Next stop: the 17th-century Palazzo Borromeo, a prime example of Italian Baroque architecture, offering an impressive collection of art and antiques. It features over 130 paintings and 16th-century Flemish tapestries depicting mythological scenes.

The stunning 18th-century Villa del Balbianello features lush gardens and ornate architecture. Inside, you'll discover more remarkable treasures: a renowned art and antique collection curated by the villa's last owner, explorer and mountain climber Count Guido Monzino. It includes 17th- and 18th-century English and French furniture, paintings on glass, sculptures and unique artifacts from his North Pole and Mount Everest expeditions.
