How do I apply for Bryn Mawr’s need-based financial aid assistance and what are the deadlines?

The financial aid application form and combination of oral forms: the FAFSA and CSS Financial Aid PROFILE is due on or before December 15th, and required if your family includes a noncustodial parent, a business, or a trust. Deadlines vary depending on whether a student is applying early or regular decision. Visit our website for up-to-date application instructions and deadlines: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/undergraduate-applicants.

If I receive need-based financial aid for my first year, will I also get aid in the following years?

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial aid and your academic work satisfies the minimum standards, you will continue to receive financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer, part-time, or full-time employment and the amount of federal loan a student is expected to borrow) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two payment plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those who are not receiving financial aid. An exception is made for those students whose need is more than the amount of Bryn Mawr merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition, fees, and third-year and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, second-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, and first-year students may borrow an additional $1,500.

If I do not qualify for a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional aid during any of your four years at the College. You may apply and will be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Direct Loan Program, every year, whether or not you applied for institutional aid as a first-year student.

To be considered for aid from the College as a first-year student your response to the Federal Financial Aid Intention question on the Common Application must be "Yes." Is it possible to work on campus even if I do not qualify for aid?

Yes. Bryn Mawr students work on campus, and priority to work is given to students who are awarded need-based employment as part of their financial aid package. The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student can apply. The Career Development Office and employers partner with the College’s commitment to meet the full demonstrated need of all eligible students. Our policies are designed to supplement a family’s own resources, so that all students demonstrating eligibility can attend the College with the full amount of assistance that they need.

Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility?

The Federal Direct Loan is a long-term, low-interest educational loan for students. Repayment of the principle and interest begins six months after the student leaves school. There are three types of Federal Direct loans available: Subsidized, in which the interest is paid by the government during enrollment and unemployment, and in which the interest is paid by the student quarterly or accrued during enrollment. To qualify for the subsidized subsection, the student must demonstrate financial need. Financial need is not required to qualify for the Unsubsidized loan. Eligibility is determined by Student Financial Services based on the results of the FAFSA, the total cost of education and the amount of other financial aid the student received.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, will I also get aid?

College policy requires that all federal and state grants, tuition benefits and entitlements replace an equal amount of Bryn Mawr Grant.

Independent students and dependent students whose parents are denied a PLUS Loan also are eligible to apply for an Unsubsidized loan. First- and second-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $4,000. The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial aid received) through the Federal PLUS loan program. Need is not a criterion, but the applicant must be creditworthy. For details about these programs, including loan interest rates, terms, limits and available amounts visit our website: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/current-undergraduate-students/types-aid.

Where can I find other scholarship support?

Funding Your Future

Bryn Mawr College values the financing of private higher education and offers students financial aid assistance from Federal, state, and federal governments, and the institution. We are a partner in making Bryn Mawr education affordable to students demonstrating eligibility for need-based financial assistance.

— Ethel Desmarais, Director of Financial Aid

If you have questions not answered here, please contact:
Student Financial Services
Bryn Mawr College
101 N. Merion Avenue
Bryn Mawr, PA 19010-1999
(610) 526-6842
sfs@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices. The amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices.

Financial Aid Facts 2013–14

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201. The average financial aid package for first-time, full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

If you have questions not answered here, please contact:
Student Financial Services
Bryn Mawr College
101 N. Merion Avenue
Bryn Mawr, PA 19010-1999
(610) 526-6842
sfs@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices. The amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices.

Financial Aid Facts 2013–14

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201. The average financial aid package for first-time, full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

If you have questions not answered here, please contact:
Student Financial Services
Bryn Mawr College
101 N. Merion Avenue
Bryn Mawr, PA 19010-1999
(610) 526-6842
sfs@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices. The amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. This policy applies to all educational programs, activities, and employment practices. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers programs, activities or employment practices.
Bryn Mawr College offers a web-based “Net Price Calculator” which will estimate a student’s need for financial assistance. The calculator works from numbers provided by students and their families. View the calculator on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.
Bryn Mawr College students understand the value of a strong academic foundation and have dedicated themselves to hard work and effort to reaching their educational goals. The College recognizes their effort and reciprocates that commitment by meeting 100% of students' demonstrated need.

Family life—many challenges when making a college decision; there is much to be considered and evaluated. Families face many challenges when making a college decision. Each student’s eligibility is determined by a thorough review of the family’s financial information. This process uses formulas and guidelines which have been carefully developed and are widely used by most of the country’s leading colleges. With these formulas and guidelines, financial aid counselors determine a family’s ability to absorb college expenses over time. An “expected contribution” from the family is established. The student’s own resources are considered along with those of her parents. The student is expected to contribute approximately $2,400 from summer earnings.

What are the costs at Bryn Mawr?

For the 2014–15 academic year:

- Tuition: $44,470
- Room and Board: $14,350
- College Fee: $760
- Self-Government Fee: $320

Costs for the next academic year are announced by the Board of Trustees in February.

Students should also anticipate annual expenditures for books, supplies, and personal expenses. Current estimates of these indirect costs, which are not billed directly to students, are $1,000 for books and supplies and $1,000 for personal expenses for the nine-month period. Actual expenditures depend upon individual needs and vary from student to student. Travel expenses can also add to the cost of a Bryn Mawr education.

What type of financial assistance does Bryn Mawr offer?

Bryn Mawr offers both need-based and merit-based assistance.

Need-based aid is awarded without regard to financial need. Merit-based aid is awarded regardless of financial need. Bryn Mawr offers a limited number of merit-based awards for which all applicants for admission are considered. There is no separate application.

Is Bryn Mawr College "need-blind"?

In 2013–14, the College supported 75% of the entering class with grant assistance, demonstrating a substantial commitment to financial aid. The admissions committee does not have access to a student’s finances when determining her eligibility for admission. Once admisibility is determined, funds are distributed until the financial aid budget has been exhausted. If there are places remaining to be filled in the class, a student’s eligibility for aid may have to be taken into account.

Can Bryn Mawr College provide me with an estimate of my aid eligibility?

Bryn Mawr College provides a web-based “Net Price Calculator” which will estimate a student’s need for financial assistance. The calculator works from numbers provided by students and their families. View the calculator on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid. Fully complete financial aid application instructions are available on our website: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.

The graph below indicates average grant awards only. A thorough review of each family’s situation is required to make a complete aid determination.
How do I apply for Bryn Mawr’s need-based financial aid assistance and what are the deadlines?

The financial aid application is a combination of online forms: the FAFSA and CSS Financial Aid PROFILE, and income documentation. Students must apply for aid by February 15, even if they are not sure whether a student is applying early or regular decision. Visit our website for up-to-date application instructions and deadlines: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/ undergraduate-applicants.

If I receive need-based financial aid for my first year, will I also get aid in the following years?

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance and your academic work satisfies the minimum standards, you will continue to receive need-based aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, off-campus employment, and the amount of federal and state financial aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two parental loan programs are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who do not receive financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving a Bryn Mawr Merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition in the freshman year. Parent PLUS loans may be paid in full by August 1 before the first year. Please visit our website for more information regarding financing options: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.

Would I qualify for a Bryn Mawr education if I don’t have a college degree?

If you are a Bryn Mawr student who is pursuing a degree program other than a bachelor’s degree, there is a possibility of obtaining a college degree at a lower cost. Contact the Admissions Office for more information.

Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility?

In addition to the Federal Direct Loan Program, students may also apply for Federal Direct loan programs for students and parents. The Federal Direct Loan is a long-term, low-interest loan that is paid by the student quarterly or accrued during enrollment. To qualify for this federal subsidy, the student must demonstrate financial need. Financial need is not required to apply for the Federal Direct Loan. Eligibility is determined by Student Financial Services based on the results of the FAFSA, the total cost of attendance and the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grants, scholarships, and tuition benefits. You may apply and be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Direct Loan Program, every year you are enrolled in college or the family's gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, internships, part-time work, and the amount of federal and state financial aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I apply for need-based financial aid, will I also get aid in the following years?

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance and your academic work satisfies the minimum standards, you will continue to receive need-based aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, internships, part-time work, and the amount of federal and state financial aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two parental loan programs are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who do not receive financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving a Bryn Mawr Merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition in the freshman year. Parent PLUS loans may be paid in full by August 1 before the first year. Please visit our website for more information regarding financing options: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grants, scholarships, and tuition benefits. You may apply and be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Direct Loan Program, every year you are enrolled in college or the family's gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, internships, part-time work, and the amount of federal and state financial aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two parental loan programs are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who do not receive financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving a Bryn Mawr Merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition in the freshman year. Parent PLUS loans may be paid in full by August 1 before the first year. Please visit our website for more information regarding financing options: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grants, scholarships, and tuition benefits. You may apply and be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Direct Loan Program, every year you are enrolled in college or the family's gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, internships, part-time work, and the amount of federal and state financial aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two parental loan programs are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who do not receive financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving a Bryn Mawr Merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition in the freshman year. Parent PLUS loans may be paid in full by August 1 before the first year. Please visit our website for more information regarding financing options: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid.

Financial Aid Facts 2013–14

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322. The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.

The average financial aid package for full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.
Financial Aid Facts 2013–14

The financial aid package for full-time, full-year, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201. The average need-based* grant to those who demonstrate need was $22,780. The average self-help portion (Amount Billed – Amount of aid) was $11,421.

Bryn Mawr does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, handicap, age or handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs.

*Need-based financial aid is available to those who meet the College’s definition of need.

If you have questions not answered here, please contact:

Student Financial Services
Bryn Mawr College
1 N. Morin Avenue
Bryn Mawr, PA 19010–2899
(610) 526–5245

afg@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College, a partner with the College Board, keeps a listing of part-time employment opportunities. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priorit to work on campus is given to students who have applied for financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, income from employment and the amount of federal aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two payment plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College for those students who are not receiving financial aid: an option for those students who are receiving aid. Payment plans are extended to those students who do not qualify for aid. These plans offer zero tuition and fees for the summer and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, plus the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time employment opportunities. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priorit to work on campus is given to students who have applied for financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, income from employment and the amount of federal aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two payment plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College for those students who are not receiving financial aid: an option for those students who are receiving aid. Payment plans are extended to those students who do not qualify for aid. These plans offer zero tuition and fees for the summer and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, plus the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time employment opportunities. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priorit to work on campus is given to students who have applied for financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, income from employment and the amount of federal aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two payment plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College for those students who are not receiving financial aid: an option for those students who are receiving aid. Payment plans are extended to those students who do not qualify for aid. These plans offer zero tuition and fees for the summer and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, plus the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time employment opportunities. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priorit to work on campus is given to students who have applied for financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, income from employment and the amount of federal aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two payment plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College for those students who are not receiving financial aid: an option for those students who are receiving aid. Payment plans are extended to those students who do not qualify for aid. These plans offer zero tuition and fees for the summer and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $2,000, plus the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time employment opportunities. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priorit to work on campus is given to students who have applied for financial aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, income from employment and the amount of federal aid a student is expected to receive) may increase each year.
How do I apply for Bryn Mawr’s need-based financial aid assistance and what are the deadlines? The financial aid application consists of the following forms: the FAFSA and CSS Financial Aid PROFILE, tax and income documentation, and a transcript. If your family includes a noncustodial parent, a business, or a trust, deadlines vary depending on whether a student is applying early or regular decision. Visit our website for up-to-date application instructions and deadlines: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/undergraduate-applicants.

If I receive need-based financial aid for my first year, will I also get aid in the following years? If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial aid and your academic work satisfies the minimum standards, you will continue to receive need-based aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply yearly. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer work, campus employment, and the amount of a federal loan that is expected to borrow) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options? Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two parent PLUS loans are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who are not receiving aid from Financial Aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving aid from Bryn Mawr merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition and all educational charges. To be considered for aid from the College as a first-year student your response to the Financial Aid Intent Question on the Common Application must be “Yes”.

Is it possible to work on campus even if I don’t qualify for aid? More than 75% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priority to work on campus is given to students who are awarded need-based employment as part of their financial aid package. The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student may apply. The Career Development Office also awards need-based employment as part of their financial aid package.

Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility? The Federal Direct Loan (a long-term, low-interest loan) is available for undergraduate education for students. Repayment of the principle and interest on these loans begins six months after the last day of attendance at the undergraduate level. Two types of Federal Direct loans are available: Subsidized, in which the interest is paid by the government during enrollment and unemployment, and Unsubsidized, in which the interest is paid by the student quarterly or accrued during enrollment. To qualify for this subsidy, the student must demonstrate financial need. Financial need is not required to apply for the Unsubsidized loan. Eligibility is determined by Student Financial Services based on the results of the FAFSA, the Cost of Attendance, and the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years? You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grant aid during any of your four years at the College. You may apply and will be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Direct Loan Program, even if you do not apply for institutional aid as a first-year student. To be considered for aid from the College as a first-year student your response to the Financial Aid Intent Question on the Common Application must be “Yes”.

If you have questions not answered here, please contact: Student Financial Services Bryn Mawr College 101 N. Merion Avenue Bryn Mawr, PA 19010–1399 (610) 526–5245 af@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. The College administers programs in its employment practices. In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs, activities, and employment practices. The admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs or in its employment practices.

Financial Aid Facts 2013–14

The average “need-based” grant award for first-time, full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $40,322.

If you have questions not answered here, please contact: Student Financial Services Bryn Mawr College 101 N. Merion Avenue Bryn Mawr, PA 19010–1399 (610) 526–5245 af@brynmawr.edu

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age, handicap in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic programs. The College administers programs in its employment practices. In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs, activities, and employment practices. The admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs or in its employment practices.
How do I apply for Bryn Mawr’s need-based financial aid assistance and what are the deadlines?

The financial aid application consists of two forms: the FAFSA and CSS Financial Aid PROFILE, and includes income documentation. If your family income is not available, please provide estimated income. Be sure to file all applications before midnight on the deadline date. If you file late, you may not receive equal financial assistance.

Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and whether a student is applying or early regular decision. Visit our website for up-to-date application instructions and deadlines: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/undergraduate-applicants.

If you receive need-based financial aid for my first year, will I also get aid in the following years?

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance and your academic work satisfies the minimum standards, you will continue to receive need-based aid. Need-based awards are not automatically renewed; students must reapply each year. Financial aid awards may change as a result of annual changes in family circumstances, such as the number of family members enrolled in college or the family’s gross income. Self-help expectations (the amount earned through summer jobs, off-campus employment and the amount of federal and state grant aid) may increase each year.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of tuition payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two prepaid tuition plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who are not receiving financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are enrolling in the Federal Parent PLUS Loan. Students may not receive full aid based on need. These plans offer zero tuition expectations. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Student Financial Services at (610) 526-5245.

Funding Your Future

Bryn Mawr College views the financing of private higher education as a partnership between the student, parents and federal and state governments, and the institution. We are committed to making a Bryn Mawr education affordable to students who demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance.

Independent students and dependent students whose parents are deemed a PLUS loan are also eligible to apply for the Federal Direct Unsubsidized loan. Freshmen and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $4,500.

The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial assistance). The Federal PLUS Loan does not require you to demonstrate financial need, but it’s not a bad idea. You must be a parent of an undergraduate dependent student. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial aid). The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students.

Eligibility is determined by Student Financial Services based on the results of the FAFSA, the total cost of education and the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grant aid during any of your years at the College. You may apply and will be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Pell Grant Program, even if you did not apply for institutional aid as a first-year student.

To be considered for aid from the College as a first-year student your response to the Financial Aid Intent Question on the Common Application must be “Yes.”

Is it possible to work on campus even if I don’t qualify for aid?

More than 50% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priority to work on campus is given to students who are awarded need-based employment as part of the financial aid package. The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student may apply.

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based aid and federal and state grants, tuition benefits and entitlements replace an equal amount of Bryn Mawr Grant.

Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility?

In the private sector, a COLA Loan is a long-term, low-interest loan administered by the College’s Career Development Office, available through the Federal Direct Loan program at 5.36%. The COLA Loan is a private sector loan provided by Student Education Services, a Pennsylvania state-chartered, federally approved SALLSA agency, offers an outside scholarship search service. Check with your high school guidance office, and your parents’ employers may also be good sources.

Eligible Resources and Federal Direct Loan Limits

Whether a student is applying early or regular decision. Application deadlines vary depending on the college or the type of financial aid one is seeking. For more information, please visit the Bryn Mawr Financial Aid office, and your parents’ employers may also be good sources.

Where can I find other scholarship opportunities?

American Education Services, a Pennsylvania state-chartered, federally approved SALLSA agency, offers a scholarship search service. Check with your high school guidance office, and your parents’ employers may also be good sources.

Bryn Mawr College views the financing of private higher education as a partnership between the student, parents and federal and state governments, and the institution. We are committed to making a Bryn Mawr education affordable to students who demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance.

Ethel Desmarais, Director of Financial Aid

Financing Options for Parents

If you do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, will I also get aid in the following years?

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial aid and federal and state grants, tuition benefits and entitlements replace an equal amount of Bryn Mawr Grant.

The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student may apply.

If I do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options?

Bryn Mawr College offers a variety of tuition payment plans, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two prepaid tuition plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who are not receiving financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are enrolling in the Federal Parent PLUS Loan. Students may not receive full aid based on need. These plans offer zero tuition expectations. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Student Financial Services at (610) 526-5245.

Funding Your Future

Bryn Mawr College views the financing of private higher education as a partnership between the student, parents and federal and state governments, and the institution. We are committed to making a Bryn Mawr education affordable to students who demonstrate eligibility for need-based financial assistance.

Independent students and dependent students whose parents are deemed a PLUS loan are also eligible to apply for the Federal Direct Unsubsidized loan. Freshmen and second-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $4,500.

The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial aid). The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students.

Eligibility is determined by Student Financial Services based on the results of the FAFSA, the total cost of education and the amount of other financial aid the student receives.

If I do not apply for financial aid as a first-year student, may I apply in subsequent years?

You must apply for aid from the College as a first-year student to be considered for institutional grant aid during any of your years at the College. You may apply and will be considered for Federal aid, including the Federal Pell Grant Program, even if you did not apply for institutional aid as a first-year student.

To be considered for aid from the College as a first-year student your response to the Financial Aid Intent Question on the Common Application must be “Yes.”

Is it possible to work on campus even if I don’t qualify for aid?

More than 50% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priority to work on campus is given to students who are awarded need-based employment as part of the financial aid package. The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student may apply.

If you continue to demonstrate eligibility for need-based aid and federal and state grants, tuition benefits and entitlements replace an equal amount of Bryn Mawr Grant.

Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility?

In the private sector, a COLA Loan is a long-term, low-interest loan administered by the College’s Career Development Office, available through the Federal Direct Loan program at 5.36%. The COLA Loan is a private sector loan provided by Student Education Services, a Pennsylvania state-chartered, federally approved SALLSA agency, offers an outside scholarship search service. Check with your high school guidance office, and your parents’ employers may also be good sources.

Where can I find other scholarship opportunities?

American Education Services, a Pennsylvania state-chartered, federally approved SALLSA agency, offers a scholarship search service. Check with your high school guidance office, and your parents’ employers may also be good sources.
Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and admission of women only in the Undergraduate College is in conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as administered programs or in its employment practices. and loan programs, and athletic and other College-of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sexual Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis full-time, first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201. Financial Aid Facts 2013–14 If you have questions not answered here, please contact: Student Financial Services Bryn Mawr College 101 N. Morin Avenue Bryn Mawr, PA 19010-1399 (610) 526-5245 eaf@brynmawr.edu Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national or ethnic origin, sexual preference, age or handicap in administration of educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other College-administered programs or in its employment practices. In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, an amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs, activities, or employment practices. The admission of women only in the undergraduate College is in conformity with a provision of the Act. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and any other equal opportunity provision may be directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer who administers the College’s procedure, Taya Hill. How do I apply for Bryn Mawr's need-based financial aid assistance and what are the deadlines? The financial aid application is a combination of online forms: the FAFSA and CSS Financial Aid PROFILE, and income documentation. The CSS PROFILE is only required if your family includes a noncustodial parent, a business, or a trust. Deadlines vary depending on whether a student is applying early or regular decision. Visit our website for up-to-date application instructions and deadlines: www.brynmawr.edu/financial-aid/ undergraduate-applicants.

If I receive need-based financial aid for my first year, will I also get aid in the following years? If you do not qualify for need-based aid, what are our options? Bryn Mawr College offers a monthly payment plan, and parents and students can borrow from the Federal Parent PLUS Loan and the Federal Direct Loan, respectively. Two percent tuition plans are offered by Bryn Mawr College to those students who are not receiving financial aid. An exception is made for those students who are receiving aid, but Bryn Mawr merit funds only. These plans offer zero tuition and third- and fourth-year students may borrow an additional $4,000, and second-year students may borrow an additional $2,000. The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial aid) and/or the Federal Direct Loan program. Need is not a criterion, but the applicant must be a U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen. Financial aid received) through the Federal PLUS loan program. The Federal PLUS Loan is a loan for parents of undergraduate dependent students. Parents may borrow up to the full cost of attendance (less any other financial aid) and/or the Federal Direct Loan program. Need is not a criterion, but the applicant must be a U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen. Are there federally supported loan programs for students and parents, regardless of financial aid eligibility? The Federal Direct Loan Limit is $31,000 for first-time, second-time, and third-time/second-year undergraduates. Federal Direct Loan Limits First Year Second Year Third Year and Fourth Year Unsubsidized $31,000 $55,000 $55,000 $55,000 Subsidized/$55,000 $55,000 $55,000 $55,000 Unsubsidized + $5,500 $5,500 $5,500 $5,500 + $2,000 $2,000 $2,000 $2,000 + $2,000 $2,000 $2,000 $2,000 "Bryn Mawr College views the financing of private higher education as a partnership between the family, state and federal governments, and the institution. We are a member of ASFAA, the American Student Financial Aid Association, which is committed to making a Bryn Mawr education affordable to students and ensure that all students demonstrating eligibility can attend the College with the full amount of assistance that they need. Any additional grant or scholarship aid received by a student would replace a portion of our award to you. Bryn Mawr College does not allow outside grants to reduce financial aid support, including tuition benefits, to replace the parent or student expected family contribution. Note: College policy requires that all federal and state grants, tuition benefits and entitlements replace an equal amount of Bryn Mawr Grant. Where can I find other scholarship support? The Career Development Office keeps a listing of part-time jobs in the community for which any interested student may apply. More than 70% of Bryn Mawr students work on campus. Priority to work on campus is given to students who are first-year students during 2013–14 was $34,201.