This riveting panel discussion, sponsored by the Class of 1952, is open to all reunion attendees and guests. Please note that this event will be live streamed and recorded.

Alice Rivlin ’52 is a senior fellow in Economic Studies and the Center for Health Policy. Rivlin, an expert in monetary, fiscal and health policy, served as Director of the Office Management and Budget (OMB) in the first Clinton Administration (1993-96) and Vice Chair of the Federal Reserve Board (1996-1999). She was the Founding Director of the Congressional Budget Office (1975-83) and served as chair of the District of Columbia Financial Management and Assistance Authority (1998-2001). She was director of the Economic Studies Program at Brookings (1983-87). She also served at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation (1968-69). She is currently a visiting professor at the McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown.

In 2010, Ms. Rivlin was named by President Obama to the Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform and also co-chaired, with former Senator Pete Domenici, the
Ms. Rivlin received the Paul A. Volcker Lifetime Achievement Award for Economic Policy from the National Association of Business Economics (2015) and the President’s Medal from Indiana University. In 2015 she also received the Leadership Award from the Economic Club of New York. She has received a MacArthur Foundation Prize Fellowship in 1983 and the Moynihan Prize in 2008. She was named one of the greatest public servants of the last 25 years by the Council for Excellence in Government in 2008. In 2013 she received Robert M. Ball Award for Outstanding Achievements in Social Insurance from the National Academy of Social Insurance. She has taught at Harvard, George Mason, and The New School Universities. She has served on the boards of directors of several corporations, and as president of the American Economic Association.

Daniel Rose, Chairman of Rose Associates, Inc., a New York-based 89-year old real estate organization, has pursued a career involving a broad range of professional, civic and non-profit activities. Professionally, he has developed such properties as the award-winning Pentagon City complex in Arlington, VA and the One Financial Center office tower in Boston, MA. As an institutional consultant, his credits include the creation and implementation of the “housing for the performing arts” concept for New York’s Manhattan Plaza.

Winner of a number of national Cicero Speechwriting Awards, he has been awarded Honorary Doctorates In Humane Letters, Engineering and in Science; and he has been elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. A volume of his talks, Making A Living, Making A Life, was designated by the Kirkus Review as a 2015 “Book of the Year.” Mr. Rose has served as “Expert Advisor” to The Secretary, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and as “Expert/Consultant” to the Commissioner of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and he has served on a number of New York State and City of New York panels and advisory boards on taxation, housing and economic development.

Mr. Rose has served with distinction on many charitable Boards and has received many professional, academic and civic awards, including the NYC Mayor’s Award of Honor for Arts and Culture and the Association of Fundraising Professionals designation as Outstanding Philanthropist of the Year.

2:00pm – 3:00pm Mindfulness and Spirituality panel discussion featuring Liana Donahue ’12, Ekaterina Vlasova ’15, Jessica Winslow ’77, and BMC Professor of Chemistry Michelle Francl – Thomas 110

Liana Donahue ’12 is a certified Usui and Shamanic Reiki Practitioner that has studied under Margarita Alcantara and Jonathan Hammond. Liana utilizes breath work and sound healing in her private practice to silence the mind and induce a transcendent state in her clients. Liana’s journey to spirituality was guided by sacred journeys with the Santo Daimé Church and Peruvian shamans. She has led private and public events in New York City, such as monthly Women’s Circles at World Yoga Center, and recently a Meditation & Self-Care Workshop for teens at the Schomburg Center’s Black Lives Matter Youth Conference. Liana is passionate about bringing mindfulness practices to people of all ages and backgrounds. You can learn more about her work at www.liananaima.com

Ekaterina (Katia) Vlasova ’15 is a former Thomas J. Watson fellow (2015-2016) who studied healing practices which focus on the mind-body connection over the course of her Watson year in Germany, India, Thailand, Japan, and Peru. During her journey, she learned about, experienced, and practiced Ayurveda, Ashtanga yoga, Reiki, mindfulness meditation, community healing programs, traditional Thai massage, acupuncture, and traditional Shipibo Shamanic healing rituals. Currently, Katia is a healthcare innovation fellow with the Health for America Fellowship at MedStar Health in Washington, D.C. and plans to defer her matriculation into Thomas Jefferson University’s medical school to pursue an additional year of independent research and apprenticeship with Shamanic healers in Peru.

Jessica Winslow ’77 has practiced Buddhism for the past 25 years and is a student of the Venerable Thrangu Rinpoche, a Tibetan Kagyu lama. After successful careers in the high-tech and government sectors in New Jersey and Texas, she now works with non-profits, including roles as director of a large urban meditation center and board chair of Austin's Sustainable Food Center. For over 10 years she has taught Buddhist meditation to inmates in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice system. She also developed curriculum and led classes in contemplative photography for incarcerated youth. Jessica was an instructor in English as a Second Language to adult immigrant communities. Her graduate degrees are in City and Regional Planning from Rutgers University and an MBA from the University of Texas at Austin.

Michelle Francl, Ph.D. is professor of chemistry at the College, where she has been on the faculty for more than three decades, and a scholar at the Vatican Observatory. She is a theoretical chemist, interested in the structures of molecules that break the rules, and a writer interested in the intersection between science and culture and in the contemplative life. Her essays on science, culture and policy have appeared in the journal Nature Chemistry, in Slate magazine and Distillations, as well as in several print collections, most recently, The Oxford Companion to Sugar and Sweets. Michelle's reflections on living a contemplative life in the midst of the everyday chaos can be found in a number of print and online venues; a book of her essays, Not By Bread Alone, is due out this fall from Liturgical Press.

2:00pm – 3:30pm  Step Sing Rehearsal – Goodhart Music Room

2:30pm – 3:30pm  “Black at Bryn Mawr” Walking Tour – Meet in Enid Cook ’31 Center Courtyard

Building on the important work done by the project’s co-founders, the current Black at Bryn Mawr Student Archivist has updated the original walking tour to include new sites and stories, drawn from research in the College Archives as well as in-person discussions with community members. The tour highlights sites of racial conflict and conversation on campus in order to illuminate the experiences of Black students, faculty, and staff at Bryn Mawr from 1885 to the present.
3:00pm – 4:00pm  Aging and Retirement panel discussion featuring Marie Bernard ’72, Jennifer W. Campbell, Ph.D., GSSWSR, and Patricia Rizzo ’77 – Dalton 300

Marie Bernard ’72 is the Deputy Director of the National Institute on Aging (NIA) at the National Institutes of Health, serving as the principal advisor to the NIA director, working closely with the director in overseeing over $1.5 billion in aging research conducted and supported by the Institute annually. She co-chairs two Department of Health and Human Services Healthy People 2020 objectives: 1) Older Adults, and 2) Dementias, including Alzheimer’s Disease. Within NIH, she co-chairs the Inclusion Governance Committee of the Extramural Activities Working Group, chairs the Women of Color Committee of the trans-NIH Women in Biomedical Careers Working Group, and serves on the Diversity Working Group.

Until October 2008, she was the endowed professor and founding chairman of the Donald W. Reynolds Department of Geriatric Medicine at the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine, and associate chief of staff for geriatrics and extended care at the Oklahoma City Veterans Affairs Medical Center. She has held numerous national leadership roles, including chair of the Clinical Medicine Section of the Gerontological Society of America, chair of the Department of Veterans Affairs National Research Advisory Committee, board member of the American Geriatrics Society, president of the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education, and president of the Association of Directors of Geriatric Academic Programs. She has lectured and published widely in her area of research, nutrition and function in older populations, and on issues related to geriatric education. She has been recognized for her leadership in geriatrics; in 2013, she received the Clark A. Tibbits Award from the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education, and in 2014 was awarded the Donald P. Kent Award by the Gerontological Society of America.

Dr. Bernard received her undergraduate education at Bryn Mawr College and her M.D. from University of Pennsylvania. She trained in internal medicine at Temple University Hospital, where she also served as chief resident. She has received additional training through the AAMC Health Services Research Institute, the Geriatric Education Center of Pennsylvania, and the Wharton School Executive Development program.

Jennifer W. Campbell, Ph.D., Bryn Mawr College AAEB Representative, GSSWSR.

Jenny holds a Ph.D. in Social Work and Social Research from Bryn Mawr College, as well as a Master’s degree in Social Work from the State University of New York at Stony Brook and a Master’s in Education and Gerontology from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. She completed her undergraduate work at Sarah Lawrence College. A 35-year professional advocate for older adults, Campbell has led the evaluation of numerous aging-demonstration programs, including ones funded by Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, Pew Charitable Trusts, Atlantic Philanthropies, the Administration on Aging, The Pfizer Foundation and Margaret A. Cargill Foundation. She is currently evaluating projects that help regions become more age-friendly. After Hurricane Katrina, Dr. Campbell served as the Director of the Hurricane Fund for the Elderly, an initiative of Grantmakers In Aging (GIA). The Fund was a vehicle for directing philanthropic dollars to reestablishing the older adult services system after Hurricane Katrina in 2005. Dr. Campbell is a lecturer at Bryn Mawr College’s Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research and she also consults for nonprofit organizations.

Patricia L. Rizzo ’77 is an attorney with the law firm of Imperatrice, Amarant & Bell, Newtown Square, Pennsylvania. Following her graduation from Temple University School of Law, she completed a clerkship with Hon. Alex Bonavitacola, Philadelphia County Court of Common Pleas, and worked at firms in and around Philadelphia doing medical malpractice litigation and handling fiduciary matters. She formerly worked as an attorney for SeniorLAW Center in Philadelphia, a legal services agency for low-income seniors, directing its program which provided fiduciary services. Following that, she was the manager of the unit at Philadelphia Corporation for Aging. which handled guardianships and other fiduciary litigation. After obtaining an M.A. in Religious Studies from Villanova University, Pat began teaching the law component in the Master of Science in Church Management program at the Villanova School of Business. This program is designed to equip professionals who work in churches with the special business skills needed for their work in ministry. She also serves as a board member of the Delaware County Literacy Council.

3:30pm – 4:30pm  Campus Grounds Horticulture and Landscape Tour – Meet at Benham Gateway Porch

Dawn DiGiovanni, Associate Director of Facilities for Grounds, will lead a vigorous walking tour of the core campus. Learn about our inventory of more than 3,000 trees and the challenges the College faces in providing long-term health and ultimate replacement. Visit the numerous gardens on campus, the labyrinth, and the pond affectionately known as “Lake Vickers.” The tour will traverse our many hills and stairs, so be sure to wear comfortable footwear. Subject to cancellation in the event of rain.

3:30pm – 5:30pm  “Mirrors & Masks: Reflections and Constructions of the Self” Student-led Tours – Canaday Library, Rare Book Room

Student curators in a recent 360 course cluster produced the current exhibition in the Rare Book Room. The exhibition and accompanying student-authored catalogue considers the role of mirrors, masks, makeup, and masquerade in expressions of the self across the centuries and cultures represented in the College’s Art & Artifacts Collection. Student curators are available to guide your visit of the exhibition.

4:00pm – 5:00pm  “Education: Fostering Social Responsibility in the ‘Post-Fact’ Era” panel discussion, moderated by Dean of the Undergraduate College, Jennifer Walters, and featuring Jennifer Brown ’82, Gabrielle Farrell ’12, and Barbara Powell ’62 – Thomas 110

Jennifer Brown ’82 is Dean and Professor of Law at Quinnipiac University School of Law. After law school at the University of Illinois, she clerked for the Hon. Harold A. Baker, U.S. District Court, and then practiced law in litigation at Winston & Strawn in Chicago. Jennifer entered legal academe as a Bigelow Fellow at the University of Chicago, taught at Emory Law School from 1990–1994, and then joined the Quinnipiac Faculty in 1994. From 1997 until she became dean, Brown also served as Director of Quinnipiac’s Center on Dispute Resolution. Jennifer has been a visiting law professor at the University of Illinois, Georgetown, and Harvard, and for several years she served as a visiting lecturer and senior research scholar at Yale Law School. Her writing focuses on alternative dispute resolution, LGBT legal issues, and lawyers’ professional responsibility. Until the organization fulfilled its mission and happily went out of business, Jennifer served as Secretary on the Board of Directors for Freedom to Marry.

Gabrielle Marie Farrell ’12 currently serves as Deputy Chief of Staff of the Boston Public Schools in Boston, Massachusetts. In this capacity, she advises the Chief of Staff on key issues and helps the Superintendent execute his vision for the district and its nearly 57,000 children and families. Immediately prior, Gabrielle served in the Office of Boston’s Mayor, Martin J. Walsh, as one of his press secretaries, where she advised him on communications and managed social media and media relations. Before her time in Mayor Walsh’s office, she served as a communications associate at Project Bread, Massachusetts’ anti-hunger, non-profit organization.

Before her communications career, Gabrielle received her B.A. in French and Political Science from Bryn Mawr College, where she was a Posse scholar and an M.S. in Corporate and Organizational Communication from Northeastern University. She is also a graduate Harvard University’s Crimson Summer Academy, which taps local high-achieving, economically disadvantaged students, from Boston, Cambridge, and Somerville, to study at Harvard each summer.

Barbara Schieffelin Powell ’62 is an international consultant in curriculum development, teacher education and evaluation. She has evaluated start-up arts programs such as Yo-yo Ma’s Silk Road Connect, the Actors’ Shakespeare Project’s program to bring Shakespeare to incarcerated girls, and a Young Audiences program in which severely disabled and able-bodied students collaborate in art and music. She has worked on several curriculum development and teacher education projects from The Role of Women in American Society to Exploring Humanitarian Law. She developed the teacher education program for Exploring Humanitarian Law, a worldwide curriculum for youth ages 13-18, designed by the Education Development Center and the International Committee of the Red Cross. Translated into 19 languages, EHL has taken her to Jamaica, Thailand, Morocco and Malaysia. As a researcher she has studied high school change for the Coalition of Essential Schools, Brown University; Teach for America’s summer training institute; and teaching for understanding in schools. Previously she taught secondary school English and history in Malawi and the United States. She recently helped The Fabindia School, a pre K-12 school in rural India, move from “by hearting” to teaching for understanding. After service as head of school at Dana Hall in Wellesley, MA, she taught at the University of Bielefeld (Germany), Wellesley College and the Harvard Graduate School of Education. She is co-author of Looking Together at Student Work (third edition, 2015). She received her BA from Bryn Mawr and an MAT and Ed.D from Harvard University.

Dean of the Undergraduate College Jennifer Walters arrived at Bryn Mawr from Smith College, where she was Associate Dean of Community Life, Dean of Religious Life, and co-director of the Women’s Narratives Project. Her first job after college was cleaning exam rooms at a Boston health center. She left the center six years later as the Director of Community Services, a department she created. (You never know where a first job will lead you.)

She studied philosophy at Michigan State University and theology at the Episcopal Divinity School, sparking an interest in social ethics and conflict mediation. Dean Walters has served as the Ombudsperson for the University of Michigan and co-taught courses there in health education and inter-group dialogue. She likes to get outdoors to hike, snowshoe, or row. She is always open to an invitation to play a game of Scrabble.

10:30pm – 11:30pm  Comedy Hour with Lauren Faber ’07, Eman El-Husseini, and Jess Salomon – Goodhart Teaching Theater

All classes welcome!

In first grade, Lauren Faber ’07 wrote that she wanted to be a stand-up comedian when she grew up. Now she’s all grown up and living the dream! Lauren has yet to learn that you can make things up on stage, so get ready for some unadulterated truth about her misadventures as a lesbian globetrotter trying to get a date and save the world. When she isn’t on stage, Lauren works at a university with a justly reviled basketball team in Durham, NC doing all the boring stuff so a brilliant economist can actually save the world.

In 2016 Lauren won the She-Devil Comedy Competition in NYC and the title of Carolina’s Funniest Comic in a competition hosted by Chapel Hill, NC’s DSI Comedy Theater and Greenville, SC’s Alchemy Comedy Theater. Lauren has performed in festivals across the country including the Hell Yes Fest, Cinder Block Comedy Festival, NC Comedy Arts Festival, Cape Fear Comedy Festival, Scruffy City Comedy Festival, Charm City Comedy Festival (as headliner), and Highlarious Comedy Festival. Lauren has featured for Chris Kattan and Chad Daniels, emceed for Godfrey and Jim Breuer, and appeared with Maria Bamford on WUNC’s the State of Things.

4:30pm – 5:30pm  President’s Reception for Slade and Taylor Societies – Goodhart Teaching Theater and Atrium

In recognition of their support, Slade and Taylor Society members are invited to join President Cassidy for a special reception at reunion. Membership in the Slade Society, Bryn Mawr’s leadership giving circle, begins with an annual gift of $2,500 or more. For GOLD (Graduates of the Last Decade), Slade membership equals the number of years since graduation multiplied by $100. The Taylor Society honors and recognizes alumnae/i and friends who have created a future gift for Bryn Mawr by establishing bequests, trusts, gift annuities, and other planned gifts.
