Bryn Mawr College’s first LGBTQ+ studies lecture series examines the interwoven histories of sexuality, gender, and race in the United States and the world. These five lectures will consider how a queer or trans lens can reframe the study of science, medicine, politics, social welfare, and migration. This series demonstrates the continued urgency of LGBTQ+ studies to re-orient scholarship across academic fields towards experiences and practices of gender and sexuality that diverge from conventional social norms.

Stephen Vider, Bryn Mawr College
“Some Hearts Go Hungering”: LGBTQ Homeless Youth and Domestic Citizenship
With response by Carrie Jacobs, MSS ’83, Executive Director and Founder, The Attic Youth Center
Tuesday, September 25, 5 PM, GSSWSR Katherine Lower Conference Room

Greta LaFleur, ’03, Yale University
Toward an Environmental Theory of Early Sexuality
Wednesday, October 3, 4:30 PM, Old Library 224

Julio Capó, Jr., University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Undesirables: Queering the History of U.S. Immigration Policy
Thursday, November 1, 4:30 PM, Old Library 224

C. Riley Snorton, University of Chicago
Fleshy Encounters: Black Feminisms and the Mutability of Gender
Tuesday, November 13, 4:30 PM, Carpenter B21

Regina Kunzel, Princeton University
Queer History, Disability History, and the Politics of Health
Thursday, November 15, 4:30 PM, Old Library 224