Study Abroad Programs by Language Designation

Types of Programs:

Immersion: Courses are taught strictly in the target language. The goal is for students to attain near native fluency. Students in immersion programs are typically language majors who have already completed at least 4 or 5 semesters of college level preparation in the language.

Semi-immersion: Students are required to take some courses in the target language along with some courses offered in English.

Language optional: All courses are taught in English but students are required to take a course on the language and culture of the host country.

Language neutral: The program is offered in a European Anglophone or European non-Anglophone country or non-European country where instruction is in English with no requirements to take language classes.
