differences in human and animal behavior? This biopsychosocial theme will be examined by studying both “normal” and “abnormal” behaviors in domains such as perception, cognition, learning, motivation, emotion, and social interaction thereby providing an overview of psychology’s many areas of inquiry. Students will select one two-hour lab meeting per week.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Quantitative Readiness Required (QR);
Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thomas,E., Rescorla,L.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B120 Focus: Psychology of Terrorism

Overview of the psychology of terrorism. Cases include Al Qaeda, People’s Will, and Weather Underground. This is a half semester (quarter) course.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): McCauley,C.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B125 Focus: Psychology of Genocide

Introduction to the psychology of genocide, including perpetrators, leaders, and sympathizers. Cases include Holocaust, Rwanda, and Cambodia. This is a half semester (quarter) course.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): McCauley,C.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B160 Focus: Psychology of Negotiations

Explores the psychology, art, and science of negotiations. The core of the course is a series of seven simulations designed to allow students to experiment with negotiation techniques. Debriefings and discussions of negotiation theory and behavioral research complement the simulations. Special consideration will be given to the effects of gender. This is a half-semester, half-credit course.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 0.5
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PSYC B201 Learning/Behavior Analysis

This course covers the basic principles of behavior, and their application to the understanding of the human condition. Topics include the distinction between closed-loop (selection by consequences) and open-loop (elicitation and adjunctive behavior) relations, the distinction between contingency-shaped behavior and behavior under instructional control, discrimination and concept formation, choice, functional analysis of verbal behavior and awareness and problem solving. Behavior Analysis is presented as a distinct research methodology with a distinct language, as well as a distinct theoretical approach within psychology.
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Neuman,P.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B203 Educational Psychology

Topics in the psychology of human cognitive, social, and affective behavior are examined and related to educational practice. Issues covered include learning theories, memory, attention, thinking, motivation, social/emotional issues in adolescence, and assessment/learning disabilities. This course provides a Praxis Level I opportunity. Classroom observation is required.
Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105)
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Cassidy,K.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B205 Experimental Methods and Statistics

An introduction to experimental design, general research methodology, and the analysis and interpretation of data. Emphasis will be placed on issues involved with conducting psychological research. Topics include descriptive and inferential statistics, experimental design and validity, analysis of variance, and correlation and regression. Each statistical method will also be executed using computers. Lecture three hours, laboratory 90 minutes a week.
Requirement(s): Division I or Quantitative Approach: Quantitative Methods (QM); Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thapar,A.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B206 Developmental Psychology

A topical survey of psychological development from infancy through adolescence, focusing on the interaction of personal and environmental factors in the ontogeny of perception, language, cognition, and social interactions within the family and with peers. Topics include developmental theories; infant perception; attachment; language development; theory of mind; memory development; peer relations, schools and the family as contexts of development; and identity and the adolescent transition. Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105).

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B208 Social Psychology
A survey of theories and data in the study of human social behavior. Special attention to methodological issues of general importance in the conduct and evaluation of research with humans. Topics include group dynamics (conformity, leadership, encounter groups, crowd behavior, intergroup conflict); attitude change (consistency theories, attitudes and behavior, mass media persuasion); and person perception (stereotyping, essentializing, moral judgment). Participation in a research project is required.

Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105) or the permission of the instructor

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): McCauley,C.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B209 Abnormal Psychology
This course will cover the main psychological disorders manifested by individuals as they develop across the life span. The semester will begin with an historical overview of how psychopathology has been conceptualized and treated across many centuries of Western history. The course will then review the assumptions of the major models which have been formulated to explain psychopathology: the biological, the psychodynamic, the behavioral, and the cognitive. We will begin with childhood and adolescent disorders and then cover the main disorders of adults. Among the disorders covered will be: attention deficit disorder, anorexia/bulimia, conduct disorder/antisocial personality, borderline personality disorder, anxiety disorders, psychophysiological disorders, substance abuse, depression, and schizophrenia. For each disorder, we will explore issues of classification, theories of etiology, risk and prevention factors, research on prognosis, and studies of treatment. Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105).

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Environmental Studies; Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rescorla,L.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B212 Human Cognition
This course deals with the scientific study of human cognition. Topics include perception, pattern recognition, attention, memory, visual imagery, language, reasoning, decision making, and problem solving. Historical as well as contemporary perspectives will be discussed, and data from cognitive psychology, cognitive neuroscience, and computational modeling will be reviewed. The laboratory consists of experiments related to these topics. Lecture three hours, laboratory 90 minutes a week. Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105).

Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thapar,A.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B214 Applied Behavior Analysis
This course covers the basic principles of behavior and their relevance and application to clinical problems. Applied Behavior Analysis is an empirically-based treatment approach focusing less on treatment techniques and more on treatment evaluation. The course covers the techniques used (data gathering and analysis) to determine the effectiveness of treatments while in progress. To do this, examples of human problems may include eating disorders, anxiety disorders, addictive behavior, autistic behavior, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and oppositional/conduct disorder.

Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Scientific Investigation (SI)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Neuman,P.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B218 Behavioral Neuroscience
An interdisciplinary course on the neurobiological bases of experience and behavior, emphasizing the contribution of the various neurosciences to the understanding of basic problems of psychology. An introduction to the fundamentals of neuroanatomy, neurophysiology, and neurochemistry with an emphasis upon synaptic transmission; followed by the application of these principles to an analysis of sensory processes and perception, emotion, motivation, learning, and cognition. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105).

Requirement(s): Division II: Natural Science
Counts toward: Neuroscience
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thomas,E.
(Fall 2012)
PSYC B224 Cross-Cultural Psychology
Explores human behavior as a product of cultural context. Why are some aspects of human behavior the same across cultures, while others differ? Topics include the relationships between culture and development, cognition, the self, and social behaviors. Discussions include implications of cross-cultural psychology for psychological theory and applications.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Approach: Cross-Cultural Analysis (CC)
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B240 Evolution of Human Nature
Explores human nature as a product of evolutionary processes. The course will begin by introducing the evolutionary perspective and the roles of sex and mating strategies within the context of the animal kingdom. Topics will include the evolutionary origins of altruism, social structures, language, domestic and intergroup violence, and religion.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B250 Autism Spectrum Disorders
Focuses on theory of and research on Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD). Topics include the history of autism; classification and diagnosis; epidemiology and etiology; major theories; investigations of sensory and motor atypicalities, early social communicative skills, affective, cognitive, symbolic and social factors; the neuropsychology of ASD; and current approaches to intervention. Prerequisite: Introductory Psychology (PSYC 105).
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Wozniak,R.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B256 Culture and Development
This course focuses on culture as a context for child development and family life and on the enculturation process. Sample topics include infant care among Mayans, socialization in Japan, parent investment value in West Africa, sibling caregivers in Polynesia, apprenticeship among the Zinacantecs, and peer groups among Colombian street children. Enrollment Limit: 16
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B260 The Psychology of Mindfulness
This course focuses on psychological theory and research on mindfulness and meditative practices. Readings and discussion will introduce students to modern conceptualizations and implementation of mindfulness practices that have arisen in the West. Students will be encouraged to engage in mindfulness activities as part of their involvement in this 360.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B301 Advanced Research Methods
This course focuses on psychology research and design methodology. An important purpose of the course is to help students with their undergraduate thesis research. Topics include: internal and external validity, reliability, strengths and weaknesses of various methods (survey, case, observational, and experimental), data coding, levels of measurement, research ethics, and data analysis.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Schulz,M.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B308 Adult Development and Aging
The course explores the biological, psychological, and social aspects of aging into middle and late adulthood. Topics include: psychological and social developmental challenges; core biological changes; research methodology; demands and impact on care givers and families; common psychopathology; social welfare policies and programs; and political, social, and academic discourse on aging in the 21st century. Different aging experiences by race, ethnicity, gender, class, culture, and sexual orientation are considered. Prerequisite: junior, senior or graduate status and any 200-level survey course.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Nath,S.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B310 Advanced Developmental Psychology
This course details theory and research relating to the development of children and adolescents with family, school, and cultural contexts. We examine topics including (but not limited to): developmental theory, infant perception, language, attachment, self-awareness, social cognition, symbolic thought, memory, parent-child relations, peer relations, and gender issues. Prerequisite: PSYC 206 or permission of the instructor.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B312 History of Modern American Psychology
An examination of major 20th-century trends in American psychology and their 18th- and 19th-century social and intellectual roots. Topics include physiological and philosophical origins of scientific psychology; growth of American developmental, comparative, social, and clinical psychology; and the cognitive revolution.
PSYC B322 Culture and Development
This course focuses on development and enculturation within nested sets of interacting contexts (e.g. family, village, classroom/work group, peer group, culture). Topics include the nature of culture, human narrativity, acquisition of multiple literacies, and the way in which developing mind, multiple contexts, cultures, narrativity, and literacies help forge identities. Prerequisites: PSYC 105 and PSYC 206, or Permission of the Instructor
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Wozniak,R.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B325 Judgment and Decision-Making
This course will explore the psychology of reasoning and decision-making processes in depth. We will examine affective, cognitive, and motivational processes, as well as recent research in neuroscience. Among other topics, we will discuss notions of rationality and irrationality, accuracy, heuristics, biases, metacognition, evaluation, risk perception, and moral judgment. Prerequisite: PSYC B212 and PSYC B205 or permission of instructor.
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B326 From Channels to Behavior
Introduces the principles, research approaches, and methodologies of cellular and behavioral neuroscience.

PSYC B327 Neuroscience and Natural and Social Behavior
This course focuses on human development and behavior in the context of the nervous system. We will begin with a review of the general principles of neuroscience, including circuitry and development, and consider various topics in children's development and behavior from this vantage point. Prerequisite: PSYC 105 and PSYC 206, or permission of instructor
Requirement(s): Division I: Social Science
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Egan Brad,L.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B328 Developmental Cognitive Disorders
This course uses a developmental and neuropsychological framework to study major... development cognitive disorders manifested by children and adolescents, such as language delay/impairment, specific reading disability, math disability, nonverbal learning disability, intellectual disability, executive function disorder, autism, and traumatic brain injury. Cognitive disorders are viewed in the context of the normal development of language, memory, attention, reading, quantitative abilities, and executive functions. Students enrolled in the course will learn about the assessment, classification, outcome, remediation, and education of the major cognitive disorders manifested by children and adolescents. Students will participate in a course-related Praxis placement approximately 3 - 4 hours a week.

Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Neuroscience; Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rescorla,L.

PSYC B351 Developmental Psychopathology
This course will examine emotional and behavioral disorders of children and adolescents, including autism, attention deficit disorder, conduct disorder, phobias, obsessive-compulsive disorder, depression, anorexia, and schizophrenia. Major topics covered will include: contrasting models of psychopathology; empirical and categorical approaches to assessment and diagnosis; outcome of childhood disorders; risk, resilience, and prevention; and therapeutic approaches and their efficacy. Prerequisite: PSYC 206 or 209.
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies; Neuroscience
Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B352 Advanced Topics in Developmental Psychology
This is a topics course. Topics vary. Prerequisite: PSYC 206 or the consent of the instructor.
Requirement(s): Division II with Lab
Counts toward: Child and Family Studies
Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B358 Political Psychology of Group Identification
This seminar will explore the common interests of psychologists and political scientists in the phenomena of group identification. The focus will be identification with ethnic and national groups, with special attention to the ways in which research on small-group dynamics can help us understand identification and conflict for these larger groups. The seminar will review major theories of group identity and examine several historical or current cases of successful and unsuccessful development of national identity. Prerequisite: PSYC 208 or two semesters of political science.
Counts toward: Peace and Conflict Studies
Crosslisting(s): POLS-B358
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): McCauley,C., Ross,M.

(Spring 2013)

PSYC B395 Psychopharmacology
A study of the role of drugs in understanding basic brain-behavior relations. Topics include the pharmacological basis of motivation and emotion; pharmacological models of psychopathology; the use of drugs in the treatment of psychiatric disorders such as anxiety, depression, and psychosis; and the psychology and pharmacology of drug addiction. Prerequisite: PSYC 218.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thomas,E.

(Spring 2013)

PSYC B396 Topics in Neuroscience
A seminar course dealing with current issues in neuroscience. It provides advanced students minoring in neuroscience with an opportunity to read and discuss in depth seminal papers that represent emerging thought in the field. In addition, students are expected to make presentations of their own research. Required for those with the minor.
Crosslisting(s): BIOL-B396
Units: 1.0

(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B399 Senior Seminar
This seminar is intended to serve as a capstone experience for senior psychology majors who have opted not to do a senior thesis. The focus of the seminar will be on analyzing the nature of public discourse (coverage in newspapers, magazines, on the internet) on a variety of major issues, identifying material in the psychological research literature relating to these issues, and to the extent possible relating the public discourse to the research.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Rescorla,L.

(Spring 2013)

PSYC B401 Supervised Research in Neuroscience
Laboratory or field research on a wide variety of topics. Students should consult with faculty members to determine their topic and faculty supervisor, early in the semester prior to when they will begin.
Units: 0.5, 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PSYC B403 Supervised Research
Laboratory or field research on a wide variety of topics. Students should consult with faculty members to determine their topic and faculty supervisor, early in the semester prior to when they will begin.
PSYC B425 Praxis III
Counts toward: Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)

PSYC B500 Statistical Methods
Designed to help students develop the critical skills necessary to evaluate the research of others and to design and conduct research of their own. Students are presumed to have had exposure to statistics as undergraduates, but basic ideas and methods are reviewed quickly at the beginning of the semester. Topics covered in the course include simple and multiple correlation and regression, t-tests, nonparametric tests, analyses of variance, and methods of analyzing categorical data. The course stresses major theoretical concepts such as hypothesis-testing, uses of inferential methods, research design validity, and power. Students gain experience analyzing data with SPSS and presenting the results of their analyses in APA-style.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B501 Research Methods
This course deals with psychology research and design methodology. An important purpose of this course is to help graduate students begin their predissertation research projects. Topics include: internal and external validity, reliability, characteristics of various methods (survey, case, observational, and experimental), data coding, levels of measurement, research ethics, and publication. Open only to 1st year graduate students in the Clinical-Developmental psychology graduate program.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B502 Multivariate Statistics
This course is designed to introduce students to advanced statistical techniques that are becoming increasingly important in developmental, clinical and school psychology research. We focus on understanding the advantages and limitations of common multivariate analytic techniques that permit simultaneous prediction of multiple outcomes. Emphasis is placed on helping students critically evaluate applications of these techniques in the literature and the utility of applying these techniques to their own work. Topics covered include path modeling, ways of analyzing data collected over multiple points in time (e.g., a growth curve capturing change in a developmental variable during childhood), confirmatory factor analysis, and measurement models. Students use existing data sets to gain experience with statistical software that can be used for multivariate analyses.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B508 Social Psychology
Provides an introduction to basic social psychological theories and research. Topics covered include: group dynamics, stereotypes and group conflict, attitude measurement, and attitudes and behavior. An emphasis is placed on research methods in the study of social psychology.
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): McCauley, C.
(Fall 2012)

PSYC B510 Developmental Psychology
This course provides an overview of theory and research relating to the development of children and adolescents within family, school, and cultural contexts and thus serves as a foundation for future work in the department. Following an overview of major developmental theories, we examine topics such as infant perception, infant sociality, prelinguistic communication, attachment, language development, the development of self awareness, early social cognition and theory of mind, conceptual change, memory and learning, parent-child relations, peer relations and gender issues, self-concept and self-perception, moral development, logical thinking, and identity formation. Topics are examined within a multicultural, ecological, and developmental framework.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B512 Human Cognition
This course explores the cognitive bases of behavior, emphasizing information processing approaches. Major areas of cognitive psychology are surveyed. These areas include perception, attention, memory, language, and thinking and decision making.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B529 Cognitive/Neuropsychology
This course explores the cognitive bases of behavior, emphasizing an information processing approach. The major areas of cognitive psychology are surveyed. These areas include perception, attention, memory, language, and thinking and decision making. The application of basic knowledge in these areas to developmental and clinical psychology is also explored. In addition, the course deals with the basics of human neuropsychology, providing an introduction to disorders of language, spatial processing, memory, emotion, and planning/attention as a result of brain injury.
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B540 Intro to Psychological Assmt: Intelligence and Perception
This course introduces current approaches to identifying the educational needs of children and adolescents through psychological assessment. The major topics include: theoretical conceptualizations of intelligence and learning disabilities/differences within a developmental framework, psychometric concepts as they apply directly to the assessment process, and the use of norm-referenced measures of cognition and informational processing in concert with observations, clinical interviews, and other qualitative information about the strengths and needs of students. Additional topics include issues of culture in assessment, differential validity of standardized tests, the role of dynamic assessment approaches, and multiple perspectives on current classification systems. Assignments entail practice in the administration, scoring, interpretation, and integration of selected cognitive and information processing measures, as well as the communication of findings and their implications.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B541 Psychoeducational and Personality Assessment
This course serves as a continuation of Psych 540 with emphasis on the assessment of academic skill development, social/emotional functioning, and behavioral functioning with the purpose of aiding in the development of appropriate remedial strategies and clinical recommendations. This course will include an overview of the reading process, and the acquisition of math and writing skills. Students will be introduced to standardized measures of academic assessment as well as informal, curriculum-based, and response to interventions methods of assessment of learning disabilities/differences. Students will also be exposed to a variety of diagnostic and assessment tools utilized for the assessment of social/emotional and behavioral issues including rating scales, observations, interviews, questionnaires, and projective measures. This course will also introduce the students to current approaches in the assessment and/or diagnosis of several specific disorders including Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder, Autism Spectrum Disorder, and Nonverbal Learning Disabilities. Interpretation and integration of information will be emphasized throughout. Assignments include weekly readings, practice psycho-educational reports, and a final take-home exam.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B551 Developmental Psychopathology
An examination of research and theory addressing the origins, course, and consequences of maladaptive functioning in children, adolescents, and families. Major forms of childhood and adolescent psychopathology (e.g., antisocial behavior, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and depression) are examined and family-based risk factors for psychopathology, such as parenting quality and marital conflict, are explored. An important focus of the course is on the identification of risk and protective factors for psychopathology. Topics covered include contrasting models of psychopathology; assessment and classification of childhood disorders; models of individual and family risk; social and cultural factors influencing the development of psychopathology; and therapeutic efforts to prevent or ameliorate disorders.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B561 Intro. to Psychotherapy
This course provides an introduction to the principles and practice of individual psychotherapy with an emphasis on working with children and adolescents. Students are encouraged to think critically about the nature and process of psychotherapy and to apply creatively their knowledge and skills to the task of helping those in need. Emphasis is placed on formulating therapeutic goals and conceptualizing therapeutic change. The course provides an overview of dominant conceptualizations of therapy, especially psychodynamic and cognitive/behavioral approaches. Therapeutic techniques and challenges in work with children and adolescents are presented. Concurrent with the course, students have an introductory therapy experience in a school or clinic in which they conduct psychotherapy with one or two clients and receive supervision.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B595 Psychopharmacology
A study of the role of drugs in understanding basic brain-behavior relations. Topics include the pharmacological basis of motivation and emotion; pharmacological models of psychopathology; the use of drugs in the treatment of psychiatric disorders such as anxiety, depression, and psychosis; and the psychology and pharmacology of drug addiction. Prerequisite: PSYC 218.

Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Thomas,E.
(Spring 2013)

PSYC B612 Historical Issues in Clinical Developmental Psychology
Familiarizes students with 20th century developments in clinical psychology and with the 18th and 19th century social and intellectual trends from which they emerged. Topics include: Mesmerism and the rise of dynamic psychiatry in Europe and America; changing patterns in the institutionalization of the insane; the Bost Group (James, Prince, Sidis) and the development of abnormal psychology and psychotherapy; the American reception of psychoanalysis; the Mental Hygiene and Child Guidance movements; the growth of psychometrics;
PSYC B690 Ethical Issues in Psychology Seminar
This course deals with ethical issues in the science and practice of psychology. Students give class presentations and lead discussions about the APA, PA Licensing Board, and NASP Ethics codes, and about professional issues related to academic and applied psychology. It is taught in the year in which students are engaged in their assessment practicum (usually their third year in the program). Specific ethical issues discussed include competence, informed consent, confidentiality, child abuse reporting, and the duty to warn, with particular emphasis on situations likely to arise in the provision of psychological services to children and families. (Discussion of ethical conduct of research and practice also occurs in the weekly Research Brown Bag lunch meeting and in the Research Methods course, as well as in meetings between individual students and their research advisers). (Roberts,C)
Unit: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

PSYC B701 Supervised Work
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
RELIGION

Students may complete a major in Religion at Haverford College

Faculty

Tracey Hucks, Associate Professor
Terrence Johnson, Assistant Professor
Kenneth Koltun-Fromm, Professor
Naomi Koltun-Fromm, Associate Professor
Anne M. McGuire, Associate Professor
Travis Zadeh, Assistant Professor

The Department of Religion at Haverford views religion as a central aspect of human culture and social life. Religions propose interpretations of reality and shape very particular forms of life. In so doing, they make use of many aspects of human culture, including art, architecture, music, literature, science and philosophy—as well as countless forms of popular culture and daily behavior. Consequently, the fullest and most rewarding study of religion is interdisciplinary in character, drawing upon approaches and methods from disciplines such as anthropoloogy, comparative literature and literary theory, gender theory, history, philosophy, psychology, political science and sociology.

A central goal of the department is to enable students to become critically informed, independent and creative interpreters of some of the religious movements, sacred texts, ideas and practices that have decisively shaped human experience. They are encouraged to engage in the breadth of scholarship in the study of religion as well as to develop skills in the critical analysis of the texts, images, beliefs and performances of various religious traditions, including Judaism, Christianity, Islam and Buddhism. Students especially interested in Asian religions may work out a program of study in conjunction with the East Asian Studies department at Haverford and Bryn Mawr and with the Religion department at Swarthmore. Like other liberal arts majors, the religion major is meant to prepare students for a broad array of vocational possibilities. Religion majors typically find careers in law, public service (including both religious and secular organizations), medicine, business, ministry and education. Religion majors have also pursued advanced graduate degrees in anthropology, history, political science, biology, Near Eastern studies and religious studies.

For more information, see the department Web site at (http://www.haverford.edu/relg/index.html).

Major Requirements

1. Six courses within one of the department’s three areas of concentration:
   a) Religious Traditions in Cultural Context. The study of religious traditions and the textual, historical, sociological and cultural contexts in which they develop. Critical analysis of formative texts and issues that advance our notions of religious identities, origins and ideas.
   b) Religion, Literature and Representation. The study of religion in relation to literary expressions and other forms of representation, such as performance, music, film and the plastic arts.
   c) Religion, Ethics and Society. The exploration of larger social issues such as race, gender and identity as they relate to religion and religious traditions. Examines how moral principles, cultural values and ethical conduct help to shape human societies.

   These six courses within the area of concentration must include the department seminar in the major’s area of concentration: Religion 301 for Area A; Religion 303 for Area B; Religion 305 for Area C.
   Where appropriate and relevant to the major’s program, up to three courses for the major may be drawn from outside the field of religion, subject to departmental approval.

2. Junior Colloquium: An informal required gathering of the Junior majors once each semester. Students should complete a worksheet in advance in consultation with their major adviser and bring copies of the completed worksheet to the meeting.

4. At least four additional half-year courses drawn from outside the major’s area of concentration.

5. At least six of each major’s 11 courses must be taken in the Haverford religion department. Students planning to study abroad should construct their programs in advance with the department. Students seeking religion credit for abroad courses should write a formal petition to the department upon their return and submit all relevant course materials. Petitioned courses should be included within the student’s designated area of concentration.

6. In some rare cases, students may petition the department for exceptions to the major requirements. Such petitions must be presented to the department for approval in advance.

7. Final evaluation of the major program will consist of written work, including a thesis, and an oral examination completed in the context of the Senior Seminar, Religion 399b.
Requirements for Honors

Honors and High Honors in religion are awarded on the basis of the quality of work in the major and in the Senior Thesis (399b).

INTRODUCTORY COURSES

RELG H101 Introduction to the Study of Religion
An introduction to the study of religion from three perspectives: overviews of several religions with classroom discussion of primary sources; cross-cultural features common to many religions; theories of religion and approaches to its study and interpretation. Typically offered in alternate years.
Staff

RELG H108 Vocabularies of Islam
Introduction to the foundational concepts of Islam and the diverse ways in which Muslims understand and practice their religion. Topics include scripture, prophethood, law, ritual, theology, mysticism and art. J.Velji

RELG H110 Sacred Texts and Religious Traditions
An introduction to Religion through the close reading of selected sacred texts of various religious traditions in their historical, literary, philosophical and religious contexts.
K. Koltun-Fromm

RELG H118 Hebrew Bible: Literary Text and Historical Context
The Hebrew Bible, which is fundamental to both Judaism and Christianity, poses several challenges to modern readers. Who wrote it, when and why? What was its significance then and now? How does one study the Bible from an academic point of view? Using literary, historical, theological and archeological interpretive tools, this course will address these questions and introduce students to academic biblical studies.
N.Koltun-Fromm

RELG H120 Jewish Thought and Identity
An introduction to selected thinkers in Jewish history who are both critical and constructive in their interpretations of Jewish texts and traditions. The course examines how readings of the Hebrew Bible generate normative claims about belief, commandment, tradition and identity. Readings may include the Hebrew Bible, Rashi, Maimonides, Spinoza, Heschel and Plaskow. Offered occasionally.
K.Koltun-Fromm

RELG H130 Material Religion in America
An introduction to various forms of religious material practices in America. We will examine how persons and communities interact with material objects and media to explore and express religious identity. Topics may include religion and sports, dance and ritual, food and dress, and the visual arts. Typically offered in alternate years.
K.Koltun-Fromm

RELG H132 Varieties of African American Religious Experience
This course will examine the history of religion in America as it spans several countries. Each week lectures, readings and discussions will explore the phenomenon of religion within American society. The goal is to introduce students to American religious diversity as well as its impact in the shaping of larger historical and social relationships within the United States. This study of American religion is not meant to be exhaustive and will cover select traditions each semester.

T. Hucks

RELG H137 Black Religion and Liberation Theology

An introduction to the theological & philosophical claims raised in Black Religion & Liberation Thought in 20th C America. In particular, the course will examine the multiple meanings of liberation within black religion, the place of religion in African American struggles against racism, sexism and class exploitation and the role of religion in shaping the moral and political imaginations of African Americans.

N. Koltun-Fromm

RELG H200 Religion and Liberalism

An examination of political liberalism in debates on religion, democracy and tradition. Particular attention is given to the relationship between liberal and theological responses to debates on individual rights and the common good.

T. Johnson

RELG H201 Introduction to Buddhism

H. Glassman

RELG H202 The End of the World as We Know It

Why are people always predicting the coming endtime? This course will explore the genre of apocalypse, looking for common themes that characterize this form of literature. Our primary source readings will be drawn from the Bible and non-canonical documents from the early Jewish and Christian traditions. We will use an analytical perspective to explore the social functions of apocalyptic, and ask why this form has been so persistent and influential.

J. Velji

RELG H203 The Hebrew Bible and its Interpretations

This course will critically study select Hebrew Biblical passages (in translation) as well as Jewish and Christian Biblical commentaries in order to better understand how Hebrew Biblical texts have been read, interpreted and explained by ancient and modern readers alike. Students will also learn to read the texts critically and begin to form their own understandings of them. Typically offered in alternate years.

N. Koltun-Fromm

RELG H206 History and Literature of Early Christianity

The history, literature and theology of Christianity from the end of the New Testament period to the time of Constantine. Typically offered in alternate years.

A. McGuire

RELG H212 Jerusalem: City, History and Representation

An examination of the history of Jerusalem as well as a study of Jerusalem as religious symbol and how the two interact over the centuries. Readings from ancient, medieval, modern and contemporary sources as well as material culture and art. Prerequisite: None.

N. Koltun-Fromm

RELG H214 Prophetic Imaginations in the American Tradition

An examination of prophecy as a form of social criticism in colonial and contemporary America. The course identifies the prophetic tradition as an extension of the American Jeremiad. Particular attention is given to Reinhold Niebuhr and Martin Luther King Jr.

T. Johnson

RELG H215 The Letters of Paul

Close reading of the thirteen letters attributed to the apostle Paul and critical examination of the place of Paul in the development of early Christianity.

A. McGuire

RELG H216 Images of Jesus

Critical examination of the varied representations of Jesus from the beginnings of Christianity through contemporary culture. The course will focus primarily on literary sources (canonical and non-canonical gospels, prayers, stories, poems, novels), but artistic, theological, academic and cinematic images of Jesus will also be considered.

A. McGuire

RELG H218 The Divine Guide: an Introduction to Shi’ism

An exploration of the religious, social and political dimensions of Shi’i Islam, from its early formation until the modern period. Topics include: authority and guidance; theology and jurisprudence; messianism and eschatology; scriptural exegesis; ritual and performance; gender; intersections between religion and politics.
Prerequisite: None.
T.Zadeh

RELG H221 Women and Gender in Early Christianity
An examination of the representations of women and gender in early Christian texts and their significance for contemporary Christianity. Topics include interpretations of Genesis 1-3, images of women and sexuality in early Christian literature, and the roles of women in various Christian communities. Typically offered in alternate years.
A. McGuire

RELG H222 Gnosticism
The phenomenon of Gnosticism examined through close reading of primary sources, including the recently discovered texts of Nag Hammadi. Topics include the relation of Gnosticism to Greek, Jewish and Christian thought; the variety of Gnostic schools and sects; gender imagery, mythology and other issues in the interpretation of Gnostic texts. Typically offered in alternate years.
A. McGuire

RELG H231 Religious Themes in African American Literature
This course will explore African American literary texts as a basis for religious inquiry. Throughout the course we will examine African American novelists and literary scholars using their works as a way of understanding black religious traditions and engaging important themes in the study of religion. Authors discussed may include Zora Neale Hurston, James Baldwin, Ishmael Reed, Maryse Conde and others.
T. Hucks

RELG H236 Race, Culture, Representation: Blacks and Jews in America
This course offers a constructive, interdisciplinary vision of the ways American Blacks and Jews represent, articulate, enact and perform their religious and cultural identities. Using primary, secondary, visual and material resources, the course will explore an array of themes that speak to the religious and social inter-sectionality of the Black and Jewish experience in America.
T. Hucks/K. Koltun-Fromm/T. Johnson

RELG H240 History and Principles of Quakerism
E. Lapsansky

RELG H242 Topics in Religion and Intellectual History: The Religious Writings of James Baldwin
Typically offered in alternate years.
T. Hucks

RELG H245 Slavery, Catechism, and Plantation
Missions in Antebellum America
This course will examine the influence of forms of Islam on the African American community throughout its history. Though the course will begin with the intra-African slave trade and the antebellum period, the bulk of the course will focus on 20th Century persons and events, particularly the Nation of Islam, its predecessors and successors.

ROMANCE LANGUAGES

Students may complete a major in Romance Languages.

Coordinators

Grace Armstrong, Chair and Eunice M. Schenck 1907
Professor of French, Director of Middle Eastern Languages, and Co-Director of International Studies
Maria Christina Quintero, Professor of Spanish and Director of Film Studies
Roberta Ricci, Chair and Associate Professor of Italian and Director of Film Studies
Enrique Sacerio-Gari, Dorothy Nepper Marshall
Professor of Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies

The Departments of French and Francophone Studies, Italian, and Spanish cooperate in offering a major in Romance Languages that requires advanced work in at least two romance languages and literatures. Additional work in a third language and literature is suggested.

Major Requirements

The requirements for the major are a minimum of nine courses, including the Senior Conference or Senior Essay, described below, in the first language and literature and six courses in the second language and literature, including the Senior Conference in French (offered at Haverford in 2012-13; see the Tri-Co Course Guide).

Students should consult with their advisers no later than their sophomore year in order to select courses in the various departments that complement each other.

Haverford students intending to major in Romance Languages must have their major work plan approved by a Bryn Mawr College adviser.

The following sequence of courses is recommended when the various languages are chosen for primary and secondary concentration, respectively (see the departmental listings for course descriptions).

COURSES

First Language and Literature

French

FREN 101-102 or 101-105; or 005-102 or 005-105. Four literature courses at the 200 level. FREN 260 (BMC) or 212 (HC). Two courses at the 300 level.

Italian

ITAL 101, 102. Four courses at the 200 level. Three courses at the 300 level.

Spanish

SPAN 200. SPAN 202. Four courses at the 200 level. Two courses at the 300 level.

Second Language and Literature

French

FREN 101-102 or 101-105; or 005-102 or 005-105. Two literature courses at the 200 level. FREN 260 (BMC) or 212 (HC). One course at the 300 level.

Italian

ITAL 101, 102. Two literature courses at the 200 level. Two literature courses at the 300 level.

Spanish

SPAN 200 SPAN 202. Two courses at the 200 level. Two courses at the 300 level.

In addition to the coursework described above, when the first language and literature is Spanish, majors in Romance Languages must enroll in SPAN 398 (Senior Seminar)* When French is chosen as either the first or second language, students must take the first semester Senior Conference in French (FREN 398) in addition to the coursework described above. When Italian is chosen, students must take ITAL 399, offered in consultation with the department, in addition to the coursework described above in order to receive honors. An oral examination (following the current model in the various departments) may be given in one or both of the two languages, according to the student's preference, and students follow the practice of their principal language as to written examination or thesis.
Please note that 398 does not count as one of the two required 300-level courses.

Interdepartmental courses at the 200 or 300 level are offered from time to time by the cooperating departments.
These courses are conducted in English on such comparative Romance topics as epic, romanticism, or literary vanguard movements of the 20th century. Students should be able to read texts in two of the languages in the original.

* In order to receive honors, students whose first language is Spanish are required to write a senior essay (SPAN 399).

 For students whose first language is French, honors are awarded on the basis of performance in Senior Conference and on a successfully completed thesis or senior essay.

 In order to receive honors, students whose first language is Italian are required to write a senior essay (ITAL 399)
Students may complete a major or minor in Russian.

The Russian major is a multidisciplinary program designed to provide students with a broad understanding of Russian culture and the Russophone world. The major places a strong emphasis on the development of functional proficiency in the Russian language. Language study is combined with a specific area of concentration to be selected from the fields of Russian literature, history, economics, language/linguistics, or area studies.

College Foreign Language Requirement

The College’s foreign language requirement may be satisfied by completing RUSS 001 and 002 with an average grade of at least 2.0 or with a grade of 2.0 or better in RUSS 002.

Major Requirements

A total of 10 courses is required to complete the major: two in Russian language at the 200 level or above; four in the area of concentration, two at the 200 level and two at the 300 level or above (for the concentration in area studies, the four courses must be in four different fields); three in Russian fields outside the area of concentration; and either RUSS 398, Senior Essay, or RUSS 399, Senior Conference.

Majors are encouraged to pursue advanced language study in Russia in summer, semester, or year-long academic programs. Majors may also take advantage of intensive immersion language courses offered during the summer by the Bryn Mawr Russian Language Institute. As part of the requirement for RUSS 398/399, all Russian majors take senior comprehensive examinations that cover the area of concentration and Russian language competence.

Honors

All Russian majors are considered for departmental honors at the end of their senior year. The awarding of honors is based on a student’s overall academic record and all work done in the major.

Minor Requirements

Students wishing to minor in Russian must complete six units at the 100 level or above, two of which must be in the Russian language.

SOCIOLGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Sociology.

Faculty

Sylvie Honig, Lecturer

David Karen, Professor and Interim Chair (semester II)

Erika Marquez, Postdoctoral Fellow

Mary Osirim, Dean of Graduate Studies and Professor of Sociology

Ayumi Takenaka, Associate Professor

Robert Washington, Professor and Interim Chair (semester I; on leave semester I)

Nathan Wright, Assistant Professor

The major in Sociology aims to provide understanding of the organization and functioning of modern society by analyzing its major institutions, social groups, and values, and their interrelations with culture and personality. To facilitate these analytical objectives, the department offers rigorous preparation in social theory and problem focused training in quantitative as well as qualitative methodologies.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the major are SOCL 102, 265, 302, 303, Senior Seminar (398), five additional courses in sociology (one of which may be at the 100 level and at least one of which must be at the 300 level), and two courses in an allied subject. Allied courses can be chosen from a list provided by the department. Some courses offered by the Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research (GSSWSR) may be eligible for major or minor credit in Sociology. However, no more than two courses from GSSWSR can count for the major or minor in Sociology.

After completing SOCL 303, in which she will write a research proposal during her junior year, the student may submit that proposal to the department for permission to write a senior thesis. If her proposal is accepted, she will enroll in the thesis-oriented senior seminar where she will focus on researching and writing her thesis.

Students who choose not to write a thesis will enroll in the non-thesis senior seminar, which will explore selected issues in a major substantive area of sociology—such as culture, social class, social conflict, power, or contemporary social theory. This seminar will require each of the enrolled students to write a term paper.

The Department of Sociology offers concentrations in gender and society, Asian American studies and African American studies. In pursuing these concentrations, majors should inquire about the possibility of coursework at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges and the University of Pennsylvania.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor are SOCL 102, 265, 302, and three additional courses within the department. Students may choose electives from courses offered at Haverford College. Bryn Mawr majors should consult their department about major credit for courses taken at other institutions.

Honors

Honors in Sociology are available to those students who have a grade point average in the major of 3.5 or higher and who write a senior thesis that is judged outstanding by the department. The thesis would be written under the direction of a Sociology faculty member. Students are required to submit a thesis proposal which must be approved by the department in the semester prior to writing the thesis. Students should have prior course work in the subject area in which they plan to write a thesis.

Concentrations Within the Sociology Major

GENDER AND SOCIETY

Three courses are required for this concentration—at least two of these courses must be in sociology. The remaining course can be in sociology or an allied social science field. Students who pursue this concentration are required to take at least one of the core courses in this area offered by the department: The Study of Gender in Society (SOCL 201) or Women in Contemporary Society: The Southern Hemisphere (SOCL 225). The department encourages students in this concentration to take courses that focus on the study of gender in both the Global North and the Global South. In addition to taking courses in this field at Bryn Mawr, students may also take courses towards this concentration in their study abroad programs or at Haverford, Swarthmore, and the University of Pennsylvania. Any course taken outside of the Bryn Mawr Department of Sociology must be approved by the department for concentration credit. Majors are urged to consult Mary Osirim about this concentration.

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDIES

Students pursuing this concentration are required to take Asian American Communities (SOCL 249), in addition to two other courses. One of them must be either Challenges and Dilemmas of Diversity (SOCL
SOCL B175 Environment and Society
Introduces the ideas, themes, and methodologies of the interdisciplinary field of environmental studies beginning with definitions: what is nature? What is environment? And how do people and their settlements fit into each? The course then moves to distinct disciplinary approaches in which scholarship can and does (and does not) inform our perceptions of the environment. Assignments introduce methodologies of environmental studies, requiring reading landscapes, working with census data and government reports, critically interpreting scientific data, and analyzing work of experts. SOCL B350 Movements for Social Justice
Throughout human history, powerless groups of people have organized social movements to improve their lives and their societies. Powerful groups and institutions have resisted these efforts in order to maintain their own privilege. Some periods of history have been more likely than others to spawn protest movements. What factors seem most likely to lead to social movements? What determines their success/failure? We will examine 20th-century social movements in the United States to answer these questions. Includes a film series.

Counts toward: Praxis Program
Units: 1.0
(Fall 2012, Spring 2013)
The Department of Spanish also cooperates with the Departments of French and Italian in the Romance Languages major. It also collaborates with the Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures Concentration (LALIPC).

College Foreign Language Requirement

Before the start of the senior year, each student must complete, with a grade of 2.0 or higher, two units of foreign language. Students may fulfill the requirement by completing two sequential semester-long courses in one language, either at the elementary level or, depending on the result of their language placement test, at the intermediate level. A student who is prepared for advanced work may complete the requirement instead with two advanced free-standing semester-long courses in the foreign language(s) in which she is proficient.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the Spanish major are SPAN 200 (formerly 110, Temas culturales), SPAN 202 (formerly 120, Análisis literario), four 200-level courses, three 300-level courses, and SPAN 398 (Senior Seminar). Two courses must be in Peninsular literature, and one should focus on pre-1700 literature. Students whose training includes advanced work may, with the permission of the department, be exempted from taking SPAN 200 and/or SPAN 202. SPAN 399 (Senior Essay) is optional for majors with a grade point average of 3.7 who want to graduate with honors, and may not be counted as one of the 300-level requirements. This major program prepares students appropriately for graduate study in Spanish.

Please note: the department offers some courses taught in English. In order to receive major and minor credit, students must do substantial reading and written work in Spanish. No more than two courses taught in English may be applied toward a major, and only one toward a minor.

Independent research (SPAN 403) is offered to students recommended by the department. The work consists of independent reading, conferences, and a long paper.

Honors

Departmental honors are awarded on the basis of a minimum grade point average of 3.7 in the major, the recommendation of the department and a senior essay (SPAN 399).

Minor Requirements

Requirements for a minor in Spanish are six courses in Spanish beyond Intermediate Spanish, at least one... of which must be at the 300 level. At least one course should be in Peninsular literature.

Concentration in Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures
The Department of Spanish participates with other departments in offering a concentration in Latin American, Latino, and Iberian Peoples and Cultures.

Teacher Certification
The department also participates in a teacher-certification program. For more information see the description of the Education Program.

SPAN B217 Narratives of Latinidad
This course explores how Latina/o writers fashion bicultural and transnational identities and narrate the intertwined histories of the U.S. and Latin America. We will focus on topics of shared concern among Latino groups such as imperialism and annexation, the affective experience of migration, race and gender stereotypes, the politics of Spanglish, and struggles for social justice. By analyzing novels, poetry, performance art, testimonial narratives, films, and essays, we will unpack the complexity of Latinidad in the Americas. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Counts toward: Africana Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures Crosslisting(s): ENGL-B217 Units: 1.0 Instructor(s): Harford Vargas, J. (Fall 2012)

SPAN B223 Género y modernidad en la narrativa del siglo XIX
A reading of 19th-century Spanish narrative by both men and women writers, to assess how they come together in configuring new ideas of female identity and its social domains, as the country is facing new challenges in its quest for modernity. Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities Approach: Inquiry into the Past (IP) Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures Units: 1.0 (Not Offered 2012-13)
SPAN B231 El cuento y novela corta en España
Traces the development of the novella and short story in Spain, from its origins in the Middle Ages to our time. The writers will include Pardo Bazán, Cervantes, Clarín, Don Juan Manuel, Matute, María de Zayas, and a number of contemporary writers such as Julián Marías and Soledad Puértolas. Our approach will include formal and thematic considerations, and attention will be given to social and historical contexts.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B237 The Dictator Novel in the Americas
This course examines representations of dictatorship in Latin American and Latina/o novels. We will explore the relationship between narrative form and absolute power by analyzing the literary techniques writers use to contest authoritarianism. We will compare dictator novels from the United States, the Caribbean, Central America, and the Southern Cone. Prerequisite: only for students wishing to take the course for major/minor credit in SPAN is SPAN B200/B202.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities

(Fall 2012)

SPAN B265 Escritoras españolas: entre tradición, renovación y migración
Fiction by women writers from Spain in the 20th and 21st century. Breaking the traditional female stereotypes during and after Franco’s dictatorship, the authors explore through their creative writing changing sociopolitical and cultural issues including regional identities and immigration. Topics of discussion include gender marginality, feminist studies and the portrayal of women in contemporary society.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Approach: Critical Interpretation (CI)
Counts toward: Gender and Sexuality Studies; Latin Amer/Latino/Iberian Peoples and Cultures
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B270 Literatura y delincuencia: explorando la novela picaresca
A study of the origins, development and transformation of the picaresque genre from its origins in 16th- and 17th-century Spain through the 21st century. Using texts, literature, painting, and film from Spain and Latin America, we will explore topics such as the construction of the (fictional) self, the poetics and politics of criminality, transgression in gender and class.
Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Crosslisting(s): COML-B271
Units: 1.0
Instructor(s): Gastanaga,J.
(Fall 2012)

SPAN B307 Cervantes
A study of themes, structure, and style of Cervantes’ masterpiece Don Quijote and its impact on world literature. In addition to a close reading of the text and a consideration of narrative theory, the course examines the impact of Don Quijote on the visual arts, music, film, and popular culture. Counts toward the Latin American, Latino and Iberian Peoples and Cultures Concentration. Prerequisite: Spanish 202 and another 200-level course.

Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B310 La condición pos-mortem: pos/modernidad periférica en la narrativa e historia actual mexicana
The figuration of “death” in Mexican literature and culture has served as a central metaphor for the critique of modernity and has become one of Mexico’s principle symbols of cultural identity. The counter revolutionary movements of the ’60s, however, initiated a series of post-mortem (after death) identity projects that served as aesthetic responses to Mexico’s considerable investment in modernity’s unfulfilled cultural, political and economic promises. This new post-mortem aesthetic has begun to reconceptualize the fictions of national progress by focusing on the corporeality of citizenship and migration. Prerequisites: one 200-level Spanish course or permission of the instructor.

Requirement(s): Division III: Humanities
Units: 1.0
(Not Offered 2012-13)

SPAN B311 Crimen y detectives en la narrativa hispánica contemporánea
An analysis of the rise of the hardboiled genre in contemporary Hispanic narrative and its contrast to classic detective fiction, as a context for understanding contemporary Spanish and Latin American culture. Discussion of pertinent theoretical implications and the social and political factors that contributed to the genre’s evolution and popularity.
