The Child and Family Studies (CFS) minor is an interdisciplinary program with courses based in many departments (e.g., Anthropology, Education, English, Film Studies, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, Comparative Literature, and Social Work). The CFS minor provides a flexible but cohesive educational opportunity for undergraduate students interested in children, families, schools, and social-cultural contexts. Within this broad framework, different disciplines focus inquiry into the biological, familial, psychological, socioeconomic, political, cultural, and educational dimensions of child and family well-being and the varying life courses and life chances of individuals.

Students craft a pathway in the minor as they engage in course selection through ongoing discussions with the CFS Director. Sample pathways might include: political science/child and family law; sociology/educational policy; child and family mental health; depictions of children/families in literature and film; child and family public health issues; social work/child welfare; anthropology/cross-cultural child and family issues; gender issues affecting children and families; social justice/diversity issues affecting children and families; or economic factors affecting children and families.

Students may complete a Child and Family Studies minor as an adjunct to any major at Bryn Mawr, Haverford, or Swarthmore pending approval of the student’s coursework plan by the Director of Child and Family Studies, Leslie Rescorla.

Requirements for the Minor

The minor comprises six courses: one gateway course (PSYC 203 Educational Psychology, PSYC 206 Developmental Psychology, PSYC 211 Lifespan Development, EDUC 200 Community Learning Collaborative, or SOCL 201 Study of Gender in Society), plus five additional courses, at least four of which must be outside of the major department and at least one of which must be at the 300 (advanced) level. No more than two of the six courses may be double-counted with another major, minor, or other degree credential.

The minor also requires participation in at least one semester or summer of volunteer, practicum, praxis, community-based work study, or internship experience related to Child and Family Studies. Students are expected to discuss their placement choices with the CFS Director.

Another requirement of the minor is attendance at minor teas/other gatherings (3-4 times per semester, usually held in the evening) during which topics of interest are discussed. Sessions are facilitated by a range of individuals, including CFS students, affiliated faculty and staff, and guest speakers. Meetings are one hour in length, with times to be arranged.

The final minor requirement is participation during senior year in an annual CFS Poster Session during which students will share highlights of their CFS campus and field-based experiences.
