The Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women Workers

The Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women Workers in Industry, designed to give working women the chance to experience higher education, was conducted from 1921 to 1938.

Here are just a few of the resources available to learn more about the school:

Online Resources

- The Summer School for Women Workers: Diversity, Class and Education
  Albert M. Greenfield Digital Center for the History of Women’s Education. http://greenfield.brynmawr.edu/exhibits/show/the-summer-school-for-women-workers/introduction

Video

  ◊ Streaming: https://archive.org/details/thewomenofsummer
  ◊ DVD available at Canaday Library.

Books available at Canaday Library:

College Archives—Special Collections—Canaday Library, 2nd Floor

- Rita Rubinstein Heller Collection. Source material used for The Women of Summer documentary.
- Marion Edwards Park papers. Presidential records of the College during the SSWWI years.
- Summer School for Women Workers in Industry administrative records.